EDUCATIONAL PIX GET 50% MORE FILM

Washington, April 1.—Producers of educational training and factual films draw a 50% increase in direct allotment of 35mm. raw stock for the second quarter of 1945, the War Production Board has announced. The first quarter allocation totaled 5,000,000 feet. It is up to 7,500,000 feet for the new quarter, and, according to

Edelman, Geller Leaving Warners

Lou Edelman, Warners producer, who recently completed "Hotel Berlin," leaves the studio at end of this week, it was announced yesterday. Edelman couldn't find story material that would enable him to make ore pictures and brought the asso- iation to a peaceful ending. Before going to Warners Edelman was associate producer at Columbia on "A Song To Remember." James Geller, who has been story editor at the Burbank studio for past three years, also announced yesterday he had severed his connection with the studio.

Tully With Gable

Tom Tully has been handed top featured role with Clark Gable in Metro's "Strange Adventure." Conflicting shooting schedule of Selznick's "Duel In the Sun," for which he also was sought, necessitated cancellation of role in latter film.

BERLIN, TOKYO FILM HOUSES BOMBED OUT

Washington, April 1.—The war has cut sharply into the number of film houses operating in Berlin and Tokyo, the U. S. Department of Commerce reports. As of the end of February, it is claimed, only 31 picture theatres still were running in Berlin, the rest having been mostly bombed out. The number may be still lower at present. Before the war there were 400 motion picture theatres in Berlin.

Tokyo shut down 82 of its 224 film houses Feb. 1 to save electricity and fuel and to release the employes for war work. How many have since been destroyed by U. S. bombings is not known.

IA RANK AND FILE MOVE TO END STUDIO STRIKE

Rank and file committees of the IATSE, with the support of a majority of the IA studio business agents, are launching a new peace drive to end the film strike, with the possibility Dick Walsh, IATSE prexy, will be asked to step out of the picture when he returns to the Coast this week. Group claims jurisdictional differences between IATSE Local 44 and the carpenters, machinists and IBEW Local 40 can be quickly ironed out if Walsh and the IA international will let the rank and file IATSE members negotiate their own settlement with the other crafts.

This move developed Friday night at a mass meeting of IATSE members at the Hollywood Legion Stadium, and was quickly followed by the overall strike strategy committee naming a jurisdictional committee with power to act in jurisdictional disputes between the unions. It was pointed out these workers are direct-

'Noon' Author May Pick Off $150,000

When Paramount recently acquired the screen rights to "Blaze Of Noon," a tale sought by practically every major studio, it gave Ernest K. Gann, the author, a conditional-basis deal whereby his total payments may even match the $150,000, the same studio slipped to Ernest Hemingway for "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Both properties were purchased in manuscript form before they went between covers.

JOAN DAVIS GETS BURNS, ALLEN TIME

Contracts were signed over the weekend by Joan Davis and Lever Bros., committing the comedienne to the soap company for a period of four years. She moves into the Burns and Allen time on CBS Monday nights beginning in late September

B'way's Easter Film Biz Lags a Little

New York, April 1.—With summery weather prevailing downtown Broadway film theatres today did good business, though the opening at noon was a bit slow. Yesterday's take, while good, was a bit under expectations, considering that it was a nice day. Good Friday was just pretty good. Among the new Easter shows doing very well are "Practically Yours" and Benny Goodman at Paramount, which leads the parade; "Affairs of Susan" at the Rivoli, and "The Corn Is Green" at the Hollywood. Out in front among holdovers are "Without Love" and the annual Easter special, "Glory Easter," at Radio City Music Hall.

NY LEGIT OPENING

THE GLASS MENAGERIE

New York, April 1.—"The Glass Menagerie" is as fine as Chicago said it is. The two-act, four-person-cast comedy drama is in for a run, by all indications. Eddie Dowling is co-starred with Laurette Taylor, but it's her show by miles. Miss Taylor was the toast of the town in "Peg O' My Heart" and "The Commuters." Now she takes rank with the first actresses of the decade.

She is the mother of a son and daughter living in a flat facing an alley in St. Louis. Girl, Laura, is lame, and mom wants to see her wed. Son Tom brings home another guy who works in a warehouse, but after a too-long romantic scene in the second act he takes the air, saying he's going steady with another girl. It is frustration and probably the play's weakness.

Tennessee Williams takes his place as crack playwright. When they figure the best actress of the season, critical boys can't pass up Laurette, who may cop top honors. Dowling is excellent as son. That goes triple for Julie Hayden.

"Menagerie" is excellent theatre. Anthony Ross does his stuff well, too, as the guy who does and doesn't make Laura. Looks like Dowling will be on 48th st. next door to Frank Fay in "Harvey" for many months to come.

NEW HOME OF KHJ WILL BE ON VINE ST.

Don Lee network has closed for its new studio site—on the west side of Vine st. from Homewood to Fountain, three blocks south of Sunset blvd. On the 90,000 square-feet tract will be erected a two-story building combining all the latest refinements of standard broadcasting and anticipating the needs of television and frequency modulation. Orson Welles' Illness Halts 'Forever' At Int

International's "Tomorrow Is Forever," now in its second week of shooting, was halted last Friday by the sudden illness of Orson Welles, who has been running a temperature and is suffering from a highly-inflamed throat. Claudette Colbert worked one scene Friday, but, because of Welles' absence, Director Irving Pichel was forced to shut down. Even though Welles is still unable to work, a rearrangement of the shooting schedule may permit resumption of camera work today.

Depinet At Phoenix For Convalescence

Ned Depinet, president of RKO distribution, who left Cedars of Lebanon hospital 10 days ago where he had been under treatment following a heart attack, now is recuperating at Phoenix.

Virginia Sale At WB

Virginia Sale, sister of the late Chick Sale, was signed by Werners yesterday for part of a landlady in "Danger Signal," William Jacobs production, directed by Robert Florey.

Kalmenson To Chi

New York, April 1.—Ben Kalmenson, Warners sales chief, trains tomorrow for Chicago and other mid-western key cities for confabs with exchange managers.

CECIL B. De MILLE's actual function on the Lux Radio Theater of the Air, from which he has been barred by the American Federation of Radio Artists, was made the point of a scathing reference by Ken Carpenter, AFRA prexy, who last Saturday, on the Mutual-Don Lee network, replied to the speech of De Mille from Omaha on the same chain. Carpenter took over for Orson Welles, who was confined to his home with a cold. Touching on De Mille's asserted reason for "no longer conducting Radio Theatre of the Air" Carpenter lashed out with "the masquerade has been going on long enough. Mr. De Mille never conducted the program, nor did he produce it, nor did he direct it. De Mille was narrator on the program, came to dress rehearsals on Sunday, read his lines which were prepared for him and returned Monday evening to read them on the air." Carpenter also denied De Mille's statement that "the AFRA board of directors made the assessment without calling the members to meeting. He stated the board voted to levy the assessment and was backed up by the membership. He added that De Mille failed to attend a single meeting in his six years of AFRA membership and that the assumption is taken in the trade that De Mille severed his last tie with radio when he appealed to Congress to have AFRA investigated as an un-American organization.

PARAMOUNT'S Rufus Blair, dean of the Hollywood flackery experts contacting the movie editors of the key-city dailies, isn't letting either the newsprint scarcity or the travel and hotel shortage defeat him. Blair, who made his final until-peace-comes swing-around-the-circuit last Fall, when he discovered that lack of white space was piling unopened photo envelopes from the Hollywood lots high on the editors' desks, is getting his breaks through a series of humorous letters, some of which rate higher in the laugh-making world than the tomes of his pal, H. Allen ("Low Man On a Totum Pole") Smith. The missives are addressed to the movie eds, complaining about the lack pictures of Goddards, Lakes, Huttons and other Par personalities in the publications. They are signed "Old Subscriber," said pay-in-advance-for-a-mail-subscription being the femme keeper of a U. S. lighthouse off the California coast. She's the type of old gal who has been so busy collecting clippings of photos of Par stars that she hasn't yet heard there's a war going on. Blair spends his evenings penning the things, but it is not wasted effort. He's cashing in on the results, and at much less cost to Par than through the years when he had to hit the road thrice annually.

METRO appears to be leading the parade insofar as building of good will between nations is concerned. It announced a regular exchange of players between Culver City plant and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer London Films, in England, several weeks ago declaring this new policy would be inaugurated with coming of Pat Kirkwood from London in about a month, to co-star either with Van Johnson or Robert Walker in "No Leave, No Love." Other English stars will trek to Hollywood for pictures here, and in turn Metro top stars will go to London for same purpose. Company also will release two Mexican-made pictures, "Maria Candelaria" and "El Penon de las Animas," in this country and elsewhere, dubbing both in English for distribution in English-speaking nations. Considerable good will already has been insured throughout Latin America by dubbing in Spanish of "Gaslight" which is reported everywhere it is shown to be setting unusually high grosses. Creation of such good will through motion pictures is expected to be one of subjects discussed in San Francisco when reps from all Allied countries meet in international session later this month.

FRED ASTAIRE has had every dance routine he's ever performed in a picture assembled for the purpose of reviewing all has past dances on screen so he won't duplicate any of the routines for his current "Yolanda and the Thief," at Metro. Material mounts up to approximately 30,000 feet, and requires about five hours to screen. Astaire already has filmed one number for picture, a dream ballet dance with Lucille Bremer, and now is working on two more. All dancing footage hereafter will be added to assembled reels. Current reelage is gleaned from 18 pictures, made at RKO, Columbia and Metro.

In fact, Benny is so delighted with his assignment that he has refused offers of assistance from his radio-writing staff, and is penning the review himself.

"THE Enchanted Voyage" will start off at 20th-Fox with well over $150,000 in story expense charged against it. Robert Nathan book was purchased by studio in 1935 for $30,000. Since that date, at least five producers have worked on it with their writers, in trying to make suitable adaptation for screen, without sufficient success to warrant picture going before cameras. Itremained for Walter Morosco to take property and develop it with Elick Moll doing script, and film now will roll early in June as high-budgeter, with Lloyd Bacon handling direction.

Counter-Attack

(War Drama)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Director, Zoltan Korda. Assistant director, Earl Bellamy. Screenplay by John Howard Lawson. Adapted from the play, "Counter-Attack," by Janet and Philip Stevenson, based upon "Pobyeda" by Ilya Vershinin and Mikhail Ruderman. Director of photography, James Wong Howe, A.S.C. Art direction, Stephen Goosson and Edward Jewell. Set decorations by Robert Priestley. Special effects, Lawrence W. Butler. Special effects photography, Ray Cory. Sound recording, Jack Goodrich. CAST—Paul Muni, Marguerite Chapman, Larry Parks, Philip Van Zandt, George Macready, Roman Bohnen, Harro Meller, Erik Rolf, Rudolph Anders, Ian Wolfe, Frederick Giermann, Paul Andor, Ivan Triesault, Ludwig Donath, Louis Adlon, Trevor Bardette, Richard Hal.

PREVIEWED at Columbia studio, March 30, 1945. Running time: 83 MINS.

Out of a story so simple and episodic as to be almost documentary, clever writing, directing and acting have made "Counter-Attack" a tension-thriller that will keep the audience on seat edge during the greater part of its hour and 23 minutes' running time. As an adventure yarn of tough, fighting men the film should have enough box office appeal to offset possible public reaction against war pictures.

The dramatic suspense is built out of the exploit of one Kulkov, a Russian paratrooper, in holding at bay and grilling for vital information eight German prisoners trapped with him in the cellar of a bomb-battered factory building. Paul Muni, as Kulkov, turns in a superb performance in a difficult role.

Kulkov is one of a detachment of Soviet paratroopers sent out to raid German headquarters, situated in the factory building. They are instructed to capture officers and obtain information regarding an impending German attack.

The raiders, guided to the scene by Lisa Elenko (Marguerite Chapman), girl partisan, capture the factory, but German reinforcements arrive and bombard the building. Kulkov, Lisa and eight Germans are trapped when the stairway to the cellar collapses.

Kulkov, covering the eight with his machine gun, forces them to lay down their weapons. He finds an officer's pistol, though ostensibly his bag of prisoners consists of six privates, a corporal and a sergeant.

The slow-witted, but stubbornly loyal paratrooper, despite the odds against him, sets out to detect the officer and learn from him German plans for attack. He fights off sleep, fights off several attempts on the part of his prisoners to rush him, and refuses to listen to their pleas to let them dig their way out.

In one of the rushes Lisa is incapacitated by a stab wound, and Kulkov is deprived of even her aid.

The officer, Col. Von Stuermer (Harro Meller), finally discloses his identity after Kulkov has led two of the other prisoners into the shadows of the cellar, knocking them out, and tricked the others into thinking he is killing them off, one by one.

Von Stuermer eventually talks the sleep-fogged Kulkov into exchanging information with him—he names the point of German troop concentrations and Kulkov discloses that the Russians plan to attack across a river over a bridge they have secretly built under the surface of the water.

Men arrive to dig them out. They

Swing In the Saddle

(Comedy Western with Song)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Jack Fier. Director, Lew Landers. Assistant director, James Nicholson. Story by Maurice Leo. Screenplay by Elizabeth Beecher, Morton Grant and Bradford Ropes. Directors of photography, George Meehan and Glen Gano. Art direction, Lionel Banks and Charles Clague. Set decorations, John W. Pascoe. Sound engineer, Ed Bernds.

CAST—Jane Frazee, Guinn Williams, Slim Summerville, Sally Bliss, Mary Treen, Red River Dave, Carole Mathews, Byron Foulger, the Hoosier Hotshots, King Cole Trio, Jimmy Wakely and his Oklahoma Cowboys and Cousin Emmy.

REVIEWED at Grauman's Chinese theatre, Hollywood, March 30, 1945. Running time: 68 MINS.

"Swing In the Saddle" is mildly amusing comedy in western setting in which, for once, the singing cowboys seem inclined to let the horse riding and cattle business pretty much alone and stick to their song. But two chase-and-runaway horse sequences and a few flashes of rodeo stock give the show enough western flavor to stamp the locale.

The picture will do all right as the second half of doubles and has moderate box office pull for the minor theatres.

The Hoosier Hotshots, Jimmy Wakely and his Oklahoma Cowboys, the King Cole Trio and Cousin Emmy do characteristic musical numbers in nice style, and Jane Frazee, as Penny Morrow, stage singer brought to the Flying W Ranch by a misunderstanding, is worth listening to in a solo number.

Story is based on a Frontier Day singing contest in which Penny wins for the Flying W at the last moment when the non-professional is circumvented by her engagement to Red River Dave as Steve Barrett, head of the Flying W team.

Slim Summerville, as ranch cook, and Mary Treen as Addie La Tour, Penny's pal who comes out to marry Slim as the result of a "lonely hearts" ad, furnish most of the comedy.

Production by Jack Fier is adequate and Lew Landers' directing keeps the action from lagging too much.

CASSIDY GETS FULL 'MANSIONS' RIGHTS; WILL START WORK

James B. Cassidy yesterday was set with full worldwide rights and New York bank financing with which to proceed with his long-nurtured plan to produce "Green Mansions" as a $2,000,000 production.

Any question as to Harry Gourfain's claim to American rights to the W. H. Hudson novel, so long in public domain in many parts of the world, were ended Saturday when Gourfain, planning to make a modest-budgeter filmization of the book for PRC release, dropped the title from his schedule. Gourfain's retraction of his announcement of three weeks ago came through his attorney, Leon Kaplan.

In his earlier pronouncement, Gourfain pointed out that, while Cassidy held global claims on the tome, there was a loophole in Cassidy's claim to U. S. rights. Upon further investigation PRC's legal department decided to abandon Gourfain's proposed production.

Gourfain's withdrawal from the rights controversy leaves Cassidy free to proceed with his original plan of trying to beat out with a spectacle RKO's Frank Ross, who bought "The Robe." Cassidy, with a script ready for "Mansions," hopes to have the cameras turning within three weeks, while Ross probably will not get under way for some time.

U Preparing Trio of Psychological Thrillers

Apparent trend for psychological thrillers finds Universal preparing to start on three of the soul chill dramas—"Uncle Harry," with Geraldine Fitzgerald, George Sanders and Ella Raines in the cast; "The Third Eye," to be produced by Joan Harrison, and "Black Angel," Cornell Woolwich story to be produced by Islin Auster.

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The audacity of our landing on Okinawa so close to the Japanese home islands and our ability to land without losing a vessel and to advance over ground where we expected to fight makes it appear we've over-estimating the length of time it will take a defeat Japan. I've never thought the Japanese were anywhere near the military power that was Germany, nor that they are smart enough to be able to meet an unexpected development with a successful defense. They can't improvise. They are lost when things don't happen according to the book. Of course they do fight back like mademen, like cornered beasts. But they think like animals, too. What's more, the Japanese have lost face now so that Koiso should soon have to follow Tojo to the shadows. I do not mean the war with Japan will be over soon, since it takes a certain length of time to round-up some millions of fanatics. But it looks now as if we can finish it within another year. . . . The story of the plot of the German High Command to surrender to the Allies is probably true. I've said that the German high Command has known the war was lost ever since we entered it. I know that from one member of the command, who said so—privately—in December, 1941. But the Nazis also have known how the High Command feels. That was the reason for the purge after the Hitler assassination attempt last year, and the reason for the von Rundstedt retirement recently. Since the Nazis know this, they have put SS men in key posts everywhere, to try to utilize the military skill of the Junkers to the last, while watching them. The main gangsters can't quit, but they are naturally weakened by fearsome Junkers and quaking lower-rung Nazis. Even so, the war in Europe still has weeks to run, maybe a couple months.

HARRY JAMES is scheduled to rake in a sizeable profit on "I'm Beginning To See the Light," the tune which jumped from seventh to number one position on the Hit Parade Saturday night. James, in addition to composing the number in collaboration with Duke Ellington, has a 25% interest in Grand-Wemar, the firm which published the tune. On top of this, the James recording of "I'm Beginning To See the Light," which he did for Columbia as his first pressing after the Petrillo ban was lifted, is the best-selling record James has had since he formed his band five years ago. It is estimated that the band leader will net $100,000 for himself on the tune.

It's an old American custom to give every man his day in court. So it's only fit and proper to turn over this space to KFI in defense of its policy on commentators. The station has been belabored on all sides since the purge of six commentators but its reasons were never officially explained. You may or may not agree with Bill Ryan's summing up of its case but nonetheless, in all fairness, he should be heard. So take over Bill.

"A radio station has a definite responsibility and duty to the public. KFI has always endeavored to fulfill this responsibility by maintaining a high standard of broadcasting. The Supreme Court of the U. S. in a recent decision stated that a station is obliged to reserve to itself 'the final decision as to what programs will best serve the public interest.'

"Many commentators deliberately make controversial issues out of factual news stories. By stirring up controversy or making attacks on prominent individuals they seek to develop an audience for themselves. There is an important place in radio broadcasting for the discussion of controversial issues, but when such issues are aired it should be done fairly, factually and as impartially as possible. That is our aim. This can best be accomplished by means of a forum or round table type of program. This station will continue, as in the past, to provide time for the discussion of controversial questions by means of forum programs or in other impartial manner.

"Therefore, in order to maintain our standard and be impartial, sponsorship of all local commentators was discontinued. This policy applies only to KFI. KFI will continue to carry the commentators of NBC. No issue of free speech is involved in the discontinuance of sponsored commentators. KFI has always been strictly non-partisan and no preference is given to any individual or group interests. KFI does not have any editorial policy. The only news broadcast over this station is that which is received through the world-wide news services. KFI contracts with these news gathering agencies to furnish it their full and complete service just as they do for the daily newspapers. This news is not changed before broadcasting. Under our policy KFI listeners are assured that they will get all the important news impartially analyzed and that there will be no attempt to influence public opinion on any question."

This has been a crazy season so crazy things continue to happen. In signing off for Camel cigs Friday night, the announcer for Durante & Moore intoned, "listen in again next Friday night, same time but a new sponsor." Inquiry at KNX as to identity of the client brought a slightly puzzling, "we won't know for sure until Monday or Tuesday." So all we can do is guess and we're sending in our chips on United Drug, which lost out on the Joan Davis deal. Our second choice is Campbell Soup on the assumption that tempers have cooled and both parties yielded on touchy points.

STATION BREAKS . . . Lewis Allen Weiss grabbed off Linc Dellar's KXOA in Sacramento as the 30th link in the Don Lee chain. . . . NBC's "Parade of Stars" will be held next Monday night at Beverly Hills hotel, with the chain taking bows for its promotion campaigns. . . . Sander Heyman's own production of "This Is My Best" is a baby girl weighing eight pounds, three ounces. He's the Cresta Blanca adv. and promotion boss out this way. . . . All is not sweetness and light between Ginny Simms and her bosses and it wouldn't surprise if she appeared under different auspices next fall. . . . Walter Huston will play host on tonight's Lux airing. . . . Bill Ryan of KFI is tiffing with Hooperatings. . . . Prexy Harry Batten of N. W. Ayer is sounding out the nets for available time in the fall for three new programs from here.

Call in your bids, boys, there'll be no Judy Garland show next fall. Her home studio, Metro, has decided against it with finality. It is a bitter disappointment to the young singer as she had a firm offer of $7,500 a week for herself and Sunday time so it wouldn't interfere with her picture work. What's behind Metro's reasons for keeping her off the air is anyone's guess and everyone's guessing. Borden's among others had their hopes dashed for a big musical next season but it's all over now.

HITCH HIKES . . . A low, sweeping bow to the Jordans, Jim and Marion, who next week start their 11th year on the air as "The McGees." Bill Lewis heads for home now that Mann Holiner's producer contract with the Eddie Bracken show has been properly autographed by all parties. . . . Elsa Maxwell will spill the dope on the social doings at the United Nations Conference over the Mutual-Don Lee span. . . . Budget on the Nelson Eddy show gets jet-propulsed April 15 when Jeanette MacDonald teams up with her old running mate. Fee jumps from around $300 to $5,000. . . . Jean Goldkette, veteran maestro, airs his new band over Mutual-Don Lee on Saturday nights from Detroit beginning April 14. . . . Eleanor Wilson McAdoo will cover the United Nations conference for KFWB.

DON LEE BUYS SITE FOR NEW STUDIO ON VINE ST.

ment runs around $750,000, and Lewis Allen Weiss, general manager of the Coast chain, who negotiated the deal with his aide, Willet Brown, is hopeful of early fall groundbreaking.

Pending availability of men and material for construction of the project, engineers will blueprint the layout and sketch the floor plan. Structure will contain four audience studios, each with a seating capacity of from 400 to 500, with an additional six smaller studios. Production and programming will be quartered on the first floor and administrative and executive offices on the second. Stages will be larger than the present ones for speedy conversion to television.

HOW IT'LL BE BUILT

Weiss is approaching construction of the new studio from the unorthodox angle of sketching the floor plan first and then enclosing the interior with the structure. An engineering firm will be called in to sketch the layout from a functional standpoint. After the offices and studios have been given their space and design, architects and builders will follow with plans for the construction. It has been customary in the past for erection of the edifice and then the allotment of space for the various departments.

Lease on the present site of Don Lee on Melrose ave., bought last year by RKO, expires at year's end, but the picture company will extend the occupancy until the new studio is completed.

BLUE DEAL SOON

Blue Network is expected to pick its new studio location within the next two weeks. Prexy Mark Woods is due in this week and will look over the sites earmarked by Don Searle, western division head. Understood chain is partial to the vicinity of Sunset and Vine to be within the sphere of network concentration. One of the corners at Sunset and Vine has been under consideration, and Judge Harlan Palmer, owner of the two sites, is said to be disposed to make a deal in the interests of anchoring the radio industry in that vicinity.

New 'Rhythm' Faces

Additions to the cast of "Rhapsody In Rhythm" were announced by Paul Small over the weekend. Set for the revue are Timmie Rogers, Dynamite Jefferson, Bud Harris and Jenkins and Dusty Fletcher. All-sepia show, starring Ethel Waters, is slated to open at the Mayan Friday night.

SPU ASKS STUDIOS FOR AN INTERIM AGREEMENT

Screen Players Union is sending a letter to producers asking that the major companies meet with SPU to draft an interim agreement on extra work, in compliance with new supplemental decision of the National Labor Relations Board. Letter requesting immediate negotiations was sent to E. J. Mannix, prexy of the Producers Association, by Mike Jeffers, SPU business representative.

SPU board of directors meets tomorrow to discuss proposed interim agreement that will be submitted to company execs. Jeffers pointed out that NLRB modification limiting SPU jurisdiction to extra work is certain to result in confusion for production heads. He pointed out that stock players, if called as actors, must belong to Screen Actors Guild, and if called for extra work they must be affiliated with SPU.

Jeffers declared exclusion of adjustments on sets for extras would prevent players from "cheering" or otherwise ad libbing, and that production would have to be stopped while assistant director called SAG members. He said although an interim agreement would be sought on extra work, SPU intended to petition the NLRB for reconsideration and to push its demand for an investigation of the board's action, which he claims violated all provisions of the Wagner Act.

Chapman Borrowed For MacMurray Film

Marguerite Chapman yesterday was named by Mutual Productions to appear opposite Fred MacMurray in "Pardon My Past," which goes before the cameras within the next two weeks at General Service studios. Miss Chapman takes the role on loan-out from Columbia, which will release this initialer for the new Leslie Fenton-MacMurray indie setup.

IA RANK AND FILE SEEK PEACE AS STUDIOS KEEP UP PRODUCTION

ly involved, know the problems better than Walsh and the IA international, and could sit down with the committees from the carpenters, machinists, electricians, etc., and reach an amicable accord that would terminate the studio walkout.

WALSH RETURNING

Although he was unable to reach an agreement with the carpenters at parleys in New York, there was some doubt that Walsh would be willing to turn over settlement of the jurisdictional problems to the rank and file, although they are the ones directly affected. This will not be determined until Walsh returns from New York tonight or tomorrow.

In the meantime, rank and file groups from Local 44 are meeting tonight with various IATSE studio business representatives to discuss the possibility of rank and file committees settling the various grievances. There was some talk that Walsh might try to issue new charters for painters and carpenters, but this was discounted by labor tops who said such action would be illegal since jurisdiction of various internationals was clearly set out in charter grants from the American Federation of Labor.

PRODUCTION CONTINUES

Meanwhile, producers declared production in studios would continue, that 25 pictures are in work and that six new ones are scheduled to start this week. Following meeting of company heads here and in New York it was stated everything possible will be done to continue making pictures. Statement from producers follows:

"Simultaneous meetings of motion picture company presidents in New York and studio heads in Hollywood, with subsequent discussions by telephone between the two groups, were held over the weekend to survey conditions after three weeks of the strike in studios. Both groups announce unanimous decisions that the studios shall be kept open and that production shall continue.

"A survey of production showed that three new pictures were started last week and that a total of 25 are in work. Five more pictures will be started Monday, and a sixth will get under way on Thursday.

PRODS' POSITION UNCHANGED

"The producers declare their position in the jurisdictional dispute remains unchanged. Only one small group, Set Designers Local 1421, is admittedly on strike. The great bulk of employes realize that it is only a technical difficulty over union control and that no employer-employe problems are involved. The producers can only hope that the leaders of this strike, which has been called 'unjustified' by the head of the AF of L and a 'flagrant disregard of labor's no-strike pledge' by the War Labor Board, will see fit to abide by the War Labor Board's demand that the men be ordered back to work until a decision is reached by the National Labor Relations Board.

"In view of our obligation to our loyal workers, and in recognition of our duty as a war-essential industry, the company and studio heads pledge that everything possible will be done to continue making motion pictures.

PICTURES FOR SOLDIERS

"We are particularly concerned that a continuing flow of new features and short subjects be delivered to the armed forces overseas. It is not generally realized that, although the industry has a limited backlog of films for domestic release, practically all of those pictures which are suitable for the maintenance of morale already have been sent to our fighting men.

"From Hollywood's entire product as it is completed, often many months in advance of general release, the Army selects three feature pictures each week for the theatres of war, with one more added for non-combat areas. These are shown to a nightly audience around the world officially estimated at 1,450,000 Americans in uniform. This industry's gift program has furnished 28,000 prints of feature films to date and the producers are determined that this essential service shall continue."

WALSH OFFERS CONCESSIONS

Stating he is willing to make some concessions to carpenters, with whom the machinists and IBEW are stringing along against the IATSE, but that he can't permit them to go whole hog, Dick Walsh plans returning to the Coast today in a further effort to straighten out the mess. Meantime, or as soon as transportation can be arranged, C. B. DuVal, business representative of IA Local 44; Joseph Cambiano, international veepee, and James Skelton, business representative of the carpenters, are coming back to the Coast following two-day sessions in New York, but William Hutcheson, international prexy of the carpenters, will remain east for a while at least, awaiting developments. Pat Casey, producer labor contact, will leave Gotham in a day or two.

Walsh was reported from New York as disappointed over his inability to reach an agreement with the other unions on jurisdictional matters. He declared he was willing to turn over some set construction and conceded that carpenters were entitled to work in Coast mills. However, he added, demands were made covering all woodworking machinery and all labor in connection with wood and substitutes, including making of miniatures.

1,500 AT IA MEETING

More than 1,500 IATSE members attended rank and file mass meeting Friday night, at which Bob Ames, prop maker at Republic, presided. Speakers included Carl Gidlund, Jess Sapp, George Merhoff, Jr., Dick Holman, Gene Mailes, Sam Callen, Bert Miller, Irwin P. Hentschel and George Stoica. It was stressed that meeting was not called for the purpose of recruiting IA members to violate orders of international to work in other jurisdictions, but to explore possibility of finding some way of reaching agreements on jurisdictional matters and terminating the studio walkout.

Speakers stressed there was still the basis for settlement and that it could be handled more quickly and more satisfactorily by the rank and file membership than by Walsh and the international. With tears flowing down his cheeks, Dick Holman, a war veteran, told of his experience in fighting for democracy, "only to return and find this." Many IATSE business agents attended the meeting in an unofficial capacity.

Tight picket lines still were being maintained around the various studios, with physical flareups reported at several, and added police crews being assigned to keep down trouble. Ray H. Webb, 38, and W. H. Webb, 50, brother members of IA Local 44, were injured in front of Paramount when they assertedly became involved in an altercation with pickets on duty there. They were treated at Hollywood Receiving hospital, while others received injuries too slight to necessitate hospital treatment. W. E. Fredericksen, 50, and Anthony E. Schiavone, 28, were held on battery charges after the flareup.

Various rumors were being circulated over the weekend, one to the effect that the electricians planned to return to work. This was denied by members of the strike strategy committee, which declared the decorators, designers, painters, machinists, carpenters and electricians would remain out until all problems were settled.

COL PUSHING NINE PIX IN MONTAGUE SALES CAMPAIGN

New York, April 1. — Columbia will put pressure behind nine features during its Abe Montague 20th anniversary sales campaign, which opened in mid-March and will continue through June 28. They are "A Song To Remember," starring Paul Muni and Merle Oberon, which is being sold apart from Col's set program; "Tonight and Every Night," headlining Rita Hayworth; "Counter-Attack," "Over 21," "A Thousand and One Nights," "The Fighting Guardsman," "The Power of the Whistler," "Rough, Tough and Ready," and "Boston Blackie Booked On Suspicion."

Montague, commenting on the campaign today, said that in the 20 years he has been with Columbia he has seen it grow from a modest, even humble position in the industry, to one of distinction and importance.

"Twenty years ago our product reflected our smallness," he declared, "but today it is a true reflection of our development into a far-flung enterprise. Twenty years ago we were a handful of people; now we Columbians are numbered in the thousands.

"We began with a few exhibitor accounts, and today our many thousands of exhibitors are a source of pride.

"Ours is a typical story of American industry, and this, too, is a source of great pride."

CURFEW, BROWNOUT, BAN ON RACING GO ON V-E DAY

Washington, April 1.—The curfew, racing ban and brownout go out the window immediately after V-E Day, James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization and reconversion, disclosed last night in his second annual report to the President and Congress.

More gasoline will be made available to the public and there should be increasing fuel supplies, so that theatres probably will have enough all over the country next winter.

Byrnes said, however, that travel restrictions will have to be continued for a while, but may be modified. This probably means lifting a portion of the ban on conventions.

"To have manpower, coal, transportation and services," he said in a portion of the 25,000-word report,

"I found it necessary to request certain restrictive measures. Race tracks were closed. The holding of group meetings not essential to the war effort and involving the travel of more than 50 persons was prohibited.

"The War Production Board was asked to reduce electricity used in advertising at night. The Office of Defense Transportation was asked to curtail excursion trains. Places of entertainment were asked to close at midnight throughout the United States.

"I regretted the necessity for these measures because I realized they were irritants to a war-weary public. Realizing the inconvenience they would cause to the public, I delayed these measures until I believed they were necessary to bolster lagging war production. We cannot expect our people to conserve in their homes unless the government prevents the use for non-essential purposes of the materials they are asked to conserve.

"These measures are emergency measures. The demands upon transportation after V-E Day may require the measure restricting travel to be continued. It may be modified. The other conservation measures should be withdrawn on V-E Day."

The Byrnes report appears definitely to have spiked the manpower compromise bill, although the report calls for its adoption.

are talking in German. Von Stuermer cries out to them the news of the bridge, but Kulkov promptly shoots him down. The debris closing the cellar is cleared away and the rescuers are revealed as a Russian detachment using German prisoners for the digging. Kulkov collapses in sleep on a stretcher after the wounded Lisa has been removed and just as he is protesting that "a man can stay awake for months."

Meller as Von Stuermer, Rudolph Anders, Frederick Gierman, Paul Andor, Philip Van Zandt, Ludwig Donath, Ivan Triesault share credit with Muni for keeping dramatic and suspenseful scenes that would drag with inept handling.

Korda's direction and John Howard Lawson's screenplay keep up the vivid interest naturalistically and without the use of hokum.

William Goetz, International Pictures' prexy, has been named chairman of the motion picture division of the United Jewish Welfare Fund for 1945. He succeeds Walter Wanger.

SHERMAN SETS NEW 'HOPALONG' DEAL; BOYD DUE BACK

Harry Sherman has set a new 11-year deal with Clarence E. Mulford, author of the "Hopalong Cassidy" yarns, and will shortly resume production of the series. William Boyd probably will return to the Sherman fold to again take up the tile role in the oaters.

Sherman, who has been inactive for more than a year in so far as production is concerned, also will turn out a new group of high-budget features. He has the vehicles and the talent ready, and now is awaiting only the receipt of his raw stock priority.

His last pictures were "Buffalo Bill" and "Woman of the Town," which were released in the spring of 1944.

During his absence from the filming field, Sherman has been active in the management of California Studios, which he has under lease.

EDUCATIONAL AND FACTUAL PIX GET 50% FILM BOOST

WPB, probably will go higher in the third quarter.

The Industrial Film Producers Industry Advisory Committee, huddling with WLB last week, pointed out that the overall consumption is less than pre-war even with extra footage turned over to the industrials by the Army and Navy added in.

The industrial group gets large extra allotments from the armed forces for pix made to order for the services. WPB pointed out, however, that many of the companies are doing a far larger business than before the war, due to Army-Navy orders. Future allocations are to be developed on a system using 1941 and 1944 as the two base years.

The educational and factual producers also use large quantities of 16mm. stock, and WPB commented: "Because of increased military demands, supplies of 16mm. color film are tighter than ever before and 16mm. negative film continues to be scarce in relation to demand, but supplies both of 16mm. and 35mm. positive are less scarce than a few months ago since military demands for positive film have recently lessened. It is, however, impossible to estimate future requirements for 16mm. positive film."

Republic Will Build Small Skating Rink

Herbert J. Yates will construct addition to Republic's new Music bldg. to house small ice skating rink as soon as priorities on building material are lifted. Rink will be used for working out skating routines in future Vera Hruba Ralston pictures, it is understood, as well as to provide skating studio employes with opportunity to practice their skill. Steam room will be part of new addition.

PETE SMITH WINS SECOND STRAIGHT SAFETY AWARD

Pete Smith yesterday was notified that his Metro briefie, "Safety Sleuth," has been designated by the National Safety Council as "the best motion picture on occupational safety released during 1944, as well as the best picture on any safety subject produced primarily for theatrical showing." Smith's victory marks the first time in the history of the Council's annual awards that the same producer had won the plaque for second consecutive year.

His "Seventh Column" captured the Council's silver trophy for 1943.

The award is offered annually for the film contributing the most to public safety, and comes as a result of balloting of a committee representing 17 national organizations.

More Withdraw Than Join Actors Guild

Withdrawals from the Screen Actors Guild last month were larger than the number of new players accepted, although there was a rush by players to get Class A Junior cards. There were 210 withdrawals, of which 33 were for military purposes, compared to 197 new admissions, including 17 reinstatements from military withdrawals and 45 New York affiliations. During the month 125 Class A Junior memberships were approved. Military withdrawals included Mickey Rooney, while list of reinstatements from previous military withdrawals carried name of Jack Holt.

Obituaries

MAX HOFFMAN, JR.

New York, April 1.—Friends of Max Hoffman, Jr., 43, stage and film comedian and son of Gertrude Hoffman, today were making arrangements for his funeral following his death early yesterday in his hotel room. His wife, Luana, had found him unconscious on the floor, and he expired before medical aid arrived.

Police said Hoffman, who had been in the cast of the recently-closed legiter, "Good Night, Ladies," had been suffering from a stomach ailment.

He appeared in many films following his arrival in Hollywood in 1936. He also was seen in the Broadway productions of "Good News," "Sweet Adeline" and "Captain Jinks."

Hoffman, years ago, worked for Variety.

Interment will be in Waco, Texas.

and takes over the current B & A product, Swan soap.

Burns and Allen were offered Lipton's tea by Lever and NBC time but scorned the offer and made immediate demands for release from their contract, which has three years to run.

Contract with Lever, negotiated by the William Morris agency for Miss Davis, gives her complete control of the package and terms similar to those recently offered by United Drug. Understood deal calls for $17,000 per week on straight two-year spread, with increases of $1,000 for each of the succeeding two years. A sizeable sum, said to be around $100,000, will be spent yearly for exploitation. Deal involved only Miss Davis and no one else currently identified with her Sealtest program. She will have the exclusive and final say-so on what goes into her show, and will choose her own writers and director.

Paul Mantz leaves this week for the east to pick up a specially-designed helicopter, which he will fly back here for use in filming Columbia's "The Bandit of Sherwood Forest." Fan-topped craft will be equipped with cameras on its arrival here.

The flying "sky boom" will be put into service the first week in May for lensing of a scene in which 1,000 men-at-arms will lay siege to a castle in Col's Technicolor production.

Indicating the versatility of the new aerial "boom," the show calls for the camera to start with a close-up of Cornel Wilde, portraying Robin Hood's son, then climb to a 300-foot altitude for a stationary birdseye view of action by the army.

Tests already made have demonstrated that the helicopter supplies a vibrationless platform which can be held stationary even in a normal wind.

NY LEGIT OPENING

A PLACE OF OUR OWN

New York, April 2.—Royale theatre first-nighters spent an uncomfortable evening tonight watching Elliot Nugent as an author (not actor) struggling far beyond his depth in "A Place of Our Own." Play, describing effect on small-town group of Woodrow Wilson's vain attempt to enlist the United States in the League of Nations, obviously to point up a parallel with today's events, is dull and preachy.

With no punch or drama to its message, play is a pale reflection of past events. It has no place here. Some dialog is amusing, but play in main is synthetic and strained. So is the acting.

Nugent's direction (he took time off from "Voice of the Turtle" acting chores) is static. But like a good son, he gave father J. C. Nugent some of play's funniest lines, which J. C. got off commendably. Robert Keith, Jeanne Cagney, John Archer and Mercedes MacCambridge also are in the cast. Lucinda Ballard's 1919 costumes proved interesting, as did Raymond Sovey's set.

SOL LESSER has a headache over the "big name" star problem involved in the filming of "Paris Canteen"—not because the biggies are not available but because there are too many of them too available. Foreign stars, mindful of the success of "Stage Door Canteen" and convinced that the forthcoming production will create an equal, if not greater sensation, are besieging Lesser for a chance to appear in the film. They look upon the picture as an American showcase for their talent. Lesser announced yesterday that both Hollywood and foreign units are being organized for production of the film. Story sequences will be filmed here and specialties will be shot in New York, London and Paris, mostly in Paris. The Paris shots will be made in the Joinville studios if it turns out that they are still standing. If not, the scenes will be filmed at the Paris Canteen itself.

RECENT formation of an advisory board at Universal has dragged that studio's production executives (executive producers to you) out from under the bushel, and cast them into the sunlight. For several years there has been an iron-clad rule on the valley lot to the effect that no executive producer was to be publicized, but things have changed since the plant's new operative committee, which meets each morning, and which includes Cliff Work, as chairman; George Bole, Harold Brewster, John Joseph, Edward Muhl, Martin Murphy, Robert Sparks and Robert Speers, swung into action. Exec producers, whose lights have been kept under cover in the past, include Harold Benedict, Edward Dodds, Robert Faber, Milton H. Feld, Joseph Gershenson, Ben Pivar, Milton Schwarzwald and Howard Welsh.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

When the body is discovered on the highway
And the early April morn is bleak and pale,
The police are foiled at every turn and byway
Till the radio detective hits the trail.

For it seems the cops who labor for the city,
On the radio, are thick beneath the hat,
While the private dick, intelligent and witty,
Figures out the hardest problem, just like that.

He is on the job when crime is dark and gory,
He can tell you when and why the deed was done.
While the private dick is grabbing all the glory
The policeman's lot is not a happy one.

Sometimes, when listening to detective mysteries on the air, you feel a secret yearning. You crave to hear a story in which the cops solve the murder and wind up laughing at Alec Smart, the scientific sleuth, who has pulled a boner for the first time in his snooty career.

It is easy to understand why Metro has had so much trouble with the Jody role in "The Yearling." When your old man was a young squirt, a jody meant the same as a jinx.

TRADESHOWN at Warners Beverly theatre, March 29, 1945. Running time: 80 MINS.

It will have to be Jack Benny's name that draws them through the turnstiles on Warners "The Horn Blows At Midnight," a comedy-fantasy that slipped up somewhere along the production line. The picture just doesn't click on its own.

The yarn, based around a not-too-good trombone player who is pushed into a radio station orchestra due to the manpower shortage, listens to the soothing coffee commercials and falls asleep. He hurriedly, in his dream, moves into Heaven, where he is confronted with the Heavenly equivalent of the Hollywood studios' "front offices," business managers and what-have-you-that-Hollywood hasn't-got. It's all done in bad taste, to say nothing of what the result will be on the Benny prestige as a result of making him a 25-year-old.

Throughout the first two reels the preview audience—and most of 'em were paying customers—sat on their hands, then the offering turned into a surprise Abbott-Costello affair, with Benny playing both comedian Costello and straightman Abbott. It was Benny dangling over the rampart of a 40-story N. Y. hotel—dangling from the ankles of two or three others—that finally started the mirth. When it came, it was from the stomach, belated as it was.

Mack Sennett, Harold Lloyd and a lot of other old comic-makers used the gags long before the coming of Abbott and Costello, to accomplish the same purpose.

Benny works hard to lift himself above a poorly plotted script, and many of the haw-haws in its closing footage are due solely to the fact that he has risen above a badly-mutilated script—mutilated no doubt on the demands of the Hays office, where the satirizing of things referring to after-life don't rest so well. The balance of the cast, including Alexis Smith, who shared co-starring honors with Benny, follows in his trail but gets nowhere, due to what turns into a jigsaw puzzle screenplay after the blue-penciling that came from the censors.

Benny, set in the broadcast ork, then slumbering, finds himself the REVIEWED at the Pantages theatre, Hollywood, April 2, 1945. Running time: 67 MINS.

"Eadie Was a Lady" has only dancing and singing by Ann Miller to recommend it. Joe Besser's familiar "oh, fudge" antics also help in the laugh department. Otherwise it's a tired backstage story that winds its way wearily to the inevitable conclusion under fatigued direction by Arthur Dreifuss. A couple of snappy production numbers with Miss Miller tapping successfully give a lift to story sags, but it rates only supporting bookings in all but the lesser spots.

Miss Miller is a Boston deb, attending an exclusive school in New York. She wants to be an actress and takes a burlesque job nights. The impresario of shakes and wiggles falls for her and soon pushes the ambitious Bostonian to star spot in the show. She's having a tough time trying to keep her two lives separated, but inevitably her secret comes out. Her boy friend saves the day by staging a combination of Greek classical dancing and hot jiving for the school and the Bostonians forgive and cheer.

Cast members without musical spots are handicapped and do not surmount the barriers. Besser works with Jimmy Little in a bit of funning typically slapstick that is good for laughs. William Wright tries hard as the burley producer. Jeff Donnell, Marion Martin, Kathleen Howard, Tom Dugan, Douglas Wood and Hal MacIntyre's orchestra round out credited cast.

Michel Kraike produced. Burnett Guffey's photography is only fair and other technical credits are standard for budget expenditure.

'CRIME, INC.' DRAWS BAN IN CHICAGO; PRC APPEALS

Chicago, April 2.—Chicago police motion picture censor board underlined its distaste of portrayals of crimes of violence on the screen again today by banning "Crime, Inc." PRC film is rehash of New York's well-known mob, "Murder, Inc."

PRC exchange execs here are appealing the board's ruling to Police Commissioner James Allman. Film men are surprised at the board's latest ukase in view of the fact that "Crime" already has been passed by New York state censor board without a cut. Film originally was scheduled for midwest preem at Balaban & Katz's Garrick theatre last week.

This is the second picture on crime and corruption in a big United States city rejected by the board in the past two months. The other was Monogram's "Dillinger," which still is on the shelf awaiting a decision by Allman.

Board also announced it pinked "Garransson's Boy," Swedish film released by Scandia, Inc., and announced that 15 cuts were made in 87 pix (357,000 feet) review in March.

They will appear in Universal's screen version of the air show. Arnold Goldberg, Blue Web, producer, accompanied the talent winners here.

'The Web' Unspins

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Some of the heavy fighting that's been inevitable on the northern sector of the Western Front has now begun. With such a fanatical army as the First Parachute Army in that sector, part of it in the Netherlands and part in the Ruhr, and with the other main German forces in the west in this region, the German 25th and 15th armies, we were bound to have some rough going. We have completed the pocket around the estimated 110,000 German troops in the Ruhr, and our cordon is now so wide those Germans are doomed, but they'll probably fight like fanatics. The British have not completed cutting off the Germans in the Netherlands, and some of these may escape, especially if we have the same kind of bad weather as we had yesterday that grounds our airpower. Hard battles are certain in this area, while the British hasten to close the trap. . . . We've landed in a heavily populated area as we battle over Okinawa in the Liuchius (Ryukyus is the Japanese name). There are half a million people on that island. We're in the main populated sector where modern electric and steam railways connect the main cities. Although we benefitted from strategic surprise in the landing, it was to be expected we would have a hard fight as we cut across eastward toward the big harbor of Nakagusi-kuwan. But we met only "scattered resistance." This is THE mystery campaign.

ASSISTANT Director Johnny Johnston is now known to the crew working on 20th Century-Fox's "Dragonwyck" as "The Goose Boy." He won the nickname with a bit of amateur animal training on Sherwood Forest location, trying to get a recalcitrant goose to face the camera. Lon Chaney, Universal character star, wishes his pals wouldn't remind him of the fire that swept his valley home late last week. DURANTE, MOORE SHOW SIGNED BY UNITED DRUG Deal for sponsorship of the Durante-Moore show was closed last night by N. W. Ayer for United Drug (Rexall). Actual contract signing had to be deferred until William Esty option on the program expired. Hay McClinton, radio director for Ayer, handled negotiations for the client and Lou Clayton acted for Durante. Unlikely that the present setup will be disturbed, with Phil Cohan continuing as director and Georgia Gibbs featured vocalist with Roy Bargy's orchestra.

Herb Sanford, Coast radio head of Ayer, trains east today to sit in on the first broadcast Friday night under the new sponsorship. Origination resumes in Hollywood April 13. Esty agency was on the verge of buying the Durante-Moore stanza for Campbell soup but last-minute complications upset the deal. Ayer suffered a similar fate in trying to put Joan Davis under contract to United Drug.

De Sylva Buys Book Of Mystery Tales

B. G. De Sylva announced his first story buy as an independent producer yesterday with the purchase of "After Dinner Story." Book, by William Irish, is collection of mystery yarns and one will be selected for immediate filming. Alan Ladd probably will get top role in one of the three stories to be filmed.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Cheryl Crawford and Jack Wildberg are trying to persuade Kitty Carlisle to succeed Mary Martin in the road tour of "One Touch of Venus" when Mary quits May 1 to re-create her role for the screen version. Ironic twist is that Kitty first auditioned for "Venus" two summers ago after Mary had originally turned down the part. . . .Roland Young catches up with "Topper" again via the ether waves in a serial adapted by Buff Cobb and produced by Stanley Wolf. . . . S. J. Perleman and Al Hirschfeld are planning a flying coast visit to line up a composer and lyricist for their just completed musical. Book is startingly novel. It has NO ballet—NO hoop skirts—and NO dream sequence. . . . Another "Listen the Women" type of program will soon be teeing off for Mutual with Elissa Landi as emcee and Florence Pritchett set as permanent guestee. . . . Eddie Chodorov and Gwen Anderson won't surprise Shubert's Alley when they become "Mr. and Mrs." . . . Frank McCoy will produce Joan Allyson and Murray Burnett's stage adaptation of their original mag yarn, "Meet Me At Rick's," which Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman immortalized in "Casablanca"—with a supporting cast headed by F.D.R. and Churchill. Walter Abel was approached for the Bogart role, but he declined with thanks and the retort, "When I stick my neck out like that, it won't be in public!"

ADD ARRIVALS: Mitchell Leisen at the St. Regis—also his protege, Billy Daniels. . . . Sam Wood at the Drake. . . . Mrs. Jesse Lasky at the Waldorf. . . . Louis Bromfield at the Gotham. . . . Blanche Yurka has reopened her apartment on East 79th Street.

KNOW THYSELF: J. C. Nugent, acknowledging an introduction to a pretty, young thing over the luncheon table at Sardi's the other noon, shook his head sadly and exclaimed: "I'm afraid I've reached the age when meeting a yound lady is reminiscent rather than anticipatory!"

"GUILD-ED" Contract: Jan Clayton, now garnering personal acclaim for performance in "Carousel" has a very unusual contract with the Theatre Guild and Metro who farmed her out. Her contract with the Guild is for two years, but in July she has permission to leave the musical for six weeks to return to the studio for a Sam Marx production, currently in preparation. Her option with MGM, taken up just before she came east, calls for an additional year tacked on to the original seven year termer. But payoff is that when she returns to her home lot with the added prestige of a Theatre Guild-Rodgers-Hammerstein success, she'll be making less money than she made on Broadway. "Art"—it's wonderful!

BROADWAY BALLYHOO: Carole Landis will lend her "s.a." to a p.a. tour in Hartford, New Orleans and Chicago before checking back to 20th-Fox. . . . McKay Morris, exploring in an antique shop in Rome, came across a bust of David Belasco—and now, in New York, it is the prize possession of Beth Merrill. . . . Jack Kirkland, historian consultant to Gen. Arnold, leaves for an assignment in Alaska and then heads for Hollywood where he hopes to be joined by his wife Haila Stoddard, off "somewhere in the Pacific" with the Moss Hart troupe. . . . Paul Czinner offered a $1000 war bond to anyone who could think of a better title for his Vincent Lawrence comedy, "The Overtons." The first reply came from a young hopeful who suggested, "In Love With Love." Which was a good title when Lawrence used it for another comedy back in 1928. . . . Now it's Jimmy Walker, who is writing a book, but although his "first, person, singular" would top all other "I"-fuls, it won't be an autobiog. It's a compilation of the famous anecdotes, which he, as the greatest after dinner speaker of them all (even Georgie Jessel will concede that!) will re-tell to a public to whom he will always be the most popular "late" Mayor, New York City has ever known, and for whom there will never be a "curfew." . . . When Zorina found herself sitting at an adjoining table to Sam Wood at "21," you could skate around the ice between them—the "Arctic" temperature still left over from "For Whom the Bell Tolls!"

IS HIS FACE "RED?" Georgia Gibbs, traveling east on the Chief with Private Red Skelton swears this ACTUALLY happened. It seems that on the same train, along with Jimmy Durante and Garry Moore, there was also an Admiral loaded with decorations. Red scrutinized his various decorations and then contemplating his own one lone red stripe, he turned to the Admiral and sniffed, "Hmmmmm, where's YOUR good conduct stripe?"

TELE COMMITTEE QUESTIONNAIRES SENT PLAYERS

With the Affiliated Committee for Television suffering a manpower shortage that precludes personal interviews for all Screen Actors Guild and American Federation of Radio Artists members interested in tele work, the body is now mailing questionnaires to enrollees in the two organizations in order to complete its files. Plans formulated by the ACT casting board, headed by Walter Abel and Joseph Crehan, now call for the use of as many players who return their filled-in questionnaires as possible.

The casting board has announced that as soon as their own player files have been exhausted, the offices of the SAG and AFRA will be contacted for any needed additional talent.

ACT now is preparing color charts for actors to study in respect to makeup, costumes and sets. The body points out that to date Hollywood thespians have been the least informed people in this new medium, and it is the aim of ACT to acquaint these people with as much information from the east coast as is possible, plus new technical developments in the tele field.

SKOURAS PLEDGES THEATRES' AID TO SEVENTH LOAN

New York, April 2. — National committee for the Seventh War Loan huddled here on discussion of plans for the forthcoming campaign and heard Charles P. Skouras pledge 100% cooperation on behalf of all divisions of National Theatres. Attending with Skouras, at invitation of Samuel Pinanski, national chairman, were Rick Ricketson, state exhibitor chairman for Colorado, and H. J. Fitzgerald, state exhibitor for Wisconsin.

Skouras, as exhibitor state chairman for southern California, also promised that that section of the state will exert unprecedented efforts in the Seventh War Loan, which has a goal of $4,000,000,000 in "E" bonds.

Harry Browning, executive assistant to Pinanski, arrived here today from Boston, fully recuperated from appendectomy performed three weeks ago. He will remain at national headquarters here for the duration of the drive. Many veterans of previous War Loan drives, and others have accepted invitations to serve as state publicity chairmen for the forthcoming campaign. They will work in cooperation with John D. Hertz, Jr., national director of publicity for the Seventh, and with exhibitors and distributors in planning the drive, which starts May 14 and runs through June 30.

FIRST RUNS HEADING FOR SOCKO $325,000 FOR WEEK

Los Angeles first-run theatres are back in stride this week despite Easter season, and are pushing to possible $325,000 total gross in 20 spots. Most houses reported good business for Good Friday with receipts slightly down Saturday, although bouncing up again Easter Sunday. Accounting for hefty total in sight are the five new bills in town this week. Three feature murder mysteries and horror while others are comedy.

"The Picture of Dorian Gray" finished its first week at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres last night with estimated $56,000. "Roughly Speaking" is coming through with possible $54,000 at Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern. "Practically Yours," in only two houses, the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramounts, is turning out fine $48,000. "Hangover Square" should take $50,500 for its week at the Carthay Circle, Chinese, State and Uptown. It holds for a second frame at the Carthay starting Friday. "Murder My Sweet" is hitting nifty $43,500 at the Hillstreet and Pantages.

Only holdovers in town are "The Three Caballeros" at the Guild, United Artists and Wilshire, and "Betrayal From the East" at the Hawaii and Elite theatres. "Caballeros" is going for likely $25,000 on second frame after sock $44,335 initial week.

30 MILLION MORE FT. OF FILM SEEN BY SCHAEFER

New York, April 2.—George J. Schaefer, chairman of the War Activities Committee, tonight is convinced that the picture makers will be granted an added 30,000,000 feet of print stock on their allotment for the second quarter. He bases his belief on the fact that the War Production Board, after analyzing all the facts, will see things in a different light.

Schaefer has just returned from Washington, where he had lengthy sessions with WPB officials.

The 30,000,000 additional footage would be added to present quotas, giving the distributors an increase of around 11% over the current allotment of 261,000,000 feet, and at once relieve the congestion of negatives in vaults of the various companies. The shortage, momentarily, is causing distribs to hold back anywhere from two to four releases that otherwise would be seeing the light of the theatre screens.

OLD QUOTAS EXPECTED

Citing the fact that the distributors now are able to print only those features that are going into immediate release in theatres, Schaefer issued a statement in which he declared:

"I am certain, after a review of all the facts with respect to the 50% film credit reserved for the industry, that the WPB will continue to make available the same amount of film as in previous quarters."

Speaking of the scarcity of positive stock, Schaefer made the observation that "the shortage of any critical material, whatever it may be, creates a problem for both the manufacturer and the consumer, and is bound to cause confusion and misunderstanding."

Schaefer pointed out that, until now, film made available to the industry by the Army has enabled the former to print sufficiently far in advance to permit new product to be shown in Army camps as fast as it was produced, and long before it went into national release.

FILM FOR ARMY PIX

"Since the 30,000,000 feet made available to the Army was for the purpose of making release prints of finished product ahead of release dates, and was taken from the original stockpile, it seems only proper that the Army now put back into the stockpile the said allotment, and that it be divided proportionately among the companies," Schaefer said.

Andy Devine Will Aid Loan Curtain Raiser

Andy Devine has been added to list of film names who will appear in pre-drive rallies preliminary to the Seventh War Loan. Devine speaks at two rallies tomorrow at the Todd shipyards of Los Angeles Ship and Drydock Co. Robert Young is scheduled for five appearances at Lockheed Plant B today and Laraine Day spoke at five rallies at Lockheed Plant A yesterday.

PRODS TELL STRIKERS JOBS WILL BE FILLED IF THEY DON'T RETURN

IA situation hit a new turn with the takeover of Local 44 by the international. Executive board of Local 44 voted unanimously for the IA takeover of its autonomy following "rebel" meeting of some members at the Hollywood Legion Stadium last Friday night. Local board also suspended Eugene Mailes and Irwin Hentschel, leaders of the rebellion, from membership because of their actions.

REBELS HOLD MEETING

Meanwhile, a secret meeting of IA local members rebelling against Walsh was held last night at which it was proposed that the rank and file unionists work out a peace plan to end the strike. Hentschel charged that IA takeover of the local was "undemocratic" and that "Walsh will be asked to withdraw from the picture. "Roy Brewer, IA vice-prexy, was named in charge of Local 44 and has appointed regular officers to carry on during the emergency as agency of the international.

SECRECY SHROUDS SESSION

A veil of secrecy covered the meeting last night. It was learned, however, that the sense of those gathered was that there is a definite basis for a settlement if the negotiations are left to the rank and file of the affected unions and not turned over to international officers who are unfamiliar with details of working conditions in the studios.

A number of plans for bringing about peace between the studios and the striking workers were offered. None was adopted although there were numerous speeches in favor of various propositions.

STEP FORWARD

As the meeting adjourned, there was a sense of impending events and a general feeling that a definite step toward settlement of the strife in the film industry had been taken.

Pleas of not guilty were made yesterday by W. E. Frederikson and Anthony E. Schiavone before Municipal Judge Louis W. Kaufman to assault charges growing out of asserted battery on Ray H. Webb, a picket, near Paramount studio Saturday. Pair asked for a jury trial, which was set for May 9 at 10 a.m.

POLICE GUARDS INCREASED

To prevent possible recurrences of outbreaks between pickets and union men still working, studios were policed yesterday by additional members of the Los Angeles city police.

Producers' wire notifying unions to return to work by April 4 was sent to the following: United Brotherhood of Carpenters international in New York, and Local 946 here; IBEW international and IBEW Local 40, Machinists international and Local 1185, Plumbers and Steamfitters international and Local 78, Building Service Employes international and Local 278, for janitors only; Painters Local 644, Screen Set Designers Local 1421, and Society of Motion Picture Interior Decorators.

WIRE TO PAINTERS

Wire to painters read:

"Members of your union have refused to report to work and perform their services since March 12, 1945. If the members of your union persist in refusing to report and perform their services by April 4, 1945, we shall be compelled to engage men from other available sources to do the painting work required to keep our studios in operation, which we are determined to do.

"You are of course aware that the strike by Local 1421 was declared without the sanction and against the orders of Mr. Lindelof, the international president of the Brotherhood of Painters; that the War Labor Board has characterized it as a flagrant disregard of the procedure established for the peaceful settlement of labor disputes and has ordered that it be immediately terminated, and that the strike was officially disavowed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who also called upon Mr. Sorrell to terminate the unjustified work stoppage immediately, and that this strike is being carried on in direct violation of the no-strike pledge of the American Federation of Labor.

"JURISDICTIONAL VICTIM"

"You must also be aware that the producers are the victims of a jurisdictional quarrel between various American Federation of Labor unions and that the producers are powerless to settle this dispute. We deeply regret the necessity of such action; however, you leave us no alternative."

Wire was signed by Columbia Pictures Corp., Samuel Goldwyn, Loew's Inc., Paramount Pictures Inc., RKO Radio Pictures Inc., Republic Productions Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Universal Pictures Co. and Warner Brothers Pictures Inc.

ANSWER BY SORRELL

Answer to wire sent by Conference of Studio Unions over Sorrell's signature follows:

"In answer to your wire of April 2, 1945, members of our union have refused to report to work since March 12, 1945, because the Producers Association refused to abide by the decision of the War Labor Board. The War Labor Board has requested that you settle this strike before it will hear your appeal to change the decision rendered, which was made in our favor.

"As you know, this is not a jurisdictional strike and can be settled any time you decide to deal with us and do not hide behind Richard Walsh's empty threats.

"If it is your desire that we report to work April 4, you may have it that way, but if you still insist that you are in the middle and cannot settle this controversy, the strike will go on until you are ready to deal with us."

'Expendable' Coming To Metro For 6 Wks.

Lee & Losh Will Handle Frisco Meet Publicity

Deal has been closed for Lee & Losh, public relations firm, to represent the State Department and the City of San Francisco on press relations during the forthcoming Peace Conference in the Bay City. Lee & Losh, which has its firm headquarters here and represents the Screen Actors Guild among others, has handled public relations for City of San Francisco for past seven years. Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 2.—Russian films will be dubbed into Spanish in Mexican studios and from here distributed through Spanish speaking countries of the Americas. Alfredo Gomez de la Vega, legitimate actor and enthusiastic student of the Russian cinema, is translating dialog for Soviet film, "Wait For Me." To strengthen ties with far-away country of Stalin, the Institute of Mexican-Russian Cultural Relations brings Soviet art and literature to Mexico by means of films, concerts and exhibits. . . . Cuban cinemactress and rhumba dancer, Maria Antoineta Pons, spoke of the Cinematographers Union in very disrespectful terms, for which she has been "punished" by not being allowed to work during a period of three months. Maria Antonieta will visit Cuba and Spain during the time that she has been banned from the studios, and will return to Mexico in time for her next picture.

* * * * * * * * *

According to Pepe Romero, who interviewed Paul Lukas here recently, Lukas will return to this city in October and hopes to act in a Mexican film; meanwhile he will study Spanish intensively. . . . Columnist Lumiere broadcasts cinema news every Sunday. Majority of questions he is asked by the public refer to three Marys: Maria Felix, Maria Elena Marquez and Maria Antonieta Pons, and to masculine stars Cantinflas and Jorge Negrete.

* * * * * * * * *

Composer Gabriel Ruiz, back from Hollywood, has just finished new song entitled "Stars In Your Eyes." A friend of Ruiz assures me that title has been changed; originally it was "Stars In Your Hair"—quite logical, after his stay in Hollywood. . . . At our studios everything is not quite, quite calm as yet. However, the C.T.M. theatres to close all cinemas and stop public services have remained, so far, just threats . . . perhaps held in leash by Presidential orders. For some unexplainable reason, reports have been temporarily banned from lots. Strange, considering that 90% of the press has been decidedly in favor of the new union headed by Cantinflas and that, during the inter-union feud, has openly attacked leaders of the S.T.I.C., from which Sections 2, 7, 8, 9, 45 and 47 pulled away, forming the new union now in control. But activities are in full swing.

Director Miguel Delgado is busy with "Six Days With the Devil," starring Cantinflas, who has recently blossomed into a union hero. . . . Fernando Cortes is directing "Love Drives Them Mad," for Films Mundiales, with his wife, Mapy Cortes, in title role. . . . Playwright Celestino Goristiza tries his hand at directing his original screenplay, "Sinfonia de Una Vida." Cast includes Julian Soler, Pituka de Foronda, Josefina Romagnoli and Augustin Isunza. . . . Producer Alfonso Sanchez Tello's picture, "La Barraca," based on the Blasco Ibanez novel, is ready for release. . . . Miguel Morayta will start shooting of "The Other Woman's Son." . . . And Mauricio de la Serna's "Pearl of the Caribbean" goes to the cutting rooms.

Louis de Rochemont in over weekend from jaunt to Washington and New York, where he huddled with FBI officials and selected locations for "Now It Can Be Told," which he will produce for 20th-Fox.

OBITUARY

MAY BEATTY

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Covina, Calif., for May Beatty, 64, screen actress, who died in a nursing home there Sunday following long illness. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Gunther Fritsch, and was widow of Edward Lauri, actor.

Born June 4, 1880, in Christ Church, New Zealand, she went on stage at age of seven in her father's theatre, later appearing in leading roles in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in Australia. She went to London in 1906, was musical comedy and dramatic star there, and after interlude as leading lady in George M. Cohan's plays in Australia, came to Hollywood in early 1930's, playing in such pictures as "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Showboat," "Pride and Prejudice" and "Forever and a Day," her last film.

EARLY CURFEW END SEEN WITH EXIT OF JAMES BYRNES

Fred M. Vinson, head of the Federal Loan Agency, who was named as his successor.

Indications that V-E Day and lifting of the brownout and racing bans also are just around the corner were seen in the Byrnes resignation. Byrnes has been asking to quit since the middle of last year, but the President got him to agree to stay on until the European phase of the war was about finished. So his resignation may mean both he and the President think the end is near.

Vinson has had one previous experience with a branch of show business. It was he who sought, unsuccessfully, last year to pressure James Petrillo to give up his recording ban after the War Labor Board had failed.

AMATEUR CLEFFER'S 250G SUIT TO BE HEARD BY JURY

New York, April 2.—Myron Pallant, the amateur songwriter, who sued Frank Sinatra and Tommy Dorsey, as well as a dozen other film and record outfit execs last October, has won the first round in his legal action. Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell, New York, today granted him a jury trial of his case. The date was not set.

In his suit Pallant alleged infringement of his song, "Come Out, Come Out, Wherever You Are," which, he claims, the defendants converted to their own benefit after he submitted it to Dorsey's 1940 radio program, "Fame and Fortune."

In addition to Dorsey and Sinatra, Pallant named as defendants Sammy Cahn, Jule Styne, T. B. Harms Co., Robbins Music, RKO, NBC and Decca Records.

The producers had announced that any not-on-the-job studio employes, as of today, would be replaced.

ODLUM BEEFS ON RKO COST INCREASE

New York, April 3.—Floyd Odlum, chairman of the board of RKO, today is reported concerned over the increase in studio production costs in the face of a dip in grosses for the Gower st. lot's output. He has been going over the situation with a group of RKO moguls.

The downbeat in receipts is said to involve only the company's own product, and not that of the indie producers who release through it.

While domestic rentals for RKO during the fiscal year 1944 were around $34,000,000, a substantial slice of that sum went to outside producers, with the distributing organization earning only its selling fee on the latter's pictures.

LE BARON LEAVING 20TH-FOX AS 'RIOCABANA' IS SHELVED

William Le Baron checks off 20th-Fox lot on Friday, after four-year association as one of company's top-budget producers. He completed his contract with studio several months ago, but had stayed on to wind up "Don Juan Quilligan," his last production, and prepare for start of "Riocabana."

Studio's shelving of "Riocabana" last week, however, until after war in Europe is ended, brought on decision to leave studio. Picture necessarily was postponed due to inability at this time of cast and crew to travel to South America where major part of high-budget musical will be filmed, and reported stalling on Technicolor commitment for feature.

Le Baron announced yesterday he plans to return to studio to complete his assignment when time is ripe to start musical. During interim he may either rest or make production deal elsewhere, his plans to be announced later. Producer joined Westwood studio after lengthy terms at Paramount and RKO as production head at each plant. His productions at 20th-Fox include "Stormy Weather," "Wintertime," "The Gang's All Here," "Greenwich Village" and "Sweet and Low Down."

WHETHER Paramount and Cecil B. DeMille will get together following the windup of the latter's current contract, on which he has one more picture to go, remains to be seen, due to several circumstances. Par chiefs, on one side, are said to feel that they would rather have their own salaried producers turning out their product, aside from Hal Wallis and Buddy De Sylva, independent units. On the other hand these same execs agree that DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind" has dragged more cash into box offices than any other film in the last decade of Par's history. But that was before he made "The Story of Dr. Wassell," which the Par officers figure is going to do better than "Wild Wind." Even since that the studio has turned out, on its own, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," which is outrating DeMille's most recent duo. They feel "The Bell" will keep the money flowing in from foreign countries for at least ten more years. They even estimate that it will, in the final analysis, outgross "Going My Way," their Academy Award-winner. DeMille, supposedly not caring too much one way or the other, is devoting the major portion of his time nowadays to his battle against AFRA and that $1 he refused to pay as a matter of principle. Meanwhile, he is said to have dangling before him even a better picture deal than Par is willing to give him.

METRO, with setting of Dean Stockwell, aged six, to term contract yesterday, is far and away in the lead of all studios in matter of juvenile stars and players. Moppet has been cast for one of lead roles in "The Kissing Bandit," after doing standout work in studio's "Anchors Aweigh" and "Valley of Decision," neither yet released. Studio roster of such talent now includes Margaret O'Brien, Butch Jenkins, Sharon McManus, Skippy Homeier, Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Powell and Claude Jarman, Jr., latter just selected to play title role in "The Yearling." Little Miss Powell, who starred on loanout in two Charles R. Rogers films, goes into "Holiday In Mexico," in one of top roles, and Sharon McManus is slated for title role in "Tenth Avenue Angel." Butch Jenkins' next will be "Boys Ranch," he and Margaret O'Brien both were in "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," soon to be released, and Elizabeth Taylor's latest is "Hold High the Torch," in which she plays top featured role. Skippy Homeier enacted Nazi brat in Lester Cowan's "Tomorrow, the World!"

HOLLYWOOD'S preview situation—a situation that involves conflicting dates, pre-preview showings for columnists and many other conditions that lead previews away from the very standards that gave them their name —supposedly were straightened out two years ago by the Public Information But two years of experiments have finally convinced some of the flackery But two years of experiments have finally convinced the some of the flackery chieftain group that it can't be done, and again the preview matter is one that is causing the "regulars" of the crowd to worry about their fellow members, now dubbed "reactionaries." The latter, a minority on the Info Committee, have started showing films in advance of preview dates in studio projection rooms to columnists, not for "review," you understand, but for so-called "comment." The state of affairs is one that threatens to wreck the entire Hays publicity agreement.

CHARLOTTE CLEARY, who succeeded Bill Russell as head of Paramount's coaching department when the latter turned director, now has under her wing eight young contract players slated for more important roles. Six stock-contract dancers, soon to be auditioned for non-terp casting. It is all part of Par's plan to beat other studios in the sending forth of new, outstanding talent, with which the lot can make deals with other majors. Miss Cleary, former drama instructor at Occidental College, also is setting up a series of one-act play presentations for Marathon street young hopefuls. A great part of her time is taken up with the auditioning of newcomers brought in by agents and given the starting nod by William Meiklejohn, executive casting director. Meanwhile Par has Lester Luther auditioning vocal talent.

BACK to the strumming lyres (and it is spelled "lyres") of ancient Greece goes Frank Skinner, Universal composer, for the song number and score he is preparing for "Night In Paradise," Walter Wanger tinter starring Merle Oberon and Turhan Bey. Skinner is building his music on the tetra-chord, the scale used for the lyre and other four-stringed instruments, instead of on the present day diatonic scale of eight notes. Music for the picture includes song, "Night In Paradise" and several Grecian chants for a Temple of Apollo sequence. Jack Brooks is writing the lyrics. Skinner says use of the tetra-chord scale adds a distinct new oriental quality to the melody.

HOURLY weather reports for beach-goers will be inaugurated as a new summer feature on KECA beginning May 2. Every hour on the hour from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. the station will cut in to give the temperature of water and air and fog conditions. Blue net transmitter feels that such a public service is needed due to restrictions on gas and tires and many trips to the beach would be abandoned if the true weather conditions were known.

Two o'Clock Courage

(Mystery Drama)

RKO RELEASE. Producer, Ben Stoloff. Director, Anthony Mann. Screenplay, Robert E. Kent. Additional dialog, Gordon Kahn. Based on a story by Gelett Burgess. Photography, Jack MacKenzie. Special effects, Vernon Walker. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino and L. C. Croxton. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera and William Stevens. Sound recording, Bailey Fesler. Re-recording, James A. Stewart. Music, Roy Webb. Film editor, Philip Martin, Jr. Gowns by Renie.

CAST—Co-stars Tom Conway and Ann Rutherford. Supporting players, Richard Lane, Lester Matthews, Roland Drew, Emory Parnell, Bettejane Greer, Jean Brooks, Edmund Glover, Bryant Washburn.

TRADESHOWN at Filmarte theatre, Hollywood, April 2, 1945. Running time: 66 MINS.

RKO's "Two o'Clock Courage" turns out to be a neat little package that will serve well as supporting fare in the more important situations and rate as a bill topper in the subsequent spots. It contains a full 66 minutes of suspense that never weakens, plus a strong romantic thread.

Getting under way as Ann Rutherford, a wartime taxi driver, picks up Tom Conway, an amnesia victim, as a passenger, the Ben Stoloff production, under Anthony Mann's capable direction, moves at a fast pace through murders and suicides involving a Broadway producer, as victim No. 1, down through playwrights and femme stars. The offering marks a job well done by any and all connected with its making, from Producer Stoloff and his writing and technical staffs, straight through the cast roster.

Miss Rutherford not only lends her beauty to the vehicle, but she also comes through with a performance that should start her on her way to a new and bigger career. In her shifts from the lighter moments of the plot to the more serious ones, she makes the switches with a deftness that is really convincing. Conway, too, turns in a portrayal that should boost his stock on the Hollywood lots.

Richard Lane, as the slightly screwballish police reporter; Lester Matthews as the plagiarizing author, Roland Drew, Emory Parnell, Bettejane Greer, Jean Brooks, Edmund Glover and Bryant Washburn are others who stand on the artistic side.

Robert E. Kent's excellent screenplay and Gordon Kahn's added dialog have been given full play through Mann's deft pilotina. Albert S. D'Agostino and L. C. Croxton are responsible for the many and varied sets. Jack McKenzie's camera work is of high stature, especially in the night sequences staged out-of-doors.

Mark Robson Given 3-Way RKO Pact

Mark Robson, who was elevated from film editor to director by RKO with the production of "The Seventh Victim," has been handed a new three-way contract by the Gower street lot. It calls for use of his services as a producer, director and writer. The new deal follows his direction of "Isle of the Dead." Robson is currently working on the screenplay of "Chamber of Horrors," which he will also direct for Producer Val Lawton.

ILLINOIS SENATE PROBING 'JOY RIDING' BY FILMSTERS

Chicago, April 3.—Discussion of the alleged ease with which movie big shots get railroad transportation while more obscure citizens must wait weeks for reservations, was precipitated at a hearing yesterday of an Illinois State Senate committee investigating black market operations in travel. Senator Roland V. Libonati (Dem., Chicago) charged there is a monopolistic tieup deal between the studios and the railroads.

The charges brought a prompt denial from Passenger Traffic Managers J. P. Moriarty, Santa Fe, and E. L. Pardee, Chicago & Northwestern, and an invitation, accepted by the committee, to see the Santa Fe reservation bureau in operation.

RIDES WITH EASE

Libonati asserted stars, producers, directors and film executives are able to obtain reservations on transcontinental trains at a moment's notice.

The senator got in his licks on the show people during a routine quiz of railroad officials on how reservations are secured.

The inquiry was prompted by complaints from the public that favoritism is being shown.

Both Moriarty and Pardee declared they do not have hordes of stars traveling as heretofore. Those who do ride, they said, obtain their reservations through the Government Reservation Bureau, unit set up by the railroads as clearing house for military needs, because they are touring military camps and hospitals, or appearing at War Bond rallies.

CLERKS TO BE CALLED

It is a known fact, however, despite the denials, that a great many more show folk are traveling for pleasure than there should be. There is an exchange here with one man in the publicity office who does little else but secure reservations for studio bigwigs. A part-time job in publicity offices pre-war, it has now bloomed into a full-time one because of difficulties in getting space, 70% of which is grabbed for servicemen.

At another confab April 16, women who work in the various reservation offices will be subpoenaed and the committee will recommend legislation to correct travel problems.

Bulk of the shooting was done by French lensers representing the pool and accredited to the Allied armies.

International Buys 'The Dark Mirror'

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The Nazis are playing one of their last cards now—this werewolf idea. They tried terror on the people of the countries they over-ran, when the SS killed first ten, then fifty, and then a hundred persons for each German military killed, as they executed all the inhabitants and burned cities in Greece and France, as they bombed Rotterdam and Belgrade without military reason, and sent the V-1 and V-2 over England. They used terror on their own people with the Gestapo, the concentration camp and the hangman's noose. Now they are trying to terrorize us, as they call themselves werewolves and say they will haunt us and all Germans who cooperate with us. They killed the German mayor of Aachen and claim other deaths. They threaten more. They hope they can use this idea, along with anything else they can develop, to try to make Allied government of Germany a headache. 's no more than noise. But they hope they can prevent us from gaining The Nazis can no longer come back. Their threat of an underground a rule over a country they could not rule. Thus into the German cities they have made rubble, and into the people they have caused to wander homeless and hungry, they project their latest Santanic idea—the werewolves. The Nazis have cast themselves well.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 3.—Some of the smart boys in Washington are wondering whether Hollywood is not missing a bet when it ignores the 16mm., educational and factual fields. They admit, of course, that there is no great amount of money to be made and that if a quick profit were the only incentive Hollywood would be exactly right in passing up the whole thing.

The thinking, however, runs along different lines. It has the same general idea as the minor league farm clubs owned by major league baseball. The government film people with this bright idea wonder if such pictures would not possess two important values: (1) to give experience to bright young actors and directors, and (2) to build up audiences in schools, factories, clubs, etc., for players who are two to three years away from the big time in theatrical films. It is a novel notion, at least, to mull over during a dull evening at Chasen's.

Here is a little arithmetic on raw stock. During 1944, overall production for all film, still and motion picture, was 6% greater than for the previous year. In the fourth quarter of 1944 production was 18% more than in the last quarter of 1943.

While all commercial users (and Hollywood is by far the largest) actually received about 7% more raw film during 1944 than during 1943, the distribution bonus was largely concentrated in the first half of the year.

In the first quarter of 1944 commercial users received 72% of the output. In the last quarter this fell to only 59%. Figures by WPB.

And what is wrong with the idea suggested by Darryl Zanuck in the current bulletin of the Society for the Prevention of World War III? As a way to control films in Germany after the war, he would have an international control board. "Under its authority," he writes, "the various film companies of England, France, Russia and the United States could readily establish branch studios in Germany or the satellite nations. These films could be supplemented by imported productions approved by the international control board."

Richard Wilson, of the Office of Strategic Services, has been assigned to the conference secretariat to make the historical films of the pow-wows for government archives. . . . Since April 1 the Nips have gone on an all-news program for daytime radio broadcasts, news of course including propaganda and commentary. No entertainment goes on the air until after 6 p.m. . . . Mexico is planning one of the world's most powerful broadcast stations for shortwave sending to the rest of the world. . . . During 1944, when the box office hit an all-time high in Guayaquil, Ecuador, three of the four top moneymakers were Mexican features. This should provide something to think about, even though the U. S. was still tops in total volume. . . .

Audiences in Newfoundland prefer our musicals, comedies and pix with good stories. They stay away in droves from war themes, and films on life of the downtrodden, and on political, economic and social subjects. . . . Bernard Shaw's play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," was recently performed in Zagreb, Yugoslavia. . . . Swedish audiences are giving a terrific reception to two new films of the underground, "We Fight For Freedom," about Norway, and "Fighting Denmark." . . . Two German screen actors, Carl Diehl and Paul Hoerbiger, are reported sentenced to death because they did not get on with the Nazis. . . . The Vienna Opera House now is converted to a picture theatre. . . . Russian film experts are reported in Belgrade making a picture on Tito's guerrilla army.

Col. Curtis Mitchell, in charge of the pictorial section of Army Public Relations, is in Europe to step up the flow of films on the fighting in Germany. . . . Washington's new Municipal theatre is expected to begin operating about July 1, with at least two original musical comedies figured for two-week runs in an outdoor theatre. The city is raising $100,000 to underwrite this year's program. . . . Lieut. (jg) Leon B. Back, native of Los Angeles and a former theatre manager in Baltimore, is running a chain of 30 outdoor picture theatres for the Navy in the Admiralty Islands. . . . United Nations Club recently screened Disney's "Three Caballeros" for an audience invited exclusively from the embassies and the State Department. . . . John J. Payette, Warners zone manager here, has launched "The Warner Corner," a publication going to all Warner men from this area in the service.

* * * * * * * * *

The midnight curfew has made little difference in the box office receipts of theatres in this area.

The only squeeze has been in the late Saturday night shows run by the showcase houses, Warners Earle, Loew's Capitol and RKO's Keith. These performances used to run well after midnight. The Earle, which ran the latest show, takes the heaviest rap.

* * * * * * * * *

Latest of Sullivan Richardson's CIAA films for Central America are "Send Us Quinine" and "Loofa." First plugs for increased production of quinine from the American tropics. Second deals with loofa sponges used as filters by our Navy. . . . Looks as though V-E Day will pose a new problem for Hollywood. The OPA controls are going to stay on, but there will be an increasing pressure to break food rationing, rent ceilings, etc. The government will be turning to pictures again to help educate the public to the continued need for these controls. . . . New Department of Commerce survey on radio predicts that in the first year or so after V-E Day new radio receivers coming on the market will cost a good 30% better than comparable equipment in 1941. This includes FM and video receivers. Commerce figures it will take at least that long for competition to begin to cut prices.

PETRILLO HANDED NLRB SOCK ON PANCAKERS

Blue Network to bargain with NABET may open the door to AFM strikes in web-owned stations.

At the time NABET won the bargaining election for platter turners in cities other than Chicago, Petrillo threatened a series of flash strikes unless the skeins ignored the election and did business with him.

Directly resultant thereof, the Blue and NBC refused to sign a contract with NABET. Appeal was taken to NLRB which ordered a new series of hearings at which webs argued that they would be subjected to retaliation measures from Petrillo if they signed with the independent broadcast technicians union. The examiner, in his report to NLRB, recommended that the networks be made to obey the law and bargain with NABET. The new NLRB directive follows the examiner's recommendations.

STETTINIUS SAYS 'WATCH TOWER' NEEDS FACE LIFT

Washington, April 3.—"Watchtower Over Tomorrow," the all-industry short made for the State Department explaining the Dumbarton Oaks agreement, already is so outdated by developments that it may have to be yanked from the screen for slight changes. The picture now is playing first-runs all over the country and is slated for screening on the full OWI-WAC circuit.

Possible need for revision of the picture was disclosed today at the press conference of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Secretary of State. Newsmen questioned Stettinius regarding the fact that the film explains that all nations are to have one vote each in the assembly of the world peace organization. In the last few days both the United States and Russia have announced they would seek three votes each.

"I think the picture will have to be revised to conform with the situation," Stettinius said.

STRIKERS IGNORE PRODS BACK-TO-WORK EDICT

firm. Meanwhile, Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, planed in from New York, where he failed to win his goal on his AF of L confabs, and went into session with the producers' representatives, Edward Mannix and Y. Frank Freeman.

NO NEW CHARTERS SEEN

While Walsh had announced earlier that he would issue charters to unions replacing the striking groups and others who refused to cross the picket lines, the general belief is that Walsh will not make such a move at present. Following Walsh's return here yesterday morning he declined to make a statement at Lockheed airport, then rushed off to the Roosevelt hotel, after which he conferred with Roy Brewer, IATSE veepee, and other aides over luncheon at the Gotham before departing for his session with Mannix and Freeman.

While no one was willing to talk about the Walsh-Mannix-Freeman session, I. E. Chadwick informed Sorrell that he (Chadwick) could obtain a letter from the producers saying they would abide by the National Labor Relations Board's decision in the case of the set decorators. Sorrell, it is said, informed Chadwick that the proposal had come too late—that it should have been made before the start of the strike.

NEW DEAL BEFORE WORK

Sorrell also is reported to have informed Chadwick he was agreeable to staging a consent election among the set decorators, but that a new deal would still have to be granted them before they went back to work.

The 25 prop men, members of IATSE Local 44, who met Monday night, are understood to be seriously trying to work out some settlement within the rank and file of both the IATSE and the striking local. They would, it is reported, try to have all studio labor situations handled by the locals rather than being controlled by the international.

PROGRESS REPORTED

Those who attended the session insist that they have made progress, and that they would continue their efforts. They feel that the opinions of their workers should be expressed in all labor matters, rather than have eastern leaders of international who are not always familiar with Hollywood conditions, holding the whip hand.

The prop folks feel that a solid front, built by people who have worked in the film plants through the years, should play a more vital part in labor disputes in which they are involved. They are said to want jurisdictional rights respected.

Reports that Local 40, IBEW, might put its members' names back on studio payrolls today, were denied by local union officials. None, it was declared, would don their rubberized gloves this morning. Nor, it was added, would any of the carpenters, machinists or painters be back at their chores.

NO STRIKE BENEFITS ASKED

With the strike now more than three weeks old, none of the involved unions has been asked for strike benefit money, a far cry from the situation that existed during the 41-day walkout in 1937. The strike chiefs claim healthy relief funds, which, they tell you, are growing daily. The painters alone ar supposedly increasing their strike treasury account by $1,500 each 24 hours.

Difference in financial conditions in this strike and that of 1937 is the fact that the walker-outers in the earlier one had been working intermittently, while those now idle have been drawing paychecks steadily and at higher wages, which has given them a chance to build a backlog of savings.

It is expected the producers will meet this afternoon to listen to reports on the Walsh-Mannix-Freeman confabs, decide what steps they will take on future operations and again discuss their ultimatum about filling strikers' jobs.

Pat Casey, producers' labor contact, who sat in with Walsh and William Hutcheson through their Manhattan huddles, returns here by train this morning and will in all likelihood sit in with the studio chieftains.

UNION BARS ARMY BAND AT AD CLUB

The Los Angeles Advertising Club's luncheon at the Biltmore yesterday was without music, due to a protest by the musicians' union against the organization's use of the Armed Forces Radio Service band of 30 pieces. The club was celebrating "Armed Forces Day," with Col. Alvin C. Miller, commanding officer of Birmingham General hospital, as the principal speaker, when the union protest was received. Phil Fischer, representing the musicians' union, explained that:

"We did not ask for a standby band. We simply cited Army regulations that prohibit an Army band from playing at a commercial luncheon."

Col. Thomas Lewis, commanding the Armed Forces Radio Service and serving as chairman of the day, received the notification, which also was handed Major Meredith Willson, director of the military band.

"The musicians' union has been very cooperative in broadcasts to troops," said Col. Lewis. "There is no hard feeling. The union has a rule against free entertainment when there are paid admissions and we abide by the rule."

NY'S LITTLE FLOWER TELLS PLAN FOR V-E CELEB

New York, April 3. — Empty downtown streets and a Times Square as quiet as a deserted village, while millions celebrate on Central Park's Mall is the pattern for V-E celebration suggested to various branches of the entertainment industry by Mayor La Guardia today.

The mayor currently is lining up an entertainment roster comprising all vaude acts, legitimate performers, film and radio personalities who expect to be in New York when the European war ends, for a mammoth all-day and possibly all-night celebration on the mall.

He hopes to draw between three and four million to a central location where they can be more readily controlled, and asked cooperation of the entertainment industry in keeping people off the downtown streets and out of Times Square.

Miss O'Hara couldn't help but overhear them, and as she reached her car turned around, smiled broadly, and said: "Hello, boys, want to go marketing with me?" FILM BIZ WILL BE MOBILIZED FOR LOAN AT 3 MEETS

New York, April 3.—The motion picture industry will be mobilized for its mightiest war effort, the Seventh War Loan, at a series of three regional meetings. Exhibitor, distributor and publicity state chairmen will meet with the national Seventh War Loan committee to develop final plans for the huge drive, May 14 through June 30, Samuel Pinanski, national chairman, announced today.

First meeting, for chairmen of 19 eastern and southern states and the District of Columbia, will be held in New York Tuesday at the Hotel Astor.

MIDWEST MEETINGS

Other regional meetings will be held Monday, April 16, in Chicago and Denver. Midwest state chairmen will meet with the national committee at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago. Western state chairmen will convene at the Brown Palace hotel in Denver. Charles P. Skouras, southern California state exhibitor chairman, will be in charge of the Denver meeting, with Rick Ricketson, state exhibitor chairman for Colorado, who will be official host.

New York and Chicago meetings will be attended by Ted R. Gamble, national director of War Finance Division of the Treasury, and other War Finance Division officials, who will present the overall plans and objectives of the Seventh War Loan from the Treasury viewpoint.

Due to the desire of the national committee members to cooperate with the government's travel restrictions in connection with the United Nations conference in San Francisco on April 25, it is probable the national committee will not be represented at the Denver meeting.

"STREAMLINED" CAMPAIGN

In keeping with the aim of National Chairman Pinanski for a "streamlined" campaign, with greater responsibility given the field committees, the meetings will be largely round-table discussions highlighted by crystallization of plans of how to wage the drive most effectively in the field. Meetings will be informal "strictly business" sessions, with everyone present to be given a voice, Pinanski stressed.

New York meeting will start with outline of plans by toppers of the various groups represented. Round-table discussions will follow in the afternoon. Individual group sessions will then be held. Members of the national committee will stand by for two or three days to discuss individual problems with state chairmen, which will be worked out with regional coordinators.

SIMON SENDING GIRL SHOW WITH ZING TO WAR FRONTS

A girl show with plenty of zing! That's what will be dished up to the GI's on the fighting fronts and in field hospitals when S. Sylvan Simon's tab production of the old Broadway musical production, "Flying High," spans its six-month tour of the biggest Big Time in the history of the theatre. It's the second tab musical to be shipped overseas by Hollywood, and unlike the first, "Girl Crazy," goes direct to an eastern port with only two dress rehearsals before the foxhole premiere.

LAUGHS AND GIRLS

It was the only natural deduction that Simon, Metro director, and Roy Mack of USO-Camp Shows, could arrive at—give the doughboys girls to look at and jokes to laugh at. That they've done in the best musical vignette tradition and the results are bound to be heartening to the troupe of 20 and those who had a hand in whipping it together. It's a fast, frothy and frisky bit of show biz wrapped up in this USO unit and of de luxe stage presentation quality. The GI's will roll with the laughs, lilt with the tunes and feast hungry eyes on a dozen shapely gals. They're so tied in with the revue's swift tempo that their ornamental charm must be caught on the fly in precision and novelty production numbers.

TOMACK HEAD COMIC

Head comic of the aggregation is Sid Tomack of the nitery clan. Some of his routines have been scrubbed and only occasionally does a blue line creep into the dialog. In Debreon Tipton (but you will hear of her) he has a competent accomplice as mimic. She's the Betty Hutton-Martha Raye type and if Tomack isn't careful she'll cop the show from under him. Felice Shaw is the vocalizing mainstay and knows how to groove and sell a song. Other principals, Alvina Temple, Lorin Raker, vet vaudeer; Martin Beck, Mark Cochran and Ginger Le Dell maintain the romantic interest adequate to its incidental underplay. It's woman and song the fighting men want, even if they can't get the wine.

GIRLS WELL TRAINED

The kids in the chorus, shapely, comely and well trained by George Dobbs, are Lyla Graham, Dottie Bennett, Judith Woodbury, Elsie Anderson, Betty Davis, Vivian Bennett, Irene Wynters and Mary Landa. They're especially gay and frisky in the "Rum and Coca-Cola" finale but are rarely out of any of the 11 musical numbers. The boys won't have to yell "bring on the girls," they'll be there.

Beverly Peterson, pianist, is music director and will lead pick-up service bands. Drops designed by Lem Ayres and which part horizontally give the production splash and color. Mort Green has written special lyrics for some of the numbers. Company manager is Sidney Rheingold, and Barney Meyers is stage technician. Entire production, weighing less than 1,000 pounds, can get going 45 minutes after arrival.

CANTIFLAS HERE FOR U.S. FILM DEBUT

Santiago Reachi, prexy of Mexico's Posa Films, arrives here today with Cantinflas, his star, and a group of supporting players, preparatory to starting Cantinflas' first feature, "The Magnificent Tramp," at RKO. Both English and Spanish-language versions will be filmed simultaneously.

Jaime Salvadore, Reachi's aide, is also in the group of arrivals.

Meanwhile, RKO has signed with two Mexican film outfits to handle the worldwide distribution on the John Steinbeck feature, "The Pearl." The Gower st. lot's move in aiding the Mexican picture-making industry follows in the steps of Metro, which recently signatured to handle global distribution on two Mexican-made features, one of which stars Dolores Del Rio.

TWIN CITIES INDIES WANT OPA TO CUT RENTALS

President-Elect Bennie Berger declared.

The organization has raised a fund to employ the proper legal talent, and to purchase newspaper and radio space to inform the public of the "independent exhibitors' terrible plight." Berger said after the annual meeting of the group, "We've always refrained from carrying our troubles to the public, but now we feel that we have nothing to lose by asking its cooperation and help."

Reversing its stand of a week ago, the indie operators voted unanimously to fight for the theatre divorcement bill now before the state legislature, although Berger concedes it has no chance of passage.

"As long as producers and distributors are in the exhibition business, we will support such legislation aimed at the Minnesota Amusement Co., a Paramount subsidiary," he stated.

Berger, in a statement to the trade press, also charged that "while the distribs are bathing in gold, an arrogant bureaucracy has been developed within the industry, making it possible for every flunky in the distributors' offices to humiliate indie exhibs."

HARRY WARNER ASKS EXHIBS TO SHOW TOLERANCE PIC

Exhibitors throughout the nation are urged to give early playing time to "It Happened In Springfield," short film publicizing the so-called Springfield Plan, in a letter from Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Bros., yesterday.

The Springfield Plan, originated in Springfield, Mass., is a method of promoting tolerance through education in the public schools. The Warners short, produced by Gordon Hollingshead, was directed by Crane Wilbur, and the cast includes Andrea King, Warren Douglas, Charles Drake and John Qualen.

Warner in his letter pointed out that the production is a non-profit venture, entered into because he was "so impressed by the fact that this effort was being made to teach school children the real meaning of democracy, and to let them learn for themselves respect and consideration for each other, regardless of race, creed or color."

WHEN radio is called upon to tackle a big job it's no piddlin' effort that's put forth. It's all-out and no holds barred and what generally evolves is for the historians to record. That the coverage of the war to date has been top hole is conceded. Next on the agenda is the United Nations Conference in Frisco and in scanning the network releases almost every important name in the category of war experts and commentators will be on deck. In full realization of the meet's momentous importance the chains will throw in everything they have to add another brilliant chapter to their long list of achievements in spot broadcasting. When a station like KFI, on its own, to complement its NBC affiliation, is planning eight broadcasts daily by its staff men in Frisco then the magnitude of the coverage by the nets is at once evident and the old latitude of reporting an historical event will be broadened far beyond any previous breadth.

IN a blare of brand new circus music by Deems Taylor and the same old press agent adjectives the Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey combined shows opened in Madison Square Garden last night. The opener was the customary gala event, but was backgrounded by anxiety and uncertainty as to the balance of the big show's 1945 season. Officials said the 47-day run in New York City is assured, but Robert Ringling, circus president, testifying in court in Hartford, Conn., has said there is "not one chance in a thousand" that the show will go on if six of its key officials are imprisoned. The men are under sentence for involuntary manslaughter charges, growing out of the disastrous fire last July 6 in which the main tent was destroyed and 168 spectators killed.

SYLVAN SIMON who produced and staged the tab version of "Flying High" which goes overseas for USO-Camp shows to entertain the service people decided to take no chances with his scenery being too bulky and heavy to handle as was that of his other unit "Girl Crazy." So he decided to use drops instead of flats. There are six drops which weigh a total of 650 pounds and can be shipped with the troupe wherever it goes by boat or plane. The flat and side scenery which was built for "Girl Crazy" was found to be too bulky and heavy to transport in the war zones, and when the troupe left Honolulu on its tour of other Pacific area, it went minus the scenery which had to be left to adorn the walks of Hawaaiian service entertainment bases.

IT must be a bitter dose for the editors of the downtown sheets to have to quote radio reporters for some of their biggest stories. All the services have their own correspondents on the fighting fronts or at headquarters yet many of their bannered yarns are taken off the "line." What makes it all the harder to take is that the network to which the correspondent is accredited must be mentioned as the source in the interest of ethics and it's no trade secret that the sheets have not yet gotten over their mad for radio's incursion into their advertising lineage. It doesn't work the other way around because the news services call the daily gist to radio and credits are given merely to authenticate and for the prestige value.

RADIO's "most honored" program, "The Army Hour," starts its fourth year on NBC Sunday with an accolade from Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson for "keeping the home front informed of the accomplishments of our troops on all fronts." Anniversary broadcast will have mikes up on active fronts in both theatres of war, with the "Voice of Freedom" station at Corregidor to be heard for the first time. Three years ago the station was to be cut in on "The Army Hour" but the Nips jammed the frequency for weeks before the old fort fell. From a beachhead at Okinawa will be described combat action and the five armies in Germany will be heard from as they knife through the Reich.

THE story of a sergeant who has played an important role in psychological warfare for Uncle Sam is told in the Saturday Evening Post. The non-com of the article is Harold Salemson, a former Hollywood publicist and foreign correspondent. Salemson, who enlisted immediately after Pearl Harbor, was a top administrator of the psychological warfare work. And in carrying out his duties, he frequently was placed in the embarrassing position of issuing orders to his superiors by relaying the instructions of his own higher ups. He served in both North Africa and Italy. At present he is assigned to a Seattle camp where he is editing an Army paper.

'State of Mind' Given OK For Conference

Gilmor Brown, director of Pasadent Playhouse, is recommending Al Rote's play, "State of Mind," which recently preemed at Playhouse, to National Theatre Conference for simultaneous coast-to-coast production in country's leading community and university theatres. Play is first in five years to be submitted to Conference's new play committee by Pasadena organization. Maxwell Anderson's "Eve of St. Mark" and Elmer Rice's "Judgment Day" both were produced under Conference auspices.

ROUND TWO

NBC Counter Attacks Chi Editor Who Roasted Radio's Lush Voiced Hams

Chicago, April 4.—One of those recurrent blasts by newspapers criticizing radio for "distortion of news" drew a sharp retort from a top exec when Bill Ray, manager of NBC central division news and special events department, took John S. Knight, editor and publisher of Chicago Daily News, down the line for an eight-column editorial by-lined by Knight deploring the Blue Network's false peace boner of March 27. Knight's editorial gave the impression that all radio is to blame for the error of one major and one regional network, Ray said, thus punching home a false message to the public that radio and the press are competitive.

Ray tore into Knight particularly for using phrases like "lush-voiced hams dramatizing trivial news items in one breath and extolling the virtues of El Stinko cigars in the next without even changing his pace," "handling news is a new and unperfected art with most radio people" and "it's not my purpose to pick a quarrel with either the Hearst press or radio, but simply to remind them of their grave responsibility to the American public."

RADIO AND HEARST

Latter phrase was the sharpest cut of them all, according to Ray, because it puts all newscasters in the same class as the Hearst press. "There's a clear and unmistakable break between news and advertising copy on all NBC newscasts," said Ray, "and I can recall no instance in which an NBC announcer or analyst dramatized any item, trivial or otherwise. If announcers should ever resort to the tricky and unsubstantiated wording used in the headlines of some newspapers to increase their street sales, we should indeed be legitimate objects of attack. Judging by the hostile attitude of some newspaper people toward radio, they must be in fear of being put out of business by newscasters, although I've never known of any one in radio who thought this or wished it.

RADIO AIDS PRESS

"Many of us are of the opinion that radio has helped increase the circulation of newspapers by interesting more people in national and world affairs, just as we believe radio is at least in some degree responsible for the increase in phonograph record sales through having made more people familiar with good music. At any rate, the total daily circulation of newspapers in the country has greatly increased since network broadcasting began. We believe that radio and the press are complementary, not competitive."

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Predictions that the war in Europe will be over in April are being made by many of the radio men who specialize in predictions. They may be right. But the odds are against them. There is no doubt but that the German army has been beaten. It is only a question of time before V-E Day. But there is not going to be any general surrender, and that means we will have to send our armies along with the Russian all over the Reich before we can say the war is over in Europe. We have yet to capture the Germans in the Netherlands and the Ruhr and that will take time. We have had those in the Ruhr surrounded for days, but it will take more days before they are taken care of. There will be battles to take towns and cities, including Berlin. The Nazis who have holed up in the Alps in the south cannot be rooted out overnight. And it takes time even to move an army over an enemy country. Those who are predicting the war will be over within days or a few weeks are those who said months ago that the Russians would be in Berlin within days. We forget that there were predictions like these when we first crossed the Rhine at Remagen almost a month ago, on March 8. We made the main Rhine crossing just a little over two weeks ago. We've covered plenty in that period and may sweep over the rest within a few more weeks. The end may come before the end of April. But sometime in May or June looks more likely.

LLOYD SUING U FOR $1,700,000 IN PIRACY ACTION

versal plagiarized parts of three of Harold Lloyd's best-known pictures for these three films. Specifically, "She Gets Her Man" drew on "Welcome Danger"; "Her Lucky Night" lifted from "The Freshman," and "So's Your Uncle" copied "Movie Crazy" for material, it is charged.

FORMER LLOYD WRITERS NAMED

Two complaints filed by Attorney Harold A. Fendler for Lloyd corporation bracket Clyde Bruckman and Warren Wilson (also known as Warren Burke) with Universal, the other naming Bruckman only with Universal, in suit. Complaints allege that Bruckman and Wilson, former writers for Lloyd but now working at Universal, infringed on their former employer's copyrights by using material in above-named Lloyd pictures for the three-named Universal productions.

Suit for plagiarism of "The Freshman" asks $500,000 general damages and $500,000 special damages, an injunction to restrain future copyright infringements upon this picture, and accounting of all profits in "Her Lucky Night," destruction of all negatives and prints of film, and $50,000 attorney's fees.

$300,000 FOR "MAN"

Second suit, which alleges "She Gets Her Man" was taken from Lloyd's "Welcome Danger," asks $150,000 general damages, $150,000 special damages, $25,000 attorney fees, an accounting of profits and that all negatives and prints of "Man" be destroyed. Both suits name Bruckman and Wilson with Universal.

Third suit, in which Bruckman alone is grouped with Universal, charging "So's Your Uncle," was taken from Lloyd's "Movie Crazy," asks general damages of $200,000, another $200,000 for special damages, attorney fees amounting to $40,000, accounting of all profits and destruction of all prints.

Suits reputedly are first to be filed by one motion picture company against another on charges of plagiarism.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

"What a sucker he was to drop that show." You've heard it time and again and wondered what's running through the client's noggin. There's the little matter of product sales and audience saturation that figures with him as importantly as the Hooper or Crossley. Let's take a for instance. A few years ago Fred Allen was on the Bristol-Myers time and posted his customary rating. Other charts or graphs may not have arched high enough but whatever the reason Allen was off and Eddie Cantor moved into his time. After that season it was announced that B-M sales for the particular product rose 40%. The client reasoned, and with apparent justification, that a saturation point had been reached, viz: Allen's listeners were either buyers of B-M products or they'd never be. So the deduction called for a new audience, followers of Cantor. It worked and it has worked for others, so the client isn't such a sucker after all.

Then we have the case of Procter & Gamble, one of the biggest radio spenders and who have in Bill Ramsey an astute program builder and sampler of public preference. Just when we were beginning to think that the Cincy soap crowd was getting away from the crying operas on mother time up jumps a new serial, "Rosemary." It is only recently that they veered from the sobbering chapter plays to variety (Jack Kirkwood and Rudy Vallee) and drama (FBI in Peace and War). It takes considerable juggling to place those millions where they'll do the most good and master-minds who think P & G is off the beam would get a rude awakening if they owned a few blocks of P & G stock. Don't forget, it's advertisers like P & G, Lever Bros., General Foods, Standard Brands and the nostrum outfits that made radio big time and they can smell when it's slipping. If they ever start scrambling to other media you'll know that radio has lost its sales wallop. That day is a long way off.

STATION BREAKS . . . It's worth a guess that a name picture producer will be permanent emcee of Lux Radio Theatre next season. And that Amos 'n' Andy will move into the Fitch Bandwagon NBC Sunday spot. . . . No word yet from the east on demand by Burns and Allen for release from their Swan soap commitment. . . . That Sunday comic will audition singers during the layoff. . . . Hal Berger is leaving his Don Lee production berth to return to KMPC for re-creation of baseball games, which he does so expertly with sound effects. . . . Norman Wilnor, one of radio's most versatile kid actors, kept on the hop keeping up with his busy schedule. . . . Don't be too surprised if G. W. Hill dumps Larry Tibbett in mid-summer and gives the star vocal role on Hit Parade to Joan Edwards. He missed the boat on Perry Como. . . . An excited voice called to say she heard Alvin Wilder, one of KFI's purged commentators, on that station. That she did but it was fed to KFI by NBC. If he gets too far out of line the boom will be lowered and then the fun will start. Or did you ever tangle with Sid Strotz or Clarence Manser? . . . Here's the situation on Cal Kuhl and Milton Biow as of last night. Kuhl had been asked by Biow to sign a new contract as radio head of the agency but wanted time to think it over. His current pact expires June 1.

If it's a fair question, what goes with Campbell Soup? The trade is abristle with rumors and there's something in the kettle beside mulligatawny. One report has it that Reader's Digest Sunday night show will be dropped for Burns and Allen and still another says Jack Carson gets the ol' heave-ho. Ward Wheelock controls the Sunday billing and is said to be pitching for the Carson time, now on the books of Foote, Cone & Belding. As long as we can remember both Carson and Digest have been living charmed lives from cycle to cycle but last-minute reprives always arrived just before the axe dropped.

Glenhall Taylor, who started in radio 24 years ago next month, jogs his memory and recounts that Ned Tellinger did a song and patter turn (John and Ned), Dave Elton and Bruce Eeels were Atwater-Kent regional winners (yea, singers), Arnold Maguire was "Adhesive Pontoon," blackface comic, Hal Peary and Walter Bunker were baritones, Murray Bolen was hot stuff around a piano (Murray and Harris) and he, himself (Taylor), filled a half hour at the Steinway. Few actors got over $5 a broadcast and vet of all of those now active is Al Pearce. Most of the gang teethed on Frisco mikes and later swung south via KHJ.

HITCH HIKES . . . CBS cut into its rival NBC's comedy lineup by landing Joan Davis. For a time it looked like Durante-Moore would even the score but Columbia moved fast. However, it's still NBC for comedy and CBS for music and drama, in the broad sense. . . . Memo to printer: Keep this item standing in type and change only the date. Groucho Marx guests with Dinah Shore. He makes his seventh call next Thursday. . . . Add trade slanguage: Hubba hubba (Ed Cashman) hassel with (Bob Brewster). . . . Who was it said I wouldn't be caught dead with one of those Bulova ties? They're being gifted to but not worn by producers, who may also wangle a watch if they'll sneak in a plug for Bulova. The indirect approach, so to speak. . . . John Guedel Radio Productions gets a free ride in the sprocket version of "People Are Funny." Walter "Pop" Guedel plays a contestant in the picture. . . . Listed in Mutual's brochure of Arch Oboler's Plays is "Mr. Ten Percent," amplified with, "the Oboler scalpel dissects the Hollywood agent, revealing his sundry functions as manager-manservant-Machiavelli."

California Record Supply Inc. has been set up to handle distribution of the platters in the western area, with Harry Fox as manager of the releasing company. Deals were closed before Oliver Sabin, Musicraft viceprexy, trained east after several weeks on the Coast.

ALICE FAYE COMING BACK TO PIX IN 'FALLEN ANGEL'

Alice Faye will star in 20th-Fox's "Fallen Angel" as her first picture after a retirement of almost two years. Linda Darnell is set to enact other top femme role. Otto Preminger will produce and direct. Picture, a top-budgeter, rolls late this month.

Miss Faye's last picture was "The Gang's All Here." This she made between the births of her first daughter, Alice, Jr., and her second, Phyllis.

"Fallen Angel," it was said, was given the Faye okay because she felt that the story fitted her. The tale bears somewhat of a resemblance to "Laura," which Preminger also turned out.

26 Filipino Guerrillas Guests Of RKO Stars

Pat O'Brien, Ellen Drew and other stars were hosts yesterday at RKO for 26 young guerrilla fighters from the Philippines, headed by Major Andre Cruz. The guests are on their way to Randolph Field, Tex., for advanced flying instruction. The 26 were fliers at Bataan until their planes were gone and then became ground fighters. Many were in the infamous "March of Death." The visitors were shown a rough cut of "Back to Bataan" story of Philippine guerrilla fighting.

STUDIOS DROP STRIKERS IGNORING WORK EDICT

such unions that their contracts with the producers will be canceled for their failure to keep their men at work.

MAY SEEK OUTSIDE JOBS

The union reaction is that in event of issuance of such a notice, the unions then would have their members demand availability certificates that would enable them to seek employment elsewhere than in the studios.

Union men feel that should this eventuate, many of the studio technicians, taking other jobs, probably would not be available to the studios when the strike situation is settled.

There was no intimation on the part of producers as to just how they plan to fill the places of the men whose employment is terminated.

But Prexy Dick Walsh of the IATSE, and Mathew M. Levy, attorney for the IATSE in New York, attended the producers' meeting yesterday afternoon and promised all possible cooperation on the part of the IATSE to provide the necessary workers to fill the gaps.

WARNER AT MEETING

Harry M. Warner was present at the meeting, attending a producers' confab for the first time since Warner Bros. tendered its resignation from the Hays organization and the Producers Association some months ago.

Warner said his company will agree to go along with the others solely under the proviso that everything that is done by the producers be uniform in this situation.

While the producers were framing their action against the striking employes, James Skelton, business representative of the carpenters, and Joe Cambiano, Pacific coast vice-president, returned with their report on what took place at the unfruitful New York conference in which William Hutcheson, international prexy of the carpenters; Walsh, and the producers engaged.

THREAT BY HUTCHESON

Hutcheson, they said, declared that the situation will have to be settled here, that matters of jurisdiction will have to be straightened out and that he would revoke the card of any carpenter who passes through the picket lines.

Directly opposed to this stand was Walsh, who told Norval Crutcher, Ted Ellsworth and John R. Martin late Tuesday night that he "would handle the situation here without any intercedence," and that he felt all studio employes should be under the IATSE.

Crutcher, Ellsworth and Martin got a chilly reception from Walsh at the Roosevelt hotel. Walsh first bawled them out for talking to Herbert Sorrell in regard to bringing about peace. They then told him Roy Brewer, Walsh's representative, had given them permission. It was this statement that brought out Walsh's declaration that he "could handle the situation without intercedence."

MAY CALL ELECTRICIANS OUT

Under discussion at the strike strategy committee meeting was the possibility of calling IBEW electricians out of the studio laboratories. The lab electricians have been continuing to work because labs were processing government film, but strikers accuse the studios of mixing their own film with the Army stuff for processing.

It was announced that unless this practice stopped the electricians would be called out. It was emphasized that they will continue to work in any outside laboratory, or studio laboratory, where only government film is being processed.

GUARD INCREASED

Meanwhile the studios, evidently preparing for trouble, increased the guard at the gates. Yesterday at both Metro and Paramount the police guards were doubled. At the Overland ave. gate at Metro and the Lemon Grove ave. gate at Paramount there was a noticeable increase in the number of uniformed police. Extra officers were sworn in by the Los Angeles Police Department for various lots.

Last night 10 painters were taken into the RKO-Pathe Culver City studio by the studio manager, but they walked out shortly afterward.

MARCH FOR BLOOD

Arrangements were made at the strike strategy meeting for the 8,000 to 9,000 men on strike, who have not been able to donate blood through the mobile blood banks in the studios, to march in a body next Tuesday, April 10, to the blood bank at the Western ave. branch of the American Red Cross and give blood.

Also a mass meeting was called for next Sunday night at the Hollywood Legion Stadium for all locals whose members are refusing to cross picket lines. Sorrell will preside and report on the progress of the strike.

Besides the painters, electricians, set decorators, carpenters and machinists, some 500 studio police who have been requested by Sorrell to remain on the job, and SPU members are expected to attend.

It was pointed out by some studio workers last night that the strikers have lost more than $3,000,000 in wages since the strike opened.

SINATRA BLAMES PARENTS FOR KIDS INTOLERANCE

Philadelphia, April 4.—Frank Sinatra, in a speech to 300 students and teachers at the Fellowship House, yesterday blamed the parents for the intolerance of children. He said:

"I believe most of this intolerance begins with the kids, but they get it from their parents, so it's up to you to be firm with your parents.

"I believe that if people like Hitler can take a generation and educate it to the worst, then we can take our generation and educate it to the best. I'm talking to you because I want my kids and your kids to grow up in a better world."

This talk was one of many that the crooner has been making in the past several weeks to youngsters on racial and religious tolerance.

MARCH OF TIME EXEC WARNS AGAINST GOVERNMENT PIX

Washington, April 4.—A uniform method of financing post-war non-theatrical films was urged today by John Wood, business manager of March of Time, addressing a luncheon of government film workers, newsreel editors and other picture people here.

Wood pointed out that there are two ways of financing the non-theatrical pictures: (1) by having advertisers pay for them, and (2) by having the public pay for them.

He advised producers to decide on one method and stick to it. He warned against government production because of political implications.

LEGIT OPENING

Gee, Heidi Olsend, Jim Nolen, Danny Jackson, William O'Neil and Carol Hamey.

World premiere of David Alison's first production, "Watch Out, Angel," proved actually a dress rehearsal of unpolished and hastily completed potpourri of time-tested tidbits from burlesque, ballet, revue and the Follies. Overlong, badly paced, with trite story, generally undistinguished music and spotty lyrics, it still is so jammed with plus points that skillful building may make it into a moneymaker and Broadway bid.

Here's why Alison may click: Not in years has Frisco seen younger, brighter faces in the chorus line; better gams or more zestful dancing. Old-timers can't remember when more talented youngsters were jammed into one entertainment package or showed more enthusiasm. Seldom has San Francisco seen a show so overpacked with rich comedy sequences, with costumes so crisp and lovely, or settings so original. Voices are pleasant and true, but not big.

Defects can be corrected, as they should have been before show was thrust on impatient capacity first night audience. Electric pickup can give the whole audience lyrics that only the first rows heard above robust orchestra. Melody pattern of the music can be clarified. Lines lost in initial performance can be timed to click.

Story concerns producer with cast, theatre and backer, but no suitable show. While he flees from a marriage-minded babe, the producer's assistant puts on a show of his own creation backed by his boss's angel. The angel turns out to be crackpot, whose rubber check bounces threatening all with disaster. Cinderella-wise, all ends gloriously, success being snatched from sure disaster.

Eye-filling dancing studs the show, combining zest of jive with discipline and imaginative fantasy of ballet. Barbara Perry solo dancing is highlight of terpsichorean side, with broad puckish humor. Her "Paul Revere" horseback ride and ensemble "Five A.M." dream sequences of "Lady In the Dark" flavor are highlights.

Superb Anne Triol (who needs no sweaters) was a knockout with her personality voice, rolling eyes, unexpected undulations and saucy way of selling lines. Red-headed eye-filling Marilyn Hare in femme lead, does intense and persuasive thespian job.

Gifted veteran comedians, Lester Allen and Donald Kerr make much of burlesque type comedy, including a male strip tease. Lucien Littlefield, the zany angel, gets full share of laughs with his buresquish pursuit of scantily clad lasses. Handsome Eden Nichols is adequate if inexperienced juvenile, and his voice is pleasing though light. Lyrics and music both need working over. Most promising were "Publicity," "What's New In New York" and "I Love You, But Good."

Hepburn, Weingarten Huddle On Next Film

Katharine Hepburn and Larry Weingarten, Metro producer, are reported huddling on the next vehicle for the star. Hepburn is reported so pleased with success of "Without Love" that she wants Weingarten to do her next effort.

CHAPLIN CASE MAY BE TRIED WITHOUT JURY THIS TIME

Whether the Joan Barry paternity suit against Charles Chaplin will be tried before a jury or not will be determined in court this morning.

In view of the fact that the jury in the first hearing of the case disagreed, Judge Clarence L. Kincaid of Superior court asked counsel if they would waive a jury.

Joseph Scott, representing Miss Barry, who claims the comedian is the father of her daughter, Carol Ann, agreed immediately to the suggestion. Charles E. Millikan, representing Chaplin, said he would have to consult his client and that he would make known latter's answer in court this morning.

PRODS MAKE DEAL FOR IATSE TO FILL ALL JOBS

Arrangements were completed late yesterday afternoon between producers and Richard Walsh, IATSE president, for the IA to furnish all workers needed to continue operation of strike-bound studios. IA, in addition to its crafts now manning the studios, has agreed to supply carpenters, painters, electricians, machinists and other employes necessary for studio operation.

Producers-IA agreement is a step toward Walsh's intentions to grab all studio unions and bring them under the IATSE rule. To this end IA prexy assertedly already outlined his plans for takeover to business agents of the various IA studio locals. At a meeting yesterday morning with a number of business agents it was disclosed his plan is not to issue separate charters, but to add the various workers and crafts he brings in to the membership of established IA locals. Such a move would give a more serious turn to the involved strike situation and break loose a jurisdictional scrap such as the American Federation of Labor seldom has experienced.

Following yesterday's meeting, the producers issued this statement:

"In pursuance of the determination to keep the studios in operation, the major motion picture producers announce arrangements were made today with Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, to have that organization furnish, in addition to the IATSE crafts now manning the studios, all necessary employes in the following classifications: carpenters, painters, electricians, machinists and other employes necessary for studio operation."

Prior to meeting with Walsh on a joint recruitment drive, producers served notice on striking unions canceling collective bargaining agreements. Wire read:

"The undersigned producers hereby rescind and terminate the collective bargaining contracts now in ef-

ONCE in a while the girls and boys who get breaks in pictures try to show their gratitude to the outfits that originally started them on their careers. One of them is Michel Michelet, a Russian, who scored plenty of pictures in Europe, did some 60 productions in France, then had to flee to Spain when the Nazis moved into Paris. On the journey to Madrid, he suffered the same hardships as a lot of others, and, eventually arrived in Hollywood in an impoverished state. Arthur Ripely and Rudolph Monter, producing "Voice of the Wind," hired him to do the score, which led him into a fat Metro contract. But it was not the usual MGM deal, for there was a special clause written into it. Ripley-Monter Productions get Michelet for anything they produce, including "Look Homeward, Angel," which they will put into production in mid-Summer.

EVEN though Jap agents are supposed to have covered every corner of the United States with their cameras in past, so that Imperial Tokyo has vast knowledge of vital positions throughout this country, motion picture footage taken by James A. FitzPatrick in Japan probably more than matches any footage of U. S. owned by enemy. In 1938, FitzPatrick spent several months in Japan, for series of his "FitzPatrick's Traveltalks," and filmed more than 50,000 feet of Jap empire. Not only did he train his lens on subjects average tourist would cover, but specifically devoted most of footage to terrain average tourist could not visit, as guest of Jap government. FitzPatrick has turned this entire reelage over to U. S. Government, which already is reported to have found much of material of particular value in preparing raids on Japan.

THREE new programs are on the planning board of Office of Inter-American Affairs to intensify the radio coverage of Latin-American countries by Jack Runyon's Hollywood staff. To date the government agency has set up and produced more than 2,000 programs and the supplementary service is to reach the Brazilian population which speaks Portuguese. Runyon and his staff will short-wave several programs daily from the World Security Conference in Frisco and also record shows there for the turntables of South American stations. New programs will feature film players, with all studios cooperating in contributing talent.

HARRY FLANNERY rang the bell on the jackpot in his predictions broadcast over CBS and printed in Daily Variety. Among the events he called the turn on were: Russ denunciation of the treaty with Japan, unseating of Jap Premier Koiso and ascension of Suzaki, and appointment of General MacArthur as commander of land forces in the Pacific war theatre. With that cycle successfully completed, Flannery goes out on the limb again to predict that the Soviet will open an attack on the Nips next Friday, which is the 13th.

FRED CAMPBELL, head of Universal's camera department, has developed a miniature steel portable catwalk that is so constructed that it moves with the camera. It makes its debut in the Durbin starrer, "Lady On a Train." Spotlights can be fastened to the frame in such a way that they can move with the camera, giving the feature the proper light shading he needs for each sequence.

CALIF. BILL AIMS 55 MILLION SHOW NICK

the bill would raise $55,000,000 bi-annually.

Terms of bill would allot 10% to the state, 20% to the counties and 70% to the cities for post-war work. Every amusement except charitable ones would be taxed 10%.

Legislative comment was that the measure has little chance of passing but it cannot be ruled out entirely in view of the current wrangle between the governor and the forces of the cities and counties on how to get money for post-war employment.

It is expected that amusement enterprises in the state, led by the theatres, will marshal strength against measure.

Scared Stiff

(Comedy Mystery)

PARAMOUNT RELEASE of a Pine-Thomas production. Associate producer, Maxwell Shane. Director, Frank McDonald. Screenplay, Geoffrey Homes, Maxwell Shane. Photography, Fred Jackman, Jr. Editing, Howard Smith, Henry Adams. Art director, F. Paul Sylos. Set decorations, Ray Berk.

CAST—Stars Jack Haley. Features Ann Savage. Supporting players: Barton MacLane, Veda Ann Borg, Arthur Aylesworth, Lucien Littlefield, George E. Stone, Paul Hurst, Robert Emmett Keane, Eily Malyon, Buddy Swan, Roger Pryor, Edward Earle.

TRADESHOWN at studio, March 29, 1945. Running time: 63 MINS.

"Scared Stiff," presumably a comedy-mystery, never completely jells, despite the frantic efforts of a capable cast headed by Jack Haley. Too many loose ends are left dangling in a story which at best is confusing, and film is a far cry from the customary Pine-Thomas average. Frank McDonald in his direction did what he could with the action to keep it swift-paced, but characters get away from authors with all McDonald's seasoned maneuvering and picture emerges only as ordinary programmer.

Haley in star role plays a sap newspaper reporter, who doesn't recognize a story if it comes up and punches him in the nose. He reports "no story" to his editor when a national chess tournament winds up in a big fight and riot call instead of a checkmate for the champ. As a last chance to make good, because his uncle is the publisher of paper, he is assigned to cover a wine festival in a neighboring town. He bungles his way into a murder en route, then devotes most of balance of yarn trying to leave the scene so he can continue on to his assignment. Even when he captures the murderer, plus an escaped gangster-convict, he fails to see any story for his paper in the whole affair.

Star gives forth with one of his usual zany characterizations and Ann Savage provides the romantic interest in a satisfactory way. Lucien Littlefield, playing a pair of eccentric twins who own the hotel where plot unfolds, contributes standout work, and Veda Ann Borg is a lady detective. Barton MacLane plays the gangster. Balance of cast stacks up favorably.

Producers gave picture suitable atmospheric mounting and had benefit of up-to-par technical assistance. Maxwell Shane acted as associate producer, Fred Jackman, Jr., handled cameras and F. Paul Sylos designed sets, which were decorated by Ray Berk.

Berkson On His Own

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Look for the Soviet to attack Japan on Friday, April 13th, the day the renunciation of the neutrality treaty with Japan is effective. The Soviet has paved the way for this action by saying that Japan has aided Germany in the war, which violates the provision that in case either nation is at war with another, it shall remain neutral as regards that third nation. Thus Japan has broken the treaty already. Further, for the record, the Soviet says the treaty is meaningless and cannot be continued because Japan attacked and is fighting Russia's allies, the United States and Britain. . . . Look for the new cabinet under Suzuki to begin attempts to get a negotiated peace. Japan already has tried to get China to make a separate peace, and was reported to have asked the Soviet to negotiate a peace with us for her. The move toward this possibility was taken when Tojo was ousted. Japan would lose face to change her policy abruptly, so she put Koiso in first, with industrialists (the conservatives) in the cabinet. Now a complete turn to the conservatives is proposed with Suzuki. The "young officers," some of the same hot-head military group, tried to assassinate him in 1936 because he counseled against war with the United States. The industrialists will figure that Japan has been defeated, that she cannot win, that continuance of the war further only would destroy more of Japan, and they will therefore attempt to get peace. They will make successive offers, and may even finally accept unconditional surrender. They will consider, especially now that Russia is against them, that this is only wise. The industrialists and most of the other men who will be in the new cabinet will not be so deterred by the idea of losing face, as by the thought that they may otherwise lose their heads. . . . The MacArthur appointment to head the army in the Pacific, with Nimitz in command of the navy, Arnold of the air, means that a smart and daring strategist has been chosen. A lot of people do not like MacArthur personally, but even his critics admit he is an exceptional military man. The Philippines campaign was a masterpiece. Stillwell has not been considered because he does not have the MacArthur record, is not liked by the Generalissimo and by many of the men. MacArthur also, even though some of the men in the other services criticize him, has been able to get along well with the navy command, especially Halsey.

Play Review

ADRIFT IN NEW YORK

A rough house competitor to the "Drunkard" opened at the Pirates Den Music Hall last night. Titled "Adrift In New York," show probably will not run for the 12 years that its predecessor has. However, "Adrift" is a lot of fun and offers a novelty in the fact that the olio comes in the middle of the show.

Story is the usual stock plot of the girl who goes to the big city to save the old farm mortgage and is betrayed by a cad. The players carried it off by kidding themselves and getting the audience in the spirit of things. Those who stood out were Theyer Roberts, Reggie Dvorak, Lillias Gilbert, John Harrison Aulger and Louise Sherwood.

"Adrift" looks like it's good for a lot of laughs in a few months in Los Angeles.

Mono Sets 4 Tunes By Gus Edwards For 'Sue'

Monogram has set four of Gus Edwards' tunes for "Sunbonnet Sue." In addition to the title song, score will include "School Days," "See-Saw" and "By the Light of the Silvery Moon." Film rolls April 16.

He got $50 a week and when he brought the first pay check home, he says, his dad asked: "When are you going back to work?" . . . Adele Palmer, Republic's wardrobe designer, is really having to let her imagination run wild on "The Purple Shadow Strikes." It's a cliffhanger based on the "Man From Mars" theme, and what she is doing in the way of apparel for Mary Moore and Roy Barcroft is something for the surrealists.

By RADIE HARRIS

In a season filled with thrilling first nights—Ethel Barrymore in "Embezzled Heaven," Beatrice Lillie in "Seven Lively Arts," Tallulah Bankhead in "Foolish Notion" and Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts Of Wimpole Street," along came Laurette Taylor in "The Glass Menagerie" to make her welcome "home" the most memorable of them all. Never have I heard such an ovation as accorded this "Peg 'O My Heart," now a character actress in her sixties, for a performance that will surely win every possible award for the finest of the year. Even Burton Rascoe agreed with the rest of the critical fraternity rhapsodizing that you couldn't describe Miss Taylor's magic any more than you could describe a sunset.

Sharing this triumphant evening were also Eddie Dowling, Julie Haydon, Tony Ross and last, but by no means least, Tennessee Williams, who finally had to come on stage and acknowledge the shouts for "Author! Author!" Now that this young Southerner is being hailed everywhere as the most exciting new writing talent in the theatre, all sorts of legends are being manufactured about him. The facts are these: "The Glass Menagerie" is NOT his first play. A few years ago he authored "Battle of the Angels" for the Theatre Guild, a play starring Miriam Hopkins, which was stymied on its tryout in Boston and never came into New York. He also did an adaptation of a D. H. Lawrence story, "You Can't Touch Me," for Margo Jones at the Pasadena Playhouse. And whether anyone at Metro remembers it or not, he had a writing contract at the studio for a brief tenure. Mr. Williams himself was the cause of the brevity. He resigned when his first assignment was to work on a script for Lana Turner! From now on he may be able to write his own ticket at any studio, but I seriously doubt whether he'll be lured back. With his profits from "The Glass Menagerie," he can afford to indulge in the luxury of not doing anything but write the kind of plays he wants to write—of which "The Glass Menagerie" is such a gratifying example.

"BYRNE"ING MIDNIGHT OIL: The cur"fuelish" closings haven't meant catching up on sleep to the inveterate stay-outers from midnight to yawning. "At home" parties have become the rendezvous for the Stork and El Morocco celebrity set. One of the nicest gatherings of the week was the after theatre party given by "Tokio" Payne Hayes, in honor of Walter Abel. Among the Broadway pals who turned out to welcome the ever popular Walter were: Mady Christians, Blanche Yurka, Jane Wyatt, Patricia Coleman, Sona Osatto, the Howard Cullmans, Mary Howard, Irving Rapper, Ethel Vance, George Copeland, John and Marian Byram, Alfred deLiagre, Jr., Martha Scott and Carlton Alsop.

EXCLUSIVELY YOURS: Constance Cummings is turning down all offers to remain on Broadway, to return to London and rejoin her Navy husband, Benn Levy. . . . Jim Cagney, whose love for his New England farm in Martha's Vineyard died along with Ed McNamara, his constant companion at this island retreat, was successful in finding a buyer for it, and is now enroute home with Spencer Tracy as traveling companion. . . . Among the friendly audience rooting for playwright Elliott Nugent's success with his "Place Of Our Own" were: Lt. Com. Dick Barthelmess, Miriam Hopkins, James Thurber, Deems Taylor, Bill Post, Jr., Dean Harens, Steve Wiman, Pam Blumenthal, Eddie Goulding, Allan Bunce and Harry Ommerle who couldn't warm up to more than a tepid response, except for his father, J. C., who walked away with the family honors of the evening. . . . When Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin wind up their "Seven Lively Arts" run, they will inaugurate their own Ballet Repertory Theatre. . . . Bob Ritchie, who dropped his option on "Emily," because John Colton and Robert Harris wouldn't agree to suggested changes, despite a $75,000 guarantee from motion picture interests, will now attempt to resurrect "Champagne For Everybody" as a musical. He heads back to Hollywood within a fortnight, to try and snag Marilyn Maxwell for the singing lead. . . . The title of John Van Druten's new play is "Home Ground," and the producer will again be Alfred deLiagre, Jr. . . . Horace Schmidlapp may premiere his Jan Kiepura operetta, "Polonaise," on the coast in mid-August—which happens to be 3,000 miles nearer to Carole Landis! . . . Martha Scott will stick with "Soldier's Wife" when it goes on tour, but Freda Inescort will hand in her notice. . . . A certain USO entertainer soon heading overseas, wanting to apprise her husband now stationed in Paris of her impending arrival, "just in case," cabled him: "Baby arriving approximately middle of April, French Hospital!"

DOUBLE IDENTITY: Billy Daniels had no sooner checked in at the St. Regis for a holiday interlude, when he received an SOS from Buddy deSylva to use his round-trip ticket immediately and check in at Paramount pronto to stage the dances for "Stork Club." So he and Mitch Leisen, after a week's whirl of all the shows, Chief back.

Billy, anxious to find an assistant dance director to take back with him, called Vinton Freedley, for whom he had made his Broadway stage debut with Mary Parker as a dance team in "Let's Face It." When he announced his name to Mr. Freedley's secretary, she said. "Oh, yes, Mr Daniels, you're due at Chappell's to see Robert Ross this afternoon." Billy explained that there must be some mistake. He had no reason to see Mr. Ross—all he wanted to do was to talk to Mr. Freedley, but the very efficient sec was adamant. Mr. Freedley had instructed her that when Billy Daniels called, that was the message she was to give him. A very nonplussed Billy hung up, and it wasn't until the following day that he discovered Freedley was in the process of casting "Memphis Bound," and had arranged for Billy Daniels, the colored crooner, to audition for Robert Ross at Chappell's!

WLB SAYS THERE'LL BE NO U.S. STRIKE INTERVENTION

Washington, April 5.—Any hope that Hollywood strikers might find governmental intervention in the current walkout situation, with federal bureaus taking over the studios, was dissipated tonight. Dr. George W. Taylor, chairman of the War Labor Board, frankly said it would not be done.

Dr. Taylor pointed out that any certification to President Roosevelt to the effect that the studios must be seized must come from the WLB, since a labor dispute is involved. This would be true even though requests from Hollywood for action by Uncle Sam were made to some other agency.

The only thing WLB has on its calendar at present is its outstanding compliance order, requesting the strikers to return to work so that the merits of the dispute can be considered. Pending compliance, Dr. Taylor added, WLB will not do anything about the jurisdictional scrap.

Meanwhile, Dr. Taylor continued, WLB has not received any request from Hollywood or from any other government agency that WLB step in actively without compliance and pass the case higher up to the White House. He said WLB was nevertheless keeping an eye on the situation.

PRODS, IA IN DEAL FOR WORKERS

fect between the undersigned producers and your union. Such action is taken by us by reason of your breach of your obligations under such contracts and the failure of your members to perform their services in accordance with such contracts." Signing telegrams were Universal, Goldwyn, Paramount, Columbia, Warners, RKO, Metro, Republic and 20th-Fox.

UNIONS NOT PERTURBED

Telegrams terminating collective bargaining pacts caused not a ripple among the striking unions. Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Painters Local 44, and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, immediately replied for his union in a wire to Eddie J. Mannix, prexy of the Producers Association. Sorrell's telegram stated:

"Since our contracts expired Jan. 1, 1944, we are not obligated to you for anything, but since you have seen fit to terminate said contracts, we will be forced to sign a new one with better wages and better working conditions before returning to work."

Just how Walsh plans to bring in the vast amount of skilled craftsmen needed to fill studio vacancies is not known, but it is believed his scheme calls for absorption of new workers into existing locals, thus swelling their membership and dividing members of locals that are not a part of the IA setup.

WHERE NEWCOMERS GO

It is understood Walsh plans to give to Local 44, IATSE, all machinists working in shops with props, and also a part of carpenters' work done in conjunction with props. Also moving into Local 44 will be prop and maniature men. Into Local 659, cameramen, would go, it is understood, the men replacing IBEW precision machinists who work on cameras. Local 165, projectionists, would take over all projection services IBEW members have been handling. Local 80, grips, would acquire the balance of the carpenter workers.

Laboratory Technicians Local 683 would draw the work that IBEW machinists have been doing in labs on mechanical and electrical maintenance. Soundmen's Local 695 is understood to be slated to get all sound shop employes, including audio-frequency and maintenance men, also machinists on mechanical maintenance. Electricians Local 728 would take in the men to replace IBEW men working in shops and running generators, also machinists doing mechanical work.

Laborers Local 727 will get grips and prop men to replace those advanced from the local to spots as carpenters' helpers and also those grips who might be moved over to full carpenter work.

PAINTERS A PROBLEM

No provision has been made by Walsh yet, it is believed, as to what the IA plans to do about the painters who would be brought in to replace striking brush-wielders. It is likely he might want to put top painters among grips and props and the others in laborers group.

Only unions in Walsh's setup that will not be asked to take any classification outside their present groups are said to be the film editors, make-up men and first aid.

Reaction to the Walsh plan has been varied among IA business agents. Last night several of them stated that Walsh would have to issue an official order directing scheme be put into effect, as it cannot be done on the initiative of the business agents. After the Walsh order was issued, the locals would have to submit scheme to respective memberships for voting as provided in the constitution and by-laws. Latter does not permit locals to take in any crafts excepting those for which a local was originally chartered without membership okay.

ELECTRICIAN SPEAKS; TRIED

Charges were preferred yesterday against George Mehroff, Jr., a member of Local 728, Electricians, for speaking out at the mass meeting last Friday night. Charges were heard by local's executive board and its findings were then referred to the International instead of first going to the membership.

Mehroff read a written statement at the hearing, declaring, along the lines of Thomas Payne, that he didn't feel he was committing a union crime in uttering big thoughts and beliefs on a controversial subject at a public gathering.

IBEW PULLS LAB MEN

Laboratory maintenance men were pulled yesterday morning by the IBEW in studios involved, after a conference between union officials and Army heads. Move was a step to halt asserted mixing of commercial footage shot on locations by some studios with work being processed for the armed services.

Step was taken after union heads met with Army and were given an okay for jerking of crews. IBEW chiefs told Army that while the union did not want to interfere in any way with work being processed for the Army, Navy or other service branches, to prevent studios slipping in their own footage government processing could be handled in outside laboratories such as Consolidated with as much or more dispatch than in studio labs. Men pulled by the IBEW were crews maintaining refrigeration and sanitation in the studios during the strike.

JANITORS CALLED OUT

Janitors, also on strike but maintaining skeleton crews on lots at the request of the Health Department, called out men yesterday after a confab with the Conference of Studio Unions strategy committee. Janitors maintained an average of from five to 12 men on each lot.

Strategy committee charged that some stars were entering studios across picket lines with their personal maids, and after the latter were on the lots they were performing janitor work. Committee declared it had the names of those indulging in such practices and that action would be taken.

Another question before the strategy committee yesterday regarded the moving of a set from a picketed studio to one not involved in the current labor controversy. Pine-Thomas, producing for Paramount and currently shooting at PRC studio, sought to borrow several wooden columns and other carpentry work standing on the Samuel Goldwyn lot.

Strategy committee nixed transfer of the set, ruling that even though the set might have been built by carpenters prior to the strike it could not be moved to an open studio as a precedent might be set. Committee declared that a studio now involved in the strike could rent space and sets from an open studio and get around the strike issues if the Pine-Thomas borrowing move was permitted.

AVAILABILITY PUZZLES

What to do about availability slips for union men who received discharge notices from studios Wednesday was puzzling officials of the United States Employment Services yesterday. Also puzzled concerning issuance of certificates for workers who will replace discharged strikers was the War Manpower Commission.

Unionists presenting discharge letters to the USES yesterday for referral slips to other jobs were turned down. USES officials said discharges were not legal because they were mimeographed and signed by the various companies, and not by an authorized individual. Government employment bureau also expressed the opinion that as the dismissal letters were not legal it would do the discharged unionists no good to try to collect unemployment insurance.

WMC IN DILEMMA

WMC's muddle was how to interpret its rules and regulations on issuing certificates for new film workers. Its present policy is to refuse to permit strike-bound employers to hire a man or a man to be hired where a strike is in progress. Catch is whether, since the film strike has been denounced and called illegal by both the War Labor Board and the American Federation of Labor, to go ahead with granting of permits for any workers Walsh brings in under his deal with the producers to supply missing classifications. WMC officials have been confabbing on situation, and Anthony O'Brien, regional attorney, is here from San Francisco to aid in combing out the snarls that have developed.

In the meantime CSU strategy committee has served notice on studios and employers that availability certificates for all discharged employes must be ready for delivery not later than 10 a.m. today. The 10,000 strikers also are planning to present demands for social security unemployment pay at local offices next Tuesday in a mass move.

Strikers have been notified by the American Red Cross Blood Bank that facilities at the station on Western ave. are unable to care for all strikers next Tuesday, and has requested division of people into separate groups. In line with this each union will have its own day at the bank, spreading between now and the end of next week.

WALKOUT AT 20TH PLANT

Trouble flared at 20th-Fox Western studio yesterday when a generator man working on an army picture was asked to hook juice into another stage where a commercial film was in work. Generator man refused to make connection and quit. Painters, machinists, electricians working on the army film walked also.

Another assault and battery case looms as a result of a beating reportedly administered last night at 20th-Fox' Westwood studio to workers returning from the Western avenue studio. Reported returning workers were set upon by a group of unidentified men and battered about.

F-WC TURNS OVER $332,526 FOR PARALYSIS FUND

A check for $332,526.03, representing total collections by Fox West Coast Theatres in 10 southern California counties in the infantile paralysis drive, was turned over to Joseph M. Schenck, state chairman of the drive, yesterday.

The check was delivered to Schenck and Fred L. Metzler, state treasurer for the campaign, by Victor Adams, of Fox West Coast, and Clyde Eckhardt, Los Angeles exchange manager of the Fox Film Corporation.

Schenck, pronouncing the drive a tremendous success, estimated that total receipts will approximate $1,500,000, nearly double the amount taken in last year.

PAR EARNS $16,488,000

pared to $4.30 per share for preceding year.

Estimate for 1944 is reached after interest and all charges have been deducted, including reserves provided for contingencies and estimated provision for all federal, normal and excess profits taxes.

Amount includes $1,745,000 representing Paramount's direct and indirect net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings for the year of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries. Earnings for year ended Jan. 1, 1944, included $1,556,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries.

For quarter ended Dec. 30, earnings are estimated at $4,012,000, $474,000 under earnings of $4,486,000 for corresponding quarter of 1943. These earnings are after eliminating the dividends received during the period from partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries to the extent that such dividends represent distribution of earnings reported as undistributed in previous quarters.

Estimated earnings for final quarter in 1944 represent $1.07 per share on the 3,752,136 shares of common stock outstanding, which compares with $1.19 per share for the corresponding quarter of 1943.

REP BOOSTS MOZART TO TOP BUDGET AS 'IMMORTAL'

Herbert Yates, Republic's big boss, yesterday overruled his studio topmen and decided that if the biog of Mozart is worthy of production at all, it should be utilized as a top-budgeter. Result is that the valley lot will make the vehicle as a full-life story of Mozart instead of "Mozart's Trip To Prague," as originally scheduled. The new tag is "The Immortal."

Herman Millakowsky, associate producer on the production, revealed that eight of Mozart's original tunes will be included in the score.

Instead of using just a brief period of Mozart's biog, Yates has told Millakowsky to "shoot the works." "The Immortal" will carry a second title on its main credit footage. It will be "Mozart and the Women In His Life."

We get to know each other better at the movies...

At a "Good-Neighbor" film showing

THE indispensable first step in getting along with a neighbor . . . across the fence or across an international boundary line . . . is to get to know each other better.

The movies are doing a lot to help the Latin Americans to know us better, and more and more films from below the Rio Grande are coming this way to help us know them better. It works both ways.

For our country's part, feature pictures, short subjects, newsreels, industrial films, agricultural films, health films . . . in English, Spanish, Portuguese . . . all are helping our neighbors to see us as we really are. At the movies, they are learning something of our culture, our history, our daily lives . . .

And in wartime, growing good will among all the American peoples has taken on new importance.

PARAMOUNT SUITS AGAINST COOPER ARE OFFED

New York, April 5.—Indications that Paramount Pictures' suits against Joseph H. Cooper are to be settled was disclosed when one of the two actions was marked off Federal court calendar today. Action marked off was brought by Paramount, Montague F. Gowthrope and Sam Dembow, Jr., against Cooper for an accounting of assets in the Lincoln Theatre Corp.

Stipulation stated that negotiations are under way with a view to settling each of these actions.

In its other suit against Cooper, Paramount seeks a 50-50 ownership of theatres acquired by Cooper in Colorado under his own name.

Cooper has a suit against Paramount for $250,000 damages in connection with the Lincoln Theatre partnership. Cooper charges that as a result of certain advances, which both made, he was forced to settle Internal Revenue claim for $100,000, as Paramount, without his knowledge, credited its share to overhead and his to salary.

SORRELL LISTS CHECKS HE SEZ WALSH GOT

Charges that Prexy Dick Walsh of the IATSE had received thousands of dollars from the $2,000,000 IA 2% assessment racket were hurled by Herbert Sorrell last night in an address before 3,000 studio unionists at the Hollywood Legion Stadium. At the same time Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, declared that William McFetridge, prexy of the Building Service Employes International Union, is considering ordering janitors, elevator operators and other maintenance help from theatres throughout the United States in retaliation for action of producers in canceling contracts with janitors here.

Only a few minutes before, James Skelton, business representative of Studio Carpenters Local 946, intimated studio strike here may lead to internal complications in top ranks of the American Federation of Labor. Skelton declared:

"If Mr. Walsh thinks for one minute he's going to set up a union for carpenters here and get away with it, with Bill Hutcheson first vice-president of the AF of L, and with 800,000 of its members, he's just a young fry in the movement and he'll soon find that out."

Metro is understood to have wanted the vehicle for two reasons—as competition to Frank Ross's indie spectacle, "The Robe," which Ross will make for RKO, and as a starring vehicle for Elizabeth Taylor.

It was only a week ago that Cassidy revealed that he had set $2,000,000 worth of New York bank financing to make the story on his own in Technicolor, with plans to METRO tried something new in credits for sneak-preview of "Weekend at the Waldorf." Instead of throwing Leo and his roar on screen to start off showing, film first flashes on name of Ginger Rogers—"Ginger Rogers as Irene Malvern the Actress"—to take up whole screen. This is followed by Lana Turner—"Lana Turner as Bunny Smith the Stenographer"—for full screen effect, then Walter Pidgeon and Van Johnson each getting his name on separate credit on full screen. Edward Arnold and Robert Benchley each get individual full-screen credit, but in smaller letters. After this introduction of principals, title of picture then is flashed. New method of introducing cast tops is reported to have sock effect on audience.

PROBLEM of availability certificates for employes involved in studio strike, as well as outside workers recruited to fill jobs, was still a mooted question over the weekend. This was disclosed when a studio exec who had been on sick leave applied to the USES for a certificate and was told one could not be issued because of the strike, although he did not belong to a union. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, declared men refusing to cross the picket lines were not concerned because of the 26-hour leeway granted them under the law. He said a man holding an availability certificate for employment in the studio could work 26 hours on another job.

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

We're beginning to meet with stiffer opposition on parts of the fronts both in the Pacific and Europe, but in both cases we're making headway nevertheless. The Japanese on Okinawa appear to be concentrated principally in the southern part of the island, to defend Naha and the airports in that area. Spotty but determined stands like that being met now by Patton at Muelhausen are to be expected here and there as we move through the Reich. The most spectacular action is in the use of airborne troops in the Netherlands as we move to close the pocket there on trapped German troops. The Nazis may attempt two Dutch Dunkirks based at Ijmuiden and the Hook of Holland, since these points are well fortified with coastal guns. There is every indication that Amsterdam, Dodrecht, Utrecht and Rotterdam will be surrendered with only token resistance, although the Canadians are forced to battle toward these points.

CAST—Co-stars Dorothy Lamour and Arturo de Cordova. Features J. Carrol Naish, with Mikhail Rasumny, Fernando Alvarado and Frank McHugh. Other supporting players include Rosita Moreno, Grant Mitchell, Douglass Dumbrille.

TRADESHOWN at Paramount projection room March 30, 1945. Running time: 79 MINS.

Dorothy Lamour, sans sarong and songs, moves into full histrionic bloom in Paramount's "A Medal For Benny," a picture in which she shares co-starring honors with Mexico's talented Arturo de Cordova. Yet outstanding as are the portrayals of Lamour and De Cordova, it is a character actor, J. Carrol Naish, as the old Mexican father, who steals the acting honors.

Going beyond the Lamour-De Cordova-Naish performances, Paramount had in this feature one of the finest pieces of entertainment wrapped up in 79 minutes of running time that has been shown in this town in many a moon.

If ever a supporting player was entitled to an Academy award, surely Naish, as a result of his work in this offering, is that person. As the simple-minded, kindly, vino-consuming father of a bad boy, a parent-love that has been so delicately handled, Naish's "Charley" is one of those screen characterizations that will long be remembered.

Lamour, shedding the vocalizing and scanty attire that brought her into film prominence, has turned in a dramatic achievement that should send her to the top of that division.

Arturo de Cordova lives up to his already established reputation in role of fellow in love with Lamour who, on the other hand, has long been betrothed to Benny. Benny dies in the Philippines without ever appearing on the screen.

Mikhail Rasumny, as the Chamber of Commerce janitor, delivers a speech that should impress every American. Fernando Alvarado is splendid as Lamour's brother.

"A Medal For Benny" is one of those simple stories that often rise above budgets and develop a position in the annual Hollywood output that stand out above many of the more costly productions. It is a yarn backgrounded against life in any one of several of California's Mexican-occupied "slumtowns." It is honest and true to conditions as they exist in these settlements today.

Maybe "A Medal For Benny" won't run six weeks at New York's Par, but it will bring back to the Paramount distribution department a return far, far above its cost.

Associate Producer Paul Jones, Director Irving Pichel, Scripter Frank Butler, Authors John Steinbeck and Jack Wagner, Cameraman Lionel Lindon, Art Directors Hans Dreier and Hal Pereira, Musical Director Victor Young, Film Editor Arthur Schmidt, as well as all others connected with the turning out of the feature—both players and technicians—are entitled to bows.

Murder, He Says

(Comedy)

PARAMOUNT RELEASE. Associate producer, E. D. Leshin. Director, George Marshall. Screenplay, Lou Breslow. Story, Jack Moffitt. Music score, Robert Emmett Dolan. Editor, LeRoy Stone. Wardrobe, Mary Kay Dodson. Photography, Theodor Sparkuhl. Art direction, Hans Dreier, William Flannery. Set decorations, George Sawley. Special photographic effects, Gordon Jennings, Paul Lerpae.

CAST—Stars Fred MacMurray. Features Helen Walker, Marjorie Main. Supporting players: Jean Heather, Peter Whitney, Porter Hall, Mabel Paige, Barbara Pepper.

TRADESHOWN at studio, March 29, 1945. Running time: 94 MINS.

"Murder, He Says" is fairly fast-moving, corn-fed comedy constructed along lines so broad that frequently picture reverts to old-time gags and outmoded situations. Film unquestionably will carry wide appeal for small-town and rural trade, and Fred MacMurray's name will be a strong draw for all comers, but metropolitan theatregoers will find picture too hokey for all its liberal sprinkling of laughs.

MacMurray is set in a new background, the hillbilly country where its inhabitants would as soon drop you with a shotgun as not, only sooner. As a staff member of the Trotter Service—similar to Gallup Poll, but where Gallup men run they take it easier—he goes searching for a fellow inquirer who's disappeared, and quest takes him to the house of the Fleagles, ground where even the sheriff fears to tread.

Here he meets such backwoods characters as Ma Fleagle, who rules her brood with a long whip and an eye for murder; Mert and Bert, her twin sons who have developed murder to simple head-bashing; Mr. Johnson, her scientific-minded fourth husband whoso experiments lead to some outlandish phenomena; Bonnie Fleagle, gun-totin' niece just escaped from state pen because no jail can hold her, and a girl, Claire, with whom MacMurray falls in love during their mad scramble to find $70,000 in stolen money which will clear gal's father, sent up because he was suspected to be a member of Bonnie's holdup gang. Latter's crazy grandmother left secret in a sampler and considerable time is consumed in deciphering it.

MacMurray plays an entirely different type of character, a continually flustered and timid young man apparently none too bright, in this slapstick-packed feature which draws on most of the routines known to this type of comedy. Neither he nor Helen Walker, as Claire, fit in particularly with their roles, but despite this they both struggle valiantly to turn in good performances. Best work in the picture is contributed by Peter Whitney in dual role of the twins, who does neatly shaded job of hilarious characterization, and Marjorie Main, who even in her overplaying of whip-lashing mother, is standout. Porter Hall is up to usual standard as her husband, Jean Heather is in for some good moments as a half-wit hill girl, and Mabel Paige is grandmother. Barbara Pepper as Bonnie is comedy rendition of lady gangster.

George Marshall handled direction and literally tossed in book in motivating plot. E. D. Leshin acted as associate producer and gave film atmespheric mounting. Interesting photographic special effects were attained by Gordon Jennings and Paul Leprae.

Play Reviews

RHAPSODY IN RHYTHM

Paul Small may have had some fertile ideas about staging a sepian revue, but in this dark opus he missed from here to Hoboken. He prefers to call it a musical revue, but it's out-and-out vaude, and pretty bad at that. It's poorly routined production is ragged, and its only saving grace is the marquee draft of Ethel Waters. Aside from her half-hour turn at closing, the singing is amateurish and the production numbers unworthy of the tariff. There's some fairly good hoofing and occasional comedy moments, but in the aggregate the report card would flunk the whole class.

Waters, approaching the twilight of a brilliant career, is nursing along her pipes in the manner of her name contemporaries, with the emphasis on talky, spicy songs with her own suggestive interpolations. The Stormy Weather gal has died down to a zephyr. She's saved for the last and came on around 10:40 for a solid half-hour of her repertoire. It might have been better theatre to have her warble a couple of numbers in the first act and come back after intermish.

What few professionals were in the audience at the opening must have resented the unprofessional behavior of Waters in dismissing Waldemar Guterson and his pit ork for the accompaniment of "Stormy Weather." It was evident to everyone that the crew was having a rough time, and she might have whispered it rather than make a public announcement. She later condescended to let the band accompany her on the reprise of "Taking a Chance On Love," with the appeaser, "Maybe we can get together now." It was an unsporting thing to do and the bandmen slumped back in their chairs feeling smaller than the show's chances of a run.

Mantan Moreland and Ben Carter rate second billing with their interrupting routine, but Dusty Fletcher's drunk act with the ladder polled more laughs. Timmie Rogers crowded his full turn in one spot and came off handily. Dynamite Jefferson opened strong with freak teeth-lifting act, and the Four Step Brothers turned in some lightning-fast hoofing. Savage Dancers and the 16 Jubilee Kids contributed two numbers that would have trouble passing muster on Central ave. The line of girls one comes to expect at a colored revue was limited to five, with not enough to do to work up a sweat.

Small should never have crossed the color line. He did all right with his paleface revues, but he really comes a cropper in this one. He'll never get the Hollywood mob downtown for this opus despite the flambuoyant, misleading ads. It'll fold long before the Nazis do.

LADY CHATTERLY'S LOVER

When D. H. Lawrence brought out his novel of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" in the 1920's, everyone was aghast and secretly thrilled with the frank discussion of sex relations. However, Thornton West's dramatization of the book, which opened at Filmcity Drama theatre Friday night, is strictly ho-hum.

SENATE MAY LOOK INTO ALLOCATIONS FOR FM RADIO

Washington, April 8.—Possibility of a Senate committee investigation into the new Federal Communications Commission frequency allocations is hinted here, as the FM broadcasters continue their battle against being shoved upstairs in the spectrum.

The FM people have carried their scrap to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee and its chairman, Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.), may decide on hearings this month before the final allocations are announced.

Wheeler has released letters on the subject from FCC Chairman Paul A. Porter, and E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of the Zenith Radio Corporation, who opposes the move. Porter's letter to Wheeler was in response to a statement from McDonald to Wheeler. Porter charged McDonald was circulating his statement to all purchasers of Zenith receivers "in an attempt to pressure the Commission into giving him what he wants."

"I would much prefer," continued Porter, "to face a few statements like Mr. McDonald's now, rather than the millions of complaints which may develop hereafter if FM is placed in a portion of the spectrum where interference will destroy listeners' enjoyment."

A copy of this was sent on to McDonald, who subsequently wrote Wheeler denying that he was attempting to pressure FCC. McDonald added that no new evidence in favor of the move upstairs was developed on March 12 and 13 when FCC conducted a secret hearing to receive testimony on the subject which the Army had marked restricted. He added that seven of the eight propagation experts who testified at the public sessions were in favor of keeping FM where it is now.

By JACK HELLMAN

One of our top Cutty Sarkers recently at the home office brings back the disquieting news that there's a panicky feeling among agency execs. The future seems a little blurred and a spirit of retrenchment is in the air. The only department that has been highly activated, sez he, is where the artists and space men hang out. That could mean what this pillar has smelled for some time—the impending era of visual advertising. Budget planners with an eye to the fall season are visibly worried, knowing full well that with the end of hostilities in Europe the bars will come down on other advertising media. Those full page color ads in the slick mags have plenty of eye appeal, especially with all the new plastic gadgets and streamlined this 'n' that to roll off the assembly lines. The scramble is on for billboards, too, and one of the bigger commission houses is said already to have contracted for more stands and locations across the country than there are Burma Shave signs.

No, Rollo, that wasn't a cigaret line in the Equitable building foyer the other day but just a queue of program packagers and agents with situation comedy shows to sell. Not in recent years have there been so many comedy stanzas wrapped up for summer duty. The boys have been smarted up and the first pitch is that it sells for less than $5,000. That carries a definite appeal for the buyers and from then on in it's a matter of who's in it. It's smart merchandising to keep the price down as some agencies have it all figured out that a summer filler is just that and doesn't cut much of a figure so why give it an expensive mounting.

STATION BREAKS . . . Tom Fizdale has sold out his interest in the radio publicity firm bearing his name to his partner, Win Nathanson. Fizdale is associated with James Saphier in the Selznick-Saphier agency. . . . Thompson agency is all agog over its new singing discovery, Florence Alba, who made her professional debut with Bing Crosby last Thursday. She's an operatic soprano from Frisco and will entrust her immediate career to the proaner, who has taken a shine to her vocalistics. . . . Dick Powell says he has definite assurance from NBC prexy, Niles Trammell, that Fitch Bandwagon will not be moved out of its Sunday spot next fall after the 52-week notice is up. Rumor has it that the time had been promised to Amos 'n' Andy. . . . Benton & Bowles buys its own summer sub for Maxwell House while CBS fills for Brice-Thomas. . . . Frances Scully starts her sixth year on the air today. Her new program, "Star Gazing," has several clients panting. . . . Reed Kilpatrick, NBC producer on the Rudy Vallee show, in St. Vincent's hospital with a leg injury. . . . Cliff Nazarro back from a theatre tour and guesting with Abbott and Costello Thursday. . . . "Mayor of the Town" hits the east an hour later beginning April 28. Coast repeat is unaffected. . . . With Jack Louis around and Maurice Needham due in Saturday, several pressing matters will be solved. Office manager and producer of either "Fibber" or "Gildersleeve" are to be named and summer sub for the Jordans picked from the maze of candidates. Frank Pittman has been holding down the three jobs since Cece Underwood departed.

Larry Berns, producer of the Jack Carson show and doing a mighty fine job, incidentally, mistakes the intent of our recent references to Carson leading a charmed life. In the item Berns sees his star pillaried when objectively we sought only to point up that both he and Reader's Digest have been lucky not to have been displaced for the past two seasons. It is generally known in the trade that Campbell soup has long been flirting with replacements for one or both programs but when option time rolled around they just couldn't make up their minds and let the incumbents stay put. In part Berns writes: "Jack Carson has improved to a point where I believe he can hold his own with the best. The writing on the show has been sharp and done by one of the finest staffs in radio. The cast has been the finest that could be assembled. Catch the show and I think you'll agree that Carson has a great future in radio instead of a charmed life." But we repeat, Mr. Berns, we never said or even intimated that Carson "should be off the air."

If this sounds like a pitch for Frank Hemingway then we're on the beam and we hope it's taken up in full cry by Don Lee's Lewis Allen Weiss, Willet Brown and Sid Gaynor. In Hemingway we believe Don Lee and Mutual has a valuable property that rates better than a regional break. He should and could be sold nationally if the proper effort was put forth. We know of no other newscaster who injects lightness and mimicry into a program with such a delightful flair, planting a laugh here and a chuckle there. It's all in good taste, never overdone and least of all hammy. Give him a listen some a. m. at 7 on KHJ and see whether you agree. And not to be overlooked is his writer, Bill Green, who proses and paces through the Hemingway groove.

STATION BREAKS . . . Audition of the Marlin Hurt ("Beulah") show has some of the summer shoppers drooling but it's just waste drool. Tums has first refusal on 30-day option. . . . Dorothy Dietz, former executive secretary of Radio Directors Guild in New York, is now amanuensis to Bert Praeger. . . . Eddie Cantor salutes his sponsor (Bristol-Myers) Wednesday night for 20 years in radio. . . . Lester Matthews will have a chief supporting role on Tonight's Lux broadcast, to be hosted by Thomas Mitchell. . . . KSFO, Frisco and KPAS, Pasadena, have been linked into what is to be known as Universal Broadcasting Co. Wilt Gunzendorfer, KSFO manager, heads the two-station skein. . . . After 13-week trial spin on the coast Blue, "Murder Will Out" continues under Rainier sponsorship. . . . Orson Welles will have his frau, Rita Hayworth, as dramatic vis-a-vis on "This Is My Best" April 17. . . . Arch Oboler launches his new Mutual-Don Lee series Wednesday night (9:30 KHJ).

20TH BOND PICTURE PACKS SMASH ENTERTAINMENT

Twentieth-Fox has a neat package of smash entertainment in "The All-Star Bond Rally," which it produced for the Seventh War Loan Drive. Tag is indicative of picture's personnel, who for 1640 feet of film blend singing, dancing and comedy in short's message to buy more Bonds.

Bob Hope takes over his familiar role of emcee, and in midst of his wisecracks pauses long enough to deliver a sincere appeal to the public. Bing Crosby also puts in his bid for public to purchase that extra Bond, before he warbles "Buy a Bond," cleffed by Harold Adamson and Jimmy McHugh, Treasury Department's official song for this latest drive. Harry James and his ork accompany Der Bingle in this, as well as earlier Frank Sinatra swooning "Saturday Night."

Betty Grable is in place, too, singing and dancing to "We'll Be Marching to a Love Song," in which she is backed by chorus of gals in military uniform. Harpo Marx cuts short his chasing of a blonde to play "Elma" on his harp and Fibber McGee and Molly appear intermittently through film. Figuring in imaginative sequence are Linda Darnell, Carmen Miranda, June Haver, Faye Marlow, Vivian Blaine and Jeanne Crain.

Harry Engel Signs As Earl Carroll Aide

Earl Carroll has engaged Harry Engel, former Republic casting director, as his assistant in the enterprises planned by the nitery operator for after the war. His immediate duties will be to represent Carroll's properties for picture production, similar to the deal he negotiated with Republic for the filming of "Earl Carroll's Vanities."

Loew and Lewin Will Produce 'Bel Ami'

David Loew and Albert Lewin's next partnership picture will be Guy de Maupassant's "Bel Ami," which Loew will produce and Lewin write and direct. Picture is slated for United Artists release, and negotiations already have started for George Sanders to enact star role.

IA LOCAL HEARS BROWNE, BIOFF READ OUT

Communication from Prexy Dick Walsh and the IATSE executive board, branded by union tops as a poor effort to whitewash failure of international to toss Willie Bioff and George E. Browne out of the Alliance, drew knowing smiles but no action yesterday at a membership meeting of Film Technicians Local 683. After viewing achievements of the IA, communication stated in part:

"In view of such a record, it is not surprising that the delegates to the convention in Louisville in 1940 voted unanimously to support Browne. It is true that at that time rumors were being circulated alleging certain illegal conduct on the part of Bioff and intimating that perhaps Browne was involved. However, as the sources of these rumors were known to be hostile to the labor movement as a whole, no recognition was given to them.

"The executive board, like the delegates to that convention, did not take such attacks seriously, for before them was this record of achievement that far surpassed our fondest hopes in the dark days of 1934. Employers who pay off labor leaders, we concluded, pay them off for tearing down union conditions, not for building them up.

"Future developments proved we were all deceived by the front which Browne had built. However, until the disclosures came out at the various trials, there was no information available that would justify our deserting the man under whose administration so much had been achieved.

"The Browne-Bioff incident in the life of the IA is closed. It is imperative in the interests of the future of the Alliance that the public be permitted to forget it. It is expected this official declaration by the executive board will end this matter for good."

Similar communication was sent to all IA studio locals, with instructions it be read to the membership.

TROPICAL REVUE

There are a great many elements that go into the making of a top terp show, and Katherine Dunham's "Tropical Revue" at the Biltmore last night had them all.

The Dunham troupe is superb in its particular sphere of entertainment. Ranging from elemental jungle dances through the routines of hepsters, Miss Dunham paces a slick group of terpsters who present a classic art form with sock boffo.

Most of the dancing is interpretive but needs little programming. It ranges from high drama to low comedy, with a dash of slapstick.

Sol Hurok produced this colorful and well-paced show that hasn't a moment's lag. Dale Wasserman's staging and lighting gets top effect with John Pratt's costumes and settings. Martin Gabowitz batons a sharp pit crew that is tops.

Aside from choreography and star spot Miss Dunham has collected some great dancers. Rating top applause are Roger Ohardieno, Lenwood Morris, La Verne French, Lucille Ellis and Vanoye Aikens.

SORRELL LISTS CHECKS HE SEZ WALSH GOT

strike is now 93% won, Sorrell declared:

"I want to give you people, and particularly those of the IA, an idea of the kind of errand boy Walsh really is. We got rid of Willie and then we got Richard Walsh. Walsh was in on all of this. He was a vice-president and became president. If he had been a bad veepee, he might not have known what was going on, but if he had been a bad veepee I don't think they would havem ade him president.

WALSH TAX CITED

"You remember there was a 2% grab in the IA a few years ago. I know you boys who paid it will remember. Well, Mr. Walsh, who has always been an errand boy, was errand boy for Willie then. When they cut up the first $125,000 in Washington, Mr. Walsh got $4,080. I don't know what he did with it. Maybe he shoved it down a sewer or gave it to the poor, but, anyway, he paid income tax on it. And that wasn't on salary. That was a cut of the 2%."

Sorrell then listed various amounts which he claimed had been turned over to Walsh by Al Lanigan and John S. Risley, whom he identified as former international representatives for the IATSE. He declared in some instances Risley and Lanigan paid the income taxes on the amounts before allegedly turning the money over to Walsh. He said Walsh had given the impression to the membership that he had turned the money over to either Isadore Zevin or Willie Bioff. "Maybe he did," Sorrell declared. "I don't know where the coin went. Maybe that was a clean transaction. I'll leave that up to you to judge where the money went."

Sorrell declared that Risley had delivered $3300 to Walsh in 1937, $5700 in 1938, $5200 in 1939 and $2800 in 1940. He declared Lanigan had delivered $2392 to Walsh in 1935, $8936 in 1936, $6374 in 1937, $5700 in 1938 and $5200 in 1939.

CALL MEN OFF LOCATIONS

Sorrell also revealed that all painters, machinists, carpenters, decorators, etc., are being called in from locations in Florida, Arizona and New York. He also told audience that Lou Costa, Marine veteran discharged by Paramount for refusing to do painting while employed as a laborer, had been made a member of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and declared that when Costa returned to work the studios would have to pay him $3.03 per hour.

He also told the unionists that Local 644 at a membership meeting Sunday had voted unanimously to reclassify all painters, with demands for cell washers going to $1.71 per hour and the minimum for painters being advanced from $1.71 and $2.03 to $3.03 per hour.

George Bradley, international vice-president of BSEIU, told the audience that when the studios "started a process of lockouts, using a stooge union, they may be heading into trouble with the public throughout the country." Announcement was made that studio plumbers would be notified today to drop IATSE or face expulsion from the United Association of Plumbers.

IA WIFE SPEAKS

George Stoica, member of the IA Local 44, Mrs. Jean London, who declared she was the wife of an IATSE member not crossing the picket line; Ed Mussa, business representative of Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421; D. T. Wayne, business representative of Studio Machinists Local 1185; Roy Tindall, assistant business representative of IBEW Local 40; Mike Jeffers, business representative of Screen Players Union, and others made short talks.

SKEPTICAL ON NEW WORKERS

There were few new moves in actual strike activities over the weekend, with all three groups apparently waiting to see what developments would bring this week. Walsh still was insisting that the IATSE would furnish all the men needed to take over jobs of strikers and workers who are refusing to cross the picket lines. Producer representatives declared pictures were being produced, but some on the inside were skeptical that Walsh could furnish sufficient experienced technicians to keep the wheels rolling.

Predictions of serious trouble on the picket lines if Walsh attempted to move in strikebreakers this week were being made at the mass meeting. This was further indicated when strike bulletin going to picket lines carried instructions, "Let's quit the hand-shaking with anyone going through the lines. By now we know our real friends and those vaguely neutral aren't helping us much."

FOUR BEATEN

Worst flareups during the week occurred near 20th-Fox, where four men who had been engaged in painting were reported to have been badly beaten. Their car was said to have been followed after it came out of the Pico entrance to a point on Motor ave., about a half-mile south of the lot. Similar occurrences were reported near Columbia and other studios, but studio execs and strike leaders denied any knowledge of the affairs.

FIGHT OF UNIONS SEEN

Threat by Walsh to issue charters for carpenters, painters and machinists was expected to result in drawing international heads of various crafts into local fight. There were reports charges might be filed against Walsh with the AF of L executive board, with William Hutcheson of the carpenters, E. P. Lindelof of the painters, lining up with Ed and Harvey Brown, international heads of the electricians and machinists, in demanding an investigation of Walsh's action, particularly his invasion of other jurisdictions and demands that his own members act as strikebreakers. Such a move would have the support of William McFetridge, head of the Building Service Employes International Union.

Walsh's strikebreaking order already has definitely alienated four of his own studio locals, with the possibility they may be joined by three others. These unions have not been taking any active part in the strike, but are disturbed over the international's autonomy grab.

STRIKE BENEFITS ARE VOTED DOWN BY PAINTERS

Payment of strike benefits was nixed by studio painters yesterday at a general membership meeting of Moving Picture Painters Local 644. Tinters declared $1,500 daily was rolling into the treasury in payments from men working on indie lots, etc.; that outside work was available for the entire membership, and then voted to continue building up "our war chest" for an "emergency."

Painters also voted to tighten restrictions on members working on indie lots by requiring issuance of a work permit weekly. Before second permit is issued member must pay up $5 daily for each day he was employed. No payment is required from men on outside jobs provided they spend three hours daily on the picket line.

Nearly 1,000 painters crowded into Carpenters Hall cheered when Charley Haden, 74-year-old painter and veteran of the 1937 strike, insisted on paying $5 monthly from his pension check because "I'm too old to walk a picket line." Members were addressed by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions; George Bradley, international vice-president of Building Service Employes International Union; Charles Sproul, prexy of Studio Carpenters Local 946; Ed Mussa, business representative of Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421, and Roy Tindall, assistant business representative of IBEW Local 40.

Sorrell declared approximately 300 painters now are employed on outside jobs and that there is work available for 500 more.

gags to hypo the audience's interest, "Chatterly" doesn't get around to amusing until the third act. And by that time the novocaine effect of the first two stanzas has deadened the punch to a great extent. The show tries to combine burlesque with drawing-room drama and takes a pratt-fall somewhere in between.

Richard Worthington as Sir Clifford Chatterly pushed some life into his lines, striving valiantly with a lost cause. Others who looked good were Cay Forester, an attractive but coolish Lady Chatterly; Mauritz Hugo and Sid Melton, who brought Flatbush to the Thames somewhat inconceivably. Mary Lavinia Spreckles did a lost walk-on, but Crystal Raftone's rendition of "Rum and Coca-Cola" put some spark into the last gasp of the production.

Jack Linder's direction lost a lot of meaning in some of the subtler portions of this not-so-subtle talkpiece, and hypoed most of the drollery until it became gagging.

There may be a market for "Chatterly" with the groups who like "Maid In the Ozarks" and "Honey In the Hay." But the latter two, at least, admit they have dirty fingernails.

Rex Lease has been inked by Hal Wallis for role in "You Came Along."

SENATE WHETS ITS PUBLICITY KNIFE FOR H'WOOD

Murray (D, Mont.), finally announced today its expected probe into chain operation vs. small indies.

Fact of the investigation appears to be that Dewey Anderson, secretary of the committee, has promoted the quiz because some of the other recent investigations have flopped badly as headline grabbers. However, hearings which might pull big industry names to Hollywood to testify would be sure-fire to grab newspaper and radio attention even with a war on.

JUSTICE DEPT. ACTING

If results were the only thing sought, it is claimed the matter would have been left to the Justice Department anti-trust division which is moving for divorcement in the Big Five case and has announce it also will seek to break up the large chains not affiliated with the distributors. In view of this, Washington feels it is obvious that the Senate committee is after publicity.

Senator Murray's statement, in which he announced an investigation of "this apparently widespread problem," said in part:

"A complaint received from an independent motion picture theatre owner in my home town of Butte, Mont., charging that the great producer-exhibitor monopoly is using unfair, coercive means to destroy his business, is typical of charges made by many other theatre operators throughout the country.

PUBLIC STAKE IN PIX

"The vital importance of motion pictures as a medium for the communication of thoughts and ideas gives the public a real stake in them. Any practices which result in restraint of trade, or prevent the exhibition of films in any area of the country would infringe on the public interest in that territory.

"The latest complaint from Butte charges that nine out of the 12 theatres formerly existing in Silver Bow county, Montana, have been absorbed by the major companies or forced out of business by their competition until only three theatres remained in Butte in 1932, all owned by one major producer-distributor."

MPPDA FIGURES CITED

The statement quotes MPPDA figures that indie theatres, which were 68% of the total in 1933, dropped to 56% by 1941." During the same period," it adds, "the number of theatres belonging to large unaffiliated chains increased from 15% of the total to 28%. The number of the chain systems also increased from 233 in 1933 to 357 in 1941."

"Such charges as these certainly warrant investigation," Murray said. "Similar coercive measures are de on equal terms."

"An objective investigation will be made of these and other charges to correct any evils which might be found to exist. We must make certain that the field of motion picture exhibition is open to all competitors on equal terms."

About the only thing that could come out of such an investigation, in addition to the publicity, would be another collection of Neely bills aimed at block booking, etc. Everything else is being handled in the Justice Department suits.

OLD RINGLING FEUD REKINDLED AT COURT SESH

New York, April 8. — Although sentences of Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey operating heads were reduced in Hartford yesterday, there's gloom around the big top. Bitter comments were heard about State Witness John Ringling North, who testified that the men are not indispensable to show. He formerly operated the circus, and his appearance in court rekindled a family feud, it being figured as an attempt to regain control.

Show, anyhow, will open under canvas in Washington early in June. General Manager George Smith, on his way to Sarasota, Fla., to ready the outdoor equipment, starts serving time immediately after capital debut. Whether show can travel thereafter is not certain.

Fir first time in 25 years circus will parade through midtown Monday morning. It will ballyhoo to aid Treasury Department's drive for payroll savings in conjunction with the Seventh War Loan.

STUDIOS REVISE PLANS FOR V-DAY

o'clock noon on any weekday, the studios will close for the balance of that day. If it occurs after luncheon period from Monday through Friday, the lots will dismiss all employes for the remainder of that day and the day following. Should the official announcement be received at any time on Sunday, the studios will be shuttered on Monday. If it comes on a Saturday, work will be resumed as usual the following Monday.

MINIMUM PAY GUARANTEED

The producers said that all workers who are on the job when V-Hour occurs are guaranteed the minimum pay for that day. Calls for which employes have not reported when the V announcement is made will be postponed until the reopening day.

The Producers Association statement added:

"Because of the nature of the fighting now going on in Europe, and the likelihood that there will be no formal armistice, it has been decided that V-Day and V-Hour must be determined by a confirmed official statement that organized resistance by Germany has ceased.

"To avoid confusion, studio employes are to remain at their jobs until dismissed by proper authority. Studios will receive the official flash from the Association offices."

ONLY ONE MANILA THEATRE IN OPERATING CONDITION

It had to wait for the Office of War Information to tell it, but finally the story of what the Japanese did to picture business in the Philippines has come out. The Times, Manila, is the only first-run theatre left intact and in operation. These are, however, some 17 theatres in the city itself that still are standing and that can eventually be repaired.

The Times, reopened March 31, for an invitational preview for civic and military officials. The bill included Universal's Deanna Durbin-Pat O'Brien starrer, "His Butler's Sister"; the OWI documentary, "Cowboy," and the Eighth Air Force's "Memphis Belle." It was necessary to call out added military police to keep the starved-for-screen-entertainment public out.

The Times was opened to civilians the next morning at 8 o'clock, with the same bill. Still further increases in M.P. forces were necessary to handle the mobs, for the house was immediately filled to capacity. Loges, selling at three pesos (around $1.50) were grabbed up first. Military personnel was admitted at half price.

In addition to wrecking the Manila theatres, the Japs very effectively spread the rumor that Deanna Durbin was dead.

News of the fate of the Manila territory theatres plus the Durbin story was received yesterday by William S. Cunningham, chief of the Hollywood office of the Overseas OWI.

Cunningham also was notified that all property and records of American film companies were destroyed, with the expection of a supply of film which was stored outside of Manila. This now is being brought to the capital for inventory and checking.

DISTRIBS FURNISH FREE MOVIE DAY PIX TO THEATRES

New York, April 8.—Seventh War Loan premieres, children's morning premieres and Free Movie Day showings will be aided by distributors' agreement to furnish films under contract to exhibitors for the special showings. Plan is similar to method used in recent War Loan drives to stimulate bond sales.

In towns under 7,500 population distributors will supply prints of pictures having had national release before Nov. 1, 1944, even though exhibitors do not have them under contract.

Leonard H. Goldenson, Paramount vice-prexy in charge of theatre operations, has accepted appointment as chairman of a national advisory committee which will consult with the national committee and area committees in their localities.

Berle, Miranda For 'Spring In Brazil'

Milton Berle, in association with Lee Shubert, starts rehearsal of his new Broadway musical comedy, "Spring In Brazil," May 1. Berle will co-star with Carmen Miranda and show is slated for a September opening. Meanwhile, comedian's film deals at Columbia and Warners have been postponed until after the run of the show.

ACTORS GUILD FIGHTS BILL AGAINST UNION ASSESSMENTS

Screen Actors Guild has taken a stand against adoption of Assembly Bill 1953, which would limit membership assessments by unions, particularly for political purposes. Protesting the bill as "uncalled-for, unjustified and discriminatory," SAG board of directors adopted a resolution which states, in part:

"Whereas, the effect of such measure would be to seriously impair the ability of labor organizations to present their views to the public and to engage in programs of public education and information with respect to proposed legislation vitally affecting such unions and the economic interests of their members, and such bill is uncalled-for, unjustified and discriminatory and would weaken labor unions so that they would be unable to defend themselves against anti-labor legislation such as the recent initiative measure known as Proposition 12;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the Screen Actors Guild hereby opposes and condemns said proposed bill known as Assembly Bill 1953, and urges members of the Assembly Industrial Relations Committee to cast their ballots against said bill."

FOUR A'S REP DUE IN MOVE FOR PEACE IN EXTRA RANKS

New peace move in extras' fight loomed last night with disclosure that Associated Actors and Artistes of America was sending an international committee to the Coast to investigate charter applications of the Screen Players Union and Screen Extras Guild. It is expected that the group, headed either by Prexy Paul Dullzell or George Heller, will arrive this week, with idea of exploring possibility of getting two groups together.

Four A's has indicated it favors application of SEG, but situation furnishes real problem so long as SPU holds certification from National Labor Relations Board for jurisdiction over extra work. SPU has not closed books to SEG members, but sponsors of latter group would be certain to insist on coming in without paying of initiation fees and likely would demand new election of officers, with all former B members of Screen Actors Guild participating.

Some SPU members have indicated a willingness to waive initiation fee for a certain period, but are opposed to a new election on the grounds those recognized by the NLRB were entitled to select officers of their own choosing. Four A committee is expected to contact both sides in an effort to get them together, with the idea of immediately issuing a charter and calling upon SAG to support group recognized in its negotiations with producers.

Alex H. Schullman, SPU attorney, also will contact producer representatives this week on demands of SPU for an interim agreement pending completion of a contract.

BUSINESS FOR SALE
For reasons of health one of our clients must now consider immediate sale of a most lucrative and exceedingly well-established business.
If desirable the business is available with complete personnel, including production and management.
The product enjoys national prominence in the cosmetic and drug field. Yearly volume is in excess of fifty thousand dollars, with an annual net profit of 25 thousand dollars. With more intensive management these figures could be substantially increased. We would especially recommend this business to any well-known movie personality, for the addition of their name to the product should result in sales increases of considerable magnitude.

Radio Network Plugs

Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being LISTED ALPHABETICALLY, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.

BARRON, MEAKIN UP AS PICTURES REP IN WASHINGTON

Washington, April 8.—A rumor persists here that either Carter Barron, Loew's regional representative, or Hardy Meakin, former RKO theatre head in the capital and now RKO's theatre divisional manager headquartered in Cincinnati, are being considered as the men to put new life into the Washington office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association of America.

Barron is being generally recognized as putting over the best goodwill job for the industry now being done with government biggies. It is an accomplishment similar to what Meakin did in his years here.

Chances that Meakin will be drafted for the place were exceptional tonight, in view of the fact that Loew's is understood to be unwilling to release Barron from its service.

Jack Bryson currently holds the lone post for MPPDA in Washington, where he handles legislation. Any top man named to the Washington headquarters would not affect Bryson's present duties.

CARPENTERS, LOCAL 44 HOLD SECRET PARLEY

Rank and file committee from the carpenters and IATSE Local 44 were meeting secretly yesterday in an effort to conciliate jurisdictional differences as the studio strike dragged into its fifth week, with producers, IA tops and strike leaders expressing satisfaction with developments. In the meantime the National Labor Relations Board granted petition of Michael Luddy, IA attorney, for all arguments on set decorators' case, and set date for April 26. Action was branded by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, as another move to stall matters.

Despite announcement of Dick Walsh, IA prexy, that he would furnish all necessary men for studio production, Sorrell declared he had not been able to hire one union machinist, painter, carpenter, decorator, designer or janitor. At the same time IA rank and file leaders reported the revolt in IA studio lo-

FILM DIVVIES OFF OVER LAST YEAR

Washington, April 9.—Picture industry dividends were only $400,000 in February, 1945, as contrasted with $2,300,000 in the same month a year ago, according to the Department of Commerce. The reason for the much larger melon in 1944, it was explained, was a special RKO divvy in the second month that was not repeated this year.

For the three-month period (December, January and February), dividends totaled $7,800,000, a drop from $9,100,000 for the comparable quarter a year ago.

• HOLLYWOOD INSIDE •

HERMAN A. LOWE, of the Philadelphia Inquirer Staff in Washington has a yarn in the April issue of American Mercury, titled "Washington Discovers Hollywood." Story states that Washington has finally discovered that millions around the world obtain most of their ideas about the United States from motion pictures, and that there is ready made in Hollywood a subtle and powerful weapon to spread the story of democracy and make friends for this country. He quotes State Department officials as saying that Hollywood films are genuine ambassadors of good-will and as such will receive all the help its consulates and embassies can give. He states that besides the State Department three other major Federal departments are working to help the industry, while another has declared itself a policeman to watch the nature of the deals which the industry makes abroad.

ON page one of this issue of Daily Variety is printed a story which might well have been captioned "Keeping the Faith.". It is the story of the merger of the MCA Artists, Leland Hayward and Hayward-Deverich into the biggest agency business in the show world. The editor of this newspaper learned of the merger two months ago. Checking with one of the principals, Daily Variety learned that its information was correct, that the deal was under way, but that premature printing might ruin the negotiations. Daily Variety, as always, placing the interests of the industry ahead of any selfish aims, agreed with the principal in question to await the official inking before publishing the story. The principal, in turn, promised full details of the story when the signatures were blotted. Both promises were kept.

DAVID ALISON who produced the musical comedy "Watch Out, Angel," at the Curran in San Francisco, is David Horsley, a former western actor, who is married to Rose Joseph, free lance press agent. Hollywoodites were astounded at his name on the mast of a production which involved the investment that was made in "Angel." The bank roll of $50,000 had Rose Joseph's boss, Leon Schlesinger, for whom she did publicity when he made cartoon films. He was down for $10,000. The balance came from four of Schlesinger's friends in like amounts. Show opened without dress rehearsal. Buddy Morris, the music publisher, gave a $5,000 advance on the score of the show that was written by Isabel Dawn and Alison on the music end and Joseph Myrow on the lyrics before the show opened.

QUESTION still is to be decided whether Col. Frank Capra and Sam J. Briskin will make only their own product, in their new production combine, or organization will be enlarged and other producers taken in, similar to Spitz-Goetz' International set-up. Pair are expected to get together sometime within next 10 days to settle this point. It is understood they have been besieged with requests from people of standing who want to join them. No date yet has been announced for Capra's leaving the Army, but it is assumed he will be out of uniform sometime shortly after V-E Day. In all probability, first production to go will be "The Flying Yorkshireman," a pet of Capra's which reverted to him when RKO decided not to make film.

AS a result of representations of unfairness made by the Anti-Defamation League, sponsors of the short film "Annie Laurie" have ordered the picture withdrawn from exhibition. It is planned to distribute a revised version with the objectionable parts deleted. Those sponsoring the film have stated that there was no anti-Semitic intent behind the objectionable sequences. They have promised to avoid injurious religious and racial subjects in future pictures.

He will rest for a month before returning to studio activities.

As It Looks To FLANNERY
(CBS News Analyst)

The fires we've found burning in Hamburg, Bremen and Brunswick, ahead of our troops, were not set by our bombers, and may be the work of the Nazi "werewolves." These "werewolves" also may destroy public utilities that have escaped the bombs, and even burn crops. The idea of the Nazis now is to create as much chaos in Germany as possible, to make our occupation more difficult. They will not hesitate to try to make a desert of Germany, so that 80 million people will be without water, light, heat and food, in the hope that we will either have to spend huge sums and use large numbers of men in restoring the country and feeding the people, or be faced with riots. This is the Gotterdammerung planned by the Nazis. Some of this cannot be prevented. Some can be prevented if we tell the story to the German people, through the mouths of Germans. We can use that colonel who countermanded the orders given him by the Nazis because he said they were contrary to international law and every law of humanity, and would mean suicide for Germany. The German people must be aroused now not only to refuse to fight for the Nazis, but to fight them.

TRADESHOWN at studio, April 5, 1945. Running time: 120 MINS.

The charm which has distinguished Greer Garson's past appearances is caught anew in "The Valley of Decision," based upon novel by Marcia Davenport. Warmly compelling in tone and plot unfoldment, lavishly produced and directed with sensitive touch, film is bound for heavy box office reaction as one of star's outstanding productions. Gregory Peck, at his best, co-stars with Miss Garson, and Donald Crisp, Lionel Barrymore, Preston Foster, Marsha Hunt and Gladys Cooper lend colorful support in top featured roles.

Where the novel spanned better than half-century period, screenplay has been condensed to cover only 12 years, the story of Mary and Paul (co-stars). Script by John Meehan and Sonya Levien in general is a highly craftsmanlike job, only criticism being that due to picture's overlength it becomes wordy at times. This slowdown in tempo can be deleted by editing. In general, writers have captured the full flavor of the book and presented a strong dramatic narrative.

Miss Garson evinces a rare knack for suppressed comedy in opening sequences, which deal with her, a girl of the flats, entering into service at the home of Peck's father, a Pittsburgh steel tycoon, in 1873. As her service in the large family continues, gradually she becomes the one person upon whom the whole family depends. Peck, trying to discover a means of making better steel by a process he saw in Germany, falls in love with her, and she with him, but she's conscious of her place and despite all his persuasions she goes to England with Marsha Hunt, his sister, when latter weds an English title.

Upon insistence of Donald Crisp, the father, she returns several years later to wed Peck, but arrives in the midst of union trouble which has closed the mills. She is instrumental in almost making peace between the two factions when her father (Lionel Barrymore), murders Crisp. Thereafter she goes into retirement, Peck finally marries another girl, but still her influence in family is felt when the mother (Gladys Cooper) wills her her share of mill and she saves mill for Peck when other members of family try to sell.

Considerable license has been taken by scripters in their adaptation, but generally story follows the book. Picture offers many characters, all of them excellently played, with Miss Garson's work comparable to anything she has done in past. Particularly outstanding besides two stars are Gladys Cooper, lovely in a warmly appealing role, and Marsha Hunt, daughter who goes to England, playing part of Constance.

Tay Garnett in his direction has handled his characters ever with animation and sympathetic understanding, and Edwin H. Knopf has done a showmanly job as producer, getting the most out of his high budget. Joseph Ruttenberg's photography is on a par with other technical departments, all of high worth. Cedric Gibbons and Paul Groesse's art direction is very much of the period, and so, too, set decorations of Edwin B. Willis and Mildred Griffiths.

The Bullfighters

(Comedy)

20TH-FOX RELEASE. Producer, William Girard. Director, Mal St. Clair. Screenplay, W. Scott Darling. Photography, Norman Brodine. Special photographic effects, Fred Sersen. Art directors, Lyle Wheeler, Chester Gore. Set decorations, Thomas Little; associate, Al Orenbach. Sound recording, Arthur von Kirbach, Harry M. Leonard. Costumes, Bonnie Cashin. Makeup artist, Ben Nye. Music, David Buttolph. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Film editor, Stanley Rabjohn.

CAST — Laurel and Hardy, Margo Woode, Richard Lane, Carol Andrews, Diosa Costello, Frank McCown, Ralph Sanford, Irving Gump, Ed Gargan, Lorraine De Wood, Emmett Vogan, Roger Neury, Gus Glassmire, Rafael Storm, Jay Novello, Guy Zanette, Robert Filmer, Max Wagner, Jose Portugal, Hank Worden.

TRADESHOWN at 20th-Fox studio, April 9, 1945. Running time: 62 MINS.

"The Bullfighters," 20th-Fox's latest Laurel and Hardy comedy, is long on production and short on belly laughs. The two time-tried goofers perform against a lavish background with an excellent supporting cast, but don't seem to get the punch in their characteristic gags that blown-in-the-glass Laurel and Hardy fans expect. It may be a matter of timing and pointing, but whatever it is, Stan and Ollie get snickers and chuckles instead of loud guffaws.

The story by W. Scott Darling is conventional farce, based on the old mistaken identity motivation. Laurel turns out to be the living image of a famous bullfighter, booked to do his stuff in the Mexico City arena. The bullfighter is delayed in arriving and his booking agent palms Stanley off on the promoter, Muldoon, as the star toreador. Muldoon, the menace of the piece, has a deep and abiding hatred of Laurel and Hardy because their past stupidity as private detectives once caused his conviction for a crime of which he was innocent. You take it from there.

Actual bullfighting scenes in the film are tops and carry high thrill. Margo Woode, as Tangerine; Diosa Costello as Conchita, and Carol Andrews as Hattie Blake, alias "Larceny Nell," are easy to look at and listen to. The Costello is good in a nite spot song-and-dance number.

PIC HANGOVERS SLIP; FIRST RUNS TAKE DOWN TO 230G

Only new bill in town, "The Thin Man Goes Home," at the Carthay Circle, Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State and Uptown, is heading for disappointing overall figure of $50,000, below average for the quartet of day-daters.

"Practically Yours," in the two Paramount theatres, has steady $34,000 in sight on its second week. "Roughly Speaking" also is steady at $40,500 in second frame in the three Warners first-runs. "Picture of Dorian Gray" closed its second week last night at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz with estimated $41,000 after excellent $57,350 on the first seven days. Second and final week of "Murder, My Sweet," at the Hillstreet and Pantages, is clocking satisfactory $29,500. WIFE who will meet the general "physical qualifications of Irene Dunne, Teresa Wright and Esther Williams," is the quest of a young man advertising anonymously in the April issue of a nationally circulated writers' magazine. She must possess a "figure that is passable in a bathing suit"—an item that the advertiser adds rather naively after citing the actresses as his ideal in womanly pulchritude. Also, he isn't taking any chances, but demands a "bathing suit picture" as well as a "passport photo that has not been retouched." . . .In addition to being a composite of three screen lovelies the sought-for bride must meet certain educational qualifications. "A high school education and four years of earning her own living" were set as an acceptable minimum. "A.B.'s, B.S.'s, etc., are all right but are emphatically barred.

They are being housed and cared for in a greenhouse for use in the "Tarzan" pictures. . . . CHI THEATRE, FLACK RANKS RIDDLED BY SWITCHES

Chicago, April 9.—It has been a week of turnovers in theatre and exchange personnel here.

Fred Joyce, United Artists publicity man here for the last six months, is leaving the exchange to handle the new local Tom Fizdale publicity setup for Win Nathanson, who has taken over Fizdale's accounts, while the latter runs the late Myron Selznick's talent agency in Beverly Hills in conjunction with Jimmy Saphier. Chick Evans, who has been Joyce's assistant at UA here, and who, before joining that organization was for 15 years with Loew's, Inc., branches in Cleveland, St. Louis and Atlanta, has been named as Joyce's successor.

TWO BAT FOR TODD

Lucia Perrigo and Stan Kramer will divide the duties of Ted Todd, Warners p.a. here, with Todd taking over the publicity for Warners in Washington. Al Weinberg and Arline Gallies, under the supervision of Charles Ryan, WB theatres' assistant zone manager, assume the publicity and advertising chores of Larry Stein, p.a. and local manager of three WB houses in Hammond, Ind., for the past 14 years. Stein leaves May 1 to open his own flackery business.

Harry Turrel, district manager, will add the three Hammond houses (Parthenon, Paramount and Orpheum), to his regular district. He is dropping the Shore in Chicago from his list, with District Manager Herb Wheeler assuming its supervision. This leaves Turrel, who formerly held sway over eight WB theatres, now guiding 10. Wheeler, who in the past handled nine, also has 10.

B & K SHAKEUP

A shakeup in the Balaban & Katz organization popped when A. J. "Happy" Meininger, manager of B & K's Loop Garrick for the past few years, resigned to manage the Strand, a Telenews, Inc., theatre in Cincinnati, where he starts tomorrow. Ambrose Conroy, manager of the Southtown, succeeds him at the Garrick, with George Romine moving over from the Harding, following Conroy into the Southtown, and Harry Odendahl of the Congress takes the Harding spot.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Now that Laurette Taylor is the toast of the town for her performance in "The Glass Menagerie," I am reminded of a story I heard a long time ago about her London debut in "Peg O' My Heart."

It seems that London, anticipating the Event of Miss Taylor, via the advance ballyhoo from across the sea, turned out en masse to give her "Peg" a royal welcome. But, unfortunately, a bad attack of first night nervousness, made her so inaudible that she was scarcely heard beyond the first few rows. In addition to which the scenery had been so constructed that she was hidden from full view for most of the action. The expected ovation turned into a series of uncontrolled boos, and a weeping Miss Taylor hurried off stage to the sanctum of her dressing room. There she was greeted by the overwhelming figure of Mrs. Pat Campbell, who had made a marathon from out front in order to greet the distraut Laurette. Putting her arms around her in a comforting gesture, she purred, "They don't like you, darling—they just don't like you!"

ADD ARRIVALS: Paul and Bella Muni at the Dorset. . . . Francis Lederer at the Windsor. . . . Bill Walsh at the Gotham. . . . Kathleen Norris at the Chatham. . . . Irving Berlin is back at 1 Gracie Square for a few days before heading for LA and "Blue Skies" again.

MOVIE-ING ALONG: Katharine Hepburn, who turned down five gees for a guest shot on the Milton Berle show, has condescended to do it for $7500, IF she approves the script! . . . Walter Abel, enroute back to Hollywood, is taking along with him the script of Ben Ray Redmond's first play, "Strike Up the Drums." Although he's not sure there's a role in it for him, Walter is so excited about this drama revolving around the readjustment of a returned soldier that he'd like to promote the capital and be one of its "angels." The leading femme role is for an actress like Freda Inescort of twelve years ago, who the author remembers most vividly then, when she last became his bride. . . . If the dramatic rights to "Zuleika Dobson" can be cleared with the aged Max Beerbohm, this famous English novel may emerge as a musical for Gertrude Lawrence, with adaptation by Stanley Logan and score by Kurt Weil. . . . After V-Day, MCA is plotting to build a fifteen story office building on 57th St. and Madison Avenue, now the site of an art gallery. . . . Horace Schmidlapp, who will forsake his very eligible batchelorhood for Carole Landis as soon as his divorce is final, brought her up to meet his mother at his Carlton House suite the other P. M. Carole wasn't taking any chances on not clicking with her future mother-in-law, so she brought along a gift—four steaks.

CAPSULE CRITICISM: All the local wags are now tagging Burton Rascoe's rave notices that automatically send shows to Cain's, gRAVEyard."

SCOOPING AROUND: Now it's Blanche Yurka, who will raise the "I"-brow with her autobiog. Wonder if she'll recall the Libby Holman-Smith Reynolds episode at which she was a prize witness? . . . Francis Lederer is around town, being very hush-hush about his plans for a Broadway play. . . . All of the Barberry Room trekked over to the Club VIII to applaud Jim Moriarity's favorite "Sherry" Shadbourne on her supper club debut, where the talent scouts are finding her plenty photogenic. . . . Anna Marie Dickey may be the lucky gal winding up singing the Gilbert and Sullivan tunes in "Hollywood Pinafore." . . . Lou Holtz's 80-year-old mother fell and fractured her hip while alone in her apartment the other evening and will be confined to the French hospital for months. . . . Arch Selwyn's widow, "Brownie," arrives here to assume management of Marion Pierce's exclusive dress shop on Madison Avenue. . . . Marion "Chiefs" back to Hollywood to rejoin her groom, Bill Parker, and open a west coast branch on the strip. . . . Carol Bruce's return to the Wedgewood Room crowded every inch of floor space, and everyone agreed with maestro Leo Reisman that she is emBruceable!"

STREET SCENE: That dark-haired chic looking woman being entertained by Mrs. Edwin Goodman at a "21" luncheon didn't attract any of the attention that she used to receive on her East coast visits when her ex-husband accompanied her. She was the former Mrs. Clark Gable.

MCDONALD SENDS NEW PLEA ON FM WAVES TO CONGRESS

Chicago, April 9.—Further step in his campaign against proposed change in frequency modulation wave lengths was taken today by E. F. McDonald, prexy of Zenith Radio Corp., when he sent lengthy telegrams to all members of the Senate and House in Washington decrying the move and claiming it will stifle the progress of FM if it goes through.

If it is not crippled by such a move, McDonald's wire argues, FM will wield a great influence in this country as local papers have always been closer to the people in their communities than national publications. Because of the superior service it renders, FM may be destined to replace many of the present-day broadcast stations, especially in the smaller towns, as well as operating in many towns not now having stations.

Hope, McGees and McCarthy In Lead

GI'S LAMP LEGS OF MISTINGUETTE AND DIETRICH

Paris Canteen in two weeks of operation has established itself as the bright spot of the Champs Elysees for the servicemen in liberated Paris, according to a cablegram received here yesterday by Sol Lesser.

The place is packed for the two shows nightly, and so far the audience has been 55% American troops, 40% French, only 3% English and 2% other nationalities.

Mistinguette, who was making legs famous before they gave Dietrich a nickname, is reported still spectacular in the gams at 74 and stealing the show with her song number, "I'm Looking For a Millionaire."

GI'S CAN COMPARE 'EM

Incidentally, the GI's get a chance for leg comparison, for Marlene herself also is on the show. Other big names programmed are Maurice Chevalier; Marie Dubas, pop song sensation; Jean Gabin and Anna Marley, of "Song of Liberation" fame.

The Canteen is staffed with 60 junior dancing hostesses and eight senior hostesses, puts out about 1,000 litres of beer and 2,500 cokes a night, serves fruit juice once a week and ice cream when available.

NEW SHOW EVERY WEEK

Regular routine calls for dancing from 6 to 8 p.m., amateur shows from 8 to 8:30, and professional performance from 8:30 to 11. Complete change of show every week.

Report on the Canteen was obtained by Lesser in connection with preparations for forthcoming film production, "Paris Canteen."

Lesser yesterday was seeking visas for himself, Robert Riley Crutcher, who is writing the show, and Publicist Jerry Hoffman to go to Paris to arrange for shooting sequences there.

The option on Erskine Johnson's "Tonight in Hollywood" has been renewed by Lennen and Mitchell to July 15. This is the third renewal for Johnson who's show is heard Friday nights, CBS, 8:15 to 8:30. Constance Bennett will be the columnists guest this Friday.

FITZPATRICK TALKS IRISH PIC FOR REP

James A. FitzPatrick is huddling with Herbert J. Yates, Republic head, relative to making feature for company in Ireland as follow-up to his recently completed "Song of Mexico," filmed entirely south of the Rio Grande. Deal still is in the talking stage.

If it goes through, FitzPatrick probably will go to Eire for picture after he winds up his commitment with British government for series of shorts for his "FitzPatrick's Travel-talks." He is slated to end these around Sept. 1. Irish feature would be made in wide number of locations, same as "Song of Mexico" was photographed in a half-dozen scenic spots throughout Mexico.

cals against Walsh's strikebreaking order was continuing to spread, with members of IA Laborers Local 727 walking off several lots rather than take over work of strikers and men who are refusing to cross the picket lines.

JUICERS MEET TONIGHT

Juicers in IA Local 728 who have been trying to force a membership meeting of that unit for two weeks, finally took things in their own hands and announced that a meeting of Local 728 members will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at Carpenters Hall. Officers of union have been refusing to call a meeting despite filing of membership petitions, telling men a hall was not available. Carpenters offered use of their hall free of charge, and rank and filers quickly called gathering for tonight.

Only 12 machinists showed up yesterday in answer to appeal of Roy Brewer, Walsh representative, for toolers for new studio unit. Of that number, six were members of Studio Machinists Local 1185, who had reported merely to get information on meeting. After listening to offer of IA, all 12 left without any volunteering to join new unit which Walsh had announced would be chartered to take place of local headed by Business Representative D. T. Wayne.

PICTURES IN WORK LISTED

At meeting of Strike Strategy Committee yesterday it was announced that a complete list of pictures being produced during walkout was being prepared and would be sent to every local union throughout the United States and Canada. Committee said various unions would be advised pictures were being produced with strike-breakers.

Committee also received a wire from Fred Moser, business representative of New York Scenic Artists, stating he was ordering his painters off a Florida location and that no more men would be furnished until the go signal was received from Sorrell. He said men had been employed on a Technicolor production where continuation of work would be impossible without painters.

PRODUCTION "AS USUAL"

Producers insisted production was continuing as usual, but some execs admitted work had slowed to a walk. There were reports that stock girls and other employes were being dropped, but no verification could be secured from studio heads.

With strike activities here having moved into a watchful waiting game, leaders were watching rank and file autonomy movement in the IATSE and awaiting expected fireworks by tops in American Federation of Labor over jurisdictional encroachment by Walsh and his threat to issue charters for painters, carpenters and machinists.

JANITORS ON PICKET LINE

Members of studio janitors local of the Building Service Employes International Union, headed by Business Representative Jack Williams, joined the picket lines yesterday. Walsh and his IA associates were reported still disturbed over action of major companies in canceling contracts with janitors' local, apparently being apprehensive that William McFetridge, international prexy of BSEIU, might decide to order out the janitors, elevator operators and other theatre maintenance people throughout the country. Walsh was known to be trying to get in touch with McFetridge by long distance telephone.

WALSH ANSWERS SORRELL

In answer to charges made by Sorrell Sunday night in which he declared Walsh had received thousands of dollars from the 2% IATSE racket fund, the IA prexy last night issued the following statement:

"The charge which Sorrell makes just goes to show how far he will go in trying to justify his action in tying up the studios. What possible bearing this matter could have on his actions, even if it were true, he does not explain.

"So far as my personal record is concerned, I can assure Mr. Sorrell, if it is any of his business, that every cent I have received from the International Alliance, with the exception of my own salary, has been spent in the interest of the Alliance. I defy any one to present any proof to the contrary.

FEDS SATISFIED

"The federal authorities who investigated the entire Browne-Bioff matter have gone over my record with a fine-tooth comb. It has satisfied them. It has satisfied members of the IATSE, who have twice elected me president. Therefore I am afraid it will have to satisfy Mr. Sorrell."

Sorrell had listed amounts which he claimed had been turned over to Walsh by two former international representatives of the IATSE, on one of which he claimed Walsh had paid income tax. Rank and file leaders claim approximately $2,000,000 was collected on the 2% assessment during the George E. Browne-Willie Bioff regime.

Durante, Melchior Set

Jimmy Durante and Lauritz Melchior were back on the MGM lot yesterday preparing for their appearance in "Two Sisters From Boston," to be produced by Joe Pasternak and directed by Henry Koster.

AGVA WILL BAR ALL ACTORS, AGENTS IN OBSCENE PIX

Los Angeles Chapter of the American Guild of Variety Artists is keeping a close check on developments in the obscene picture racket investigation being made by the district attorney's office. Florine Bale, AGVA western director, announced last night that any person convicted will immediately be barred from participating in AGVA activities.

Miss Bale declared that performers will be expelled from membership and that any agent involved will have his franchise lifted by the Guild. It was indicated last fall that certain agents were reported as offering above-minimum scales in an effort to get performers to pose, and both agents and actors were warned by Miss Bale at that time.

Two Oppose Barrett In Grips Election

William Barrett is seeking re-election as business representative of Studio Grip Local 80 in election set for Thursday at local headquarters on Santa Monica. He is opposed by Walter Woodworth and Jim Leech. Woodworth is popular with membership, but general belief is that two opponents will react in favor of Barrett, who also is an international veepee of the IATSE. Vernon White and Cliff Selkirk are competing for vice-prexy. Ray Schultz is unopposed for secretary-treasurer. Interest of membership, however, is centered in race for business representative, some of rank and file taking position a business agent should not also hold an international post.

Kings Point Pic Set

Mutual Productions will make Technicolor film based on U. S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, New York, it was announced yesterday by War Shipping Administration, Training Organization. JUDGE RULES PUBLIC OPINION MEASURES SHOW'S DECENCY

Chicago, April 9. — "Case dismissed" was Municipal Judge Charles S. Dougherty's ruling in the indecent charge against five performers arrested in a raid on the 606 Club.

In dismissing defendants, including Carrie Finnell, recently featured in Mike Todd's "Star and Garter," and Paul Mall, emcee, Judge Dougherty cited opinion of New York and Georgia Supreme courts that public opinion determines the measure of decency in a show. "Perhaps we need a legion of decency to clean up corrupt shows in cabarets, as the movies were cleaned up so successfully," Judge Daugherty said.

Following dismissal, Bailey Stanton, defense attorney, asked that costume worn by Val de Val, striptease, the night of the raid, which was seized as evidence, be returned. Court clerk handed it to Miss De Val in a size 10 (letterhead size) envelope—with nary a bulge.

The radio and orchestra departments of MCA will be moved that day to the Hayward-Deverich building at 9200 Wilshire blvd. In New York MCA will move its legitimate department to the Leland Hayward office at 444 Madison ave.

HAYWARD, DEVERICH VEEPEES

Both Leland Hayward and Nat Deverich will become vice-presidents of MCA Artists, in addition to being vice-presidents of their own organizations. Both have signed 10-year employment contracts with the merged corporations. Besides, Hayward will become a member of the executive board of all MCA organizations, which are Music Corporation of America, Management Corporation of America and MCA Artists Corporation.

The personnel of all companies will remain intact under the merger. Of the Hayward-Deverich office executive staff here, besides the two tops, those who will move into MCA are Roy Meyers, Felix Barry, Joe Donahue, Doug Whitney, Roland Mader, William Midgeley and Baron Polan, now in the army. All office personnel also switches over.

300 H-D CLIENTS

The Hayward-Deverich offices have around 300 clients, with 80 of them handled through H-D here, with the others including 92 playwrights being serviced in the Hayward offices in New York.

There were various legal technicalities and tax problems which caused the negotiations for the merger to extend over a three months' period.

Jules Stein stated last night that MCA Artists, Ltd., the company's London office, which has been closed for the past six months, will be reopened as soon as an executive of the combined organizations can get to England and put it into operation. This office will specialize in servicing of motion pictures, radio, legit talent and plays. The vaudeville department which prior to the war was an important cog in the London operations, will be secondary in the future.

Hayward entered the agency biz in New York about 15 years ago and then joined with Myron Selznick, Inc. He started his own company in New York shortly thereafter. About eight years ago he and Deverich, who was a vice-president of the Selznick organization, joined in a new agency business. Besides his agency interests, Hayward is interested in legit production, having "A Bell For Adano" running in New York and Chicago. He also is connected with aviation schools in Arizona and New Mexico, and is a director of TWA. He was one of the founders of Southwest Airways, Inc., five years ago.

EXECS RETURN EAST

Various MCA personnel who came here from the east to attend meetings of the outfit, and members of Hayward's New York office who were here during the negotiations though not participants, are turning this week to their headquarters.

O'DRISCOLL LEAVES WARDROBE ON A PACIFIC LIMB

ed. "When I arrived my wardrobe consisted of a hula skirt, an apron which a sailor made for me from neckerchiefs, and the clothes I was wearing."

Miss O'Driscoll, Universal featured player, with Beryl Cuffe, Frances Fay and Sid Marion, flew 30,000 miles to cover island areas including Hawaii, New Caledonia, the New Hebrides, Guadalcanal, Tulagi and the Russells. They played to audiences as large as 18,000, visited hospitals wherever they went, and the girls literally wore out their shoes dancing at enlisted men's parties. They played more than 150 shows.

One of her first acts was to check up on "Her guys," Marines who invaded Iwo Jima, whom she and her USO-Camp Shows-Hollywood Victory Committee troupe entertained the night before they jumped off for the campaign, and the forces now battling on Okonawa, many of whom saw her show just before taking off. Miss O'Driscoll brought home a locker full of souvenirs, but the most prized was the pair of silver wings.

U. S. Asks Court To Ban Trust Intervenors

New York, April 9.—Affirmation of Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard's order denying Fanchon & Marco and other St. Louis independent exhibitors the right to intervene in the government's anti-trust action against eight major film companies, was asked today by the United States in papers filed in Federal Court. At the same time the government moved for dismissal of an appeal from the order recently granted exhibitors by Judge Francis G. Caffey. Appeal was to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The government, as did the Big Five last week, claims the high court has no jurisdiction because the appeal is not from a final decree.

IA WORKERS LAUNCH FIGHT FOR AUTONOMY

Launching of Autonomy Alliance by representatives of key IATSE groups in the major studios was interpreted by labor tops last night as the first definite move to oust Prexy Dick Walsh because of his strikebreaking tactics in current studio walkout, and because of his efforts to grab local autonomy of studio unions. Alliance, a non-profit organization incorporated at Sacramento, announced as one of its major aims "to discourage the use of uhions as strikebreakers against other unions."

Other strike activities last night had developed into a waiting game, with Walsh and his associates still trying unsuccessfully to recruit workers to take over jobs of strikers and men who are refusing to cross the picket lines. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was drawn into the affair when it announced that two freight cars shoved onto the Metro lot to be loaded for Florida location would not be taken out so long as a picket line was maintained on the railroad. Conference of Studio Unions immediately announced that a 24-hour picket would be placed on duty.

STAR SPANGLED FAMILY

New York, April 10.—A post-war problem on how widows of war heroes must react under continuous public scrutiny has formed the basis of "Star Spangled Family," which Philip A. Waxman and Joseph Kipness brought to the Biltmore tonight.

That there is an element of drama under such circumstances there can be no doubt, but there is, too, a question as to whether such a situation can be conducive to a successful full-length play. "Family" hasn't a chance for either Broadway or films.

The mind's eye will easily recall what would seem to be a specific basis for this drama of the test a young mother, widowed by the death

SCREEN Actors Guild, which formerly charted a lone wolf course and pretty much steered clear of alliances, is overlooking no opportunity these days to align itself with any movement favorable to organized labor. Hardly a week passes without SAG either endorsing or condemning legislation affecting labor. Latest move in that channel was disclosed yesterday when Guild came out in support of bill now pending in Congress to provide permanent pay increases of $400 yearly for city and village delivery carriers. Only a day or two before, SAG had asked State Assembly not to enact pending measure which would have limited membership assessments by labor unions. In a letter to Congressman H. Jerry Voorhis asking support of the postal bill, SAG points out it is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, with 8,000 members. Aubrey Blair made the original labor contacts for SAG, but most of these in recent years have been handled by Pat Somerset.

Publication by Doubleday, Doran, contains 291 pages, with stars, directors, combat cameramen, comedians, femmes and technicians marching between the covers. Starting with the training of Signal Corps personnel, book details various stages of war effort participation, showing action pictures of players on combat duty, overseas entertainment tours, etc. It recalls that 1500 actors, 132 directors, 230 writers, and hundreds from other film crafts entered the armed services.

AFTER putting up with a lot of temperament and upstaging moods, legit producer decided to oust leading man from his show, replacing him with one less well-known. Although life became bearable once more, producer found his boxoffice was hitting the skids minus the star's name on the marquee. So, despite his own injured pride he is now faced with the rehiring of the ex-leading man in order to keep his troupe in the black. And what makes matters even more difficult is that the second male lead in the show, also a name, threatens to walk out if the upstage artist resumes his chores.

Louis de Rochemont, responsible for producing picture, already has started to prepare for its world-wide showing.

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The destruction of almost four hundred German planes in attacks on airports near Berlin yesterday is not only a record number for one day, but also highlights the desperate situation in which the Germans are now. Obviously they did not have the gasoline to get their planes up since most of them were destroyed on the ground. That means they can no longer make effective use of what power they have remaining. This situation can be our hope in seeking to gain the use of one of the North Sea ports. General Eisenhower has asked the workers there to prevent the Nazis from destroying the harbor facilities. A North Sea port that could be used would facilitate our problem of supply immensely, moving up the supply lines five hundred and more miles closer to some of the fronts. Also the less destruction there is in these ports, the sooner the Germans can begin to get out of this war—and the world, too.

Costumes designed by Kay Nelson, Rene Hubert, Sascha Brastoff and Bonnie Kashin. Makeup, Ben Nye. Special effects, Fred Sersen. Sound recording, E. Clayton Ward and Roger Heman.

TRADESHOWN at the Westwood Village theatre, April 6, 1945. Running time: 106 MINS.

Producer William Perlberg has dealt with a lavish hand in turning out 20th-Fox's "Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe," yet the production will not only bring back one of the year's heaviest profits, but will stand as one of the real artistic achievements of 1945. It is a gorgeously-done piece of screen entertainment that pulls applause out of its audiences for 106 minutes, then sends the customers away whistling the Mack Gordon - Harry Warren tunes.

The word-of-mouth on this one will do much in the way of causing cues to form at boxoffices.

The description, "musical extravaganza," has been misused scores of times since sound was united with motion picture cameras, but in "Diamond Horseshoe" they come into their full Websterish-meaning. It is musical and it is extravaganza to the 'nth degree.

Producer Perlberg has done an outstanding job in combining the forces responsible for the successful whole. It is a credit to everyone connected with its filming, from stars on down through the lowliest of workers. Story, mounting, histrionics, direction, music, set and costume-designing all melt in a single groove spelling real showmanship.

Technicolor comes into its fullest bloom in "Horseshoe." The hues are brilliant, thanks to careful planning by dozens of able artists and technicians.

It is a simple, though intriguing tale that runs through the maze of exquisitely-gowned dance lines and warbling choruses, yet it is one that grips the spectators. It is built around an old vaudeville performer, who doesn't want his son to come up through the hardships that so often fail to lead to the top in show business. It is "backstage" at its best.

Betty Grable and Dick Haymes, who are co-starred, both do splendid portrayals—portrayals that increase the artistic values of the offering to the extent of additional company dividends. Playing in their support, however, is a roster of fine performers, including Phil Silvers, as the Supporting players: Kurt Hatch, Arthur Hohl, Nestor Paiva, Gavin Muir, Will Wright, Joseph Haworth, Matt McHugh, plus seven "Salome" girls, Poni Adams, Barbara Bates, Daun Kennedy, Kathleen O'Malley, Karen Randel, Jean Trent and Kerry Vaughn.

PREVIEWED at Universal studios, April 9, 1945. Running time: 90 MINS.

"Salome, Where She Danced," attractively wrapped up in Technicolor, is Walter Wanger's finest, most entertaining contribution to Universal through the years he has been associated with that studio. Not only will it draw heavily at the boxoffice, but it gives to U a new and brilliant star in Yvonne de Carlo, who plays the title role, at the same time lifting to loftier screen stature U's Rod Cameron and David Bruce, who appear in her support.

Miss de Carlo, plucked by Wagner from another major lot, where her abilities had gone unrecognized, displays exceptional talent in three branches of the arts—dancing, singing and histrionics. Her silversheet future is assured.

"Salome, Where She Danced" is an exciting, fast-moving offering, the whole artistically framed due to the expert contributions of both creators and technicians. Although built on a dramatic foundation, it is not without a sufficient peppering of comedy.

Laurence Stallings' workmanlike screeplay of Michael J. Phillip's original story begins unreeling with the surrender of General Lee in 1865, moves to Berlin and onto the German-Austrian war's battlefields, sails back to Texas, then stagechoaches to Drinkman Wells, Ariz., and on into that fabulous San Francisco of the late '60s. Its thrills cover everything from artillery fighting to frontier holdups; from international intrigue to rip-roaring Western chase sequences.

Cameron, portraying a war correspondent in the conflict between the North and the South, goes to the German capital to cover the impending struggle between Germany and Austria. There he meets Miss de Carlo, premiere ballerino of the continent. Bringing her to America to save her from militarists seeking her life, he runs into David Bruce, outlaw leader, in Drinkman Wells, who he had known as a lieutenant in Lee's army. Their rivalry for "Salome" grows into a triangle in Frisco, when Walter Slezak, ultra-rich Russian, enters the field.

Performances by Slezak, Albert Dekker, Marjorie Rambeau, J. Edward Bromberg, Albert Biberman and John Litel are all worthy of note.

Wanger and his associate producer, Alexander Golitzen, have provided an eye-filling mounting for Charles Lamont's deft direction of his potent cast. Sets by John B. Goodman and Golitzen and gowns by Vera West have been done with full aim toward gaining the utmost from the Hal Mohr-W. Howard Greene Technicolor lenses. Edward Ward's musical score, as well as his musical direction, add greatly to the whole. Everett Carter penned the lilting lyrics for Johann Strauss' "The Blue Danube," sung by Miss de Carlo.

Fashion Model

(Comedy Mystery)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Associate producer, William Strohbach. Director, William Beaudine. Screenplay, Tim Ryan, Victor Hammond. Original story, Victor Hammond. Photography, Harry Neumann. Film editor, Dan Milner, William Austin. Art director, Ernie R. Hickson. Technical director, Dave Milton. Musical director, Edward J. Kay. Set designer, Vin Taylor. Assistant director, Bobby Ray.

CAST—Robert Lowery, Marjorie Weaver, Tim Ryan, Lorna Gray, Dorothy Christie, Dewey Robinson, Sally Yarnell, Jack Norton, Harry Depp, Nell Craig, Edward Keane, John Valentine, Cedric Stevens.

REVIEWED at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, April 10, 1945. Running time: 60 MINS.

"Fashion Model" is an okay comedy mystery for the dual situations. Chiller aspects of the plot are treated lightly with the concentration on chuckles, which come frequently enough for average audiences. The humor is pleasant, as is the playing, and direction surmounts some plot complications that occasionally threaten to become too involved.

Robert Lowery and Marjorie Weaver competently handle the leads as stockroom clerk and model, respectively, in a fashionable dress shop. When one of the models is strangled, Lowery is suspected. Before he and his girl friend are able to clear his slate there are two more murders. Lowery is in and out of jail as the bodies turn up and before solution is reached Miss Weaver almost falls victim to the strangler. Picture spots some funny sequences, one in particular involving leads posing as window dummies to avoid arrest.

Tim Ryan, who also scripted with Victor Hammond, plays the not too bright police detective, while Dewey Robinson is his strictly dumb aide. Lorna Gray, first victim; Dorothy Christy, Sally Yarnell, Jack Norton are excellent; Harry Depp, Edward Keane and others are good support.

William Beaudine directed capably and William Strohbach's production gives values for budget expenditure. Harry Neumann's photography and other technical credits measure up.

FCC HITS GREED OF RADIO IN DECISIONS ON LICENSES

made when they originally were granted licenses.

Fact that the stations have been throwing overboard local sustaining programs in order to substitute commercial shows apparently is responsible for the stiffened FCC attitude. For the past two or three weeks the FCC has been giving only temporary renewals to a great number of stations. Yesterday when it took up 40 renewals, the comish put six on a temporary basis, renewed 16 for a full period but demanded further information, and renewed 18 for full terms without any qualifications.

WARNING ON $ SIGN

Letters went out today to the six stations which got temporary renewals, stating in part:

"In the original application for construction permit, representations were made that the proposed new station would provide an outlet for local expression, to broadcast news, sports, information of local interest, local church services, reports to farmers and other matters of local community interest, and that a percentage of the program content would be of sustaining character and a percentage commercial.

"Examination of the station log and other information which has come to the attention of the Commission indicates that the amount of time employed for commercial purposes is substantially greater than that proposed in the original application approved by the Commission. Information is requested as to the reasons for the apparent discrepancy between these material representations made to the Commission and the present operation of the station."

ALL TIME SALES SOAR

The percentage figures were slightly different for each of the six stations. Letters differing only in degree were sent to the 16 stations which were asked for further information, although given long licenses. The figures released by FCC on increases in net time sales have strongly reflected the fact that the broadcasters are grabbing every account in sight, even though it means jettisoning programs of local interest.

Although 1943 was a very good year for broadcasters, recent FCC releases disclosed that the high-power stations upped net time sales by 20% in 1944, and the medium-power stations were up 41%. The same trend is reflected in the figures for the "baby" stations—200 to 500 watts—announced today by the Commission. In this group net time sales jumped 40% in 1944 over 1943. Of the little stations reporting, 18 are located in California.

MCA STARS STEVENS IN SUMMER OILER

Music Corporation is packaging a semi-classical music show starring Rise Stevens as summer replacement for Socony-Vacuum's "Information Please." Contracts are expected to be signed before the weekend. Name conductors will be rotated with a big orchestra playing scores from outstanding pictures and semi-classics from the operetta repertoire.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 10.—The post-war future of government film programs now is being discussed in a series of informal conferences going on here. Sitting in with Taylor Mills, head of the OWI domestic motion picture bureau, are principally reps of old-line civilian agencies, such as Department of Agriculture, State Department, Interior Department, Public Health Service, etc. While they have reached no definite conclusions, this is the way they see the situation:

The federal departments will have to continue making information pix because much information can be disseminated better on films than by printed reports.

The government's program might best be handled through a central production unit comparable with the Government Printing Office, which would make films for all departments. These could then be sold or rented. Such a central unit might operate as an adjunct of the Library of Congress.

Every effort should be made to keep in existence the organization of 16mm. distributors who have so ably handled distribution of the government's non-theatrical war films.

OWI is expected to go out of existence, and no help should be counted on from Hollywood, although it would be nice if a peacetime equivalent of WAC was handy to continue liaison with the film industry.

Whatever V-E Day brings to Hollywood production schedules, its imminence is affecting pix with a military angle. During the past month the industry has made far fewer requests for War Department cooperation in the production of features than ever before, according to Major Stuart Palmer, who handles the requests. Palmer believes that, because of the time lag between scripting and distribution of the product, the country is due for relatively few war subjects from now until the Japs quit. He predicts a revival of war subjects in about two years after the final shooting. Best pictures of the first World War were not produced until at least seven or eight years after the armistice.

March of Time has a camera crew in town shooting a MOT on Congress. Lensers are all over the place. Last week they covered the National Press Club's "Baby Senators' Night," getting some good shots of first-termers in slapstick. Arrangements have been handled by Allen Dibble, MOT's D.C. rep.

Beef about the raw film allotments continue and they don't all come from the industry. The secretariat of the San Francisco conference, which asked for 1,500,000 feet, is reported in line to receive only a couple of hundred thousand feet. CIAA feels that its allowance for the second quarter is so scant that the value of its film division is practically voided unless an adjustment should be made. During the first quarter, the agency requested 3,000,000 feet and received 1,000,000. For the second quarter it asked 1,000,000 and got 425,000. This is not nearly enough to print the subjects already completed for Latin-American consumption.

What gets our agencies particularly riled is that Canada got 2,000,000 feet—color stock no less—for non-theatrical subjects it plans to show in this country.

Reaction of exhibitors at a special screening of "All Star Bond Rally" in New York recently was so terrific that Taylor Mills, OWI chief, is considering dropping one OWI-WAC short to provide additional prints of the industry contribution to the Seventh War Loan. The short is not only good entertainment, but is packed with audience-pulling names as well. Mills gives much credit for the job to Tom Baily, who lined it up on the Coast.

Army Industrial Incentive Film Division, under Major Monroe Greenthal, is changing its tactics along with the changing military situation. New plan is to put out specialized films to meet critical war production problems. Such films will be shown only to labor and management groups directly connected with the production of these products. For example, "Angels In Overalls," about the P-38 Lightning fighter, will go to plants where that plane and its parts are made. Others include "Railroad Is All," tailored for 1,600,000 railroad workers, and "Rolling To the Rhine," designed for truck and tire workers. Greenthal, whose unit recently moved back here from New York, points with pride to distribution figures on the war workers' circuit. Last month 8,000,000 workers saw the films, compared with 70,000 a year and a half ago.

While it is still generally referred to around town as CIAA, the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs has changed its name to Office of Inter-American Affairs. . . . The reels are making added prints to get speedier distribution of latest war shots in Latin-America

CHI THEATRE ASKS 390G AWARD BE AFFIRMED

Chicago, April 10. — Award of $390,000 triple damages and attorney fees to Jackson Park theatre in the monopoly suit against RKO, 20th-Fox, Warners, Loew's and Balaban & Katz a year ago was justified, according to brief filed by plaintiff's attorney, Thomas C. McConnell, in the Circuit Court of Appeal today.

Defendants are seeking to have the jury award reversed, and arguments pro and con are scheduled to be heard May 7. Plaintiff's seven-point brief rehashes the trial, charging distribs with an "all-embracing conspiracy to create a system of releases with fixed prices by means of clearance contracts negotiated ahead of all indie theatres." Independent claims judgment was justified because there was ample evidence of conspiracy.

Leon Fromkess, PRC's president, arrived in New York today to set several deals involving acquisition of more exchanges from the company's franchise holders and the possible signing of additional player and producer talent. He will be in the east three weeks.

Fromkess is hopeful of swelling the company's outright ownership of branches handling 90% of its U. S. sales by next Jan. 1.

FLACKS PREPARE FOR FILM WAR WITH BRITISH PIX

tion's Public Information Committee (Western Division). The report, covering several months' work, yesterday was submitted to the main flackery group, with the expectation that action will be taken on it at its next meeting.

The entire effort reflects the forthcoming battle between the American and British film industries for global domination. Newspapers, magazines and even news services covering other lands have been more or less neglected, the foreign publicity bureaus, especially those in the studios, having been looked upon as step-children by the domestic flackery staffs.

REPORT TELLS PROBLEMS

The report reflects the increasing problems in the field of worldwide publicity and sales promotions "throughout the next critical year."

Major points include:

1. The international publicist, in order to perform his duties most intelligently, should be kept more closely informed of the overall public relations policies of his studio and of the Public Information Committee.

CABLES TO WORLD CENTERS

2. There is need for more awareness on the part of domestic publicity writers and planters of the growing importance of the international situation. The international cable press must now be given equal breaks simultaneously with their issuance to the U. S. press to avoid serious ill will.

3. It is urged that visitors from abroad be given the overall picture of Hollywood as an industry, and it is recommended that studio guides be carefully instructed so that they do not inadvertently create a distorted impression of studio life.

4. Recommendation that a common policy be arrived at in the matter of handling the Canadian press, so that they are taken care of by the same unit at each studio, whether it be foreign or domestic.

SERVICE FOR FOREIGN PRESS

5. A common policy should be arrived at on the servicing of the foreign-language press in America. There are 49 principal foreign-tongue dailies, plus hundreds of weeklies.

6. It is suggested that the term "foreign" be dropped in reference to both correspondents and publicity people, and that the word "international" be substituted.

7. Another problem now facing the American industry is the introducing and publicizing to the peoples of former enemy and occupied territories of the many new stars who have become established here during the war years.

8. The excellent world-wide publicity being given Hollywood by the Office of War Information (Overseas Bureau), the Office of Inter-American Affairs and the Motion Picture Society For the Americas is called to the attention of the Public Information Committee, with a pledge that cooperation with these bodies will be continued.

DEMANDS GROW WITH PEACE

9. With the restoration of peace, a tremendous increase in fan mail requests from abroad is expected, and it is recommended that these requests continue to be filled from Hollywood in order to take full advantage of the psychological value of the Hollywood postmark.

The number of international correspondents now stationed in Hollywood is 47, but it is believed this will be doubled when the war ends. The current group represents 125 publications in 24 countries, plus such syndicates and wire services as Reuters, the United Press, Latin-American Wire, French, Swedish and its trans-Pacific bureaus.

With the lifting of newsprint restrictions in Australia recently, the sub-committee points out that Hollywood coverage in that area has increased more than 100%.

Actress, whose real name was Thais Dickerson, was born Aug. 13, 1917, in Pocatello, Ida., and after starting stage career with Federal Theatre Project, went to Long Beach in 1936 where she appeared at the Long Beach Playhouse. She was signed to contract by Warners that same year and made her screen debut in Mervyn LeRoy's "They Won't Forget."

Shortly after her Warners affiliation she was married to Perc Westmore, and following her divorce from makeup expert, wed Ralph Murphy, director. She was divorced from Murphy about two years ago.

Actress played both leading and heavy roles. Among her best known appearances were "They Made Me a Criminal," "Waterfront," "Private Detective," all Warners films; Paramount's "I Want a Divorce," Columbia's "The Big Boss" and "Power of the Press," Hunt Stromberg's "Lady of Burlesque" and Metro's "Rationing."

Body is at W. A. Reynolds-Francis X. Eberle mortuary, 8540 Melrose ave., with funeral services to be announced later.

RKO Bans Sports

RKO has sent out memoes to all its players asking them to refrain from engaging in dangerous sports during periods when they are still working in films. The request is made as a result of the accident that befell Ann Blyth while tobogganing. RKO adds skiing, high diving, and speed boat racing, as well as sledding to what it terms perilous pastimes.

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 10.—Why, oh why must translators of dialog for dubbed pictures inject the very North American "oh" in the Spanish versions? Americans often begin sentences with "oh"; for example, "Oh, what a pity!" "Oh, yes, of course," etc. The exclamation is never so used in Spanish. Naturally it is very annoying in the dubbed pictures recently released here, and quite unpardonable in a writer like Luis Alberto Sanchez, responsible for the Spanish version of "The Canterville Ghost." Really, if the Spanish dialog writers won't do any better, I shall soon find myself in Hollywood, in a heroic effort to avoid further torture to Spanish ears.

Mexican legitimate actors are superstitious about coffins on the stage so Xavier Villaurrutia's "Invitation To Death," which is set in a funeral parlor, has not yet reached the Mexican stage. However, it has opened at the National theatre in Buenos Aires. If no tragedy overcomes the Argentinian actors, we shall probably see Villaurrutia's play in this city some time in the near future. . . . Papanoa, on the Pacific coast between Acapulco and Zihuatanejo, will undoubtedly become the favorite playground of our cinema crowd. Director Chano Urueta and Stars Maria Felix, Cantinflas and Jorge Negrete already have purchased lots in the vicinity. . . . Negrete donated 50% of his earnings in Cuba for the building of rural schools on the isle. The first school will be named "Mexico," and the Cuban government has conferred the "Honor and Merit" medal on the Mexican star.

"Pito Perez" was a good picture. Not excellent. Just good. Now Contreras Torres, the producer-director, has released a new film with the same idea and the same actor, Manuel Medel, playing a similar role. The picture, so obviously "inspired" by "Pito Perez," is inferior. Besides, an absurd character, delivering silly lines in English, with no excuse whatsoever, helps to ruin the Contreras Torres production. . . . Heard that S.T.I.C. union leaders have gone to different cities of the republic to personally order members of their union to boycott Mexican films. Very patriotic of the S.T.I.C.!

Mauricio de la Serna's "Pearl of the Caribbean" finally has reached cutting room, after a change of directors during shooting of first sequences, then four weeks' halt due to recent inter-union feud. On the last day of shooting Hollywood Actor Raphael Storm still was quite worried as to what will be his new name. It seems that de la Serna objects to the "Storm" and Storm objects to "Alcayde," which is the producer's choice. Raphael walked about the set with a long list of names in his hand and a baffled expression on his face.

THAT WELLES LATIN FILM MAY GO BACK TO RKO

New York, April 10.—Peter Rathvon, RKO head, and Jackson Leighter, Orson Welles' manager, are understood to be talking a deal involving two features Welles plans to make from the Brazilian and Mexican footage he shot while he was under contract to RKO. RKO would merely handle the distribution.

Welles has been confabbing with Norman Foster, now producing and directing in Mexico, and who returned here last week for a brief stay on the matter of finishing "My Friend Benito" in Mexico City.

Welles recently purchased the Latin-American footage from RKO.

Ann Blyth Must Wait Five Days For Cast

Ann Blyth, Warner Bros. actress, was still confined to a San Bernardino hospital yesterday with a broken back. Physicians said it will be another four or five days before she can be placed in a cast and removed to Hollywood. She was injured in a toboggan accident at Snow Valley 40 miles east of San Bernardino last Sunday.

stage manager, who turns in one of his best pieces of acting; William Gaxton, as Haymes' dad, who objects to him giving up his medical education to wed the "Horseshoe's" ingenue, Ia Grable; Beatrice Kay, as Gaxton's fiancee; Carmen Cavallaro and Willie Solar, in specialties; Margaret Dumont, Roy Benson, George Melford, Hal K. Dawson, Kenny Williams, Reed Hadley, Eddie Acuff, Edward Gargan and Ruth Rickaby.

"Horseshoe" is something more than a producer and thespians' vehicle. One must not overlook the music of the Gordon-Warren combo, including such songs as "I Wish I Knew," "The More I See You," "Acapulco," "Play Me An Old Fashioned Melody", and "A Nickle's Worth of Jive," all of which are potential hit-paraders. The costume designing by Kay Nelson, Rene Hubert, Sascha Brastoff and Bonnie Cashin — an enormous chore, for wardrobe is plentiful in the picture—and the sweeping, meaningful sets Lyle Wheeler and Joseph C. Wright have done much, in their colorfulness, to increase the tint highlights for Cameraman Ernest Palmer.

Hermes Pan, who staged the routines, has introduced plenty that is novel in the matter of terps' technique.

Seaton, who directed as well as scripted the piece, which was suggested by a play produced by Charles L. Wagner and written by John Kenyon Nicholson, draws a double bow because of his dual effort. In his piloting he has eliminated heavy handling that might easily have reduced the true worth of the plot, and he has kept his puppets moving at an ideal pace.

Herbert Spencer did the orchestral arrangements in a manner that swells the "pull" of both the Gordon-Warren songs and a flock of oldies. Alfred Newman was responsible for the over-all musical direction.

IA WORKERS LAUNCH FIGHT FOR AUTONOMY

tory technicians, gaffers and other technical key studio workers. Preparations for organization have extended over a period of months, having been brought to a head, it was announced, "because of deplorable developments among Hollywood unions during the past three weeks." It was officially launched last night at a meeting attended by more than 100 motion picture technicians from all key groups.

It was explained that the Alliance is not inimical or dual in purpose to the present unions, but was born of necessity for clean unionism in the motion picture industry. "We are greatly in need of industrial peace and harmony," one spokesman declared. Membership is strictly by invitation. The cooperation of directors, writers and actors will be requested, as well as other guilds and unions.

SEEK SUPERIOR STANDARDS

Excerpts from the articles of incorporation are as follows:

"To concentrate primarily on the encouragement of superior standards for union labor leadership and the development of leaders of the utmost devotion to labor, with competent training for such leadership and single-purposed loyalty to the workers whom they may lead.

"To encourage autonomy in labor unions, for all local and district unions, wherever such autonomy is possible under their international charters and constitutions.

"To urge high principles in the administration of unions, and particularly to discourage the use of unions as strikebreakers against other unions.

"To discover and advise methods to prevent the exploitation of labor unions by insiders or outsiders, for political or venal or any other purpose whatsoever; and to encourage the clean and untainted development of union strength and power to fulfill the primary purpose of devotion and service to the workers."

WILL ELECT OFFICERS

It was stated that temporary officers will be elected at the next meeting and that official headquarters will be established here.

Labor leaders declared a Metro location scheduled for Ocala, Fla., this week had been canceled, but this could not be verified from studio execs. Arrangements had been made at lot for 37 janitors to report for duty late yesterday, but Business Representative Jack Williams, of janitors' local of the Building Service Employes International Union, insisted the men had changed their minds after he had explained the situation to them. Efforts of Walsh painters met with even less success. One tinter who received attractive offers, with autonomy, etc., said he turned it down when advised that Walsh went with the deal.

NLRB ORDER PROTESTED

Protest over action of National Labor Relations Board ordering oral arguments in Washington on April 26 on petition for certification of set decorators, was filed with Board yesterday by Frank Pestana, attorney for Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421. In his wire to the Board, Pestana stated:

"Re your telegram setting date for oral arguments in Washington, please be advised that Local 1421 protests action of IATSE in requesting oral arguments without giving Local 1421 notice of such action. We consider IATSE request unnecessary in view of fact ample opportunity was afforded IA to fully submit evidence during two weeks' hearing held in Los Angeles. Such dilatory tactics by the IATSE and motion picture producers have been major factors causing present strike. Local 1421 has always agreed in the past, and is presently willing to submit question of representation of set decorators to a consent election, thereby allowing decorators the right to self-determination. Please wire reply collect."

NO CONTRACT, NO WORK

Sorrell told newsmen, "To hell with the oral arguments; we don't intend to go back to work until the decorators have a contract."

There was a brief flareup at Columbia yesterday when a worker leaving the lot struck a picket, but police stepped in and quickly had the situation in hand. Large squads of pickets are being held at Carpenters Hall to be rushed from one studio to another whenever reinforcements are needed.

With several execs admitting that production was at lowest point in history of industry, showdown in current strike was expected by middle of next week, with possibility it might come sooner if William McFetridge, international prexy of the Building Service Employes International Union, decided to move nationally, or local situation developed into an internal fight among tops in the American Federation of Labor. Producer representatives admitted that Walsh had so far failed to deliver on his promise to furnish sufficient workers to keep production rolling at normal.

General belief was that if carpenters, machinists, painters, set designers, decorators and IBEW members continued to hold firm lines, execs would pressure NLRB for immediate decision or call upon Walsh to furnish technicians or make a settlement. Cameramen and laboratory technicians declared equipment was badly in need of attention by machinists and that some of it already was down.

ELECTRICIANS' MEET POSTPONED

Membership meeting of Studio Set Electricians Local 728, called for Carpenters Hall last night, was postponed when only 25 or 30 members had shown up at 8 o'clock. It is understood leaders decided meeting has not been sufficiently organized and sent out grapevine for juicers to stay away until advised of future date. Big number of rank and file leaders are burned over orders from Walsh for IA members to work as strikebreakers and for several weeks have been trying to force leaders to call a meeting.

Pickets in a body went to the Western ave. blood bank yesterday. The march was led by Herb Sorrell Just how many gave blood was not known last night, but the bank facilities were taxed to the limit.

SCHARY SEZ PIX CAN HELP FASHION NEW WORLD

Promotion of the brotherhood of man is a definite responsibility of the motion picture business, Dore Schary, producer for Selznick-International, declares, asserting that it is up to pictures to "crystalize and help project the whole dream the world is dreaming."

Schary, speaking yesterday before the Advertising Club of Los Angeles, expressed confidence that the motion picture industry can dramatize the dream of the brotherhood of man.

"It may be that in the future the screen will be used as an initiating force," he said, "because we know better today the function of the film. We know its power. We know its scope. And knowing all these things, we will, perhaps, be better able to dramatize this new world, this one world, this good world dream."

Schary holds that both the motion picture business and the world in general are facing their brightest future.

"The motion picture industry," he said, "has in its hands the power to help fashion a new world of good and decency and dignity. If it fails to use that power it is not only going to lose friends, it is going to lose profit."

Film Salesmen's NY Union Withers On Vine

New York, April 10.—Film salesmen in other parts of the country are going ahead with unionization, but in the largest of the exchange centers, New York, the Sellers Guild has died aborning from all indications, following reported pressure by distributors. In some cases, men were said to have been called on the carpet, flatly warned not to unionize, while other Sellers learned indirectly that bosses looked askance on steps being taken.

Skirball Opens 'Bag'

Jack Skirball, head of Jack Skirball Productions, and Art Siteman, his production manager, left yesterday for San Francisco where Skirball's Fred Allen starrer, "It's In the Bag," opens tomorrow at the United Artists. Due to the fact that both the New York and Los Angeles starts were delayed because of the oversupply of product for theatres, the Frisco unveiling becomes the world premiere.

Army Calls Ganzer

Alvin Ganzer, Paramount assistant director, is set for Army induction on Friday. He will be succeeded as aide to Director Noel Madison on R. G. De Sylva's "The Stork Club," to which he was assigned some time ago by Oscar Rudolph.

Sec Sings In Opera

Sarrette Neidlinger, one of RKO's flackery secretaries, has resigned her post in order to go into the LA Civic Opera Company's "The Desert Song," which opens April 30 at the Philharmonic. Miss Neidlinger, a Los Angeles-born brunette beauty, has a fine lyric soprano voice.

'Outlaws' Riding

"Outlaws of the Rockies" gets under way at Columbia today with Ray Nazarro directing. Charles Starrett, Carole Mathews and Tex Harding top the cast.

FILM BIZ SETS ITS LOAN PLAN; FREE PIX ON D-DAY ANNI

New York, April 10.—Campaign plans for the Seventh War Loan were laid today at meeting of the eastern and southern states drive leaders. All-day conference to prepare the way for the forthcoming campaign, which kicks off May 14 and runs through June 30, was attended by drive leaders from 19 states and film company presidents, including Barney Balaban, Nate Blumberg, N. Peter Rathvon and Spyros Skouras.

Called together by Samuel Pinanski, national chairman, those at the Astor Hotel meeting heard him declare "This is the toughest assignment the industry has ever been given. It will call for the utmost in showmanship and effect by everyone. The Showmen's Seventh will be an overwhelming success if every individual gives his best to this mightiest of all industry drives. It is up to the field more than ever."

TEAMWORK URGED

Meeting opening with a general executive session at which Tom Connors, national distribution chairman, and John Hertz, Jr., national director of publicity, outlined plans to be followed in the field by individuals. Connors stressed teamwork in his talk, declaring that "if the industry is to perform its assignment toward achieving the $4,000,000,000 "E" Bond goal, we must have the greatest teamwork," and promised full cooperation on bond premieres, children's matinees, Free Movie Day, etc., by the distributors.

Hertz declared the Seventh War Loan will be backed by the greatest promotion drive the industry has ever seen. Numerous features never before attempted on a national basis will be used, he said. Spearhead of the drive to the public will be the slogan: "Buy War Bonds At Your Favorite Motion Picture Theatre." He revealed that instead of a press book, a portfolio containing practical, workable ideas will be sent to exhibitors, furnishing all ammunition for an aggressive campaign.

GAMBLE TELLS BIG TASK

A feature of the day was a luncheon session at which Ted R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance Division of the Treasury Department, was principal speaker. Gamble told the showmen that the Seventh War Loan is the most important since the inception of war financing. Pointing out that the government is asking more money in the seventh—$14,000,000,000, of which $7,000,000,000 is in sales of bonds to individuals—he called on the industry for greater efforts to sell individual bonds, since bond buying has not kept pace by far with the increase in national income.

85,00,000 BOND BUYERS

Gamble said that although War Bonds have been purchased by 85,000,000 persons since the war, increased purchases are needed to check threat of inflation, to support price stabilization and safeguard national economy. Another prime reason, he added, is that war expenditures are mounting, revealing that the month just ended was the most expensive of the entire war.

National Free Movie Day will be held on June 6, the anniversary of D-Day which saw General Eisenhower's legion invade Normandy. As a prelude, "Glenn Miller Day" will be staged on June 5, both as a tribute to the band leader who lost his life and as a pitch for Free Movie Day.

1,200 FILM PRINTS ORDERED

Total of 1,200 prints have been ordered on "The All-Star Bond Rally," 10-minute subject which all exhibitors will be asked to run at all shows and reship it to another to save time in order to get the fastest possible playoff.

Bob Weitman, New York Paramount theatre managing director, outlined plans for a military pageant to be held in the theatre June 5. House will be scaled to yield $4,000,000 in bond sales with a sellout indicated. V-discs of the show will be sent to armed forces everywhere.

MONTEZ GETS HATFULL OF PUBLICITY, AND TROUBLE TOO

Chicago, April 10.—A full column of copy and a three-column picture spread on the front page was what the Chicago Sun handed Maria Montez today. But the Sun didn't do it to be nice to Maria, and the chances are she won't like it. The picture shows Maria counting her baggage in the Union Station between trains. Two of the eight hat boxes with which she had started out from New York were missing. She had 13 other pieces of luggage—all of which were shown in the picture.

The Sun, battling for investigation of black marketing of Pullman reservations, pounced on the photo as ammunition for its campaign.

TWO HATS MISSING

"She was almost tearful," the story said, "as she told one and all: 'Every time I go to Chicago somebody has steal something. Eight beautiful Lily Dache hats last night and now only seex. I will not move till they come back. I will sue somebody. I will cry.' "

The Sun yarn continued: "The star's husband, Jean Pierre Aumont, appeared embarrassed when he saw people counting his wife's baggage, which outdid her array of names, which—if none of THEM has been stolen—goes like this: Mrs. Maria Antonio Garcia Vidal Y De Santos Silos De MacFeeters De Aumont.

HUBBY TRAVELS LIGHT

"The Aumonts left for the Coast last evening," the Sun said, "and Lieut. Aumont had no trouble with his luggage—a canvas zipper bag and a canvas uniform case."

The Sun capped the story with the statement that "meanwhile members of State Senator Roland V. Libonati's committee investigating black market conditions in the sale of Pullman reservations prepared for their next session here April 16." Libonati at a hearing April 2 charged that film stars are able to obtain reservations at a moment's notice, while more obscure citizens must wait for weeks.

Victims of Own Gas

Metro publicists have gassed many an editor, but yesterday their medicine backfired and they were blinking in their own tears. A small tear-bomb was discharged early in the morning in room on first floor of the building housing studio praisers and fumes penetrated upward. Third floor walkers suffered most from the gas which caused more red eyes than a morning-after.

Lesser Flackery In Paris Set By Hoffman

Jerry Hoffman, publicity director for Sol Lesser Productions, is organizing a publicity unit in Paris for exploitation of his boss' "Paris Canteen." Office already has been set up, headed by Pierre Duflos, a French journalist, with whom Hoffman has been corresponding for some time. Lucette Caron also will write in this office, and a photographer, Roldes, likewise has joined organization for plugging picture.

McGill, Allgood Cast

Moyna McGill and Sarah Allgood drew roles in "Uncle Harry" yesterday at Universal.

DEMILLE FREEDOM FOUNDATION IS ANNOUNCED

Formation of the DeMille Political Freedom Foundation, with headquarters in downtown Los Angeles, was announced yesterday by Frank P. Doherty, civic leader. In setting forth the purpose of the organization, he said it would insure the right of everyone, union or non-union alike, to be politically free and that the foundation favors unions and the right of men to bargain collectively.

C. B. De Mille, for whom the project was named, declared that "the dollar I refused to pay as a political assessment will return priceless dividends to the American people." He had reference to the assessment made by American Federation of Radio Artists which forced his suspension and banishment from the air. Activities of the Foundation will be financed by voluntary contributions.

of the nation's outstanding flying hero, must stand. The main obstacle to her happiness is the widow's young son, who has built up for himself, aided by his mother, the illusion that there can be no replacement for his father in his own or his mother's affections. The solution is too immersed in theatrics.

B. Harrison Orkow, the author, has fumbled too frequently with his dialog and building up of situations. There are good performances by Edward Nugent, recruited from films, and Frances Reid. Donald Devlin, the youngster, is frequently capital, though sometimes too precocious in his dialoging. Jean Adair, as the mother-in-law, is a better actress than her lines would suggest.

Staged by William Castle, the production is often too slow. "Family," a one-setter, is neatly designed by Edward Gilbert.

NBC is lowering the boom on the gimmick guys who sneak in free plugs for the watch companies on network shows via the age-old dodge of gifting those in charge with time pieces. Chief offenders have been "planters" for Bulova and Gruen, who have scattered wrist watches around radio row with a prodigal hand. One of the recipients recently had his ticker appraised at $70, which is buying a spot on a network show with a ready-made audience of millions at the rock-bottom price. Pitch is to have some comedy references made to the name of the watch. Thing has gotten out of hand and NBC moved in with the ultimatum, "just for that you all get off." Bulova supplemented its watch gifts with ties for producers and writers, which were too garishly trade-marked to be worn unabashed around the studios.

NOW that New York's Stage Door Canteen loses its radio sponsor next week, Hollywood Canteen is making overtures for a commercial tieup and origination at the GI retreat. Few years ago when a deal was in the making, reps of the New York Canteen put in with a fast protest on the ground that Corn Products, Inc., was given exclusive use of the Canteen tag and a parallel project would abridge the contract. Hollywood Canteen officers yielded and the deal was called off. Shows have occasionally broadcast from the Canteen but the tieup sought would provide both a weekly program for the GI's and additional funds for the spot's operation.

Need for so many fawns is that they must be filmed at various ages during the three months' stay of Director Clarence Brown's troupe on the Florida location. Brown and his technical crew and some of his players head for Florida next week.

try out a new plan which was suggested at a recent WPB-industry huddle here.

Although only a few replies have been received to date, they are generally unfavorable. The feeling in some segments of the business is that if the bars go down and the film people do their own allocating, the little fellows will be squeezed out by the powerful major studios.

The plan would have WPB allot an overall amount of footage for the industry, then have it cut up by the raw stock manufacturers and the producers.

In days of old the pioneer went out and risked his hide
Amid the perils and the woes that swarmed the countryside.
And when his daring deeds were done and he was worn and old
The businessmen came barging in and harvested the gold.

And so it is with pioneers amid the motion pix.
They venture out on hidden trails with new and novel tricks
And presently the businessmen, conservative and wise,
Walk in and reap the harvest sown by pioneering guys.

I'll Remember April

(Comedy-Drama With Music)

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Associate producer, Gene Lewis. Director, Harold Young. Screenplay, M. Coates Webster. Story, Gene Lewis. Based on "Amateur Nights," by Bob Dillon. Photography, Jerome Ash. Musical director, Edgar Fairchild. Art direction, John B. Goodman, Abraham Grossman. Set decorations, Russell Gausman, Ted Von Hemert. Editor, Philip Cahn. Gowns, Vera West.

CAST—Stars Gloria Jean. Supporting players: Kirby Grant, Milburn Stone, Edward S. Brophy, Samuel S. Hinds, Jacqueline de Wit, Hobart Cavanaugh, Addison Richards, Pierre Watkin, Clyde Fillmore, Mary Forbes, Morgan Wallace, Paul Porcasi.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 11, 1945. Running time: 63 MINS.

"I'll Remember April" is moderately entertaining programmer with a contrived plot which builds to fairly satisfactory climax. Gloria Jean is starred, warbling number of songs, and picture stacks up favorably with other lower-budget films produced by Universal. Action is tedious in introductory sequences, but perks up to an extent later when novel method is utilized in capturing a murderer by re-enactment of a crime.

Star plays rich girl who, suddenly reduced in circumstances to point where she must earn her own living, tries to use her voice for this purpose. She goes to a cheap nitery where she sings over one of those traveling radio shows, and instantly she is a hit over airwaves but doesn't know it. Kirby Grant, who conducts program, is told he must find her or else, and immediately he finds opposition in rival radio broadcaster, Broadway columnist, who discovers where she lives and practically kidnaps her from under Grant's nose. In ensuing action Grant takes his microphone to a board meeting where a big financier is murdered, and Gloria's father is accused of the crime. Thereafter, two rival radio men pool their activities to uncover real murderer, which is accomplished through neat story twist.

Picture is Gene Lewis' first producer chore and for what material he has to work with he does well enough job. Harold Young directed from Lewis' own script, based on original by Bob Dillon, and Edgar Fairchild provided suitable score as musical director. Other production assignments likewise were well filled.

Gloria Jean sings attractively, though her voice lacks tonal volume, and Grant makes the most of his role as traveling radio emcee. Milburn Stone plays his rival acceptably, Edward S. Brophy generally is okay in comedy scenes though he goes overboard in impersonating a maid, and Samuel S. Hinds turns in his usual solid performance. Lesser roles are well enacted, too.

MAE WEST LURES FIVE 'UP TO SEE HER' WITH SPOOK

Chicago, April 11.—Mae West, who has invited up a lot of guys in her time, is going in for spiritualism in a big way, as was attested by a group who obeyed her summons to visit her Stevens hotel apartment last night, only to find that the bait was nothing more sensational than a seance. It seems Miss West, who is starring here in Mike Todd's "Catherine Was Great," is sold on a direct-spirit medium named Jack Kelly, who was brought on from Buffalo by her manager, Jim Timony.

Included in the visitors to la West's suite were her friends Leonard Keller, the ork leader; Tom Kelly, police captain; John Kelly, police lieutenant; Judge Francis Borelli and Joe McDonnell, manager of the Stevens.

No conversions have been recorded as yet, although Dr. Kelly (no relation to the two police officers) prophesied that McDonnell would be quitting his job within 10 days. However, it didn't take that long, for he handed in his resignation today, effective next Sunday.

Refugees Asks Ban On 'Bell' In Mexico

Mexico City, April 11. — Prominent members of the FOARE, an organization of Spanish refugees in Mexico, have asked the Cinematographers Union and the official Censors Office to ban the American pic, "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Speaking for the FOARE, Senor Carmona said the pic is "a rude offense against the real people of Spain and the true defenders, in Mexico, of Spanish democracy."

'Shadow' Delayed

"Purple Shadow Strikes," serial which was to have started at Republic yesterday, has been postponed until next Monday. Bill Elliott "Red Ryder" western, "California Gold Rush," also is slated to roll on this day.

Frances Sewell Moves

Frances Sewell, RKO studio nurse, moves from the Pathe studio and location assignments to the Gower st. studio to replace Mary McArdle, who resigned to take a job at the Georgia Street Receiving hospital.

THELMA WHITE BACK FROM18,000 MI.TOUR

Thelma White and her "Sweetheart Revue" troupe were back in Hollywood yesterday after six months of entertaining GI's in the Aleutians. Others on the tour, sponsored by USO-Camp Shows, Inc., included Frances Shelley, Peggy Gilbert, Mitzi Martin, June Derry and Peggy Russell.

Miss White plans to rest here awhile, then head off on another jaunt to entertain soldiers overseas.

"We covered 18,000 miles, and appeared before troops who had not seen a woman in more than a year," she declared, "and never have I played to such appreciative audiences."

She said the trip was an endless succession of thrills and hardships, mingled with tears and laughter

Dale Evans Reported Up For New Rep Deal

Republic is reported dickering with Dale Evans on a new contract that will lift her completely out of westerns, provide her with a salary boost, permit her to do one outside picture annually as well as granting her the privilege of accepting a radio show. Miss Evans left the lot a month ago after two years of playing opposite Roy Rogers. Reasons for her departure were said to have been her confinement to sagebrushers, the studios refusal to allow her to accept ether commitments and its disinclination to hand her the pay increase supposedly provided for in her deal.

Bob Hope will have Blanche Stewart and Elvia Allman (Brenda and Cobina) back on his program Tuesday from the Santa Ana convalescent hospital. They formerly were regulars on the show and this appearance is a guest shot.

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Fortunately we've again arrived at one of those points in the Western Front campaign when I hesitate to write that our troops are at such-and-such a place, because by the time this is run off the press and gets to you, we'll be beyond it. As I write, the Ninth Army is on the banks of the Elbe River, 57 miles along a super-highway from Berlin, after an advance in one day of 37 miles from Hannover to Brünswick and of 48 miles from Brunswick to Magdeburg yesterday. By the time you read this, we shall probably be over the Elbe and speeding those final miles to what was the German capital. At any rate, I hope so. We have apparently been able to move our supplies up within the last week, and are on the last phase of our drive as far as the northern part of the Reich is concerned. . . . Over on Okinawa the Japanese defending Naha and two airfields in the southern area have now held us back for seven straight days. We're now meeting the opposition we expected earlier. When wet get Okinawa, we shall have an island with two good anchorages, one of them better than anything on Gaum, and we shall have a strategically located staging base for a drive either on the Japanese home islands, or inland to the China coast to cut the Japanese armies there in two. . . . Don't call the islands in which Okinawa is located the Ryukyus, say the Chinese. They're the Liuchius. The Japanese have given them the other name just because they can't pronounce Liuchius. Continuing to say Ryukyus would be just as sensible, say our friends, the Chinese, as saying Honoruru or Ros Angeres.

Because of the mob, he had to sit in front with the driver. He noticed several lead sheets from various tunes scattered around in the rickshaw and asked the pilot about it. "Oh, they're my own tunes," the cabbie stated. "I write music all the time." "Get any of it published?" Artie asked. "No, by God, I've yet to see a music publisher, much less talk to one." METRO SHOOTING FIVE PIX; TWO MORE SET TO GO

Metro, with five features in production, another due to start there Saturday and a seventh slated to go before the cameras some time next week, yesterday appeared to be in good shape despite the strike. Now in work at the Culver City plant are "Yolanda and the Thief," "The Harvey Girls," "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," "For Better For Worse" and "Abbott and Costello in Hollywood," the latter having gotten under way Tuesday.

Director John Ford and "They Were Expendable" troupe arrive here today after a lengthy location stay in Florida. Ford plans to launch his interiors by the end of the week.

Meanwhile it was believed yesterday that differences between Victor Fleming, slated to direct the Clark Gable-Greer Garson co-starrer, "The Strange Adventure," and Metro execs would be ironed out within a day or so, and that the picture would roll on a farm location near Culver City within the week. Fleming is still at Balboa, where he went after leaving Metro a week ago.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

Battle of the media giants—time vs. space—is shaping up for one of the biggest post-VE developments along the fringes of show biz. Radio billing, highest in history, can't hope to hold its gains, with the fortress being shelled by mags, dailies and posters. Comparative figures aren't available but what we have to toy with shows which way the scales are tipped. In 1943 radio billings soared to $150,591,845, mags picked off $204,100,483, daily papers accounted for $124,410,231 and $15,741,481 went to farm papers, the over-all total reaching $494,844,040. In 1944 radio swelled its take to $190,677,763 which represented an increase of 25% over the previous annum. Granted that tax money and war babies played a major part in the upward swing of the graph but not to be minimized is the space shortage due to paper cuts. When restrictions come off pulp the big guns will be loosed and we can expect some pretty torrid editorial flurries against radio such as the prelims in Chicago and St. Louis. Television, FM and billboards will be in the thick of the tussle for the advertising dollar so it looks like exciting times lie ahead with radio standing off the field.

Newest wrnkle in previews is that devised for the Judy Canova show by Producer Joe Rines. Following the Saturday night broadcast, with a breather in between, the cast runs through the following week's script with an audience reaction to clock the laughs and tab the weak spots. Such an arrangement gives Rines and his writers a full week to work over the comedy situations and in eliminating the Wednesday night preview allows the program's star to take care of her picture, recording and home duties without the mid-week interruption. Other factors in favor of the one-nighter are that Saturday night audiences warm up fast to comedy and filling the theatre is no trick at all.

STATION BREAKS . . . If Frances Langford does the Chase & Sanborn summer show the trade is guessing that she won't be back with Bob Hope in the fall. Singing spot would go to Marilyn Maxwell. . . . Simultaneous releases advise that Erskine Johnson has been renewed by Jergens-Woodbury and booked for imminent guesting are George Raft, Constance Bennett and Sonja Henie. That client is no fool. . . . Robert Z. Leonard gets his tryout as Lux narrator-emcee April 23 and if the Lever crowd back in Boston likes his voice and mike personality he's this pillar's rail rider for the permanent assignment next season. You can make the odds as long as you want that C. B. De Mille won't be back and bank your winnings right now. A vagrant thought seems to stick in our craw that C. B. has political ambitions that may blossom in the next senatorial campaign. . . . If Eddie Bracken gets his Army call don't be surprised if Barry Fitzgerald moves into the spot with a slight change in format. . . . Jack Kirkwood has been nipped by the guest bug and dons chaps for a call at the Andrews Sisters ranch April 29. . . . Both Billls—Thomas & Pine—believe that Art Linkletter has tremendous picture possibilities after looking at the rushes of "People Are Funny." . . . Eddie Cantor is more elated over his new singing discovery than any of his previous proteges and that should mark him for the big time in short order.

There's no time for comedy along these coastal plains, or so we gather from the latest Hooper list. That is, the coast brand strictly for coast eardrums. Run your eye over the upper reaches of the home-grown and the preference runs sharply to spine tinglers and newsboys. Squatting topside is "The Whistler" with 14.7, followed by "Adventures of Bill Lance," 12.6; Alka Seltzer news 12.1, Richfield Reporter 11.6 and "Don't You Believe It" 10.3. The flesh-creepers are not far behind Jack Benny, who rates 16.7 on his afternoon broadcast and 15.6 on the nocturnal repeat, not quite strong enough to lift him into Hooper's Pacific First 15. No different from the rest of the country, coasters hug their sets closest for Bob Hope, "The McGee's" and Charlie McCarthy in that sequence.

HITCH HIKES . . . Rumor is running rampant on the future status of Jim Andrews with Lennen & Mitchell and the firm's two Old Gold shows. One is definitely to be replaced but no decision has been reached on which one. Agency is fighting to hold the account against some serious pitches by other commission houses. . . . Hot off the grapevine: Fred Allen will replace Phil Baker on "Take It Or Leave It" in the fall. No question that he'd do a terrific job, ad libbing being through his groove, but intimates say he'll still be a holdout when the leaves turn brown. . . . Deal is brewing for Jack Oakie to float away with Joan Davis on a cake of Swan soap come fall. . . . Herb Sanford gets back from New York tomorrow accompanied by G. Potter Darrow, N. W. Ayer exec on the Hires account, who'll talk over format change on Prindle-Niles show with Producer Cece Underwood. . . . Georgia Gibbs hasn't signed that Philco deal yet and still being besieged with flattering offers. . . . Phil Cohan will use guest warblers on the Durante-Moore show until the right one shows up. Summer plan for the Rexall stanza is to use name guests for Jimmy and Garry for the eight weeks they're overseas entertaining the GI's. . . . Here we go out on the limb again. Burns and Allen will move into the Fitch time on NBC next fall. That's what the man said. . . . We've yet to meet a trade acquaintance of Ralph Edwards who doesn't say he's one of the nicest people on the air, Roger! . . . Johnson wax will have a second show next season if the time is right. . . . Isn't it Hildegarde-ishly horrible the way some of those second rate bands mangle the sentimental favs on the record stations? . . . Whoever buys "Name It and Claim It" for hiatus duty may draw a squawk from KMTR's Hal Halley who claims to have used it first. . . . In case it has been troubling you, Hedda Hopper has green eyes, according to Blue biographers.

the Coast. No pictures are being shown to the Germans now.

This policy, however, may be changed later, depending upon psychological conditions in various regions of Naziland, he stated.

OWI's plan in the liberated countries is to allow commercial firms to take over distribution as soon as possible, as was done in France. Bulgarian and Greek exchange business probably will be turned back to the distribs shortly.

Italy already has been offered to private industry, according to Riskin, but the U. S. concerns are not so sure they want to take the task away from the Allied government setup, although they were ready enough to squawk when the door seemed closed to them.

Riskin revealed that Billy Wilder is going into Germany for the OWI film branch. He will work there with the Psychological Warfare Board.

He also reiterated the plan he announced in Hollywood for having the American film companies set up a joint production unit after the war to make 16mm. pictures on cultural and documentary subjects for distribution overseas in collaboration with the State Department. He intends to discuss the matter with film executives here.

Riskin added that his original estimate of $1,000,000 needed for that kind of a setup has been revised downward by 50%.

SCRIPT TROUBLES FORCE STROMBERG TO CHANGE LOTS

Hunt Stromberg Productions will abandon present quarters at California Studios and move back to General Service Studios, it was announced yesterday.

The move is understood to be an indirect result of the scripting and casting trouble which has held up the scheduled Stromberg production of "The Young Widow." When it developed that "Widow" filming would be delayed, the studio management had to meet commitments with other companies.

Selznick is reported to be moving into the space left vacant by Stromberg.

The change affects only the production, publicity, wardrobe and casting departments of the Stromberg setup. Stromberg's own personal offices and the accounting department have been quartered at General Service right along.

Ida Lupino, originally set to star in the "Widow," now is definitely out of the cast, it was announced yesterday, having pulled out because she didn't like the script.

Louis Hayward, her estranged husband, continues in the cast, and script now is being revamped.

EXTRAS ASK STUDIOS FOR MINIMUM PAY OF $16.50

Demands for extension of the 300-mile rule to the entire United States, Mexico and Canada, and a minimum of $16.50 for extra work exclusive of mob scenes is being submitted to producers today by Screen Players Union. Proposals submitted by Mike Jeffers, SPU business representative, at request of E. J. Mannix, prexy of the Producers Association, also call for abolition of "weather permitting" calls and a minimum of $11 where more than 500 players are used in mob scenes.

Preliminary proposals submitted by Jeffers and which would form the basis for negotiations follow:

"Complete reclassification of all wage scales and working conditions. Extend 300-mile rule to include all U. S., Mexico and Canada. No conversion calls for extra players. Abolition of 'weather permitting' calls. Abolition of cancellation of calls for extra players for any reason. Retroactive pay.

$11 FOR MOB SCENES

"Conditions under which waiver may be granted. Creation of a standing committee. Classification of every job that may be required to be done and classifications as to wage scales. Conditions for fittings and interviews. Conditions for photographic doubling, maximum hours and overtime compensation. Minimum pay of $16.50 for extras. Minimum of $16.50 for standins. Minimum of $16.50 for players appearing in mob scenes where 500 or less players are called. Minimum of $11 where 500 or more players are called for mob scenes. Minimum of $16.50 for insert work."

In his letter asking for an interim agreement, Jeffers stated:

"In response to your letter of April 2, 1945, the Screen Players Union is herein enclosing the following:

"1. The interim agreement which has been redrafted to conform with the second supplemental decision and modification of certification. It is our desire in order to expedite these negotiations and amicably proceed thereon that this agreement be considered by you and signed by the respective motion picture producers so that the SPU thereon may commence negotiations on wages and working conditions to govern those within our jurisdiction.

BASIS FOR NEGOTIATIONS

"2. The proposed wage schedules. These schedules do not embody all the wages and working conditions ultimately to be involved in final agreement since they are tentative and require submission to the membership, which will be done shortly at a mass meeting called for such purpose. However, we are enclosing these tentative proposed wage schedules as a basis from which we may mutually negotiate on the ultimate wages and conditions. Accordingly, we should appreciate a meeting with the representatives of the motion picture producing companies as soon as possible so that we may conclude this interim agreement and proceed with the other negotiations."

STUDIOS CLAIM PRODUCTION GAIN

majors had at least two going, with Paramount scheduling a third, "The Stork Club," to roll on April 19. Walsh representatives claimed that the IATSE would furnish all necessary men to keep the studios operating, and that charters would be issued for crafts whose members are refusing to cross the picket lines.

CARPENTERS CHARTERED

First of these charters was announced by Roy Brewer, IATSE representative, as having been issued as Local 787 for carpenters. It was indicated that charters also were ready for machinists and painters. Despite the Brewer announcement, 800 members attending meeting of Studio Carpenters Local 946 last night said they were told that upon first concrete evidence that Walsh has issued a charter for carpenters or any group in the big international of the American Federation of Labor he would be cited before the AF of L executive council, where he would be given the alternative of "meeting the requirements or getting out of the AF of L."

SUSPENSION THREAT

Carpenters also said they were told by Joseph Cambiano, International representative of the Carpenters, that letters were going to 30,000 carpenters in the Los Angeles district today advising them that William Hutcheson, International prexy of the Carpenters, had issued instructions calling for indefinite suspension of any carpenter who passed the studio picket lines. It was stated similar letters would go to every carpenter local in the state. They claimed attempts to import carpenters from the San Francisco waterfront had already been dropped and that members had been ordered off locations.

Carpenters declared they were told by Cambiano that prexy Hutcheson was back of them 100%, that Walsh would not remain in the AF of L if any charters were issued in jurisdiction of the other big internationals, and that any of them would be ousted from membership if they crossed the picket lines before the Brotherhood of Carpenters had been granted all work it was entitled to. They said they were told that if Walsh did choose to leave the AF of L all the IATSE work would be quickly gobbled up by other big AF or L Internationals. They said the AF of L Executive Council is scheduled to meet the first week in May, but could get together earlier on call.

REPORT ON NY MEETING

Carpenters were given a complete report on New York negotiations between Hutcheson, Walsh and producer' representatives, with Cambiano complimenting James Skelton, 946 business representative upon the manner in which he had presented the situation to Hutcheson.

There was little other activity on the strike front yesterday, other than efforts of Walsh to recruit sufficient workers to handle work. Conference of Studio Unions, headed by prexy Herbert Sorrell, announced another mass meeting of unionists for Hollywood Legion Stadium Sunday night at which time it was said interesting disclosures would be made.

McFETRIDGE PROTESTS

It also was disclosed that William McFetridge, international prexy of the Building Service Employes International Union, had wired producers they had no right to cancel contracts with its local. Wire stated: "Your telegram in which you attempt to rescind and terminate the contracts with our organization has been received. This will advise you that we do not agree to the attempted rescession or termination and we especially deny herewith any breach of our obligation under such contracts and will hold the companies to the contracts in all respects. We further state that the companies are without authority to make the attempted rescession or termination." Situation for BSEIU is being handled locally by George Bradley, international vice-president.

Workers who were discharged for refusing to carry out orders of IA Prexy Walsh that they perform work outside their jurisdiction were conferring with Frank Pestana, attorney for the Conference of Studio Unions, with the idea of preferring unfair labor practice charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

Sorrell expressed complete satisfaction with strike developments last night. Head of CSU declared: "Walsh has not been able to recruit one union man and his own membership is revolting against his orders for them to act as strikebreakers. He is going to be lucky if he is not ousted by his own members, and I believe that will come quickly if they find he is liable to get them tossed out of the AF of L."

This advertisement, 20th of a series appearing in national magazines, points out to 35,000,000 readers (of Time, Life, Newsweek, Liberty, Redbook, Fortune, etc.) that Warner Bros. productions and Warner Bros. policy are equally distinguished!

As you might suspect, our latest picture, HOTEL BERLIN, is about a hotel in Berlin today, and the revolting shenanigans of its more unsavory guests as their vultures come home to roost.

As you might not suspect, HOTEL BERLIN was planned as a Warner Bros. picture more than two years ago, when war-clouds loomed blackest . . . for we shared the faith of millions that freedom must triumph.

There's a further reason why, from where we sit, HOTEL BERLIN is a very special entertainment.

For it's the sequel, in a sense, to a picture we made more than six years ago. That picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy", caused a lot of talk . . . some of it to the effect that we were seeing things under democracy's bed. (As we recall, some folks even said, "Pooh, pooh!").

HOTEL BERLIN shows, in unforgettably dramatic scenes, what finally happens to a nation that sets out to degrade and destroy mankind . . . by lies or Luftwaffe, by poison-propaganda or panzers.

HOTEL BERLIN shows, too, that Warner Bros. intend to maintain the leadership established by "Nazi Spy" and so many other splendid motion pictures . . . leadership in what The New York Times called "combining good picture-making with good citizenship".

A Martyr to Freedom

Franklin D. Roosevelt—His Favorite Photo

Studios Close on Death Flash

WIVES OF SONS TAKE PLANE FOR WASH.

Hollywood today was plunged into mourning for the man who has been closer to show business than any other President of the United States. News that Franklin Delano Roosevelt had died at the "little White House," his unpretentious cottage atop Pine Mountain in Warm Springs, Ga., caused a sudden stoppage of work yesterday in the centers of the motion picture industry. Studios either closed at once or within a short time after the news flash announcing the tragic event was received.

At Warners, Faye Emerson, wife of the President's son, Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt, was at work on the set of "Danger Signal" when news of her father-in-law's death was broken to her. She left the set at once.

STUDIOS CLOSE FOR DAY

Closing of the studio was announced a few moments later. Similar shutdown orders were issued at the various other studios within the next hour.

Employes huddled in small groups about the various lots, talking in hushed tones. Secretaries gave way to tears. One woman magazine writer nearly collapsed in a projection room at RKO when she heard the report.

Everywhere the personal note in the comments persisted. To scores of persons in the industry Franklin D. Roosevelt was not only a wartime President whose death borders on a national calamity, but a revered friend whose passing meant more intimate personal bereavement.

CLOSE TO FILM BIZ

Stars and executives had been frequent White House visitors. Actors and actresses had been welcome and prominent guests at the annual Birthday Ball. The hookup between the President and the film industry had been an important one throughout his more than 12 years as President.

To the show folk the President was "one of us"—not only a leader to respect but a friend to depend upon.

Mrs. Romelle Roosevelt, wife of Col. James Roosevelt, who has been living here with her mother, was out yesterday afternoon when the death message came. She did not hear the news until her return home about 5:30 p.m. She and Miss Emerson left on a special plane for Washington at 7 o'clock last night.

They said it was probable that Col. James Roosevelt and Lieut. John Roosevelt, both stationed in the Far East, would not be able to return for the funeral.

TWO SONS MAY SEE RITES

Mrs. James Roosevelt said it is possible that Lieut. Comdr. Franklin, Jr., will be present for the funeral. She said she recently received a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt that he was expected in Washington within a few days. She said that Gen. Elliott Roosevelt may also come back from the European war theatre for the obsequies.

Strike dissension which has beset the industry these past six weeks was promptly backgrounded by the death announcement. As the studios closed their gates the picket lines before them promptly dissolved. Late yesterday picket captains at Paramount and RKO were urging those studios to remain closed until Monday so they could observe a period of mourning for the President's death.

SILBERBERG ACTS FOR STUDIOS

Decision on this and other plans for general mourning still were pending last night. Mendel Silberberg, attorney, was appointed by the producers a committee of one to act for them in arrangements for mourning observance and to coordinate studio action with that of civic bodies and other industries. It was announced that the studios probably will be shut down tomorrow at least during the time of the funeral. They will be open today.

The Producers Association was in session when the report of the death came. They adopted resolutions of tribute to Roosevelt's memory and pledged support of the industry to the new President, and then adjourned.

The tragic news flash reached Hollywood at 2:35 p.m. yesterday—an hour after the President had succumbed to cerebral hemorrhage.

DEATH AT 1:35 COAST TIME

The Chief Executive was stricken unconscious shortly before noon (PWT). He died at 1:35 p.m. painlessly and without having recovered consciousness. He had been in Warm Springs since March 30, resting and recuperating in preparation for the San Francisco conference.

The Greatest Casualty

Franklin Delano Roosevelt yesterday achieved one of his four freedoms—freedom from servitude to the welfare of mankind. When the President passed away at Warm Springs, Ga., he was America's greatest war casualty. He died in action as much as any man who fell carrying the American flag up Iwo Jima's Suribachi, or down the last miles to Berlin. He was not alone America's casualty. His loss will be emblazoned high on the honor rolls of all people whose sons and daughters have died for Freedom.

Franklin D. Roosevelt died that a world might be free. Of frail health, he undertook a task no robust American ever attempted. He was the first to be elected beyond the two-term period. Americans had the confidence to give him a 16-year ticket in the White House. He had just started on his 13th year of fighting for the "Forgotten Man" throughout the world when his iron will reached the limit of carrying its weak physical container.

The burden of years of depression nationally and of carrying the banner of liberty against those who would enslave mankind had proven too heavy.

But Franklin D. Roosevelt died victoriously. The number one enemy of a free world, Hitler, was being hammered to final defeat the very moment the President's name was added to the casualty list. And it is altogether possible that General of the Army Eisenhower may be able to proclaim the defeat of Germany simultaneously with the funeral of the President tomorrow.

President Roosevelt had a great respect and affection for the people of show business, and they in turn for him. Each year since the inception of the President's Birthday campaign to raise funds for the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, show business was a willing, worthy and healthy ally. Its folks collected money in theatres, appeared at dinners and balls around the country and gave their all to make the yearly drive the success it has been. We know show folks won't forget FDR, and that each year as its tribute to his memory will campaign for funds to keep a great monument dedicated to him, operating for the benefit of humankind.

Franklin D. Roosevelt did a great job for the world and freedom.

Therefore, could there be any greater triumphant exit than victory over mankind's No. 1 enemy, as he goes to join America's other martyred Presidents, McKinley, Garfield and Lincoln, likewise casualties for freedom and their nation?

B'WY STUNNED; SHOW CROWDS ARE THINNED

New York, April 12.—Broadway tonight reflected the heartbeat of the nation's amusement industry upon learning of President Roosevelt's death. Picture theatres and night clubs were particularly affected, all the niteries shutting down after their dinner shows.

The filmeries had scant attendance and, even at the legit shows, where advance sellouts had been the rule, there was evidence that patrons did not take advantage of their tickets. Restaurants likewise were sparsely patronized after the dinner hour.

Broadway itself saw its crowds scatter early in the evening, many of them to go home and listen to radio details of the President's death. In a couple of restaurant windows, pictures of the President were prominently displayed with black crepe framing the photos.

Everywhere one could see the strange manifestations of sobriety that had caught the usually milling noisy Broadway throng. Everywhere groups of twos and threes huddled on the sidewalk and read of the President's death.

The solemnness continued to be evident with the approaching midnight curfew, unlike other times, when one invariably witnessed the streets congested with lurching gaiety seekers. Tonight Broadway show biz shut its eyes and ears to its usual wartime travail and joined the nation in its hour of sorrow.

Film Houses Expected To Close During Rites

Southern California theatres last night were awaiting word on a national policy to govern operation of film theatres tomorrow, the date of funeral services for President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Indications are that film theatres will shutter until after services are held in Washington, with some to remain closed the entire day.

It is expected announcement of a national theatre policy will come from either the War Activities Committee, or the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, which will be asked to handle statement for all branches of the industry. Exhibitor organization, both major and independent, and theatre chain executives were meeting last night to plan best method of observing the services.

Grief of Los Angeles citizens over the loss of our wartime leader was reflected in large drop in theatre attendance after the news was flashed to the nation. Attendance in Los Angeles first runs and other film theatres was reported off up to 50 per cent.

Orpheum theatre yesterday cancelled its scheduled 5 p. m. stage show and refunded nearly 2,000 admissions when Artie Shaw explained to Sherrill Corwin, operator of filmvaude house, that he did not feel up to a show in face of news.

Radio Tells Nation of Loss

NETS MUTE ALL SHOWS FOR FDR NEWS

Radio, which carried President Roosevelt's friendly voice to all corners of the globe, muted in solemn reverence yesterday when the word was flashed that he had passed on. From the New York headquarters of the networks came the electric decision to cancel all programs, that serious music, news and running commentary immediately would be substituted until further notice.

Never before in the history of a President's passing were the millions of Americans so speeidly told of the nation's tragedy. Within minutes after the network flash came through the word was passed along from mouth to mouth, long before the extras appeared on street corners.

MAY HOLD SHOWS OFF

Network policy beyond last night was being formulated in New York, but it was indicated that comedy and live music would be dispensed with until after the interment Sunday in Hyde Park, N. Y. Only regular show broadcasting last night was the Fred Waring musical program on the Blue Network, with the band music and male chorus confined to solemn numbers in keeping with nation's grief. Orson Welles was cut in from here with a special tribute to the President.

Late yesterday word came through from CBS in New York that the network would take over until noon today and for all affiliates to stand by for further orders. Only music, news and commentary were fed the outlets from New York and Washington and this general schedule is expected to prevail through remainder of the week. Special tribute programs were hurriedly being put together for broadcast last night and through today.

KING GEORGE MAY SPEAK

Networks were advised that possibly this morning a special tribute by King George of England would be shortwaved to this country. All local stations, affiliated and independent, will take the program off the network line and transcribe it for rebroadcast throughout the day.

Don Lee network was the first to announce a special broadcast last night at 8 o'clock, a transcribed repeat of "This Is My Story" broadcast in connection with the March of Dimes campaign some months ago. Program dealt with the President's infirmity and his persistent fight to overcome it.

Small stations in towns caught the spirit of the people and followed the lead of the chains by immediately canceling programs with live music and comedy. Some of the transmitters permitted only sponsor identification on newscasts and commentary but refrained from any broadcasts that might be considered in bad taste. Bill Ryan, KFI manager, said yesterday that his station would be governed by NBC policy.

PLAY FDR'S FAVORITE SONG

Word from Washington was that representatives of all nets had appealed to the White House for a pattern to follow during the nation's period of mourning, but no set format had been reached up to a late hour last night. The President's favorite song, "Home On the Range," was played by bands and sung by choral groups throughout the night.

A spokesman for CBS said last night that all networks have practically agreed on one procedure—that there would be no comedy or frivolous music on the air until after the services and burial in Hyde Park. Television sprang to its opportunity for the first time in such a crisis with the announcement by Klaus Landsberg, director of W6XAO that tonight's customary live broadcast would be replaced by a special tribute program. T. B. Blakiston will trace the President's career against a pictorial background. Vocalists from the Army Air Forces Redistribution Center will blend their voices in songs apropos of the occasion.

PRODS VOICE SORROW; RENEW THEIR PLEDGES

B. B. Kahane, first vice-president of the Producers Association, delivered over the Blue Network the following expression of the film industry's sorrow of the death of President Roosevelt:

"The shock of the news of the death of our beloved President reached directors of the Association of Motion Picture Producers while they were in session this afternoon. The following resolution was adopted:

"With all of America and all of the civilized world, the motion picture industry mourns the loss of a great leader. In tribute to his memory this industry rededicates itself to the services of our country and world democracy in this critical hour.

"The motion picture industry will feel keenly the loss of this great man who has always had an understanding of our problems and who has inspired us in our varied endeavors to assist America's war effort.

"His great heart—his human understanding—will endure in our hearts forever."

NEWS REELS SNAP TRUMAN AS HE IS SWORN AS PRESIDENT

Washington, April 12.—Newsreels and radio moved into high gear this evening to bring to America the tragic story of the death of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and the swearing in of Harry S. Truman as 32nd President of the United States. Within a half hour after the first flash of the President's sudden death had gone out, crews of the five reels were present with the press and radio correspondents in the large reception room of the White House offices.

For Movietone there were Tony Muto, Johnny Garvey and John Tondra; for News of the Day, J. C. Brown and Charles Bach; for Pathe, George Dorsey and Murray Alvey; for Universal, James Lyons and Harry Tugander; for Paramount, Hugo Johnson and Tommy Batzell.

The actual scene of President Truman taking the oath of office in the cabinet room of the White House offices also was made by the lensers who were admitted together with representatives of the three wire news services, while the rest of the press milled in a corridor outside.

Two of the radio networks, Mutual and NBC, set up mikes in the White House press room, reporting details of the developments directly over the air. The other two webs, CBS and Blue, phoned to their local outlets where the story was carried to the nation.

A MARTYR'S EXIT

Tread softly now, in solemn contemplation,
Not only in the land of freedom's birth
But in the far-flung fields of every nation . . .
A great heart passes from this troubled earth.

His soul is one with those who went before him
To sleep beneath white crosses in the sod
And now, a martyr to the land that bore him,
The warrior goes forth to meet his God.

Hotels continued to remain open for dancing and dining, although they plan to close upon a national proclamation of mourning. Remaining open, along with the inns, were Earl Carroll's and the Palladium.

Southern California Tavern Owners Association announced that no plans had been formulated as yet about closing. Some of the bars were locked by individual owners, but no overall official action was taken by the bistromen. Most of the saloons expect to close Saturday or Sunday during funeral services.

CBS and Warner Bros. have joined hands in ether-exploiting a picture, with CBS even going so far as to launch an exploitation of its own on the event. Merged into this new relationship between radio and films are a dozen national organizations, representing more than 30,000,000 persons. The picture is Warners' two-reeler, "It Happened In Springfield," which is the story of how Springfield, Mass., has taught tolerance, and which will be used as a basis of CBS's "Youth On Parade" program April 28, on which Harry M. Warner will be presented with a special citation for inspiring the briefie. Backing the movement of CBS are the YMCA, YWCA, Junior American Red Cross, National Federation of Settlements, Jewish Welfare Board, United Christian Youth Movement, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Boys Clubs of America, Campfire Girls, Four-H Clubs and the Hi-Y Clubs, national officers of which have already viewed "It Happened In Springield" at a special showing in New York.

JUST how much publicity Wilfrid R. Davis, manager of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, is going to garner from the LA Herald-Express for his organization from here on in remains to be seen. From all indications, at the moment, his name will be spelled "Mud" by the editors of that sheet. It seems that Arturo Toscanini arrived in Pasadena yesterday, prepared to take over his duties as conductor of the Symphony during the forthcoming season, and the press, including the Her-Ex boys, were out in full force. But Davis informed them, one and all, that "Toscanini is not talking today." Howard Ballew, a H-E cameraman, didn't see any harm, as long as it required no words from the conductor, in setting up his equipment. But Davis, according to the Her-Express, decided otherwise, with Davis and two of his aides grabbing Ballew and pushing him around, until police prevented what was about to become an incipient riot. Toscanini, through it all, was an innocent bystander.

UNIVERSAL execs are enthusiastic over the new camera technique being used by Charles David, directing the Deanna Durbin, starrer, "Lady On a Train." David's unique use of the lens is eliminating fully 50% of the waste found in the average feature-length feature. His idea is to keep the camera exceptionally mobile, making it possible to combine into one "take" a sequence which normally would be cut into two to four separate scenes. The result is a much smoother flow of action, and especially valuable on the "Train" type of picture. While David's method of shooting requires more time than generally is necessary when sequences are chopped into short scenes, the studio's heads believe that the final saving, in both players' time and in negative, will return real dividends.

IN preview-reaction cards which have been returned to Lester Cowan after sneak previews of his "Story of GI Joe" last Saturday and Sunday, age of sender appears to play an important part. Printed card was made up for patrons to mark whether they were under or over 30 years old. To question of whether picture reminded them of any other picture, not one who checked under 30 replied in affirmative, each writing "No." Card-senders who checked over 30 were about evenly divided—some wrote "No," but a good many pencilled in either "All Quiet On the Western Front" or "The Big Parade." Total of possibly 200 selected these two pictures for comparison.

The Great Flamarion

(Melodrama)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Producer, William Wilder. Director, Anthony Mann. Screenplay, Anne Wigton, Heinz Herald, Richard Weil. Based on story by Anne Wigton, taken from "Big Shot" by Vicki Baum. Photography, James Spencer Brown, Jr. Editor, John F. Link. Art director, F. Paul Sylos. Set decorations, Glenn P. Thompson. Musical score, Alexander Laszlo. Music supervision, David Chudnow.

CAST — Co-stars Erich von Stroheim and Mary Beth Hughes. Features Dan Duryea, Stephen Barclay, Lester Allen, Esther Howard, Michael Mark. Supporting players: Joseph Granby, John R. Hamilton, Fred Velasco, Carmen Lopez, Tony Ferrell.

PREVIEWED in Hollywood, Calif., April 12, 1945. Running time: 78 MINS.

Republic has a well-told and suspenseful melodrama on its hands in William Wilder's production of "The Great Flamarion," which should prove strong draw as a supporting feature. Occasional tendency to lean toward the theatric is more than compensated for by sock performances, picture offering Erich von Stroheim in his best performance in many a moon, and probably Mary Beth Hughes' outstanding portrayal since she entered pictures. Even though film lacks marquee names, it should benefit by word-of-mouth advertising.

Von Stroheim, playing title role, name of greatest sharpshooting act in world, finally falls for wiles of Miss Hughes, who, with her husband, Dan Duryea, is Flamarion's stooge on vaude stage. Very much on the up-and-up, when he's convinced femme is unhappy with her spouse, he makes honest effort to get Duryea to leave, offering him a considerable sum of money if he'll get out of his wife's life.

Through subtle urging of wife, Flamarion kills husband on stage, and gets away with it, coroner's verdict being that Duryea, because he was drunk, mistimed his actions and met death accidentally. Von Stroheim and Miss Hughes then are free to get married, but widow, who's a double-crossing tramp, has already fallen for another vaude actor and through a ruse leaves for Central America with him, promising to meet Flamarion three months later in Chicago.

Entire story is told in flashback form, picture opening with murder of a woman in Mexican theatre dressing room. This woman is Miss Hughes. Von Stroheim finally has caught up with her, and on verge of death through wounds inflicted by her before he strangles her, he relates his story.

Screenplay by Anne Wigton, Heinz Herald and Richard Weil has been done with eye to melodramatic and suspenseful values, and Anthony Mann in his direction has sustained these values throughout picture. Production values also are there, Wilder apparently making the most of every penny spent, and James Spencer Brown, Jr.'s photography is outstanding, particularly in his lensing of femme star.

Dan Duryea turns in bang-up job as drunken husband, and in brief role, so does Stephen Barclay as man widow runs away with. Other parts are well enacted, and all technical departments are of standard grade.

Stranger From Santa Fe

(Western)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Director, Lambert Hillyer. Production manager, Bobby Ray. Screenplay, Jess Bowers. Photography, Harry Neumann. Musical director, Frank Sanucci. Recorded by Glen Glenn. Assistant director, Eddie Davis.

CAST—Johnny Mack Brown, Raymond Hatton, Beatrice Gray, Jo Ann Curtis, Jimmie Martin, Jack Ingram, John Merton, Tom Quinn, Bud Osborne, Hal Price, Steve Clark, Dick Dickinson.

REVIEWED at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, April 12, 1945. Running time: 56 MINS.

"Stranger From Santa Fe" is average western material that will satisfy the Saturday matinee fans of outdoor action. Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton do their part toward pleasing their following among the kiddie trade with usual forthright heroics in roles of U. S. marshals bent on bringing to justice prairie baddies.

Brown and Hatton, incognito, are after a gang of rustlers who are stripping a valley ranch. Brown takes on the foreman's job at Beatrice Gray's ranch and soon finds out rustling is a plot by Jack Ingram to gain control of the place and marry the comely owner. Ingram's dirty work is aided by his sister, Jo Ann Curtis, and other western skullduggery experts. Story twist has Brown jailed as a highway robber and Hatton captured by the crooks. Brown finally crashes jail, collects the evidence needed to convict Ingram, and cowpoke Jimmie Martin marries Miss Gray.

Lambert Hillyer directed the Jess Bowers script in okay fashion. Photography by Harry Neumann and other production aides are standard for the Monogram western series.

BURNS AND ALLEN SLATED AS SUB FOR MORGAN

Burns and Allen will replace the Frank Morgan show on NBC next fall if negotiations now underway in New York are carried to successful conclusion. Deal hinges on two factors—the comedy team's release from Lever Bros. and General Foods insistence that Morgan do a rebroadcast. Recent decision by Lever to turn over the Swan soap time on CBS to Joan Davis next season brought an immediate demand from Burns and Allen for a release from their contract. To date no action has been taken by the client.

Z. Wayne Griffin, representing the Morgan show for Berg-Allenberg, said yesterday that notice had been served on General Foods that a repeat broadcast was out of the question for next season and that only at the sponsor's request was the show repeated live this season. At last reports the java firm was insistent on a repeat due to the early time of airing for the east from here which would leave only B & A's release by Lever as the last hurdle.

Morgan has been under Maxwell Coffee sponsorship for six years and closes out the current season May 24. Show from the east will fill for the 13-week summer sesh, with either Morgan or Burns and Allen pouring again Aug. 30.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Montgomery Clift, most sought after juvenile lead who has been turning down parts left and right, had finally accepted the principal role in Elsa Shelley's "Foxhole In The Parlor." . . . Ward Morehouse heads overseas next month to cover "London After Dark" for the New York Sun. . . . 20th Century-Fox or Abbott and Costello will close a deal any minute now for the screen rights to "Follow The Girls." . . . Jean Dalrymple, who will co-produce the revival of "Green Pastures" with Marc Connelly, has another play lined up for the fall. It is John Cecil Holm's newest comedy, "Brighten The Corner," and Jessie Royce Landis is already set to direct. . . . Lt. Jules Epstein, up from Washington where he's now stationed on Capt. Gene Markey's staff, covered all the spots to join the double takes of his Broadway pals when they gandered his navy braid—he looked positively nude without his alter ego, Phil!

ADD ARRIVALS: Kay Francis and Perc Westmore at the Savoy Plaza. . . . Mervyn LeRoy and Everett Riskin at the St. Regis. . . . Lt. Jackie Coogan at the Hotel Woodward. . . . Ralph Bellamy at 1 W. 72nd Street. . . . Leon Fromkess at the Sherry Netherland. . . . Ricardo Cortez is the houseguest of the Donald Stralems at 941 Park Avenue.

DISA AND DATA: Premature wedding announcement of Wendy Barrie and David Myers was most unfortunate. The engaged couple had intended to break the news to Myers' 81-year-old mother on the night she heard the flash over the radio. All is now forgiven and merger is planned for early next month. . . . Joan Castle, back from 6 months overseas with the "Nothing But The Truth" unit, is the houseguest of Dolly Haas, while Dolly's husband, Al Hirshfeld, is in Hollywood as the houseguest of the Albert Hacketts. . . . Prediction: If Lya Lys works on her voice during her out of town supper club engagements, she's headed for an auspicious New York debut in the Iridium Room of the St. Regis next fall. She has a sparkling personality plus plenty S. A. . . . Another MGM record breaker, "Valley Of Decision," will follow "Without Love" into the Music Hall. . . . Hope Hampton, Jules Brulatour, the I. Katzenbergs and the William Rhinelander Stewarts had better find some new form of diversion for the next few weeks—there are only three opening nights of any consequence to look forward to during April and May—"Carousel," "Memphis Bound" and "Hollywood Pinafore." . . . Ever since one of the local theatrical columns carried an item saying that Louis Jean Heydt was in search of a play for Broadway production, and included his Hotel Algonquin address right out loud, he has been deluged with an avalanche of scripts from every budding and hopeful author. Heydt, plowing through all of them, claims that most of the "buds" should be nipped before they're allowed near another typewriter. But he's determined to follow through, in the hopes of finding among the debris a potential Tennessee Williams. . . . Memo to her Hollywood and Broadway friends: Greatest anodyne to help restore Una Merkel back to health again is a job—but quick!

NIGHT AND DAY: Cherryl Crawford, Lina Abarbanel, Edith Meiser, Maria Manton, Louis Jean Heydt, Mercedes de Costa, Dorothy Stickney, Alma Clayburgh, Margaret Case Harriman and Dr. Ralph Benatsky among the enthusiastic audience applauding Greta Keller's "Evening Of Song" at Times Hall. . . . Joy Hodges, hostessing a bon voyage party before heading overseas with the "Anything Goes" USO unit. . . . Angela Krimsky, ripping off the calendar, waiting for the arrival of her Capt. John from France any day now. . . . Mervyn LeRoy, lunching (in between table hops!) with Kitty Spiegel and Eleanor Whitney at "21". . . . Irving Rapper, looking like one of the prospective cast for "Green Pastures," after his Atlantic City weekend sun bathing. . . . Thelma Schnee, Stratolining to San Francisco, to rejoin her husband, Lt. Paul Moss. . . . Capt. John Lee Mahin and Patsy Ruth Miller, swinging a mean conga at La Conga. . . . Irving Berlin, soloing it at Reuben's one night and Longchamps the next, to watch the civilians gorging to their hearts' content, while the boys in uniform, so many of whose buddies he had just left behind in the South Pacific, were barred admission by the M.P.'s stationed outside on duty.

SIX COLLARS ARE EXPELLED FOR FITE ON ASSESSMENT

Six studio white collarites who tried to enjoin Screen Office Employes Guild from assessing its members to raise funds to fight anti-labor legislation have been expelled by the union.

Harry Phillips, SOEG prexy, declared Margaret Youngworth Calihan, Margaret Selsor, Eric G. Warner, Florence E. Warner, Virginia Woodbury and Norma Jean Wright were expelled "by a democratic vote of the members present at the regular April membership meeting, after listening to a full report on the findings of the trial board and unlimited discussion on the penalties recommended. Expulsion was voted because these six members engaged in activities injurious to the welfare of the union."

A motion to suspend the penalty and place the six on probation for one year was defeated by a narrow margin. Had it carried, the SOEG executive board would have been given the right to expel them without further trial if they engaged in any anti-union activities.

Seven Appointed To Sag Directorate

Seven new members have been appointed to the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild to fill unexpired terms of directors who resigned because of pressure of other work or commitments which take them away from Hollywood. Among those named is Ralph Morgan, a former Guild president.

New members, in addition to Morgan, are Leon Ames, Marsha Hunt, Harpo Marx, Agnes Moorehead, Robert Shayne and Robert Young. Board members who resigned are Charles Boyer, Laraine Day, Philip Merivale, Lloyd Nolan, Charles Trowbridge, John Wayne and Morgan Wallace.

Complete SAG board of directors now is composed of Leon Ames, Edward Arnold, Anne Baxter, James Cagney, Joseph Cotten, John Garfield, Alan Hale, Porter Hall, Lena Horne, Marsha Hunt, Rex Ingram, Boris Karloff, Roscoe Karns, Harpo Marx, Robert Montgomery, Agnes Moorehead, Ralph Morgan, Dennis O'Keefe, Walter Pidgeon, Dick Powell, John Qualen, Anne Revere, Franchot Tone, Regis Toomey, Dorothy Tree, Robert Shayne, Richard Whorf, Jane Wyman and Robert Young.

Important issues now facing the board include new negotiations with the producers, the new NLRB decision, question of a Four A charter for extras, studio strike, etc.

Weingarten NYing

Lawrence Weingarten, Metro producer, will leave for New York for a two weeks' stay April 20.

$6,000,000 FILM PAY TILTS WIN LABOR BOARD OKAY

Wage tilts aggregating approximately $6,000,000 yearly have been approved by the War Labor Board for thousands of film workers, it was learned here last night. Most of the deals were approved by producers last April and are retroactive to Jan. 1, 1944. Business Representative Ellsworth of Studio Costumers Local 705, estimates that increase for his group alone will range between $700,000 and $1,000,000.

Wage clauses were disposed of by the board some time ago but cases were held up until final okay was forthcoming on new vacation provisions under which even daily employes, from laborers up, receive paid vacations. This is figured on the basis of one day off for each 20 days' work, with a maximum of two weeks' vacation.

Costumers receive the lion's share of the boost because of action of producers in agreeing to equalize pay of femme employes with that of men. Some women will receive retroactive checks as high as $1,500. Increases range from 10% to as high as 42%, with hourly rates being boosted from nine to 35 cents.

Seamstress minimum jumped from 70 to 90 cents per hour with pay of more skilled femme workers going from 94 cents to $1.28. Those in the higher brackets were raised from $1.04 to $1.43. In addition, a 10% premium will be paid workers after 10 a.m.

All 5% increases given other technical crafts have been allowed. Approved forms are now being prepared by the War Labor Board in San Francisco and will be mailed out the last of this week. Negotiations for costumers were handled by Business Representative Ellsworth at a meeting in New York last spring.

Agreements were inked by producers and unions shortly after the New York parleys, but scales could not be put into operation until WLB approval was secured. First cases to be approved were those of three analysts guilds, studio plasters and property men, these three having been selected as "guinea pigs" to be used as a guide in discussing other contracts. Increases will involve practically every technical craft in the studios.

STRIKERS TELL INDIE PRODS THEY MUST USE SPU XTRAS

Screen Players Union was drawn directly into current studio strike when indies having green light from Conference of Studio Unions were notified by Prexy Herbert Sorrell yesterday that paid-up SPU members must be called for extra work. This became known when Conference tops declared David O. Selznick and Edward J. Small had agreed to abide by award of War Labor Board Arbiter Thomas Tongue on set decorators.

Sorrell announced two producers had been advised that they would be furnished painters, machinists, carpenters, IBEW electricians, etc., provided they moved to one of the independent lots approved by the Conference. It was added, however, that preference on extra work must be given to SPU, which has been certified by the National Labor Relations Board. Mike Jeffers, SPU business representative, said similar notice had been given to I. B. Chadwick, head of the independent producers' groups.

At the same time L. M. Wickland, business representative of the plumbers, stated all work permits had been recalled by the union and men carrying two cards had been notified to withdraw their IATSE memberships. Carpenters Local 946, which is actively supporting the strike, also preferred charges against 12 members who have been going through the picket lines on a dual card of the IA.

Plans to treble picket lines will be discussed by rank and file Sunday, first at a mass meeting of carpenters set for 10 a.m. at the American Legion hall on Highland, and at 8 o'clock Sunday night at a general mass meeting of all studio unionists called for the American Legion Stadium in Hollywood. Joseph Cambiano, international representative of the carpenters, was in telephone contact yesterday with William Hutcheson, international prexy. Sorrell also talked with L. P. Lindeloff, international prexy of the painters, and it was indicated both might have something of real interest to tell the audiences Sunday.

D. T. Wayne, business representative of Machinists Local 1185, declared it was not disturbed over protests filed by toolers at Mitchell Camera Co. against paying a strike assessment. Wayne, who has been named international representative during the strike, said the membership had voted the assessment and that the men would pay it or not work, although they are not directly involved in the current controversy.

Following a membership meeting last night it was reported charges were filed against several members.

There were reports last night that if showdown does not come earlier in the strike, it may be taken up by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, with sessions being held either here or in San Francisco.

VATICAN'S CHOIR IS RECORDED; DISCS REACH U.S.

Vatican's Sistine Chapel choir has been recorded and platters of the group will be issued in an album, Boris Morros, American Recording Artists prexy, announced yesterday. Master recordings were brought to this country from Rome and were delivered to Archbishop Francis J. Spellman in New York city.

Archbishop Spellman handed the master waxes over to ARA for pressing and distribution. Included in the 18 sides are many Gregorian chants and 16th century polyphonics.

Costumers Tell Sorrell, Walsh To End Strike

Resolutions calling on Prexy Richard Walsh and Herbert Sorrell to end the studio controversy was unanimously adopted last night at a general membership meeting of IATSE Studio Costumers Local 705. After stating that costumers joined with the nation in mourning the death of President Roosevelt, resolution said in part:

"Franklin Roosevelt had faith in Labor. In the spirit of this magnificent leader, we call upon Labor to have faith in itself, in its fellow workers and to work together for the protection of all workers.

"We, therefore, call upon Richard F. Walsh, of the IATSE, and Herbert Sorrell of the Conference of Studio Unions, to end the fight between these two organizations at once and to agree to return to work and settle all disputes by arbitration or other peaceful means."

NOW YOU'LL KNOW WHAT YOU DRINK AND HOW MUCH

"Pig in a Poke" drink purchasing will come to an end Monday when Office of Price Administration price and liquor content regulations go up in every bar in the country. All saloon-keepers must have their prices, types of drinks and the amount of liquor in each glass conspicuously displayed so that customers can see what they are getting for their money.

OPA ruling, which gives April 16 as the deadline for posters, requires bars to give the lowest lawful ceiling price on liquor when the customer does not name a specific brand. They are also required to exact prices according to ceilings that were established in 1943.

In addition to various hard liquors, bistros will also have to give scorecard on three types of wine and on all brands of beer that is sold across the bar.

Sked Fifth 'Ryder'

Start of production on the fifth of Republic's "Red Ryder" series, "California Gold Rush," was scheduled yesterday for April 16. Picture will star Bill Elliott, with Bobby Blake as Little Beaver and Alice Fleming, leading woman. Sidney Picker is associate producer and R. G. Springsteen will direct.

16,000 THEATRES CLOSE DURING RITES FOR FDR

New York, April 15.—More than 16,000 film theatres paid tribute to President Roosevelt by shuttering at least part of Saturday. Close to 500 houses of the Warners chain remained shuttered all day Saturday. Other major circuits and independents shuttered until 6 p.m., with every single house in this area blacked out.

Si Fabian, following a War Activities Committee meeting Friday, wired all WAC state chairmen asking that theatres remain dark until 6. Immediately replies came through pledging closings, with Harry Warner issuing the all-day shutdown order for that chain.

Washington, April 15.—Washington will get the play-by-play record of the San Francisco conference in two special film theatres, according to plans being completed here.

One theatre, the United Nations theatre (the Alcazar), which Charles Skouras is renaming and lending for the occasion, will run a two-a-day schedule, opening at 5 p.m. Shows will last three hours, with daily newsreels as a highlight.

The other theatre, the Conference theatre, will be operated by Mary Losey, Washington liaison of the National Film Board of Canada, who is being loaned for the purpose to the conference secretariat. It will present documentary films of all the United Nations.

Truman's Tough Cue

New York, April 15.—President Truman will really find himself in the "hot seat" for the first time since taking office when tomorrow he addresses both houses of Congress. None will dispute that the late FDR, who will go down in history as America's first radio president, is a tough man to follow at the mike. It's a safe bet the nation, unfamiliar with Truman's speaking voice, will bend an intent ear to his radio delivery.

PRODS SAY STUDIOS ARE WORKING AT 95% CAPACITY

With 25 pictures in work on nine major lots, four new ones rolling today and four more scheduled to go before the cameras later this week, studio execs declared last night that close to 95% of the normal complement of employes in all classifications are at work. Producers declared that now working in these crafts are 1,114 replacements, slightly more than one-third of the number claimed to have gone on strike six weeks ago.

About the same time, Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, read a telegram to 1,200 unionists attending memorial services for President Roosevelt at the Legion Stadium, disclosing that L. P. Lindelof, international prexy of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America is 100% behind the strike. Lindelof said painters and scenic artists were being ordered off locations and are "be assured of our full cooperation at all times."

Producers' statement follows:

"After five weeks of the strike which offered a serious threat to production in the studios, it is now

It was presented first night the Canteen was open, and reports from Paris say that it was such a moving moment that practically everybody there, Americans, French, English, Russian and Jugo-Slavians, wound up with tears in their eyes.

EACH job has its own peculiar dignity attached and what goes with a vice-president can be taboo for a president. So the recent publicity photo showing Harry Truman, then vice-president, playing an upright piano at the National Press Club with Lauren Bacall perched provocatively atop the box, is probably out of circulation from now on. Pictures such as this, involving the president of the United States, are not permitted and any publication using the Truman-Bacall shot now would be risking a Secret Service crack-down.

Photography, Frank Redman. Songs conducted by Edward Ward. Music score, Hans J. Salter. Art direction, John B. Goodman and Abraham Grossman. Sound recording, Bernard B. Brown; technician, Jess Moulin. Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman and E. R. Robinson. Film editor, Ted J. Kent. Gowns, Vera West. Dance director, Louis Da Pron. CAST—Co-stars Donald O'Connor and Peggy Ryan. Features Frances Dee, Donald Cook, Eve Arden, Thomas Gomez, Irving Bacon, Andrew Tombes and Gavin Muir.

PREVIEWED at Universal studios, April 12, 1945. Running time: 89 MINS.

When Donald O'Connor traded his makeup kit for one of Uncle Sam's rifles a year ago, he left behind something by which he will be remembered. It is Universal's "Patrick the Great," a song-and-dance comedy-drama that will stand as a monument to those stage folk who were, figuratively speaking, born in theatrical trunks.

"Patrick the Great" is not the most costly picture Universal ever made, but it is one that will send the customers away singing its praises. It is exceptionally good box office.

O'Connor, with the aid of his established screen partner, Peggy Ryan, has turned in the finest performance of his career, while the Ryan lass has paced him step for step. It is her best contribution to date, as well.

A combination of writers, tunesmiths, excellent casting in the supporting roles, all the result of Producer Howard Benedict's careful planning, has brought in, in this one, a real achievement in the field of downright entertainment. Frank Ryan, who directed, is entitled to plaudits, not only for having drained the O'Connor-Ryan combo's vast store of talent to the limit, but also for the manner in which he has guided the entire feature.

"Patrick the Great" is one of those show biz stories that so often become over-sentimental, yet Ryan has eliminated the "ham" element and made it real. In addition, he has given it an ease of pacing that will impress the dyed-in-the-wool as well as the average movie patrons.

The Bertram Millhauser-Dorothy Bennett screenplay, based on the Jane Hall-Frederick Kohner-Ralph Block original, has been tailored to order for O'Connor and la Ryan. It is the tale of a kid thesp who refuses to take Broadway stardom in a role his father, a musical comedy idol, has long wanted to do. There is a love rivalry, too, between dad and boy that holds the ticketholder's interest through the whole 89 minutes.

While the offering opens in the juve rug-cutting groove, it swiftly becomes escapist fare for both youth and adult.

Donald Cook, as middle-aged Main Stem hero; Frances Dee, as the romantic friction; Eve Arden, as the secretary who seeks to keep her out of heart tangles; Thomas Gomez, as the 10%er; Gavin Muir, as the legit producer; Andrew Tombes, as Cook's trainer and confidante, and Irving Bacon, as Merney, all competent thesps, are at their best in "Patrick."

The songs, four by Inez James and Sidney Miller; one by Charles Previn, and another by Charles Tobias and David Kapp, rate high, as does Edward Ward's musical direction and Hans J. Salter's score.

Frank Redman's photography is worthy of note, as is Ted J. Kent's editing.

Film Reviews

The Vampire's Ghost

(Horror)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Executive producer, Armand Schaefer. Associate producer, Rudy Abel. Director, Lesley Selander. Screenplay, Leigh Brackett, John K. Butler. Original story, Leigh Brackett. Photography, Robert Pittack, Ellis Trackeray. Film editor, Tony Martinelli.

CAST—Features John Abbott, Peggy Stewart, Grant Withers, Charles Gordon, with Adele Mara, Emmett Vogan, Roy Barcroft, Martin Wilkins, Zack Williams, Frank Jaquet, Floyd Shadelford, George Carlton, Fred Howard.

REVIEWED at the Hawaii, Hollywood, April 13, 1945. Running time: 59 MINS.

"The Vampire's Ghost" purports to be a horror epic. It's a horror, all right—a horrible picture. The only audience reaction it will arouse is either walkouts or talking back. Both were noted at its opening. It starts with a bad script and progressively gets worse in direction and playing.

Plot concerns a 400-year-old vampire who returns to Africa to look for new victims. Voodoo drums, frantic natives, dumb whites and other standard appurtenances of chiller films do nothing to relieve the stark amateurishness of the results. Vampire knocks off a few victims and then spots Charles Gordon and Peggy Stewart as final courses on his shuddery menu. Miss Stewart also is marked to be his bride in the everlasting living-dead life to follow. How he is prevented from carrying out his aims isn't worth recounting.

Cast gives strictly little theatre performances, although all have done better, and direction doesn't pass muster on any count. It is all a waste of vital raw stock and a credit to no one.

The Phantom Speaks

(Horror)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Executive producer, Armand Schaefer. Associate producer, Donald H. Brown. Director, John English. Based on original story by John K. Butler. Photography, William Bradford. Film editor, Arthur Roberts. Assistant director, Johnny Grubbs.

CAST—Stars Richard Arlen, with Stanley Ridges, Lynne Roberts, Tom Powers, and Charlotte Wynters, Jonathan Hale, Pierre Watkin, Marian Martin, Garry Owen, Ralf Harolde, Dorreen McCann.

REVIEWED at the Hawaii, Hollywood, April 13, 1945. Running time: 68 MINS.

"The Phantom Speaks" is nicely developed psychological horror material. Aimed especially for theatres dealing in horror programs, picture is well thought out and will give an able account of itself in such bookings. Production by Donald H. Brown musters good values, and direction by John English carefully develops proper pace to the John K. Butler story.

Stanley Ridges, psychic-scientist, is working on theory that a dead person with a strong will can materialize himself after death. To prove theory he enlists aid of a murderer just before latter goes to the electric chair. Soon after the execution, the murderer's will takes over Ridges' will and forces him to kill the people responsible for sending killer to the chair. It's all excellently plotted and enacted to hold attention.

Richard Arlen is seen as a reporter, in love with the scientist's daughter, Lynne Roberts, and the instrument which finally exposes Ridges' unconscious actions. Ridges does a first-rate job, as do Arlen, Miss Roberts, Tom Powers, the killer; Charlotte Wynters, and others of the cast.

William Bradford's photography and other technical aides marshalled under Brown's production guidance are able contributions to the mood.

Johnson Off To NY

John LeRoy Johnson, chief flack for International Pictures, planed yesterday for New York to set up drive for Gary Cooper's first producer-star effort, "Along Came Jones." He returns here April 27.

As It Looks To FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The loss of one of the Elbe River bridgeheads brings us back to a realization that the Germans are not yet defeated. The Germans have maintained a strong garrison force in Berlin ever since the Soviet threat at the Oder, and this has been strengthened in fortified positions and trenches since then. It was to be expected, as long as any of the Prussian-trained German officers were in the command, that the Germans would have chosen to make a counter-attack, rather than wait in fixed positions on the defensive. It may be, however, that this counter-attack was planned by one of Himmler's men, copying standard Prussian tactics, and in that case it may in turn be vulnerable, and we may be able to capture or destroy some Germans outside Berlin, instead of in the harder way—in fixed positions in the city. We were ourselves vulnerable in crossing the Elbe on such a thin and extended front, but that also was natural because of the spotty weakness of the Germans between the Rhine and Elbe. Now that we have lost one bridgehead, we must widen and strengthen the remaining one. . . . The Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau story that some of our reconnaissance patrols have reached Berlin's western suburbs may be true. But the entry of patrols into an area does not necessarily mean the main body will be there immediately. The patrols are out to learn how the land lies. . . . The Soviet advance on Berlin from the east, so far reported only from German sources, also may be true, but does not necessarily mean the Soviet will take Berlin. Our plans may be for both armies to move on that city at one time—from several directions. Of course the Germans can interfere somewhat with that plan, but each drive can strengthen the other.

RADIO STATIONS ARE BACK ON NORMAL SKEDS TODAY

Normal operations were to be resumed this morning by the networks and unaffiliated stations after three and a half days in solemn observance of President Roosevelt's passing. During the period of the nation's mourning nearly all commercial shows were canceled by the chains and some independents. It marked the greatest schedule upheaval in broadcasting history and the first time in radio's 25 years that New York headquarters of the nets took over complete control of the lines for such an extended period.

Network officials declined to estimate the loss in revenue but that it would run into millions could not be questioned. All monetary loss in such a crisis is borne by the networks, with the sponsor refunded for the time and talent. Many newscasts aired on schedule with only sponsor identification and some regular programs which could conveniently revise their format in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion were heard at their accustomed time. Judgment of what constituted good taste was breached only negligibly by some of the record stations.

One of the most unusual departures from the set format of plugless programs was that contrived by Cal Smith, manager of KFAC. Commercial programs were allowed to continue, with, however, only the sponsor identification. Time sales for the three days, roughly $4,000, were donated to President Roosevelt's pet charity, the Warm Springs Foundation.

NEWS TO WAR FRONTS

Our fighting men on the far-flung fronts heard the news of the President's death within a minute and a half after the first flash. All short-wave beams were pressed into immediate operation and shows produced by Armed Forces Radio Service, in keeping with the occasion, were broadcast to the troops direct and picked up by Armed Expeditionary stations. Staff of AFRS in Frisco was augmented to handle the continual flow of news, commentary, tribute and solemn music and many of the radio men at the post here were rushed north. Recording of AFRS programs was canceled last week.

Don Lee's television station, W6XAO, will do a special tribute program tonight, with Eleanor Wilson McAdoo sketching the life and career of President Roosevelt while newsreel clips are screened.

By JACK HELLMAN

That fine hairline between good and bad taste was so skillfully managed by the networks during the nation's bereavement that there wasn't even a slight teeter across the border. Radio again proved to the world that it can sentimentalize as well as let out all stops to meet the mood of the moment. The instrument that made President Roosepelt one of the greatest figures in world history was humbled in grief at his untimely passing. Truly he was "The Voice" of free peoples and his dominant personality as projected by radio was etched deeply into the minds of the world's millions. The fact that radio absorbed a loss of revenue running into the millions was insignificant in the light of accomplishment. In all quarters there was nothing but praise for the way radio handled the job, thrust upon it in the matter of seconds, but monumental and epoch making in its sweep and dignity. Take a bow radio, for a difficult job well done.

One of the few women from Hollywood radio who attained an officer's rating is back in town on a special mission. She is 1st Lt. Dina Carlson of the Air Transport Command, who worked with Dick Mack on many shows and wrote originals for the old Chase & Sanborn program. In her two years and two months with the ATC she has written and produced radio shows in Labrador, Greenland, Newfoundland, Boffin Island, and at many camps throughout the U. S. While in the frozen wastes she handled many pickups for "The Army Hour." Modestly, Lt. Carlson takes few bows for what she has done. Rather, she suggests, "give the credit to the ground crews in the north Atlantic who get the planes through. They're doing a magnificent job." Further, she adds "keep writing those kids who hape the 'Greenland stare' from looking at mountains and glaciers. There's little else to see."

STATION BREAKS . . . Mannie Manheim has resigned as producer of the Andrews Sisters show following a dispute over policy with Cornell, Geyer & Newell agency. He took the reins at show's inception Dec. 31 last year and leaves in four weeks. . . . Chest Brouwer and Jane Glenn have ben added to Jean McFarland's publicity staff at N. W. Ayer. . . . Among the indies, KFWB did the best programming job following the President's death. So say the network boys and who knows better? . . . Don Searle has been made a v. p. of the Blue network to complement his title of general manager of the western division. . . . Not that it will upset their domestic felicity but just to make conversation around the home fires—Helen Mack's Crossley for "Date With Judy" is 12.7 and Tom McAvity's "Corliss Archer" posted 6.1. They're the only husband and wife producing team in Hollywood. If Philip Morris wants to renew Ginny Simms for next season it's gonna cost them a lot more than they're paying now. Contract gives her a clean break to negotiate with other clients. . . . Jeanette MacDonald repeats with Nelson Eddy April 22. Electric program changes to summer garb weeks hence for a lighter tap on the utilities exchequer. . . . Dorothy Mikulich now flacking for Noel Corbett. . . . Instead of being given an outright release by Lever Bros., understood that Burns and Allen contract will be reassigned so they can close their deal with General Foods for the Frank Morgan-Maxwell spot.

Switching off from Gabe Heatter, there's bad news tonight for commercial radio. Paul Porter, boss of the FCC, let go his first blast and more will follow, say those CBS'ites who know him well. The nets and stations have been guilty of too much dollar-grabbing at the expense of public interest, convenience and necessity, the august comish alleges, and unless sustaining time opens up on local stations there'll be a lot of call letters called in. Now that the greed thing has broken open at the seams we can expect an en masse movement by labor, churches, schools, colleges and civic organizations for free or sustaining time. And what will the local stations say to that, especially those coming up for renewal? None of the knowing ones will flunk out on that one. We're not too sure what inspired the FCC crackdown at this time, but the thought sticks that a network blundered badly the way it treated the Treasury Department in the last War Loan drive. When the need was so great for the sale of series E bonds, the kind that's bought by working men and women who are generally bedded down long before midnight, the chains put the all-star special on the air from 11:30 to 12:30 at night after all commercials had been cleared. Someone in Washington must have made a cuff-note of that short-sightedness by the chains and brought it to the attention of Porter, who happens to know the difference between a kilocycle and a fraternity pin.

HITCH HIKES . . . A familiar figure at Foote, Cone & Belding will be missing with the departure of Bess Harrison after nine years as business manager of Lord & Thomas and its successor, Foote, Cone & Belding. She'll forget about the agency biz after April 30 and take a needed rest, holding in abeyance offers from other commission houses. . . . Eddie Forman is chief writer for Abbott and Costello regardless of what has been printed elsewhere. . . . Fitch made a pitch for Durante-Moore but certain factors prevailed against copping the comics. Nonetheless, it shows that Fitch is fighting to hold that Sunday time. . . . Dean Moxley moves up from promotion to publicity director at KFI, succeeding Hal Carlock, who swings over to the Blue today. . . . Jim Andrews' relations with Lennen & Mitchell are said to be both compatible and pleasant, nipping that canard in the bud. . . . Milton Biow told intimates he doesn't like the Bevhills hotel because the birds bother him. Maybe he prefers the noises of subways and taxicabs. . . . Kate Smith may be cut to a half hour next season and probably move out of that dreadful spot

RADIO ONLY END OF SHOW BIZ CLOSE TO TRUMAN

Washington, April 15.—Radio is the only branch of show business that can claim a close hook-up with the White House as President Truman takes office.

The new president has had little contact with any phase of the entertainment industry except broadcasting. J. Leonard Reinsch, director-at-large of NAV, manager of the James Cox chain of radio stations, and director of radio for the Democratic National Committee, has been one of Truman's advisors and may continue to help in the White House. He assisted and advised Truman on the aired speeches in the last national campaign. And radio circles feel that this may assure broadcasting a powerful friend at court in Washington.

Truman's sole brush with pictures came when the Truman Committee aired the "Hollywood Colonel" matter a couple of years back. Hugh Fulton, who was general counsel for the committee in charge of the probe, will probably be a powerhouse in the Truman administration.

There is, however, no indication that the industry need fear an unfriendly attitude in the White House. Truman is convivial, likes people and entertainment. He undoubtedly will follow FDR in frequent use of the White House projection room.

The President's first real contact with the entertainment industry is expected to come in connection with the forthcoming 7th War Loan.

NITERIES RESUME; MOST BARS ARE SHUT SATURDAY

All top niteries opened for business "as usual" Saturday night, following the funeral services for President Roosevelt. However, practically all bars in this area were shuttered throughout the day and night.

Biltmore hotel was the only hostelry to close its dancing and drinking rooms, with the Bowl and the Rendezvous Room and the several bars locked out of respect to the President's memory. All other hotels kept open in the evening.

Juke boxes, working on telephone lines, agreed to go dead for the day and night, and most of the other nickel disc players were shut off.

Both El Capitan's "Blackouts of 1945" and Katherine Dunham's Tropical Revue at the Biltmore theatre called off their matinee performances, but went ahead, as did the other legit houses, with evening performances.

Hollywood Canteen, which has offered no dancing or entertainment to GI's since Thursday evening, will resume its policies this evening. Canteen remained open from Thursday night through Sunday night, but only served food to the service men and women. Organ and piano music was played for most of the evenings, with hourly announcements that shows and dancing would be resumed Monday night.

'We Live Again' Will Be Aired For Wounded

New York, April 15.—"We Live Again," radio series produced on behalf of hospitalized United States service men, will be a half-hour program on Blue network Wednesday nights at 9 p. m. EWT, beginning May 2. Voluntary financial support for the program has been enlisted from American industry by Army, Navy and American Red Cross. The show will originate from a different Army or Navy hospital each week. Casualties themselves, assisted by well-known theatrical stars, will bring their problems and their hopes directly to the American public in these programs. Henry Souvaine has been designated producer of the series.

Masquers Breaks Chain Of Shows After 106

Masquers Club cancelled its Saturday night entertainment for service men out of respect to the memory of President Roosevelt, breaking a chain of 106 weeks of such parties for the first time. The affair was to have been in honor of wounded Navy men from the Corona and Long Beach hospitals. John Charles Thomas, Jose Iturbi and Frances Elba, slated to entertain, will head the club's program next weekend.

THEATRES REOPEN AFTER LAST HONOR TO ROOSEVELT

Friday, surprised by dropping off less than the estimated percentage Saturday night. With the exception of the two Broadway Warners houses, which shuttered the entire day, the theatres opened at 6 p.m. for a six-hour grind.

Trade yesterday, which, on the matinee, caught the crowds unable to attend Saturday afternoon, generally was strong, being comparable to average Sunday this time of year. Roosevelt newsreels were regarded as likely box office factor since early last night.

Some houses Friday night offered a moment of silent prayer. Radio City Music Hall on all shows had the organist solo "Abide With Me," introduced with an announcement dedicated in respectful and sorrowful contemplation of our loss in the passing of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

All New York legit houses called off Saturday matinees in memory of the President. Ringling Bros. circut matinee also was called off.

Broadway niteries and nabe spots canceled matinees Saturday. Four of the top spots, Zanzibar, Latin Quarter, El Morocco and Leon and Eddie's, shuttered for the entire day. Other spots opened after 6 p.m., but business was spotty all around. Orchestras, going into a medley of the late President's favorite tunes, were received with hymnal reverence. Hotel band spots remained closed last night.

About half the nabe spots which opened at 6 p.m. gave a dinner show, then scrammed band and talent, but continued operation of cocktail lounges sans entertainment other than radio programs. Hundreds of cafes were sans entertainment. Liquor package stores closed for the entire day.

Stem vaude-film houses' tribute to the President's passing did not reflect the mourning period once the doors reopened after Saturday's memorial services. Comedy acts went on as usual, no cuts being made in any part of the shows.

SUNDAY BIZ BIG HERE

Los Angeles first-run film theatres yesterday were rapidly regaining a large portion of business lost during the closing Saturday out of respect to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Box office drop Thursday night, in some instances quite substantial, was followed by strong business Friday, with usual lines at ticket windows Friday night for those houses playing new attractions.

Grosses yesterday were up to usual Sunday levels as Los Angeles citizens again sought diversion from sorrow caused by the death of the President. Beach weather took many prospective patrons to the ocean during early part of the day, but late afternoon and evening business was hefty.

Los Angeles theatres joined other businesses in the national shutdown Saturday, with all theatres, independent and circuit, closing until 6 p.m., with the exception of Warners houses. Latter, on orders from Harry M. Warner, remained closed the entire day and night.

AUSSIES PAY TRIBUTE

Sydney, April 15.—News of the death of President Roosevelt was received with the deepest regret by Australia's motion picture industry. Hoyts cinema loop, under the direction of Ernest Turnbull, observed one minute's silence in 140 theatres. Circuit also rushed in a special film from its newsreel library, adding timely commentary. Audiences at all theatres stood in silent respect.

Aussie commercial and national radio stations aired special programs throughout the day and every branch of the amusement industry from coast to coast paid high tribute to a great leader.

COHEN FILES SECOND PROTEST AS ASCAP DEADLINE NEARS

In a statement issued over the weekend, Maurice Cohen, Palladium operator, once more objected to licensing fees demanded by ASCAP. Cohen first protested to Richard J. Powers, head of ASCAP'S Coast office, and carried his protest back to New York. Basis of his argument is that he has to pay more money for performing license than the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms in Chicago.

Both from New York and in a letter sent to him by Powers, Cohen was told that he was licensed according to the tables established by ASCAP and that he was not being discriminated against in any way. Cohen, however, feels that he should not pay the $3,000 annual fee, as opposed to the combined charge of $2,200 for both the Aragon and Trianon.

Terpalace chief's statement objected to Powers' letter, which he claims ignored the facts on which Cohen's complaint was based and which "failed to suggest any equitable plan of clarifying the matter."

Powers, when shown the statement, had no reply other than that Cohen was properly licensed and that he felt there was no cause to ask for a reduction in fees for the dancery. He added: "I told Mr. Cohen that if, and I stress the if, our Chicago office had made a mistake in licensing the ballroows there that it would be rectified. But there was no reason for changing his rates here for an error that may have occurred in our mid-west territory."

Cohen has refused to make payment to ASCAP since the beginning of February. Under terms of ASCAP's rulings, he is allowed 90 days' grace and then is given a 30-day notice of license revocation. If he does not pay up by June 1, the Society can take legal action for copyright infringement after that date for every musical selection cleffed by an ASCAP writer that is played in the dancery.

RADIO GIVES HEAVY COVERAGE OF FDR RITES

Washington, April 15. — Radio and newsreels did an outstanding job of coverage yesterday of President Roosevelt's funeral. The reels gave complete coverage all along the route, mikes were anchored along the route of the cortege and portable transmitters were placed outside the White House.

Theatres here were closed all day and at night yesterday. Washington was a city in mourning.

It noted as an interesting development that the news of the President's death had no effect on the Thursday night business at the downtown show business. Though thousands gathered outside the White House people generally stayed but a short time and then hurried to the theatres.

Distribution of the special memorial edition of the news reels was furthered by White House cooperation. Plane priorities necessary to speed the special reel without delay to theatres several hundred miles from New York were obtained by a presidential aide.

PRODS SAY STUDIOS OPERATING AT 95% OF CAPACITY

clear that definite progress has been made toward the re-establishment of normal operations.

25 FILMS IN WORK

"A survey shows that as of Friday, the final work day of the week, 25 pictures were in work at the nine major studios. Four new pictures are going before the cameras Monday, and four more will get under way later this week.

"Ten days ago the producers announced an arrangement with Richard Walsh, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, to have that organization furnish carpenters, painters, electricians, machinists and other workers necessary for studio operation. Since that time the rate of replacements has been greatly accelerated, and the producers now view the situation with confidence.

1,114 REPLACEMENTS WORK

"Just prior to the strike, average total employment among those groups which vacated their jobs was 3,338. Now working in those crafts are 1,114 replacements, slightly more than one-third of the number who went on strike. This means that close to 95% of the studios' normal complement of employes in all classifications are at work. New employes are being added daily.

"The producers stand solidly behind their declaration to protect jobs of loyal workers by uninterrupted operation of this war-essential industry."

MARINE VET SPEAKS

Lou Costa, Marine veteran who was dismissed as a laborer at Paramount for refusing to take over a painter's job, was the first speaker at the Stadium last night. He declared he didn't know much about unions, but that they offered the only security and decent wages for working people and that everybody should get behind the right union.

He was followed by Prexy Sorrell, who declared the strike is now 95% won, and then read the following telegram from International Prexy Lindelof:

"We notified our local unions, as well as United Scenic Artists 829, New York city, to render full support on all locations by refusing to replace scenic artists or painters who have been removed. Our organizers and international representatives have been instructed through this office of any location where California studios may be operating. Have letter from Fred Marshall, Scenic Artists 829, N. Y., that reads, 'We had one man on MGM job in Miami Beach, Florida, and he has been recalled to N. Y. We know nothing about any job at Ocala, but in case we should have any request for service we will not send anyone.' Be assured of our full cooperation at all times."

DEAL WITH SELZNICK

Sorrell also disclosed that deal is now pending with David O. Selznick for completing of picture company is shooting, with understanding company moves off RKO lot and gives preference to SPU members in hiring of extras. Details are scheduled to be worked out at conference today. It is understood Selznick will move shooting to California studios. Edward Small is slated to transfer filming to PRC lot. Both lots are strike-free.

RANK PLANS WORLD LEAD IN PICTURES FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Powell for the above. They are the combo who wrote, produced and directed one of England's best and most expensive wartime features, "Colonel Blimp." The Technicolor opus, released throughout the United Kingdom two years ago, already has returned a profit, and what it garners in its current United Artists release in this country will be "caviar," as Powell expresses it.

HUNT FEMME STAR

Pressburger and Powell are here seeking an American actress to portray the role of a Wac in their next production, "A Matter of Life and Death." Unless they can induce a $5,000-a-week "name" player to make the trip to London, they want an American thesp sans fame, but whom they can build up after she is signed. They also are after an able Hollywood male to do a featured but non-military role in the offering. They will be here for about 10 days.

Pressburger and Powell handle their triple-threat chores under the corporate name of "The Archers." They are independent producers, with their financing coming from General Cinema Finance, which in turn is owned by Rank.

RELIGION TO FILMS

They revealed yesterday that Rank, through his Odeon, Gaumont and affiliates, now garners about 66% of the British theatre grosses. A devout Methodist, he became interested in the cinema, they explained, when he backed a religious short. It was from that that his new celluloid empire came into being.

"No one ever signs a contract with Rank," Powell declared, "for his word is better than any legal document."

Pressburger talked of many things of interest to the American industry, including:

(1). The Archers do their filming at Teddington studios, where the executive offices and two sound stages were destroyed by Nazi bombs. Teddington, where Warners used to produce its quota pictures, was completely wiped out by enemy air assaults.

(2). Under war conditions, the English studios are operating at about 50% capacity, the government having taken over the other half for storage space and for the making of its propaganda films.

35 BRITISH FEATURES

(3). In the last year about 35 feature-length pictures have been made in England. They have the personnel to turn out about 70 to 75 annually, which is the reason Hollywood players, technicians and craftsmen are not encouraged to work there unless they are experts with no English counterparts. Any high-ranking specialist, however, is wanted.

(4). Powell and Pressberger, and other British indies, expect that by placing emphasis on the creative rather than the technical side they will be able to compete on an even basis with Hollywood in the world market within a short time. In fact, they contemplate in the near future a day when England and America alternately will take the lead.

BRITISH COSTS UP 50%

(5). Production costs in England have gone up in about the same proportion—perhaps 50%—in the last four or five years. Yet it still is cheaper to make a picture there. Stars draw approximately the same salaries they do in Hollywood, but technical workers get less than they do here.

(6). British studios' equipment is older than that in this country, so ordinarily it takes a little longer to make a feature there. "Colonel Blimp," however, was shot in 14 weeks, and was made for perhaps 75% less than it could have been turned out in this country.

(7). Neither Pressburger nor Powell anticipate any difficulty in pleasing the U. S. market. They point out that they have two pictures, both given four stars by the N. Y. critics, now running in New York. They are "Blimp," being released on a Rank-UA deal, and "Silver Fleet," which is being distributed by PRC. Scotland, they tell you, is the world's toughest market.

PLANS 20TH OUTLET

(8). Rank, whose Hollywood visit has been deferred until late May or early June because of the huddles he now is holding in London with Spyros Skouras, 20th-Fox prexy, is expected to make another American releasing deal—in fact, a more-or-less universal pact—with Skouras, which would give him a 20th-Fox outlet in this country and elsewhere. His contract with UA calls for the distribution in America of only seven pictures annually, while Rank wants at least 15 screened here as soon as possible.

PAYS 4,000,000 POUNDS

Pressburger and Allen disclosed that Sir Alexander Korda, now heading Metro's London Films, Ltd., has cleaned up during the last year through reissues of his productions to such an extent that he has been able to pay off his 4,000,000-pound indebtedness to Prudential. They denied, however, that there is any relationship between Metro's London Films and Rank.

Berlin Heads West On 'Skies' Tomorrow

New York, April 15.—After a press conference today at the War Department, reviewing the Pacific tour of "This Is the Army," Irving Berlin flies west Tuesday to stay all summer working on Paramount's "Blue Skies." Mrs. Berlin follows with the family as soon as a house is obtainable. First essential on Berlin's studio business will be a producer-director replacement for the late Mark Sandrich.

16MM PRODS ARE FORMING OWN HAYS OFFICE

Bona fide 16mm. producers are organizing a Hays office of their own to counteract the unfavorable publicity handed the narrow-gauge folk in the recent Los Angeles police revelations regarding "smut" output of things photographic. Bill Evans, of Quality Pictures, is leading the movement.

Supporting him in the effort are Phono Films, Church In Film, Stenswold Productions and Scientific Films.

The new setup will be incorporated as "The 16mm. Producers Association of America."

Carpenters Vote For Picketing Or Fines

More than 1200 Studio Carpenters attending general mass meeting of Local 946 yesterday voted to require each member to picket major lots at least three days each week. Those who fail to show when given a picket assignment will be required to pay $1.71 for each day missed.

James Skelton, 946 business representative, declared move was in line with general policy of tightening up and putting out a more militant picket line. Skelton said that not one Carpenter has deserted walkout and that William Hutcheson, International President of the Carpenters, is being kept fully advised of developments here, particularly action of the IATSE in announcing a charter for Carpenters.

CONNOLLY HERE ON UN REELS

Col. Jack Connolly of Office of Inter-American Affairs, newsreel division, stopped over yesterday en route from Washington to San Francisco, where he will supervise newsreel coverage at the United Nations conference starting next week.

Connolly, while here, made arrangements for Pathe Laboratory to develop all film and make lavender prints of stuff shot at the conference to be shippd to Latin-American countries. Film will be flown here from San Francisco under priority express, developed and sent on to Latin-America by air with the same priority.

Francis Alstock, head of OIAA, will be assistant to M. J. McDermott, chief press relations officer for the State Department in San Francisco, coming on from Washington to the Bay city with McDermott on Thursday.

EARLY DUCKS RETURN TO PIX

Stephen Early, press secretary to President F. D. Roosevelt, who several months ago announced his retirement shortly from the post for business post, will not tie in with the motion picture business, whence he came.

According to an authoritative source, Early will align himself with Victor Emmanuel & Co. as public relations contact in Washington. The Emmanuel outfit has varied important interests around the world, including Republic Steel, Pan-American and American Air Lines. The concern underwrote the Monogram Films stock issue.

There had been considerable talk that Early might join Metro, or possibly represent film interests via the Hays office in Washington. Prior to taking over his post with President Roosevelt, Early had been with Paramount Newsreel.

FILM STOCKS UP IN BULL RUSH

New York, April 16. — Motion picture stocks showed gains today as the market hit a new high for seven years. The action today marked the second day of gains since the death of Roosevelt. Stocks showed substantial gains Friday and today the industrials followed the rails into new high ground for the bull movement.

Today's session followed shutdown of Saturday for Roosevelt funeral and opened with heavy buying orders. Loew's gained a point, Paramount and 20th-Fox five-eighths each, and Warners a half. RKO was up fractionally.

CLOSE on the echoes of radio comment criticising Hollywood producers for reported negotiations with Maurice Chevalier came a cabled account yesterday of the French star's show at the Paris Canteen last week. It was his first appearance since rumors that he had been accused as a collaborationist had circulated, according to the wire received here by Sol Lesser. Chevalier was very nervous when he made his entrance, but got a big hand from the G. I. audience which kept him on stage for more than an hour. Reaction here was that, inasmuch as Chevalier has been cleared by both the French and American governments, if he's good enough for the G. I.'s he's good enough for Hollywood.

Old Bison, Pathe Studio Destroyed By Fire

The old studio building at 1763 Glendale boulevard that once housed the Bison and Pathe film companies of the silent picture days was destroyed yesterday by fire. Thousands of spectators watched the flames consume the studio building which was erected in 1910. The structure was being used as a warehouse by A. W. Calkins to store motion picture and stage scenery. Three firemen—Capt. Thomas J. Mize, Joe R. Howell and Lloyd B. Johnson—suffered minor injuries in the blaze.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

This time it looks as if the Soviet offensive on Berlin has actually got under way. It should be devastating in its effect because the Russians have had time to amass overpowering strength along the Oder in the Kuestrin area. They're in a better position than we are on the west, where we have far extended lines of communication and supply, and naturally therefore less concentrated power. . . . The destruction of more than nine hundred German planes in one day, most of them on the ground, is probably due not only to a German lack of fuel, but to a weakness of the jet plane. It cannot remain aloft long without having to come down to re-fuel. We seem to have caught many the other day by sending out bombers first that drew up the jets, and then we followed up with fighters that caught them grounded. . . . General Eisenhower's statement that V-E day will not be proclaimed until all German pockets of resistance have been cleaned out is eminently wise. It certainly would not do to announce V-E day, just because the Allies and Russians formed a junction, or for some similar reason, and then have thousands of young Americans still forced to die in battle over there.

TRADESHOWN at Alexandria theatre, Glendale, April 13, 1945. Running time: 81 MINS.

RKO's "Those Endearing Young Charms" is a neat package of screen fare that will stand alone in the secondaries and make its way as a dualer in the more important spots. It contains real story values, marquee names and highly efficient manufacture.

The picture takes its title from the song of the same name, which motivates the plot, in that a disappointed-in-love mother objects to her daughter marrying an about-to-leave AAF officer.

Executive Producer Sid Rogell was fortunate in being able to round up Bert Granet as producer, Paramount's Lewis Allen as director, Jerome Chodorov to do the script for Edward Chodorov's play, and Robert Young and Laraine Day as his stars. The combination not only has brought in a successful offering, but it has lifted to new heights RKO's Bill Williams, a youthful contractee on the Gower street lot, who makes the most of his featured role in this one.

One must go farther than a stellar team, plus a so-called newcomer, in mentioning cast. There's Ann Harding, Marc Cramer, Anne Jeffreys, Glenn Vernon, Norma Varden, Lawrence Tierney and Vera Marshe, each of whom contributes superbly in support of the originally-named thesping trio.

The vehicle will do business because of its interchange of laughs and tears. It drained the tears of this reviewer. While it is a bit slow in establishing its premise, once it moves it proceeds rapidly.

Ted Tetzlaff's camera work, Vernon L. Walker's special effects, the musical score, the art direction, the set decorations and the sound all add up to what it takes to make a successful whole.

"Those Endearing Young Charms" is one of those screen things that will get you in both mirth and wet eyes.

Give Sid Rogell credit for an entire chore well done.

CAST—Stars Wally Brown, Alan Carney, Bela Lugosi. Supporting players: Anne Jeffreys, Sheldon Leonard, Frank Jenks, Russell Hopton, Joseph Vitale, Ian Wolfe, Louis Jean Heydt, Darby Jones.

TRADESHOWN at Los Angeles, April 16, 1945. Running time: 68 MINS.

"Zombies On Broadway" is a screwball comedy that kids Hollywood's regular crop of horror epics. As such it should prove an okay dualer. Laugh team of Wally Brown and Alan Carney makes the most of the material thrown its way under Gordon Douglas' direction, and Ben Stoloff's production ably takes care of budget values.

Brown and Carney are seen as a couple of tired press agents in the Lawrence Kimble script. Boys are flacking the opening of a New York night club and advertise a real zombie for the opening night. Bankroller of the club orders them to actually produce one, or else. Pair goes to a West Indies island to corral one of the walking dead. After sundry adventures, in which they become subjects of experiments by Bela Lugosi, a scientist who's trying to produce with science what the natives do with voodoo, they return with Carney in a zombistic state, bringing back a pet monkey. Effects of Lugosi's treatment wear off Carney but the monkey saves the day. He has filched a hypodermic of the zombie solution and injects it into the club owner, making everything okay again as the audience gets a real zombie for the show.

It is broadly directed and played and farcing breaks out a number of hearty chuckles to help put it over. Supporting the three starring players are Anne Jeffreys, a singer stranded on the West Indies island; Sheldon Leonard, night club owner; Frank Jenks, Russell Hopton, Joseph Vitale, Ian Wolfe, Louis Jean Heydt and Darby Jones. All work well.

Photography by Jack MacKenzie and other technical contributions are workmanlike.

Flame of Barbary Coast

(Drama with Music)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Directed and produced by Joseph Kane. Original screenplay, Borden Chase. Photography, Robert De Grasse. Film editor, Richard Van Enger. Sound recording, Earl Crain, Sr. Art director, Gano Chittenden. Set decorations, Otto Siegel. Musical director, Morton Scott. Costumes, Adele Palmer. Dance director, Larry Ceballos.

CAST—Co-stars John Wayne and Ann Dvorak. Features Joseph Schildkraut, William Frawley, Virginia Grey, Russell Hicks, Jack Norton, Manart Kippen, Eve Lynn, Marc Lawrence, Butterfly McQueen, Rex Lease, Hank Bell and Al Murphy.

PREVIEWED at RCA projection room, Hollywood, April 16, 1945. Running time: 90 MINS.

Republic has "hoked" two pieces of Americana into one of the most entertaining features it has turned out in years. The combo is the Barbary Coast plus the Frisco Quake.

The picture is titled "Flame of Barbary Coast," which co-stars John Wayne and Ann Dvorak, with Joseph Schildkraut heading the support.

In picture-making, the Barbary Coast and the "fire" are naturals for this country, and the Herbert Yates organization has moved in on both of them. It is an offering that contains every ingredient that could be wrapped up in an entertainment package. It is fast-moving.

On this one, one has to credit Joseph Kane as the associate producer-director. Yet one, too, has to credit Ann Dvorak with a "comeback" portrayal, attaining heights she never has before reached. It is her first performance after deserting the American studios five years ago to drive an ambulance in bombtorn England.

It is the best performance of her career to date. She does a grand job.

The whole thing is based on the rambunctious era in Frisco, but it has been done in a way that takes your mind off an old screen story. The "shock" sequences are masterpieces.

John Wayne, Dvorak and Schildkraut turn in their finest screen efforts. Outstanding as are Wayne and Schildkraut, Dvorak still tops them. And Joe Kane's direction leads 'em all.

There are many fine performances in "Flame of Barbary Coast," including those of William Frawley, Virginia Grey, Russell Hicks, Jack Norton, Paul Fix, Mannart Kippen, Eve Lynne, Marc Lawrence, Butterfly McQueen, Rex Lease, Hank Bell and Al Murphy. Yet hard as he works, John Wayne, doing one of the best jobs of his picture days, still loses out to Dvorak. She is back in Hollywood and she's still driving an ambulance through those Nazi air raids on London.

To Dvorak one should, perhaps, doff a hat. Wayne, grandiose as he tries to be in the vehicle, allows the femme lead to walk away with it. It isn't necessary, because Wayne does one of his most excellent pieces of work.

Chase, the author; De Grasse, the photog; Van Enger, the film editor; Scott, the musical director, who apparently modernized some Barbary Coast songs in a way that made them sound like the Andrews Sisters of 1906; Ceballos' dance direction and Miss Palmer's costuming, all add up to a total that spells showmanship.

Real credit, however, goes to a fellow named Kane, who has done a very excellent job.

Crime Doctor's Courage

(Mystery)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Rudolph C. Flothow. Director, George Sherman. Story and screenplay, Eric Taylor. Based on the radio program, "Crime Doctor," by Max Marcin. Photography, L. W. O'Connell. Film editor, Dwight Caldwell. Art direction, John Datu. Set decorations, Sidney Clifford. Choreography, Tito Valdez. Assistant director, Leonard J. Shapiro. Sound engineer, Hugh McDowell.

CAST—Stars Warner Baxter, with Hillary Brooke, Jerome Cowan, Robert Scott, Lloyd Corrigan, Emory Parnell, Stephen Crane, Charles Arnt, Anthony Caruso, Lupita Tovar, Dennis Moore, Jack Carrington, King Kong Kashay.

REVIEWED at the Pantages, Hollywood, April 16, 1945. Running time: 69 MINS.

"Crime Doctor's Courage" is a neat whodunit film package for dual bookings. Its mystery factors have interest as developed and the solution is carefully concealed. Production, handled by Rudolph C. Flothow, achieves good values for budget and George Sherman's direction capably furthers the whodunit flavor of the Eric Taylor story and script.

Warner Baxter, in the title role, doesn't have much chance to enjoy a southern California vacation when he's dragged in on a murder case in his capacity of psychiatrist and amateur clime sleuth. A young man, whose first two brides have met accidental deaths, is found dead himself, apparently a suicide, after his third marriage. Baxter decides it's murder and starts toward a solution. A few herrings dragged across the story path to furnish ample suspects include a bride who married for money, her eccentric father, a dance team that leads the public to believe it's composed of 300-year-old vampires, a mystery mansion in the Malibu hills and sundry other characters. Baxter wades through the surfeit of suspects and reaches a solution just in time to prevent extra killings.

Cast is uniformly excellent under Sherman's direction. Doing well in support of Baxter's first-rate work are Hillary Brooke, the bride; Jerome Cowan, mystery writer; Robert Scott, Lloyd Corrigan, Emory Parnell, Stephen Crane, Charles Arnt, Anthony Caruso, Lupita Tovar and others.

Photography by L. W. O'Connell, sets, art direction and other factors give substantial aid in setting the mood for the crime unraveling.

By RADIE HARRIS

PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT: The Playwrights' coup in getting Ingrid Bergman back to Broadway next season in Maxwell Anderson's "The Girl From Lorraine" (first hinted at in this column). . . . The rumor that Mary Pickford's skedded production of "One Touch of Venus" may be called off. The nice gesture of the Episcopal Actors' Guild in continuing to send the widow of Percy Moore his weekly check.

EXCLUSIVELY YOURS: It won't surprise anyone to know that Eddie Goulding is now rewriting his play again, because he suddenly acquired Una O'Connor for the cast, and now he has to invent a cockney part for her! . . . Alma Mansfield, a tele"vision" is being o.o'd by Warner Bros. . . . Diana Barrymore and Bramwell Fletcher will co-star in "Her Cardboard Lover" for Theron Bamberger at Bridgeport, and "Berkley Square" for Gus Schirmer, Jr., at Stamford. . . . Harry Oshrin has taken an option on the John Colton play, "Trumpet," written several years ago, a story of two brothers, one a communist leader and the other a great spiritualist leader. . . . Ben Washer's brother, Jimmy, was among the 5,000 returned prisoners of war, who kissed American soil again when he arrived back on the Maraposa the other day. . . . Larry Tibbett, who sings at the Philharmonic Auditorium (20) checks in at the Bel Air Hotel (17) for a five days visit, accompanied by his charming wife, Jane. P.S. He will NOT croon "Accentuate the Positive!"

COMEDY OF ERROR: A radio producer and a writer of a current comedy program were both aware that the spot written for the visiting guest star could be summed up in one word, "bad." But, when they went to present it to her they decided to bluff it through by reading it aloud, hoping that their hilarious laughter at every UNFUNNY gag would be contagious.

The Hollywood glamour girl, with a slightly puzzled "Maybe I'm wrong" look, joined in the laughter. And they would have gotten away with it—except for one fatal error. The keyed up writer forgot to stop being convulsed during the commercial!

SCOOPING AROUND: Vinton Freedley will become a grandpop for the second time, when the Vinton Freedley, Jrs., add another cradle to their nursery in the Fall. . . . Wonder why Eleanor Parker was so hush-hush about her trip East? She didn't contact Warner Bros. and checked out of the Hotel Pierre without leaving a forwarding address. . . . Rusty Lane and Robert Klein have joined forces to produce Howard Teichman's new play, "Postscript," another plot revolving around the readjustment of a nerve racked war casualty, and the inability of his wife's family to understand him. . . . Jimmy and Bianca Stroock arrive at the Beverly Hills for a months stay (21) while Jimmy arranges for his annual costuming of the "Ice Follies." . . . Congratulations to Joan Marlowe and Betty Blake, two youngsters who took over Zolotow's Weekly, rechristened it Theatre Information Bulletin, and are celebrating their first anniversary this week. . . . (Continued from page 1) consultant to the Secretary of War on motion pictures overseas, is leaving for Europe to survey the Army's needs. He will assist in finding the fastest and largest possible changeover from 16mm. to 35mm. films.

Change is being effected gradually, as the Army opens theatres in towns behind the lines in Europe. Standard 35mm. prints of current pictures will be used. Army is negotiating with various distributors for product on the basis of a fee to be determined according to attendance, although no admission charge will be made to the troops. Shows will be restricted to uniformed personnel.

It was stated move is preliminary to complete conversion from 16mm. gift films to 35mm. Army theatre screenings which will take place as soon as conditions in Europe permit. Group of 16 former industry men now in service have reported for duty with the Motion Picture Branch of the Special and Information Services in the European Theatre of Operations.

This agency will handle distribution of 35mm. entertainment for the Army overseas, similar to operation by the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service of over 1,100 theatres in the U. S. and Caribbean bases.

MARCH OF DIMES TO BE PIC MEMORIAL TO ROOSEVELT

Washington, April 16.—The motion picture industry's continuing memorial to President Roosevelt will be continuation of the annual March of Dimes drive, which was built around FDR's birthday.

Spokesmen for the picture biz, it is reported, will approach President Truman in the near future to urge that he take official action in continuing the campaign through future years. There is a possibility that President Roosevelt's birthday may become a national holiday, in which case the "dimes" parade would be even more likely.

Even last fall, during the national election campaign, opinions were being expressed that the March of Dimes campaign should become permanent even if Dewey should be elected. The "March" collection now is generally recognized throughout the country as in the same category as the Xmas Seal sales and the Red Cross fund campaigns.

Producers Pledge Aid For FDR Memorial

Producers at a meeting with Mayor Fletcher Bowron yesterday pledged full cooperation of the industry in staging a combined memorial to the work of President Roosevelt and a "dedication to the task that lies ahead to achieve world security." Affair will be held in the Hollywood Bowl probably on April 23, being occasioned by the San Francisco conference, which opens two days later.

Mayor Bowron asked, and was assured the services of stars, directors and writers. In the mayor's delegation were Williard Keith, Jean Hersholt and Edmund Cook.

Producers also listened to a confidential report pertaining to pictures by a War Department representative and spent some time discussing the studio strike situation. Execs were said to have expressed satisfaction with manner in which production has been kept rolling.

BILLION DOLLAR "E" BOND GOAL FOR WESTERN STATES

one-fourth of the total amount of "E" Bonds the United States Treasury hopes to sell in this campaign.

The Skouras speech was highlighted by a tribute to Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Skouras praised Sam Pinanski, national chairman, and pledged him the support of the entire western region, including Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

These states contain approximately 4,500 motion picture theatres. Of this number 2,243 already are pledged to hold special Bond performances and to act as issuing agents.

Speakers at the session included, besides Skouras: Rick Ricketson, Colorado exhibitor chairman; Ted R. Gamble, chairman of the Treasury War Finance Division; David Bershon, five-times Bond chairman for southern California; William Spere, present southern California co-chairman.

200 KICKOFF IN CHI

Chicago, April 16. — Midwest Seventh War Loan leaders opened the "Showmen's Seventh" luncheon session here today with a minute of silent prayer and tribute for the late President.

The approximately 200 attending had previously assembled in the Blackstone lobby to hear President Truman's speech broadcast.

Area participating in the meeting is the largest of the geographic zones of the national loan campaign set-up, stretching from Ohio on the east to North Dakota and south to Texas.

TREASURY RELIES ON PIX

T. R. Gamble, of the War Finance Division, stressed the need for all components of the industry to exert the utmost effort because the four billion dollar "E" Bond quota is a tough one. The Treasury, he added, looks to the motion picture industry in great measure to help achieve the goal.

The meeting was opened by National Chairman Pinanski, who asked exhibitors, distributors and publicity men to make "this drive the overwhelming success the government expects it to be."

Tom J. Connors, national distributor chairman, announced that the "Showmen's Seventh" will seek a 25% increase in the number of Bond premieres, children's premieres and free movie day pledges over the Sixth War Loan totals.

Objectives and methods of drive publicity were discussed by John Hertz, Jr., national director of publicity. Hertz elaborated on the use of the industry drive slogan, "Buy Bonds At Your Favorite Motion Picture Theatre — Always Open For Bond Sales, Including Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays."

Garrison started as enlisted man in charge of the psychiatric ward at Camp Pickett Base hospital, received a medical discharge after six months, joined the OWI and was working as an OWI announcer in London when British producers went for his voice and appearance. He played in nine films in London and in the title role of the hit play, "A Soldier For Christmas."

N.Y. HOLLYWOOD NOW!

NO U.S. ACTION SEEN ON STRIKE BEFORE NLRB HEARING

Washington, April 16.—No government action of any sort will be taken in connection with the studio strike until April 26 when the National Labor Relations Board holds its hearing on the jurisdictional scrap, in the opinion of Maurice Benjamin, here as observer for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Couple of weeks back Hollywood felt that the Army or some other government agency might step into the situation and that Uncle Sam would seize the studios. This feeling apparently is gone. Strike is going through routine channels here, and there is certainly no indication that President Truman, learning the ropes of his job, would have time to take over the studios.

HVC Skeds Stars For Hospital Benefit

Appearance of Bing Crosby, Helen Forrest, Jack Carson and the Andrew Sisters at a benefit for the Long Beach Ferrying Command April 20 has been approved by the Hollywood Victory Committee. Show is to be given in the Long Beach Civic Auditorium in an effort to raise $15,000 to be used for recreational and hospital equipment. Danny Kaye, Darlene Garner, The Todds, Fuzzy Knight, Marion Kerrigan and the Six Cover Girls have been scheduled for a USO Camp Shows performance at Santa Monica AAF Redistribution Center tonight. Olivia de Havilland, Edward G. Robinson, Rex Ingram, Charles Bickford and Ray Collins have been set for a dramatic program based on international security over the Blue at 6 p. m. today.

Proposed agreement would call for production of "Duel In the Sun" to be resumed on an indie lot and for preference to be given Screen Players Union members in the employment of extras. It was pointed out latter deal would not result in a clash with Screen Actors Guild since SPU had been certified by the National Labor Relations Board as bargaining representative for extras.

Walsh in his appeal to all strikers to get back on the job stated that charters have been issued by the IATSE for painters and carpenters and that one shortly will be issued for Machinists. His announcement declared no initiation fee would be charged and that the first quarterly dues would become payable on May 1. He insisted strike leaders had failed to carry out their promises and said this was only opportunity under which the men would be able to get their jobs back in the studios.

It is understood that strikers who received the appeal letters were instructed to mail them to their international presidents. Walsh, in a bulletin issued yesterday through his international representative, Roy Brewer, pretty much defied the other international heads to act, stating the only group which could take any action was the American Federation of Labor convention. This was denied by Sorrell and other strike leaders, who pointed out that the AF of L executive council, which is scheduled to meet the first of next month, forced the IATSE to cancel a charter it had issued for actors after the Four A's protested such action invaded its jurisdiction.

A flareup at Universal yesterday marked the only activity along the picket lines, although the number of pickets was more than trebled at some studios. Rocks were thrown through a couple of windshields and several fist fights occurred as pickets attempted to persuade men not to cross the lines.

Producers met for some time to discuss strike, but other than expressing satisfaction with production, stated there had been no change in policy. WLB reps were active around producer headquarters, but insisted no new action was planned at this time.

728 WILL ADMIT IBEW

Studio Set Electricians Local 728 was reported last night to have voted to admit to membership any members of IBEW of Local 40 who desire to return to work in the studios. Recommendation to accept IBEW card men was made by Local 728 Executive Board. Richard Walsh, International prexy of the IATSE, appeared before the meeting and answered questions relative to the current strike and union jurisdictional fight.

IBEW Local 40 men have been refusing to cross the set decorator's picket lines since walkout was ordered six weeks ago. Membership then took up the nomination of officers with indications slate would not be completed until long after midnight.

Carpenters District Council yesterday sent letters to 30,000 members in the LA area telling them studios were struck and that instructions had been issued by International Prexy William Hutcheson that none of them was to pass the picket lines. It was stated similar action will be taken this week by the State Council of Carpenters.

POLICE VISIT BISTRO NOISY DURING FDR MOURNING

Chicago, April 16.—As a cue to the general feeling of the public toward keeping the day one of mourning over the passing of President Roosevelt, resentment was evidenced over a loudspeaker spilling jazz Saturday into Randolph street. Preview Lounge was the offender.

Phone calls by passersby and bystanders poured into the newsrooms of dailies, protesting, with several calling central police station.

Police squad went to the place in the middle of the afternoon, but made no arrest when the loudspeaker was found cut off. Bob Lewin, manager, told police that Owner Al Martin had ordered him to keep the spot open. All other Loop bistros remained closed until 5 p.m.

UNIVERSAL

MONTEZ BALKING ON WESTERN ROLE WITH CAMERON

Maria Montez and Universal yesterday were feuding, because she has to play opposite Rod Cameron in Universal's super-western, "Frontier Gal." It seems that Montez doesn't like either the story or Cameron, who shared honors with Yvonne de Carlo in Walter Wanger's "Salome, Where She Danced."

Cameron in the Wanger feature drew himself up to new screen loftiness.

Universal announced that unless Montez accepted the role she would be put on suspension.

Montez last week returned from New York, accompanied by her husband, Jean Pierre Aumont, French army lieutenant, who hiked out on his Metro contract to join De Gaulle's forces two years ago.

Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano tailored to order "Frontier Gal" for Montez in the matter of writing. They also were slated to produce, with the cameras set to roll Thursday.

There's the possibility that de Carlo will be substituted.

OBITUARY

CHARLES EVAN EVANS

Charles Evan Evans, dean of American comedians, died yesterday at the Uplifters Club Home in Santa Monica. He was 88 years of age and had been on the stage 75 years.

Not only an actor but a manager, he brought Anna Held to the United States for the first time in 1896 and produced the first Bernard Shaw play in this country, "Arms and the Man," in which Richard Mansfield appeared.

He played in 3,600 showings of Charles H. Hoyt's farce, "A Parlor Match," without missing a performance. This show opened in 1884 at Asbury Park, N. J., and ran for 10 consecutive years—the longest run in theatrical history.

Evans and his partner, Bill (Old Hoss) Hoey, introduced in this show the songs "The Man Who Broke the Bank At Monte Carlo," "Bicycle Built For Two" and "Won't You Come and Play With Me?"

He was born in Rochester, N. Y., and went on the stage at the age of 13 in the Frank Mayo melodrama, "Streets of New York."

He was at one time manager of the Herald Square theatre in New York, appeared with the Henry Duffy players here and in motion pictures in character parts in various productions starring George Arliss.

Surviving is his widow, the former Helena Phillips, with whom he toured the Orpheum circuit. Funeral services will be held at Pierce Bros. Beverly Hills mortuary at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

creases in its X-ray quotas. Huddles on the matter will be going on this week between the War Production Board and Army officials, with the final determination as to what the War Department will get still some time in the future.

The fact is that the operation of producing X-ray stock is considerably different from manufacturing 35mm. footage. To swell the X-ray output for the Army the raw stock makers will turn to several other sources before they consider 35mm. reductions.

For instance, some of the X-ray film for civilian use probably will be shifted to military needs. Then production of portrait, commercial and lithographic film would be reduced, because the operations are very much the same. This means that the same type of machines and skilled labor producing 35mm. operates different machines and would require the training of men before they could be shifted to X-ray.

Hence the manufacturers would turn to this source only as a last resort.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The Honorable Harry S. Truman,
President of the United States.

The head of our family has earned his right to rest in the eternal sleep reserved for those who have lived and died by the Golden Rule.

It will be lonesome without him. And for many, especially in crushed countries throughout the world where he was the living symbol of freedom and a better day, there may be, for awhile, even fear—without him.

In his crusade to bring happiness—the Four Freedoms—to peoples everywhere, Mr. Roosevelt did not walk alone. Beside him was The First Lady of our land—Mrs. Roosevelt.

It was she who knew his plans and dreams, his innermost secrets, his greatest hopes. It was she who served, more so than any other human being, as his trusted "eyes" to view things and conditions that time and duty did not permit him to examine at first hand.

When all the rest of the world slept its troubled sleep it was Mrs. Roosevelt who sat beside the bed of the President; discussed his courageous pattern for tomorrow. It was she who walked more closely with him than any other person during the twelve years which began with darkness and is now emerging into victorious light.

Overnight this great woman of our time has become, to peoples everywhere, the living survivor of Franklin D. Roosevelt's spirit—she who was the partner in his labors and dreams and aspirations for a just and warless world.

We humbly suggest you enrich our program—during the period of the world-wide emergency—with the knowledge that is hers to give, with the deep human wisdom that she can bring to the counsel tables, by summoning her back from the retirement to which grief directs her. . . .

She has gained the love and confidence of millions of Americans by her close association with them during the past hard years. To millions of us, she is a part of President Roosevelt's great dream of the future. Her place in our national aspiration is no less real because it has been unofficial. If her presence and influence and understanding should be lost to the country at this moment of great decisions . . . it would be a double loss. We know that you join with us in the determination that it shall not be lost. And we hope that you will find the place for her, in the councils of the nation, where her wisdom and human Americanism will be of greatest use.

That you, Mr. President—our new President—will stand erect and courageous at the helm of our nation we know full well. We look to you for the strength and the wisdom, the patience and the compassion, the steadfast purpose and the clear, unclouded vision that our great departed leader breathed into the fabric of our democracy.

Now and in the days to come we, like all other Americans, will stand behind you in the pride of national dignity and in understanding. Our prayers and our determination shall strengthen your hand. Our abundant faith is in you and with you as men of good will go forward to an enduring peace.

Lillian Smith Lashes Pix Over Rochester Case

Columbia, O., April 17.—Lillian Smith, author of best-seller, "Strange Fruit," lashed at motion picture industry today for its treatment of the Negro as a screen personality. Commenting on ban of United Artists' "Brewster's Millions" in Memphis because of Rochester's importance in film, she declared industry's lack of courage, shown by its catering so easily to southern prejudice, is feeding racial bias.

Par Will Pay $1,000,000 Notes Year Before Due

New York, April 17.—Paramount directorate has authorized prepayment of $1,000,000 of note obligations not due until July 1, 1946. Prepayment is to be made May 1 as part of Paramount's plan to reduce obligations.

'ONE MAN'S FAMILY' FILM DEAL OFFED

Deal for Charles Rogers to make a film version of the 13-year-old radio serial, "One Man's Family," has been beached following extended negotiations between the independent producer, NBC and Carlton Morse. Inability to agree on certain factors in the filming resulted in the cancellation. Stanley Bergerman, named sales agent, has initiated deals with other producers.

BIG FOREIGN BIZ SEEN

New York, April 17.—U. S. film trade circles are predicting a continuation of high levels in U. S. distribution revenues from foreign countries (about $170,000,000 annually) and either a modification or postponement of artificial trade restrictions on American films. Prediction results from extension of the Lend-Lease Act in Washington by President Truman's signature yesterday.

STRIKE BRINGS SHUTDOWN ON VANGUARD'S 'DUEL IN SUN'

First closedown since the studio strike started six weeks ago came last night, when David O. Selznick's Vanguard Films, Inc., announced that production of "Duel In the Sun" was being shuttered "temporarily." Announcement came a few hours after Selznick's representatives had been in conference with Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

BIG FIVE HOPE FOR LENIENCY ON DECREE IF BIDDLE OUT

New York, April 17.—Speculating on rumors of impending change in the U. S. Attorney General post, with Bob Hannegan among those mentioned as successor to Francis Biddle, film industry executives are inclined to view the outcome of divorcement proceedings against the Big Five more favorably.

Execs, considering that a middle-of-the-road policy is likely to be adopted, believe there is a possibility of compromise with the Department of Justice on the consent decree. (Incidentally, Hannegan has been more strongly mentioned for Frank C. Walker's Postmaster General post.)

• HOLLYWOOD INSIDE •

INCREASING importance of Hollywood as a news and feature source is seen in the number of new offices being established here by national mags. Don Eddy has just been moved down here from San Francisco, by American Magazine, to concentrate on filmland material. Colliers recently set up an office with Jim Marshall in charge. Kay Mulvey for past few years has represented Woman's Home Companion. This means that all three of Crowell publications now are represented in film capital. Although Liberty has had a rep for year or so, it never had an office until month ago under present setup. Frank Nugent has just been appointed Hollywood representative of Good Housekeeping Magazine. Coronet Magazine has opened an office, so, too, has Parade, and Cosmopolitan is in process of being represented by an office. Look staff is being enlarged, with other pictorial mags understood to be planned by Look publishers as soon as paper limitation is eased. Satevepost is reported to be ready to put out a picture weekly to compete with Life whenever conditions permit.

THE press gag, so far as police news is concerned—always a hopeful police dream—became an actuality here yesterday. The Los Angeles police commission acceded to a request from Police Chief C. B. Horrall and established absolute censorship of police news—with the police themselves as the censors. The ruling prohibits all policemen from speaking, writing or giving out information involving enforcement of the laws without specific authorization from the chief. As an apparent sop to the news hustlers the ukase says that current news of the police department may be given to a representative of the press. But it is left to the individual policemen to decide whether such news shall be put out or not. Police reporters, who haven't been received as exactly soul-mates by the chief at any time, look for still tougher going from now on.

SHOOTING on "Danger Signal" at Warners is getting to be a catch-as-catch-can affair with Director Robert Florey forced to adjust his schedule to fit the circumstances. Absence of Faye Emerson (Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt) necessitated by the President's death promptly halted work on scenes in which she appears. Previously Ann Blyth, cast in the picture, suffered a broken back in a toboggan accident and still is in the hospital. Her role was taken over by Mona Freeman and Florey was busy yesterday re-doing the scenes in which Miss Blyth had appeared. No limit was set on Miss Emerson's absence and meanwhile Florey will shoot around scenes in which she is to appear.

STATE Department is reported to have turned thumbs down on any side attraction for the San Francisco Conference. Tops in the motion picture industry have offered to cooperate in any manner possible, but it is understood State Department felt appearance of stars, etc., would tend to detract from the seriousness of the program. Proposal to transport a trainload of delegates to Hollywood, either before or after the Conference, also was nixed, with the understanding any of those who desired would have the privilege of visiting the picture capital after the Conference closed.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN had a radio audience of 16,850,000 when he made his first address to a joint session of Congress. Special survey made for CBS by Hooperatings clocked him for 32% of the country's radio homes. Highest daytime rating of all time, an even 60, was posted by President Roosevelt on his address to the nation day after the Pearl Harbor attack. Only other daytime rating surpassing President Truman's figure was in January of 1942 when FDR was tabbed at 35 on the occasion of his address on the state of the union.

RECORDINGS of two "Command Performance" programs will be made at CBS tomorrow night by Armed Forces Radio Service. Doubling up was necessitated by postponement of last week's plattering out of respect to the President's death. In the first section will be Gary Cooper, Kay Kyser, Jerry Colonna, Edward G. Robinson, Pat Friday, Santa Ana Swing Wing and Ken Carpenter. Afterpiece stars Jack Carson, Martha Stewart, Peter Lorre, Carlos Ramirez, Sidney Greenstreet, Jack Oakie, Pied Pipers and Carpenter.

FROM all indications, Robert Montgomery will return to the Navy sometime in near future. While former Lieut.-Commander was on location in Florida recently with Metro's "They Were Expendable" troupe, he made announcement time and again to interviewers that he intended to don uniform again. Montgomery several months ago was given medical discharge to recover from dengue fever. If and when he does return to service, actor will be sworn in as full commander.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S firm stand against re-opening of racing gave Santa Anita another big disappointment. Large crew has been working at the Arcadia plant getting it ready for an early opening. Last week the infield was planted to marigolds to give the needed touch of spring to the course. But now it's a case of waiting till the end of the official thirty days' mourning at least and, perhaps, to V-Day.

FOOTAGE scissored from Paramount newsreels will be earmarked in the future for Klaus Landsberg's television station on the lot. Slides will be made from the unused clips and televised twice a week over W6XYZ simultaneous with the news commentary. Video station will be serviced twice a week with clips of the Frisco United Nations conclave.

TRADESHOWN at studio, April 12, 1945. Running time: 78 MINS.

Timeworn theme lends only moderate interest to "China Sky," but film is okay offering for the duals. Randolph Scott, Ruth Warrick and Ellen Drew are principals in hackneyed triangle plot cast in modern China setting, where Scott and Miss Warrick are doctors in a hospital continually under Jap air fire and Miss Drew is Scott's hysterical bride just in from the States. Picture has been given plenty of atmosphere but little else apart from trite nature.

Scott returns to his hospital in Chinese interior, bringing not only much-needed supplies from America but a wife as well. Event proves somewhat of a shock to his associate, Miss Warrick, who is secretly in love with him but kept this to herself.

Immediately feeling arises between the two women, bride going out of her way to lower other's stock with husband. Things come to a head when Scott and Miss Warrick make overnight trip to mountain retreat of Chinese guerrilla chief to attend wounded men who cannot be brought to hospital, and wife enlists aid of a Korean doctor in hospital, thinking she is arranging for plane to be sent to transport her husband and herself back to coast. Actually Korean is in league with Japs, and Nip paratroopers arrive. During ensuing battle, bride is killed and Scott and Miss Warrick are left to continue a romance which started almost too late.

Uninspired plot allows for little conviction in performances of three principals, Scott and Miss Warrick almost too noble for human endurance and Miss Drew swinging wildly with her villainy. Anthony Quinn makes the most of his guerrilla chief and Carol Thurston charms with Chinese nurse characterization. Richard Loo is properly dastardly as wounded Jap prisoner, and Philip Ahn satisfactory as Korean physician resentful of Americans being his superiors in hospital. Outstanding performance is contributed by Chinese lad, "Ducky" Louie, who appears as Scott's houseboy.

Based on novel by Pearl Buck, Brenda Weisberg and Joseph Hoffman wrote screenplay which Ray Enright tried valiantly to overcome with his direction, but load was too heavy. Maurice Geraghty is listed as associate producer under Jack J. Gross's supervision, with other technical credits measuring up.

The Cisco Kid Returns

(Melodrama)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Producer, Philip N. Krasne. Associate producer, Dick L'Estrange. Director, John P. McCarthy. Original screenplay, Betty Burbridge. Photography, Harry Neumann. Film editor, Marty Cohen. Sound, Glen Glenn. Set dresser, Ted Driscoll. Assistant director, Eddie Davis.

CAST—Duncan Renaldo, Martin Garralaga, Cecilia Callejo, Roger Pryor, Anthony Warde, Fritz Leiber, Vicky Lane, Jan Wiley, Sharon Smith, Cy Kendall, Eva Puig, Emmett Lynn.

REVIEWED at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, April 17, 1945. Running time: 64 MINS.

"The Cisco Kid Returns" is not an auspicious comeback for this sterling hero of many past action films. Essentially there's nothing wrong with the script and cast that plenty of vigorous direction wouldn't have cured, but, apparently, John P. McCarthy chose to unravel the western mystery at a pedestrian pace that doesn't fit the flambuoyance of the Cisco Kid character. Surer direction would have permitted Duncan Renaldo to realize more fully on the title role, as he has the attributes to give it the required zip.

The Cisco Kid becomes involved in a plot to seize the wealth of a small girl after her father has been killed. Sensing something is wrong when the father is murdered and the supposed mother and her maid appear on the scene, the Cisco Kid keeps the young girl hidden until he can make sure everything is as it should be. Villains of piece fasten the killing on him, so he has to avoid the sheriff's posse while sorting out the facts. He does, to the satisfaction of all concerned and the heavies go behind bars. Through it all the hero keeps up his wooing of every pretty girl (and the cast has three to keep him occupied.

Martin Garralaga, by comparison, fares slightly better as the dumb and comical Pancho, Cisco's henchman. Cecilia Callejo, the fiery native girl; Vicky Lane and Jan Wiley are the trio of lookers who continually dazzle the hero. Roger Pryor, Anthony Warde and Cy Kendall are the villainous threesome. Fritz Leiber, the padre; Sharon Smith the child, and others are okay.

The Philip N. Krasne production, on which Dick L'Estrange served as associate producer, has excellent outdoor photography by Harry Neumann and the settings fit the background.

WB CLOSING FOR FDR RITES COSTS $1,000,000

New York, April 17.—Closing of all Warners theatres, totaling 450, in tribute to Franklin D. Roosevelt last Saturday, is estimated to have cost the company close to $1,000,000. A considerably smaller, but still an appreciable sum, can be figured for the Comerford circuit in Pennsylvania which, like Warners, closed the entire day Saturday on orders from Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, the chain's president.

While larger downtown operations here attain about 50% of the day's gross by 6 p.m. on Saturdays, in a amjority of instances the percentage of the day's take up to that hour scales away down. The question of distributor readjustments is still to be settled.

New York, April 17. — Howard Dietz leaves Thursday for San Francisco, where in his capacity as chairman of the planning committee of the motion picture industry he will advise on operations of United Nations theatre during security conference. As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Some people have been whispering to each other that Berlin has been taken—we're just holding up the news because of the death of the President. I'll wager with anyone that that's nonsense. Instead, we'll probably have a tough battle to take Berlin. It means too much to Nazi prestige for it to fall easily or quickly, and it's a good place, because of its extent, for a delaying battle, the kind the Nazi leaders now want to delay their own doom. Since it's naturally Germany's main transport and communication center, the Nazi leaders also know that the more destroyed it is, the more trouble they can cause us, the better their chances of using our troubles to their own personally selfish ends. The German counter-attacks that knocked out one of our bridgeheads and that struck yesterday at our last remaining one show the determined way in which the city will be defended. This will be all the more true if Hitler is in Berlin, as reported by some of those travelers to Sweden. He may, as a final act, carry out the role I've always cast for him—lead the last charge against the entering Russians, and thus die in "glory." You've got to realize that this man Hitler believes that he had been destined for the role he played as der Feuhrer, and that his paranoic frenzy could lead him to this final sacrifice of himself.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 17.—He's gone—the greatest "Voice" of them all on the air and one of the most charming personalities who ever flashed upon a screen. He leaves behind a memory of warm friendliness for the people of show business and a host of anecdotes that Hollywood and Broadway will never forget.

Treasury called FDR the nation's great bond salesman, but his active participation, principally via radio, did not get under way until the Third War Loan. A Treasury official recalls that a four-part format was prepared and laid on the President's desk by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

First part showed a picture of Winston Churchill making an appeal for a British War Loan. The next was a famous old picture of Woodrow Wilson marching down Fifth ave. for a Liberty Loan of World War I. Third was a picture of Roosevelt speaking in Canada on behalf of a Canadian bond drive. Fourth was a large question mark and the words: "What is the President going to do now about the coming war bond drive?"

He looked it over and chuckled; then, despite his many other duties, he dug in for active participation and the results are now history.

* * * * * * * * *

There was that time at a pre-war President's Birthday celebration. Robert Taylor, Jean Harlow, Fredric March and a dozen others were at the White House with him while the newsreel lensers made a shot featuring a brief address by "The Chief." He looked up when it was completed and said "Okay?"

"Okay," was the response.

"One take Frankie, eh?" said a girl's voice.

"Who said that?" the President asked and laughed. Marsha Hunt, youngest Hollywooder in the room, admitted with some trepidation it was she. He laughed again and assured her he was highly flattered.

* * * * * * * * *

And it would take all of this column and more just to name the stars who visited him at one time or another at the White House and who went away loving him so much that many of them plunged into practical politics for the first time to assure his re-election.

* * * * * * * * *

The Jefferson Day dinner, which was to have been held in Washington last Friday and which FDR was to have addressed from Warm Springs, had listed among others on its program Milton Berle and Fannie Hurst. One of those on the arrangements committee was Carter Barron, Loew's division manager.

And when Mrs. Roosevelt was suddenly called to the White House last Thursday to hear the tragic news, she was at a benefit musicale in Washington for six children's hospitals. Present with her there were Helena Bliss and Lawrence Brooks, leads in the Broadway hit, "Song of Norway." Emceeing was Mary Howard, and Pianist Evalyn Tyner was playing. Mrs. Harry Truman was there, too.

One of the capital functions canceled was a tea by the American Newspaper Women's Club on behalf of the new Washington Municipal theatre. Mrs. Roosevelt was honorary president and would have attended.

* * * * * * * * *

They are speculating here on which company will bring out the first volume of records of Roosevelt's speeches. There appears no doubt that several volumes will be offered and should go well.

The recordings of the late President's great radio speeches are now part of the world's history.

* * * * * * * * *

One of the problems posed by the sudden death of President Roosevelt is the course to be followed in planning the Seventh War Loan which opens May 10.

Ted Gamble, head of the Treasury's War Finance Division, has been deluged with telegrams from all over the country, many of them from picture and radio people, suggesting ways in which the drive can be turned into a tribute to FDR. Some wires have suggested a complete change of slogan and theme, making the drive a memorial to the great President.

Some suggested a bond of special denomination bearing Mr. Roosevelt's picture. Treasury officials are looking agreeably on this idea, thinking of a bond of popular denomination so that the masses can purchase it.

Gamble said over the weekend that no decision will be made until the first days of shock have passed. The final decision will come from Morgenthau, one of the closest friends of Roosevelt.

* * * * * * * * *

First Treasury reactions have been to carry the drive ahead as originally planned. C. C. Beale, who created the campaign poster from the famous shot of the flag-raising on Iwo Jima, is already at work on another war loan poster memorializing Roosevelt. If V-E Day comes before May 10, the Seventh War Loan is expected to become the First Victory Loan and to be dedicated to FDR.

* * * * * * * * *

Radio programs for the drive are among the things which will have to be rearranged. For instance, Truman, as vice-president, had been skedded to speak at a bond meeting in Indianapolis May 11. That is out now and he will make the opening address on the air instead.

* * * * * * * * *

No change is planned for "Mr. and Mrs. America," the 16mm. all-industry film made for the bond drive, which contains a brief message from Roosevelt. It is believed that the emotional impact of the late President's appearance in the film will be terrific.

The FDR talk, made for this pic, was the one used April 7 in the closed circuit broadcast to war bond committees all over the country. The message, taken directly from the film soundtrack, was heard by between 800,000 and 1,000,000 bond workers and was the last Roosevelt speech made to any large audience. Platters of the message also will be used in the drive.

TELEVISH COMMITTEE PLANS FORUM ON VIDEO PROBLEMS

The Affiliated Committee for Television, representing 20,000 film and radio artists and technicians, gets its expanded educational activities under way this month with a series of lecture-forums to be held at the Screen Cartoonists Guild hall the first and third Friday nights of each month. First of the series is scheduled for 8 p.m., April 20.

"The ABC of Television" will serve as the keynote of the opening lecture. Sgt. Carl Beier, of the First Army Force Motion Picture Unit, will be the principal speaker. Beier will draw upon his experiences in producing more than 250 television programs for samples of technique, problems and theory. The General Electric film, "Sight-Seeing In the Home," also will be screened during the program.

After the film and lecture, an open discussion will be held in order that specific questions may be brought up for discussion. Those planning to attend are being urged to write their questions in advance in order that they may be turned in for consideration of the speaker before the open forum.

In addition to the lecture series the Educational Committee of ACT also has made plans for development of educational material based on the activities of the ACT Workshop in preparing for the experimental productions it has scheduled. It is understood plans are going forward for the use of 16mm. films by the Workshop and that such films will be available for educational and lecture purposes.

BURNS AND ALLEN GO TO GEN. FOODS

Burns and Allen contract with Lever Bros. has been assigned to General Foods, according to word from New York last night. That automatically releases Frank Morgan from his Maxwell House commitment and paves the way for the acceptance of one of three firm offers Berg & Allenberg has for the comedian. Only Morgan and Phil Rapp, producer-writer, are being packaged for the new client. Burns and Allen take over the Maxwell spot on NBC in the fall.

Art Directors Board Meets On Contract

Art Directors Guild Board meets this week to consider contract proposals of major companies, as well as request of producers and directors assist in keeping production going during current strike. Directors met with producers Monday night, at which time it is understood there was some discussion as to submitting request of producers to general membership. Guild previously had decided its members would not do work outside their jurisdiction.

VANGUARD CLOSES DOWN WORK ON 'DUEL IN SUN' guard, issued the following statement:

"We have been endeavoring to the best of our ability to continue production despite strike conditions. However, it is no longer possible for us to continue and, accordingly, we are suspending production on 'Duel In the Sun' temporarily."

McCAREY GOES ON

Leo McCarey, who is shooting "Bells of St. Mary's" on the Pathe lot, declared the Vanguard action will have no effect on his production. McCarey said:

"We started shooting before 'Duel In the Sun' and had virtually all our sets built before the strike began. We have only about three weeks more to go before the picture is finished and for the present can continue shooting."

A written proposal had been submitted to Selznick's representatives by Sorrell, calling for him to resume production on an independent lot, with the understanding that preference in hiring of extras would be given to paid-up members of the Screen Players Guild. Conferences had been going on for two days, and general belief was that deal would be inked yesterday or today.

Plans for "indefinite" picket lines at major studios were discussed by designers, illustrators and decorators last night at a meeting of Local 1421, with other strike activities other than Selznick shuttering, confined largely to a name calling tiff between the IATSE and Herbert Sorrell groups and reported flareups at 20th-Fox.

MUSSA SEES QUICK VICTORY

Business Representative Ed Mussa told members of Local 1421 he felt confident of a quick victory in the current walkout, but recommended that plans be adopted to carry on the picket line "indefinitely if necessary." Recommendation called for lowering present assessment of $10 daily against employed members to $5, with the latter amount to be turned over to unemployed members on the picket lines. Mussa explained that by taking that action and suspending dues for duration of the strike pickets could work two shifts of three hours each, with one-half the membership working and taking care of the other half while maintaining the picket lines.

Mussa, Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, and James Skelton, business representative of the studio carpenters, have removed themselves from the payroll during the walkout. Mussa also recommended that the union convert some of its War Bonds into cash to provide funds for carrying on the strike.

Producers and the IATSE, on the other hand, took the position that the strike already is over except for whatever nuisance value the picket lines may have. Studio execs declared production has steadily increased since the walkout, while the IATSE announced issuance of a charter for machinists. Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, previously had issued charter for painters and carpenters, who have been refusing to cross the picket lines.

The IATSE in its daily bulletin attacked the leadership of Sorrell, reviving the old Communist story about the Conference head and referring to his appearance before the Jack Tenney committee on un-American affairs. Sorrell group replied with a blast declaring "The IATSE is no longer a union. It is a strikebreaking, scab-herding agency."

Physical attacks on studio workers appeared to be directed against those who have taken over jobs of painters. Several reported they had been attacked and badly beaten while either en route to or from work at Paramount, Republic and 20th-Fox.

SPU and Producers Will Meet On Scale

Producer representatives are scheduled to confer with the Screen Players Union next week on wage demands for extras and question of an interim agreement pending completion of negotiations. First huddle was tentatively set for Friday, but was postponed because Alex H. Schullman, attorney for SPU, could not be present. Arrangements for the meeting were said to have been made by Business Representative Mike Jeffers of SPU, and Fred Pelton, representing the producers.

SAG PLEDGES AID FOR CONTINUATION OF DIMES MARCH

Screen Actors Guild Board of Directors at a special meeting called by Prexy George Murphy adopted a resolution concerning the death of President Roosevelt, and rededicated actors to the annual infantile paralysis campaign as follows:

"Resolved, that in honor of his memory we dedicate ourselves to continued service in the annual 'March of Dimes' campaign for the victoms of infantile paralysis." Resolution forwarded to Mrs. Roosevelt and to President Truman pledged the continued cooperation of screen actors in the war effort.

Hal Wallis, accompanied by his general production aide, Jack Saper, will train to New York Saturday for conference at Paramount's home office. Wallis will huddle with Joseph Hazen, prexy of Hal Wallis Productions; Charles Reagan and other Paramount sales execs. Group will discuss release plans for "You Came Along" and "Love Letters." Wallis will also meet with Lillian Hellman who is preparing screenplay of her Broadway play, "The Searching Wind."

the release of several United Artists pictures.

At the same time, Metro plans to release only two features monthly during the coming summer due to the film shortage, laboratory delays and mounting technical difficulties. Three features are scheduled for May release.

Complaints also are coming in from an increasing number of subsequent-run theatres that they may be forced to shutter because of the shortage of product in competitive situations.

Major distribution executives are now confronted with a new problem —the large increase in the number of pictures being premiered in the smaller cities and towns ahead of key city openings.

As a result of the smaller number of pictures being released this year, combined with longer runs in the key cities, major distribs find they must supply features in subsequent situations ahead of keys in most cases.

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 17.—The management of the Palacio Cinema announces that its box office will be closed on the day that Berlin falls. . . . The public is cordially invited to see the Filmex picture, "The Woman We Betray," free of charge. Couldn't they have picked a better film to celebrate the event? Because, really, Filmex's betrayed woman is dull entertainment. . . . The Mexican cinema has paid more money to The Venezuelan novelist, Romulo Gallegos, than to any other writer. His original screenplay, "La Mujer de Enfrente" (approximately "The Woman Across the Street") will be produced here soon, under the direction of Gilberto Martinez Solares, with Carmen Montejo and Julian Soler in leading roles.

* * * * * * * * *

Roberto Gavaldon, just graduated into the directorial class, can well be proud of "La Barraca," the Blasco Ibanez novel brought to the screen by Producer Alfonso Sanchez Tello. The story is a long string of tragedies which befall a family of Valencian peasants. The screenplay is well developed, photography is very good and actors, Domingo Soler, Anita Blanch, Jose Baviera and Manolo Fabregas are excellent. It is undoubtedly one of the best pictures made in our studios. But today Director Gavaldon looked glum on the set of "Hearts of Mexico," which he is now directing. He knows that he has a difficult and ungrateful job on his hands this time.

* * * * * * * * *

Lee de Forest has promised the Mexican industry that within six months raw stock will be produced here. This news should be balm to the sore hearts of some producers, but wouldn't it be nice if we could also manufacture honest union leaders for our cinema industry?

* * * * * * * * *

After a few more cuttings and quite a lot of discussion, Dolores del Rio's film, "Las Abandonadas" will finally be released this month. By the way, the stars rumored marriage to the bullfighter, Gallito, remains shrouded in secrecy. . . . Producer General Juan F. Azcarate, on his return from Hollywood, stated that Technicolor, as well as dubbed pix, were a serious competition for the home product. True, but hardly news. . . . Gabriel Figueroa is very pleased with Sam Goldwyn's expressed opinion that Figueroa is one of the three best cameramen in the world. . . . Arturo de Cordova has been discussing his next picture with Mauricio de la Serna. . . . Premiere of "Twilight," produced by De la Serna, directed by Julio Bracho and starring the Yucatecan Arturo, is scheduled for this week. . . . Argentinian singer Augustin Irusta is quite a success in our night clubs. He is the author of the waltz entitled "Lupe," popular 15 years ago, and inspired by Lupe Velez. . . . Fernando Cortes is to direct "Scarlet Rose" for Associated Artists. Definitely our producers, or title choosers, are flower-minded. . . . Stars Lina Montes and Sara Guash are on strict diets, but so much has been printed about their excess weight that the poor girls will have a hard time living it down. Producers are already turning cold shoulders toward Lina. . . . Irina Baronova will star in two pictures to be produced by Manuel Reachi. . . . The city's warm gratitude goes to the mayor for prohibiting the entrance into cinemas of children under the age of three. . . . I wonder why Ray Milland assured me of connubial bliss, practically on the eve of his divorce?

RADIO MAN PRESS AIDE TO TRUMAN

Washington, April 17.—J. Leonard Reinsch, radio director of the Democratic National Committee last fall, manager of the James Cox broadcasting stations and director of National Association of Broadcasters, today was named by President Harry Truman as assistant in radio and press matters. It is expected he will succeed Jonathan Daniels as White House press secretary, the job formerly held by Steve Early.

The courtroom audience rose and cheered when the jury delivered the verdict after two hours and 55 minutes of deliberation.

This is the second trial of the Barry paternity suit, the first having ended in a jury disagreement with five members favoring Miss Barry and seven Chaplin.

A court hearing on the extent of Chaplin's fortune and his ability to pay for care of the child is set for 2 p. m. today. On the evidence presented at this hearing will depend the amount the comedian must turn over to Carol Ann, either in a lump sum or in instalments.

Along the Union Pacific main line—between stations—a signal flashes red. The train slackens speed and stops. The engineer grabs the whistle cord . . . one long and three short blasts. That's a signal to the flagman. It is his duty to give adequate warning to any train following. To do so, he walks a sufficient distance to the rear to insure full protection.

This is one of the many precautionary measures taken by Union Pacific—and other railroads—to protect passengers and freight shipments.

Safe transportation becomes increasingly important in wartime. Trainloads of troops and essential materials are constantly on the move over Union Pacific's Strategic Middle Route uniting the East with the Pacific Coast.

Just as the flagman protects his train, so is it the job of all Americans to provide for future security by buying bonds and saving them. Thus we can help stabilize industry and encourage the American trait of individual enterprise and initiative.

They have been careful to retain their "hominess" because they realize that this small-town wholesomeness is the good earth from which their comedy blossoms so lustily.

Fibber McGee and Molly would be the first to acknowledge that a large share of their success is due to Don Quinn, their writer, and to the makers of Johnson's Wax, their sponsors. Johnson's Wax officials have seen their faith in

They are also good neighbors to Bob Hope, who has occupied the Tuesday night half-hour following them since September, 1938. The two programs comprise the highest Hooper-rated hour on the air.

The Passing Fad that refuses to pass!

WHEN sound pictures were first made possible by Western Electric, a lot of people thought this new development was just an interesting novelty—too imperfect and too expensive to last. A passing fad.

It took real vision to see what that early sound might one day become.

Vision on the part of scientists who knew how much better sound could and must be made.

Vision on the part of producers and exhibitors who realized that sound meant greater realism which was bound to build greater than ever box office.

Continuation of that same brand of vision and incentive will be needed after the war. The scientist and the engineer have learned much in these last few years of accelerated war research. They possess the knowledge and the desire to have sound contribute even more to making the motion picture one of the world's greatest forms of entertainment.

MORE than 30,000,000 in the United States have been shown docu-centary films on Latin America since the Office of Inter-American Affairs started distribution of the 16 mm. subjects two years ago. Monthly audience figures have grown from the approximately 900,000 in September, 1943, to about 2,000,000 in December, 1944, according to the OIAA. Organization had 72 documentaries in distribution in the states as of last December, including such subjects on Brazil completed last year by Lt. Com. Sam Engel and Lt. Com. Gregg Toland, and Disney subjects such as "South of the Border" and "Grain That Built a Hemisphere." Distribution is through 184 16 mm. film depositories throughout the United States. Of these, 55 are in universities and colleges, 36 are commercial agencies and 51 are public school systems, libraries and small colleges. Remainder are civic groups of various kinds. About 75 per cent of OIAA's domestic releases are in schools, which at the present time own about 80% of all the 16 mm. sound projectors in this country.

HIGH speed in which recordings are turned out by Armed Forces Radio Service is exemplified in the hurried overseas shipment of discs carrying the address of President Truman to the armed forces. Within 36 hours after the broadcast, 400 finished transcribed pressings were on their way to AFRS stations around the world. Army technicians headed by Capt. Victor Quan took the speech off the air, had a new opening and closing dubbed in, a master acetate made and rushed to the RCA processing plant. There a metal master was made in the new high-speed bath, a saving of 10 hours over the old process and used for the first time on the Coast. Test pressings were back at AFRS the following morning, the 400 records delivered in the afternoon and packed for shipment that night. Next morning they were on planes headed for overseas points. Entire operation in 36 hours set a new record at AFRS, just another in a long list of extraordinary accomplishments by Col. Tom Lewis' radio experts.

You know it is a murder tale beyond the slightest doubt.
You try another station and you meet another yarn

You hasten to the film house in the early evening glow
And hear the bullets whizzing in another murder show.
Detectives on the screen and air are busy night and day
Detecting endless crime—and still they claim it doesn't pay.

Hitchhike To Happiness

(Comedy Drama with Music)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Associate producer, Donald H. Brown. Director, Joseph Santley. Screenplay, Jack Townley. Based on original story by Manny Seff, Jerry Horwin. Photography, Jack Marta. Editor, Fred Allen. Art director, Fred A. Ritter. Set decorations, Otto Siegel. Musical director, Morton Scott. Songs, Kim Gannon, Walter Kent. Costumes, Adele Palmer. Dance director, Jerry Jarrette.

CAST—Stars Al Pearce. Features Dale Evans and Brad Taylor. Supporting players: William Frawley, Jerome Cowan, Willy Trenk, Arlene Harris, Joyce Compton, Maude Eburne, Irving Bacon, Lynn Romer, Jeanne Romer.

PREVIEWED in Hollywood, Calif., April 18, 1945. Running time: 70 MINS.

"Hitchhike To Happiness" recalls all the musicals ever made in the mid-thirties with a theatrical background. However, the Budget isn't as lush on this production and the camera work is pretty static, compared with the swooping techniques introduced in the Dick Powell-Ruby Keeler co-starring era. However, "Hitchhike" probably will fare okay on the lower half of double bills in the outlying houses.

Plot concerns a top femme radio vocalist, Dale Evans, who goes back to New York to revisit the scenes of her salad days. She encounters a young songwriter, Brad Taylor. Not knowing who the vocalist is, he gets her to sell his songs into a show, written by Al Pearce, hash-slinger in a Broadway beanery. When the girl reveals her identity, in order to star in the show, the boy walks out on her because he thinks she played him for a sucker. But he comes back at the final curtain of the film and the show.

This thinly written yarn is suspended between four catchy tunes, with one, "Sentimental," probably Hit Parade material. Miss Evans delivers the tunes well and duets with Taylor to good advantage.

Pearce loses out both by the story and direction, although he is supposed to be the star. Nobody else has much of a chance to do anything in the film for the dual reasons that kill off Pearce.

The Scarlet Clue

(Comedy Crime Drama)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Producer, James S. Burkett. Director, Phil Rosen. Production manager, William Strohbach. Original screenplay by George Callahan, based on the Charlie Chan character created by Earl Derr Biggers. Photography, William A. Sickner. Technical director, Dave Milton. Musical director, Edward Kay. Sound by Tom Lambert. Film editor, Richard Currier.

CAST—Sidney Toler, Mantan Moreland, Ben Carter, Benson Fong, Virginia Brissac, Robert Homans, Jack Norton, Janet Shaw, Helen Devereaux, Victoria Faust.

PREVIEWED at Monogram studio, Hollywood, Calif., April 18, 1945. Running time: 65 MINS.

"The Scarlet Clue," while not the most sensational of Monogram's Charlie Chan series, is a fast-moving crime thriller of the type Sidney Toler fans have come to expect. It will have box office pull in the minors and as the last half of dual programs.

The film shows Toler dealing with what is nothing less than a murder epidemic in a radio studio. Poison capsules exploded by radio beams, death traps worked by the air waves and sinister plotting with telephones and teletypes are the components of the chills-and-thrills sequences. And when there is danger that the audience will get too far on the edge of the seat there is comedy relief from the inept detecting antics of Chan's two assistants—his son, played by Benson Fong, and dark Birmingham Brown, portrayed by Mantan Moreland.

The production is somewhat jerky in the early stages and the writer hasn't made as much use as he might have of the characteristic Charlie Chan dialog and detection.

Excellent direction sustains suspense and mystery, the identity of the murderer is kept cleverly concealed and revealed logically and dramatically at the payoff.

LEGIT OPENING

TOO HOT FOR MANEUVERS

Philadelphia, April 18.—"Too Hot For Maneuvers," another play about wartime conditions, had postponed opening here tonight at Walnut Street theatre, and despite plenty of audience guffaws, general opinion expressed was that Les White-Bud Pearson comedy can't stand stiff Broadway competition. Oddly enough too, its one chance for stage success—its steady diet of dirt—will definately militate against its film chances.

Play has setting like "Brother Rat" in boys' military academy, with Hollywood's Richard Arlen likeable as lead but very uneven in his playing. Jed Prouty is broadly amusing and numerous juvenile players click neatly, but direction is definitely weak at times. Piece was produced by James Elliot and remainder of cast includes Helene Reynolds, Lawrence Fletcher, Eve McVeagh, Alastair Kyle, Henry Antrim and John McKee. Despite belly laughs of "Ladies' Night," variety play will need plenty to make grade and even then Hays office won't okey it.

Crabbe Back For PRC Western Duo

After three weeks in the east appearing at the American Sportsman Show in Cleveland and in business huddles in New York, Buster Crabbe returned yesterday. Crabbe will make two westerns at PRC for Sigmund Neufeld and then take his own Water Carnival on tour for 10 weeks, starting June 15 in Detroit.

'Expendable' Working

"They Were Expendable" resumed shooting at Metro yesterday after two months in Florida. Donna Reed, only femme in cast, starts chores today.

U BUYS P 1 ADS FOR MONTEZ IN PAPER THAT BLASTED HER

Chicago, April 18.—Fine example of feeding the hand that bites you is the move of Ben Katz, Universal exchange flack here, in buying some page one advertising this week from the Chicago Sun, same sheet that ack-acked U's Maria Montez last week for traveling with 21 pieces of luggage during wartime.

Blast at Miss Montez may have seemed offhand like a lost cause for the star, but Katz capitalized on it by grabbing off ad space at the bottom of each of the front page columns in one edition of the daily, stressing the star's "impetuosity." Plugs, at $5 a half-inch, were for "Sudan" which opened at the RKO-Palace last week.

It is the first time the sheet has ever let them all go to one client in one shot. Adjectives, all synonyms for "impetuous" (which could mean the kind of a gal who blasts everyone in a railroad station because she loses two hat bags en route), include fiery, spitfire, dynamic, excitable, and electric—not to mention devastating, luscious and beautiful.

(CBS News Analyst)

The capture of Magdeburg will help us a lot in marching on Berlin. It not only is near the main super-highway from the west to the capital, which would be threatened by Germans remaining in Magdeburg, but also it's the junction point for rail lines to Berlin, Hamburg, Bremen, Hanover, Brunswick and Leipsig. With Magdeburg in our hands, we can move needed power in massed men and supplies to and over the Elbe, in the kind of drive that will be needed to take Berlin. . . . The raid on Kawasaki, between Tokyo and Yokohama, may have been principally aimed at the main Japanese radio plant in all the empire—the place where 90% of the precision equipment for Japanese commercial and military radio was turned out. This plant was at Yamagicho, which is not far across the Tama River, at a point where the main railroad from Tokyo meets one that runs inland to the wharf. If we succeeded in causing great damage to this plant, and radio material is fragile, it can be most important in the way the Japanese can carry on the war.

It's out of the frying pan into the fire for the networks. Having covered its transmitters with glory by the handling of the President's passing, it is now poised to tackle another important job—that of keeping the world abreast of developments at the world peace conference in Frisco. And should V-E Day happen during the conclave of nations it would call for doubling up and a fast shift. The chains have had their baptism of fire and know pretty well how to proceed under the stress of emergency. Every commentator, news and military analyst of note will be on the ground when the gavel falls April 25. The air will bristle with doin's of the delegates and while of earth-shaking magnitude and importance there are bound to be beefs from people whose favorite program has been interrupted or cancelled. What comes spilling out of receiving sets will be of such lofty purpose and so delicately embroidered with high-sounding phrases that the mine run of dialers will run for the more simpler fare after a few helpings. The day that radio gets 100% "vote of confidence" from the dialers, Utopia won't be far away.

The big huddle in Frisco won't be a network show altogether. Not while there are such live indies around as KFWB, which never lets an opportunity like this pass without giving it a good old college try. The Warners station will be in there competing all the way and it won't be with just what tapeworms out of the printer. Harry Maizlish, boss of the Fernwood plant, has worked out an arrangement with Don J. Fedderson, headman of KYA in Frisco, whereby the two stations will team up in common cause. Direct line will link WB with KYA and special correspondents for the Hollywood transmitter will be piped in from KYA. For enterprise, initiative and imaginative programing on special events Maizlish and his KFWB crew do a job relatively comparable to any station in town, affiliated or otherwise.

STATION BREAKS . . . "Life of Riley" is being pegged by Cutty Sarkers as the surprise comedy bet of the season. On the Blue it passed Columbia's Kate Smith in the Hooperatings and you can't knock that. Give "Riley" a spot like Hildegarde or Fitch and it won't be out of Hooper's First 15 very often. . . . Bill Livingston will produce the Pabst summer show with Harry James while Dick Mack is lolling on the shores of Tahoe. . . . Madelyn Persons will aid Don McNamara in the production of the KFI-UCLA Workshop drama on the Anthony station tomorrow night. She took the fledglings over the jumps for 15 weeks. . . . Dick Chevillat, writer for Joan Davis, became a papa Monday. . . . Charlie Vanda back in civvies after nearly three years in two-tone military. . . . The Merry Macs will share the Philco summer series with George Gibbs and Pops Whiteman. . . . Agency and client (Nash-Kelvinator) are insisting that Joe Rines assume production of the Andrews Sisters show after Mannie Manheim departs. . . . Jack Douglas, one of the better farce perpetrators, becomes a comic again—at least for a night. He'll be auditioned by CBS at the head of his own program. . . . Bob Colwell going east may pass John Reber coming west. . . . Bob Leonard goes on trial Monday as Lux "guest producer." . . . June Christian, secretary to Cece Underwood at N. W. Ayer, and Ken Christy, actor, were stitched in Las Vegas last Sunday.

Bill Robson led with his chin if he was quoted correctly as saying, "Don't take radio writers too seriously. Their scripts are just the starting point on which we directors build a show." That's a broad statement if he means to take in comedy shows. Ask Benny, Cantor, Hope or the Jordans what a script means to them. Has Robson forgotten that it was a writer, Ranny McDougal, whose script for "Man Behind the Gun" catapulted him (Robson) to prominence? Get back on the beam, Bill if it weren't for writers where would you directors be? One is just as important as the other and you can cut the ratio pretty close to the middle.

Ward Wheelock has finally eased himself back in the good graces of the Campbell Soup crowd and in a few short weeks will be in full possession of the company's radio billing. Ever since he got out of the army he's been pitching for the Foote, Cone & Belding soup biz and finally succeeded in landing it. If you know the winner, Wheelock, and the loser, Don Belding, you'll readily understand why the news wasn't too consoling. Switch means that F-C-B loses the Jack Carson show, which they have struggled mightily to develop into a high rater and were coming along nicely. There's some talk that Readers Digest (Wheelock's show) will be dropped for Bill Bacher's 20-Fox studio piece. What fate awaits Carson we know not. In all his years with Campbell there has been only one show that Wheelock can call successful—Hollywood Hotel. Need we go into it that he fenagled $5,000 guestars for a case of soup through the columnar influence of Louella Parsons. When that gimmick was scotched the hotel sunk into its excavation.

HITCH HIKES . . . Phil Leslie, able assistant to Don Quinn in turning out those topnotch scripts for "The McGee's," got a fancy raise with his renewal. . . . Mrs. Dorothy Bryant, national executive secretary of Radio Writers Guild, is here to consult with local officers on the contract proposal to cover a basic minimum agreement for free lance writers. . . . Andy White, program director for Jack Louis' station in Tucson, has been brought into the Needham, Louis & Brorby production setup. . . . Come April 25 Lum and Abner will have been on radio 15 years. Another 15-year-old is Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting (Crossley). It started with 44 members and made 100,000 interviews per annum. Now it has 144 members and makes 6,500,000 calls a year. . . . That 6.3 Hooper leap by Joan Davis has the trade groping for causes.

DE CARLO HANDED 'FRONTIER' LEAD NIXED BY MONTEZ

Yvonne DeCarlo drew femme lead in "Frontier Gal" at Universal yesterday, replacing Maria Montez, who was placed on suspension for turning down the role. Miss DeCarlo is in Canada now on a Victory tour and she will return from Montreal tomorrow after speaking at a rally.

Film is slated to go into production Monday with Miss DeCarlo reteamed with Rod Cameron for the Michael Fessier-Ernest Pagano production.

Miss Montez yesterday told Daily Variety that it was not the presence of Rod Cameron opposite her that caused her to refuse the "Gal" role, but the fact that she considered the script too similar to others she had done.

Burns and Allen Reach Deal With Gen. Foods

Agreement on basic terms has been reached by Burns and Allen with General Foods on contract committing the comedy team to Maxwell House sponsorship next season. Pact was received yesterday at the William Morris office, indicating that B & A have been given their outright release by Lever Bros. and Young & Rubicam. Firm offers are reported to have been made by Auto-Lite and Fitch for the Frank Morgan-Phil Rapp package.

COHEN PLANS COURT ACTION IN ASCAP FEE DISPUTE

Maurice M. Cohen, Palladium chief, announced yesterday he plans legal action of some sort to stop American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers from canceling his contract. Cohen said he planned, through his attorney, Ray Sandler, either to ask the courts to give him declaratory relief or get a restraining injunction. He feels that he should be allowed to keep Ascap music in the band books pending some sort of decision on whether he is or is not being discriminated against by the society in the matter of license fees.

MAY PAY TUNE BY TUNE

If he does not go to the courts, Cohen stated he might take advantage of the other out offered him by Ascap, by paying for each selection on a piece basis. Cost of this is $1 per tune and would require a checker, Cohen believes, from Ascap to see that all tunes are recorded.

In the conference held with the press yesterday afternoon Cohen further asked that the trade and music press support him in his battle with the society. Cohen stated he was not taking the action to get a reduction in fees but because he felt that Ascap was discriminating against him. He stated that he is under the impression that Ascap is arbitrary in its licensing charges because it will not show him its licensing price schedule.

COHEN PAYS $3,000 A YR.

Cohen claims he is paying $3,000 annually for an Ascap license, while the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms in Chicago are paying $2,200 combined for their operation. Stating he is operating on a similar scale, Cohen said he felt this was discrimination and that he would ask for relief under the circumstances.

Richard Powers, Coast head of Ascap, when told of Cohen's statements, made this brief reply: "Mr. Cohen is acting very childish."

Charles Skouras In Tomorrow From Tour

During swing around divisions Skouras also headed the Pacific coast regional Seventh War Loan meeting in Denver Monday.

will go to Okinawa for its first showing to the servicemen who last saw Ernie."

TITLE CHANGE THUMBED

Cowan turned thumbs down on suggestions that the title be changed to "The Story of Ernie Pyle," and the picture will be released without title change.

"To call the picture 'The Story of Ernie Pyle' would only be misleading," Cowan said. "Ernie wouldn't like it because it is really the story of GI Joe as interpreted by Pyle, and Ernie is just a character in it."

PYLE SAW FILM

Ernie saw the film before he left Hollywood, liked it and reiterated that he was chiefly interested that it should be seen by the soldiers in all the combat zones.

He closed his final talk with studio executives with the same farewell remark that he had repeated time and again since starting on his war assignment:

"Take a good look at me. You may not see me again."

Pyle had seemed from the beginning to have a premonition that a bullet would get him sooner or later. It got him finally on Ie Jima, a small island west of Okinawa yesterday. He and Lieut. Col. Joseph Cooldige of Arkansas had taken refuge from Japanese fire in a ditch. They had been lifting their heads to peer over the edge, and a quick burst from a concealed Japanese machine gunner got Ernie in the temple.

Three tanks, trying to rescue him, were pinned down by gunfire, but eventually got to the ditch and recovered his body.

Pyle was especially the "GI's correspondent," and he told the story of the foot soldier, his heroism, his trials and tribulations, in his three books, "Here Is Your War," "Brave Men" and "Ernie Pyle In London."

WAS 45 YEARS OLD

Pyle was born on a farm near Dana, Ind., Aug. 3, 1900. He married Geraldine "Jerry" Siebolds, of Stillwater, Minn., and started newspaper work on the Laporte, Ind., Herald. He and Mrs. Pyle had been living in Albuquerque, N. M., since 1940.

He won the Pulitzer prize for distinguished reporting in 1944, and wore the Purple Heart for wounds suffered on the Anzio beachhead.

LUSH NAZI FILM MART FOR U.S.

turers in Spain, Russia and Turkey.

And, when we start moving into these countries, we will be stealing a lush market that formerly was almost exclusively a German selling spot.

The one fly in the ointment is the matter of dollar credits. Nathan D. Golden of the Commerce Department, in a report today, stressed the difficulty of getting the necessary funds out of the countries. This obstacle is a particularly difficult one in Spain where the credits are strictly controlled by the government.

HOPE IN UN MEET

Much of this difficulty is expected to be ironed out by international monetary agreements which are on the agenda of the San Francisco United Nations conference.

That our pictures will go where our equipment goes is regarded as a certainty by film executives, who are predicting an early return of our old-time foreign business with $170,000,000 or more rolling into the film coffers in New York and Hollywood.

GRAB OF NAZI MARKET

A great part of the theatres, formerly serviced with Naxi pix, is expected to be showing Hollywood product. The German film industry is being wiped out not only by the victorious sweep of Allied arms but by the devastation being wrought by the Nazis as they are forced back into their inevitable defeat.

But, according to all information here, the grabbing of the world market, much of which was lost to America by the war, is not going to be achieved without a battle. The Rank interests in Britain have their plans all set and will be competing at all points for the motion picture business, according to the inside info being disseminated.

Par Players Will Do Bally In NY

A number of Paramount players will go to New York to work in connection with exploitation of forthcoming Paramount releases there. Included in the list are Ray Milland, Olivia de Havilland, Sonny Tufts, Diana Lynn, J. Carrol Naish of "A Medal For Benny" fame, Billy De Wolfe, Julie Gibson, Edith Head, fashion designer, and Lewis Allen, director.

Coulouris Gets Play

George Coulouris has acquired American rights to British play, "The Night Is Never Ending," by Parker Lipscomb, now running in London. Actor plans to produce play in this country, opening either in San Francisco or locally.

Par Preparing 22 Films For Production

New York, April 18.—Paramount is now preparing a total of 22 pictures for production, total exceeding the 19 features which have been released so far this season. Company is also at a new high on the number of features completed but not released.

"Blithe Spirit" will return here April 29 at the Biltmore theatre, under the production banner of Russell Lewis and Howard Young. Show, which has Reginald Denny, Mona Barrie and Lillian Harvey in top roles, has been on tour for four months, and leaves Detroit to return to the Coast.

RELEASE OF CAPRA'S 'WAR COMES' UP TO WASH. OFFICIALS

Washington, April 18. — Release through OWI-WAC channels of "War Comes to America," last of the Frank Capra Army orientation series is under consideration here today.

The picture traces events leading up to the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, with numerous shots of Roosevelt at important moments in his own and the nation's history. The film is a six-reeler and is actually part one, part two not having yet been completed.

If arrangements are made for theatrical release the Army will provide the footage for the prints. Whether the picture is shown theatrically or not, it will be used by the Treasury as a 16 mm. subject in the Seventh War Loan.

AUTONOMY LEADERS CITED FOR TRIAL BY IA OFFICIAL

Four leaders of the autonomy fight in the IATSE were named in charges preferred yesterday by C. B. DuVal, business representative of Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44. Irwin P. Hentschel, Gene Mailes, Jess Sapp and Romert W. Ames are cited to appear for trial May 10 before Prexy Richard Walsh, Roy Brewer, IA international representative, or whomsoever Walsh may designate to conduct the hearing.

Charges are outgrowth of meeting of IATSE rank and file recently at which Ames acted as chairman. Four also were sponsors of resolution adopted at meeting of Local 44 for members not to work outside their jurisdiction. Sapp is being urged by the rank and file to run against DuVal for business office post.

In a joint statement last night, four rank and filers declared "Walsh appears to think he is even greater than the U. S. government. We are not worried about these trumped-up charges and expect to be working in the picture industry long after Walsh has been turned out of office by his own membership."

Sondergaard Leaving On Hospital Tour

Gale Sondergaard has been set by the Hollywood Victory Committee for a three-week USO-Camp Shows tour of service hospitals. She leaves Monday, opening at Fitzsimmons General hospital at Denver, April 24. From there she will visit hospitals in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana before returning May 20. A special Camp Shows performance which had been postponed by President Roosevelt's death was given at Pasadena Regional hospital last night, with Robert Young, Harpo Marx, Connie Haines, Virginia Carroll, Muriel Goodspeed, Valentine and Evelyn and Vera Ellen in cast.

PRC CALL FILLED BY 100 SPU EXTRAS

A set at PRC calling for 100 extras was cast 100% with paid-up members of Screen Players Union yesterday, it was announced last night by Mike Jeffers, SPU business representative. Jeffers said this was the first time since SPU was certified by the National Labor Relations Board that a call had been completely filled by paid-up SPU members.

Jeffers meets with representatives of other independent studios today on demand of Conference of Studio Unions that preference in hiring of extras be given to SPU members. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, has indicated that expert technicians would not be furnished lots unless certification of SPU was recognized by indies.

MACHINISTS CRACK DOWN ON TECHNI CAMERA SERVICE

ordered out. Wayne told Shattuck that since machinists had been locked out of the studios in current strike they did not intend to service cameras going to lots.

SERVICE STUDIO CAMERAS

Union chiefs declared that 15 to 20 Technicolor cameras are sent to studios daily and said these must be serviced every 24 hours by expert technicians in order to keep them rolling. He said 18 special Technicolor cameras were sent to studios yesterday.

Move against Technicolor was ordered immediately after receipt of reports that IATSE tops and certain studio heads had persuaded some 20 toolers to report for work at a major studio today. Following an investigation, however, unionists said many of the machinists had merely made the promise in order to learn details of the move, and that none of them had any intention of working. Wayne and other union heads declared that any man crossing the picket lines never will be permitted to work on a machinist's card in the future.

Showdown on Technicolor move as well as future policies of the machinists are expected tonight at a general membership meeting of Local 1185. Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, has announced issuance of an IA charter for machinists, painters and carpenters and has been trying to recruit members. Wayne, Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other strike leaders insisted there had not been one deflection from the ranks of groups refusing to cross the picket lines. They said any man would "be foolish to accept an IA card which would limit his employment to the studios, and when he knows he would be out for good after the strike is settled."

Members of IBEW Local 18 (Department of Water and Power) refused to hook up a generator installed in the street at Columbia to furnish added power for the studio. B-18 men said they would not cross picket line.

1,250 TECHNICOLOR WORKERS

Nearly 1,250 workers are employed at Technicolor, of which some 750 are members of Walsh's Film Technicians Local 683. Union tops declared that if machinists stop all service work at the company it would be impossible to continue operating for long.

Earlier in the day F. W. Hunter, regional director of the War Manpower Commission, announced that availability referral slips will not be furnished to studio strikers or to men who are employed to take their places. Sorrell expressed satisfaction over move, declaring it prohibited hiring of men to take strikers' jobs and froze latter to the picket lines. He pointed out, however, that under the law strikers are permitted to work on outside jobs for 26-hour periods without a referral slip.

PRODUCTION CONTINUES

There was little other strike activity yesterday, with producers repeating previous announcements that production was continuing and Prexy Richard Walsh and other IATSE tops continuing their drive to recruit workers to take the place of striking employes.

Reports from the east indicated last night that the American Federation of Labor may act in the controversy without waiting for meeting of the AF of L executive council the first of May, because of the charters issued by Walsh.

STRIKE TREND CENTERED ON TECHNICOLOR

Interest in studio strike currently is centered on Technicolor, with leaders of all groups apparently watching to see if company can continue operations without key machinists. The Army stepped into the picture late yesterday during conferences at Technicolor with labor tops, but stepped right out again with announcement they "didn't think their

COLONEL PRAISES FILM SERVICE TO WAR SPOTS

New York, April 19.—Unstinted applause was given the motion picture industry today for the good it has accomplished in getting American screen product to Allied fighting men on all battlefronts by Lieut. Col. Lynn F. Cowan of the Army Engineers.

CAROUSEL

New York, April 19.—The Theatre Guild, Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein II, Rouben Mamoulian and Agnes de Mille took an encore on their smash "Oklahoma" tonight at the Majestic theatre with "Carousel." It is a lavish, tuneful, sentimental musicalization of Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom" as presented by the Guild and directed by Mamoulian.

The locale has been transmuted to New England and Jo Mielziner's imaginative sets and Miss White's lavish costumes project the romance of the impulsive carnival barker, the spieler for the carousel. The Hungarian "Liliom" is now Billy Bigelow, the carny pitchman, an impulsive, romantic, but with basic heart-of-gold, character. Role is capitally

WHILE every network and some local indies will have their key men in Frisco next week for opening of United Nations Conference, a plan of rotating the commentators and analysts has been blue-printed so as not to leave other important news beats uncovered. Earlier plans of the chains have been revised and the influx into the Bay City will be staggered over the six or eight weeks that the World Security meet will be spread. Due to the possibility of a declaration of V-E Day by the Allies and a watchfulness over President Truman's administration and cabinet changes, it is held advisable to hold back those with entree to official quarters in Washington. Those assigned to the opening day's of the session will be replaced later in the meet, with the rotation effective throughout the session. Fulton Lewis, Jr., is remaining in the capital and Paul White, CBS head of news and special events, will sit it out in New York. Local stations will have their reps on the ground and as the meet wears on replacements will be sent in to ferret out new and fresh angles. Personality copy will yield in importance only to the actual deliberations of the official delegates. Station and network chiefs are fretful over the run of copy to hold the dialer interest, the thought prevailing that big news won't break fast enough to keep the frequencies alive with the multiplicity of special programs scheduled. It's the fear of repetitious reporting that will send the correspondents scurrying for any scrap of news that might pass muster with the surfeited listeners.

Son of Lassie

(Drama)

METRO RELEASE. Producer, Samuel Marx. Director, S. Sylvan Simon. Story and screenplay by Jeanne Bartlett, based on some characters from the book, "Lassie Come Home," by Eric Knight. Photography, Charles Schoenbaum. Technicolor director, Natalie Kalmus; associate, Henri Jaffa. Musical score, Herbert Stothart. Sound, Douglas Shearer. Art direction, Cedric Gibbons and Hubert B. Hobson. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis and Paul Huldschinsky. Special effects, A. Arnold Gillespie, Warren Newcombe and Danny Hall. Costumes, Irene. Makeup, Jack Dawn. Film editor, Ben Lewis.

CAST—Peter Lawford, Donald Crisp, June Lockhart, Nigel Bruce, William "Billy" Severn, Leon Ames, Donald Curtis, Nils Asther, Robert Lewis, Fay Helm, Peter Helmers, Otto Reichow, Patricia Prest, Helen Koford, Leon Tyler, Lotta Palfi, Eily Malyon.

TRADESHOWN at Westwood Village theatre, April 11, 1945. Running time: 100 MINS.

"Son of Lassie," sequel to Metro's "Lassie Come Home," carries the same sentimental appeal to dog lovers that made "Lassie" a box office success: "Laddie," son of Lassie, is admittedly (for story purposes) not quite so bright as his mother, but actually he is a smart, handsome collie who does his acting stuff without a hitch.

The story drags in the early part and its entertainment value could be enhanced by clipping 15 or 20 minutes from the running time—mostly from the front end. Once the yarn gets under way it is a breathtaking succession of typical cliff-hanger suspense sequences. Action takes place in a scenic background that outdoes the most spectacular of travelogs and gets limit value out of Technicolor.

"Laddie's" devoted, unswerving loyalty to his master, young Joe Carraclough, played notably well by Peter Lawford, motivates the drama. The dog follows Joe into the war, repeatedly embarrasses him by showing up at the airfield and finally succeeds in stowing away in the plane when he flies a dangerous mission over Nazi-occupied Norway. He parachutes with Joe when the plane is shot down and is separated from him after landing.

Laddie's attempt to rejoin his master and Joe's efforts to escape to England via the Norwegian underground furnish melodramatic thrills from there on. The dog's unreasoning and unerring tracking of Joe repeatedly discloses the latter's whereabouts to the Nazis, but eventually they both win clear of Norway and return to their home on the estate of the Duke of Rudling.

Nigel Bruce, as the Duke of Rudling, and Donald Crisp, as Joe's father, play excellently in the same roles they had in "Lassie." June Lockhart as the Duke's daughter, in love with Joe, is convincingly a sweetheart to come home to.

Samuel Marx's production is as fortunate in this film as it was in its predecessor "Lassie," and Charles Schoenbaum's photography gets full value from the scenic grandeur of the setting.

Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman, E. R. Robinson. Editor, Fred R. Freitshans, Jr. Costumes, Vera West. Musical director, Edgar Fairchild. Musical score, Edward Ward. Dance director, Carlos Romero.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 18, 1945. Running time: 65 MINS.

There's a sarong in this one, all right, Nancy Kelly wearing it fetchingly, but that's about all to recommend film, the story a hopeless jumble of meaningless action. It's all about an adventurer who goes to a South Sea island to steal a fortune in pearls, is caught by the natives and about to be burned to death when the princess prays for a miracle and a thunderstorm handily arrives to dash out flames. Best picture can hope for is lower bracket of the duals.

Nancy Kelly plays the princess and William Gargan the adventurer, with Eddie Quillan and Fuzzy Knight tossed in as comedy relief. All try hard, but ridiculous plot, if it can be termed that, is way beyond both them and the director, Harold Young, who holds tempo at a snail's pace. There are endless moments of native girl dancing and songs which would have been old-fashioned 10 years ago, and dialog is of same vintage. George Cleveland, playing an old sea captain, is only convincing character in whole potpourri.

Gene Lewis both produced and wrote original screenplay, and Maury Gertsman turned in standard job of photographing sets designed by John B. Goodman and Harold McArthur, and decorated by Russell A. Gausman and E. R. Robinson. George Dolenz, Mariska Aldrich and Morgan Wallace round out cast.

Return of the Durango Kid

(Western with Songs)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Colbert Clark. Director, Derwin Abrahams. Original screenplay, J. Benton Cheney. Photography, Glen Gano. Film editor, Aaron Stell. Art direction, Lionel Banks. Assistant director, James Nicholson.

CAST—Charles Starrett, Tex Harding, Jean Stevens, John Calvert, Betty Roarden, Hal Price, Britt Wood, Ray Bennett, Paul Conrad.

REVIEWED at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, April 19, 1945. Running time: 58 MINS.

"Return of the Durango Kid" is standard fodder for the action trade, spinning its western melodramatics in okay fashion to garner attention of Saturday matinee audiences. There are some songs tossed in but all they serve to do is slow down proceedings as Charles Starrett goes about his business of bringing a gang of cutthroats to justice.

Starrett, as the Durango Kid, is on the trail of evidence to clear his father's name of a robbery frameup. Posing as a tenderfoot, he goes to work for a stageline that is on the verge of bankruptcy due to continuous holdups. In his daytime tenderfoot role, and as the Kid at night, Starrett starts his cleanup, robbing the crooks and returning the loot to rightful parties and otherwise conducting his own brand of terrorism against the baddies. Several good story twists in the J. Benton Cheney script add interest as the loot is jockeyed back and forth and evidence gathered to clear the Kid's father.

Jean Stevens furnishes the femme interest and has more to do than the usual sagebrush heroine. At first a member of the gang, she later swings to Durango's side in the cleanup. Tex Harding, Britt Wood and Betty Roardan are also aides to Starrett on the side of justice. John Calvert heads the heavies, including Hal Price, Ray Bennett, Paul Conrad and others.

Derwin Abrahams directed the Colbert Clark production and Glen Gano photographed.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

Finally, the Soviet makes her offensive against Berlin official. By this time the Germans have Soviet tanks within ten miles of the German capital. Now maybe they can begin to make daily claims of beating back the Russians, until they get them where they really are. That's one way to win battles, if you can't do it actually anymore. There's obvious political significance in that the first official announcement of the offensive came not from Moscow but Warsaw and told how Polish troops, along with Russian, had launched the drive. . . . Our victory in the Ruhr is one of the great ones of this war, the magnitude of which is not so apparent because it comes at a time of victory. More Germans were killed and captured in the Ruhr than even at Stalingrad, which will always be recognized as a crushing German disaster. That stands out because the Germans had been having success on the battlefield up to that time. . . . Did you note that General Bradley talks of pausing in our drive for a time now—that "there are certain times in a campaign when you are moving rapidly and you have to catch up with your supply lines and clean our your areas. I would say we have advanced to a definite line (on the Elbe) on which it is necessary to pause before starting the next operation." Don't expect V-E day too soon.

It Happened In Springfield

(Educational Short)

WARNERS RELEASE. Producer, Gordon Hollingshead. Director, Crane Wilbur. CAST—Andrea King, Warren Douglas, Charles Drake, John Qualen. REVIEWED at the Forum theatre, Los Angeles, April 18, 1945.

"It Happened In Springfield" is a short-subject delineation of the famous "Springfield plan" for promoting racial tolerance through public school education. As an attempt to dramatize a social document (always a difficult task) the picture succeeds reasonably well, especially in the first part, where delinquent juveniles, incited by what they have learned from prejudiced and hate-inspired grownups, wreck the cigar and confectionery store of the foreign-born American citizen who has been the constant friend of the neighborhood children.

John Qualen, as the storekeeper who is injured in the riot, gives an excellent performance. Andrea King gets away with a tough acting job in making the young school teacher, furthering the "Springfield plan," convincing.

She isn't helped any by the production idea showing a school teacher riding around in the type of expensive convertible usually sported by millionaires. But that can be passed over as a minor slip.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

Vinton Freedley and Horace Schmidlapp will trek to Hollywood next month to try and lure a Name personality to play opposite Jan Kiepura in co-starring with her tempermental spouse. . . . Donald Blackwell, author of "Polonaise." . . . The odds are 100 to 1 that Marta Eggerth will wind up the famous "9 Pine Street," has just completed another mystery melo, "The Annex," with Victor Payne-Jennings hottest on the trail. . . . Because Aben Kandel can't see anyone but Ruth Chatterton in the starring role of "You Only Twinkle Once," he is holding up production until "the lady says yes." . . . Everyone who sees Myrna Loy these days wants to know how she lost those pounds of "too, too solid flesh?" When she checks back on the Metro lot again, they'll change the title of her series to "The THIN Woman!" . . . Now that Harry Goetz's "I'll Be Waiting For You" has been postponed indefinitely for a complete rewrite job, Virginia Field will resume her screen career (as "Amber"?) sooner than anticipated. . . . Friends who live directly opposite Greta Garbo on the 15th floor of the Ritz Towers report that when she goes slumming with her hoi-poloi neighbors by sharing the same elevator (even if there's only one other person in it) she always stands with her face to the wall. . . . Alexander Kirland and his bridge, Phyllis Adams, are now "Mr. and Mrs. Broadway" every night over a local station. . . . Nancy Carroll was turned down for the mother role in Mary Orr and Reggie Denham's "Round Trip" because she looked too young. The part of the daughter is being played by Patricia Kirkland, whom she's old enough to have borne, 21 years ago. Nancy, instead, leaves for Toronto to play in Bob Henderson's production of "Too Many Husbands," a revival of Somerset Maugham's comedy, and NOT as popularly supposed, the saga of Peggy Hopkins Joyce!

TAYLOR-MADE GROOM: The marriage of Deems Taylor to Lucille Little, in a secret ceremony in Washington (17) came as a complete surprise to even his most intimate friends. Couple met just six weeks ago in Sarasota, Fla., when Miss Little accompanied Jimmy Stroock to the Ringling headquarters for a last minute check up on circus costumes. By that strange Kismet, Miss L. was pressed into service at the last minute because Billy Livingston, who designed the complete wardrobe, had to fulfill a coast commitment for Sonja Henie. Taylor, who was writing an original score from his "Alice In the Looking Glass" suite, was an earlier arrival. As soon as they met, it was spontaneous combustion! The bride, more than 30 years her groom's junior, is a beautiful blonde who more recently was assistant to Travis Banton in the ill-fated "Glad To See You." Person most stunned at the news was brunette Julianna Taberma, with whose name Taylor's had been linked for the past seven years.

MEMO TO CLAUDETTE COLBERT: Do you know that although there is no mention in the screen credits of "Diamond Horseshoe," this 20th Century-Fox musical is a disguised remake of the play, "The Barker," which first made Broadway conscious of the fact that not only were you a top-flight actress, but had gams equally as eye-filling as Betty Grable, who is now filling your shoes in the same part? And I don't have to remind you, do I, that it was in this same J. Kenyon Nicholson comedy drama that you fell in love with your leading man, Norman Foster, whose role is played in the picture by Dick Haymes?

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BOGEY-MAN? Pam Blumenthal, recently returned from the coast, recounts an amusing story that happened on the trip out. In Chicago, Humphrey Bogart, who had been visiting Louis Bromfield at St. Mary's, Ohio, boarded the train and immediately joined Pam and the rest of the stag line in Blumenthal's drawing room. On the first day out, it was duly noted by the all-male contingent that among the passengers on board was Kathleen Winsor. No one had even a nodding acquaintance with her, but Bogey was commissioned to invite her to join them for cocktails.

Bogey framed himself in her doorway and announced, "I hope you'll pardon the intrusion, Miss Winsor, but I am the secretary of Mr. Pam Blumenthal, who cordially extends an invitation to you to join him and some friends for cocktails in drawing room A."

Whereupon Miss Winsor, with equal dead pan, retorted, "Will you please tell Mr. Blumenthal that I shall be delighted to accept his invitation, on one condition—that he also invites Humphrey Bogart!"

IS 'IS YOU IS' STEAL OF 'IS YOU I' UP TO COURT

Song, "Is You Is Or Is You Ain't" is the basis of a plagiarism action filed in Superior court by Connie Bemis Glore, who charges tune is an infringement on plaintiff's "Is I Is Or Is I Ain't." Suit names the defendants the Leeds Music Corp., Billy Austin and Louis Jordan, composers of "Is You Is"; David Ormont and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Action, filed by Attorney J. M. Danziger, alleges that plaintiff and Ormont cleffed "Is I Is" in 1941, but that later Leeds published the "Is You Is" tune by Austin and Jordan, which uses a portion of plaintiff's lyrics and title with only slight modifications. Miss Glore asserts that Ormont has refused to join with her in suit against Leeds, etc., and was therefore made one of the defendants.

Cleffer asks for an accounting of profits and further relief as decided by the court.

METRO EXPANDS SALES ARMY; THREE NEW DISTRICTS ADDED

the post-war period, which demand the cementing of the best possible relationship between the exhibitor and the company. Move is in line with the goodwill policy fostered by Rodgers for Metro.

BERGER PROMOTED

Rudolph Berger, district manager over Washington and Charlotte, has been promoted to head the newly-created southern division sales area with headquarters in New Orleans. Pending setting up of the new districts to be created and realignments that follow, Rodgers stated he could not as yet enumerate the branches over which Berger will have jurisdiction. Unlike other companies, Metro is a firm believer in having key divisional men in the field instead of the home office, as witness Jack Flynn in Chicago and John Maloney in Pittsburgh. Both are division managers.

12 DISTRICTS SET RECORD

The 12 districts planned by Metro will be a new high for any company in the film industry. Rodgers stated that sales meetings, to be attended by himself and others from the home office as well as division, district and branch managers, will be held in various parts of the country at intervals of not less than five months in the future.

The Metro sales manager also is anxious that the company's salesmen visit with exhibitors more often, whether or not they have anything to sell at the time, with the view to getting better acquainted with exhibitor problems and accounts.

He denied report that salesmen would try to make more deals over the telephone, though this was done on a rush eight-day job recently when 11,300 contracts were closed by phone on a block of three pictures.

FEW BEEFS FROM EXHIBS

Ascribing it partly to the open-door policy which he enunciated some time ago, Rodgers stated he hasn't had 10 direct complaints from exhibitors in the past six months. He explains this to some extent by pointing out that branch managers know any exhibitor can go right to the top to his (Rodgers) door and get a hearing, thus are more determined to compose any differences with accounts themselves.

DIETZ PRAISES TRADE PRESS

Howard Dietz, who attended the luncheon, took occasion to pay tribute to the trade papers, saying that trade reporting had greatly improved and that there is less anguish over stories. The trades now reflect "solid evaluation of what constitutes news," he said. Press agents in pictures have gotten more sensible, too, Dietz added.

PAR SUIT CHARGES THEATRES WITH PCT. FRAUD

Charging fraudulent reporting of gross receipts on percentage pictures, Paramount Film Distributing Corp. has filed suit in U. S. District court in Miami, Fla., against Mrs. Fernanda Carbonell, the Strand and Monroe theatres and John Carbonell, Jr. Action is one of a few similar suits recently brought by distributors against exhibitors in other parts of the country charging fraud on percentage film reports.

Paramount asks for an audit of all books and records pertaining to gross receipts derived by plaintiffs for exhibition of former's percentage films at the Strand and Monroe theatres in Key West, Fla., and for damages.

Kennedy Short Rolling

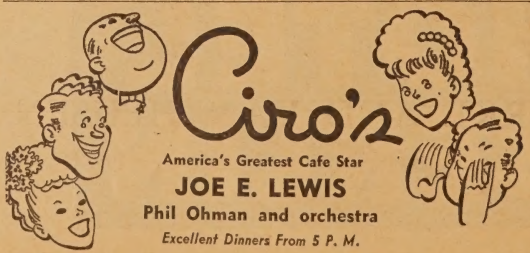
Shooting on "You Drive Me Crazy," two-reel Edgar Kennedy comedy, starts at RKO next week with George R. Bilson producing and Hal Yates directing.

Amazon Amateurs

When the gals stage fight scenes in a picture they either don't know how to pull their punches, or just don't care. Case in point was battle put on by Linda Sterling and Mary Moore, in Republic serial, "The Purple Monster Strikes." Femmes punched, scratched and clawed at each other so cociferously that both yesterday showed noticeable traces of their slugging match the day before.

Boys Choir Records For 'St. Mary's'

St. Luke's Choristers, famous boys' choir of Long Beach, will prerecord numbers for "The Bells of St. Mary's" today at RKO Radio Studios under the direction of their conductor, William Ripley Dorr, and Robert Emmett Dolan, musical director for the film. Choristers play the eighth grade graduation class in the production.



BELL AND HOWELL OFFERING STOCK TO PUBLIC

Chicago, April 19.—Bell & Howell's first public stock offering was made today on both common and preferred shares here and in New York.

At a February stockholders' meeting it was voted to issue 60,000 shares of cumulative preferred of $100 par value as well as junior stock.

Part of the proceeds will apply to the purchase of the Bell & Howell Lincolnwood Chicago plant from Defense Plant Corporation. Lincolnwood, built in 1932, has been devoted exclusively to the manufacture of cameras and projection equipment for the government and the armed services. Plant will be used in the post-war period for expansion of B & H activities.

Allied Houses Gain Two Chi Theatres

Chicago, April 19.—Booking and buying power of the Allied circuit here gained added impetus today with the announcement by Jack Kirsch, Allied prexy, that the chain had added two more theatres to its list. They are the Alma and Apollo, both South Side houses. The Alma is owned by Dan Goldman, Universal booker, and the Apollo is owned by John Krafcisin, who also owns the Cornell theatre.

Armendariz Will Do RKO Pic In Mexico

Pedro Armendariz returns to Mexico City next week to star in John Steinbeck film, "The Pearl of La Paz," for RKO. Steinbeck did the screenplay from his own story. Picture will be directed by Amelio Brandez. Actor, while in southern capital, may also do English narration for Mexican-produced "Maria Candelaria," which Metro will release in this country.

Bob Light Friscos

RKO WARDROBE IS STRIPPED IN DRIVE FOR CLOTHING

Tons of clothing from studio wardrobe departments will be contributed to the United Nations clothing collection, it was indicated yesterday when RKO indicated that 800 to 1,000 pounds of serviceable garments will be turned over from that studio alone. Similar overhaulings are expected from other studios, following announcement of Lee Goldberg of RKO, at luncheon of studio colonels at the Roosevelt hotel.

Because of interrupted activities due to the death of President Roosevelt, it was decided at yesterday's meeting to extend the collection three days so that the regular Friday report on May 4 will serve as the final check-up on the drive. The first report will be taken today, with Chairman Ginger Rogers receiving the totals from each of the studio colonels.

"Thus far," said Miss Rogers, "we have been able to judge progress only by the number of requests for pickups from the bins at the studios. Many truckloads have been taken away for processing, and indications are that both clothing and shoes are averaging high in quality. Since there are no facilities for repair of such a great quantity of stuff, everything given should be serviceable. The national committee especially desires warm clothing for babies and children. Bedding also is needed."

Metro Reported Ready To Film Scott Novels

Metro is reported planning to do a series of adventure films based on Sir Walter Scott's Waverly novels. First on the schedule is said to be "Ivanhoe" which will be followed by "Quentin Durward," "Kenilworth" and "Guy Mannering."

John Mitchell Arrested

John Mitchell, who played one of leading roles with Bette Davis in "Mr. Skeffington," was arrested yesterday on charges of his wife that he ran amuck in the dark at their home and tried to shoot her with a pistol which failed to explode. After this he smashed mirror over her dressing table, charge alleges, and then broke all windows of her car.

Carter At Casa Manana

Benny Carter takes his combo into the Casa Manana for four weekends, starting tonight. Move is Carter's first date since breaking his managerial pact with Carlos Gastel. Sepia maestro has just waxed a pair of tunes for Capitol, which are due for release shortly.

Holmes In 'Dragonwyck'

Stuart Holmes, one time star of the silent pictures and who played with Claire Whitney in the Fox picture "Life's Shop Window" in 1919, was signed yesterday for a role in "Dragonwyck" at 20th-Fox.

ARMY AND NAVY REPS JOIN IN FILM STRIKE CONFERENCE

pictures warranted asking Washington to act," according to Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

Sorrell declared that Gerald Rackett, Technicolor veepee and general manager, stated if machinists refused to service cameras company would have to shut down, but no verification was forthcoming from company execs. Some tops insisted time cameras could continue to operate was problematical, depending upon their condition.

Both Sorrell and D. T. Wayne, business representative of Cinema Lodge 1185, indicated that if any move was made to service cameras all machinists at plant would be ordered out. They said such a move would quickly shutter the plant, throwing 1,250 people out of work, including 750 members of IATSE Film Technicians Local 683.

MILITARY IN CONFAB

The Army, Navy and Signal Corps were represented at the Technicolor conference yesterday. There was some talk about taking the situation up with Washington, but Sorrell stated this could bring action only if the President called upon the producers to recognize the award of the War Labor Board arbiter on set decorators.

Sorrell declared major studios were operating at less than 10% of normal, but producers and the IATSE, which is cooperating in keeping production going, expressed satisfaction with progress being made. There were continued reports that the American Federation of Labor tops were expected to take some action over issuance of charters for painters, machinists and carpenters by Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy.

JOBS OFFERED VETS

Strike leaders declared yesterday that the IATSE was trying to recruit returning war veterans as strikebreakers, but said most of them were leaving the jobs when the situation was explained to them. Both the police department and sheriff's office have ordered an increase in the number of men assigned to strike duty as the result of flareups near several of the lots in which men hired as painters have been slugged.

Negotiations between producers and the Screen Actors Guild have been postponed two weeks because of the strike. Guild tops announced yesterday that E. J. Mannix, prexy of the Producers Association, had asked negotiations be postponed until some phases of current controversy could be cleared up.

LOCAL 44 WILL ELECT

A general membership meeting of Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44 has been called for 10 a.m. Sunday, at which time it is understood nominations for officers will be made. Rank and file are trying to agree on a single candidate in an effort to defeat Business Representative C. B. DuVal, whose claim to jurisdiction over set decorators precipitated the present walkout. Most of the rank and file leaders favor Ed Harper.

A mass meeting of all studio unionists has been called for 8 p.m. Sunday at the Hollywood Legion Stadium. A complete report on developments so far will be made by Herbert Sorrell and other strike leaders. It is probable they also will have something to say on expected action by the AF of L. A meeting of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 is set for Monday night at Carpenters Hall.

Studio machinists met last night to discuss strike situation and act on report that two members had crossed picket lines to work in a major studio. D. T. Wayne, who has been international representative during the emergency, previously had announced that charges would be preferred against any members failing to respect the picket lines. Frank White, an employee of the Mitchell Camera Co., was expelled for refusal to pay assessment.

Legit For Overseas Will Be Expanded

New York, April 19.—Lt. Col. Marvin Young of Army Special Services and Lawrence Phillips, executive v. p. of USO-Camp Shows, will discuss important post-V-E Day expansion plans for legit productions in European war theatres at emergency session with New York theatres tomorrow. Shows are being set up as a morale aid to occupation troops and those awaiting transfer to the Pacific theatre or home.

DRIVE BY AFM TO LICENSE MANAGERS IN THE OFFING

New York, April 19.—Action is expected within the next month or six weeks for licensing by the American Federation of Musicians of all personal managers. There has been no comment on the subject by union tops. It is known that blanks for the new licensing process already have been printed. The subject is a hot one and has been under consideration for some time.

During the past week there have been many rumors concerning AFM action in regard to personal managers. They involved demands the union will make upon p.m. relations with artists. They were only rumors. But they will be followed by action in the matter of licensing.

Last year, the AFM was hot on the subject. Numerous meetings occurred between union officials and a group of the most important managers. Licensing was one of the major subjects. Nothing came of the confabs, however, and nothing was heard of the situation until last week.

RADIO FACES HEADACHE OVER UN MEET REPORT

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 22.—One can't help but catch the feeling that the big chains have lost some of their early enthusiasm for blanket coverage of the conclave of nations which, it is hoped, will shape the world's destiny or at least be a start in that direction. That the pall cast over the land by President Roosevelt's death has not yet lifted can reasonably be assumed to be the main reason for the lessening of fervor.

Soon after the World Security Conference was announced for this city the networks got busy and penciled in their ace commentators and analysts. But things have happened since then, of greater moment to the mill-run of radio dialers. The President's death brought official Washington full into the national spot-

• HOLLYWOOD INSIDE •

AS exploitation stunt to keep alive interest nationally in his forthcoming production of Lloyd C. Douglas' book, "The Robe," Frank Ross is tying in with home town papers all over the country in the matter of his search for a girl to play Salome, and reaping wide benefits. Starting several months ago, when artist's conception of Salome was serviced by AP Wirephoto to all its clients, with yarn to effect Ross was searching for a girl of same type to play ancient siren role, thousands of pictures started pouring in on RKO producer, from applicants who believed they could fit into part. Following receipt of legal releases from various applicants for role, so Ross could use pictures for publicity purposes, pictures of the girls have been sent to newspapers in their home town, with result almost every one was printed, either as single shots or in form of layouts of three or more girls. Contest is still going on, with these layouts and pictorial breaks continuing.

HOLLYWOOD chose to practically ignore charges made by J. B. Priestley, British novelist, in London last week that American pictures are "trash" and "film drivel." A spokesman for the Producers Association termed Priestly's remarks as "too stupid" to require comment, while Samuel Goldwyn replied that novelist apparently doesn't know the English people very well if he fails to understand what American films have meant to them the past five years. One Hollywood film producer, who asked that his name not be used, said: "Priestley must be about ready to bring out a new book and is making a pitch for advance publicity." British writer, at a London luncheon, told those present that it made his blood boil to think of English people be obliged to "sit through trash that was never meant for them, but for school children in the Middle West," according to a press dispatch.

JOE E. BROWN has made another one of his silent exits from Hollywood and showed up in the Philippines, where, according to a letter from Lieut. Walter Rathbun, son of Spider Rathbun, comedian arrived with 45 cases of athletic equipment for boys in the islands. For past few months, Brown has been gathering funds for such recreational trappings and personally took them all the way across the Pacific to present them to American servicemen. First thing Brown did when his huge plane landed at Leyte, where equipment was unloaded, was to stage a one-man show atop the elevator. Comedian expects to be gone until late May or possibly June, entertaining GI's he loves so well.

SAM BRISKIN is dickering for film rights to Broadway hit, "Harvey," for Capra-Briskin producing concern which will become active when Col. Frank Capra is discharged from the Army. Negotiations started when Briskin was in the east some time ago, and it is understood he has a good chance of acquiring property. If deal goes through, this will mark second fantasy for Capra to resume his career with, since "The Flying Yorkshireman," slated as his first to go, also is a fantasy. New firm now is looking for a studio to purchase, so that it may have permanent headquarters.

WARNERS has a nice job awaiting, in the casting of "The Fountainhead," best-seller by Ayn Rand. Book had 12 principal characters and all are being written into screenplay, each requiring a top name player. With Selznick's "Since You Went Away" holding a record thus far in matter of star names in a dramatic production—seven players were starred—almost double this number must be set for "Fountainhead," either star names or top featured prominence. Studio plans to have record number of steller personalities in this one.

WARREN MADE STAR OF ZANE GREY PIX

James Warren will take over star role in RKO's Zane Grey western series, succeeding Robert Mitchum who has just been inducted into Army and is now at Fort MacArthur awaiting camp assignment. Mitchum had completed two of series of eight, "Nevada" and "West of the Pecos," before induction.

Warren, recently signed to term contract by RKO after a year at Metro, will go into "Wanderer of the Wastelands" as his first picture in series. He currently is playing movie cowboy in studio's "Ding Dong Williams," and will start Grey picture immediately he winds up role.

Sacramento, April 22.—Polack Bros. indoor circus broke its own attendance record on its 10th annual Sacramento showing by grossing $40,000 and drawing approximately 50,000 persons during 20 performances here April 6-15. Gross last year was $32,000.

place and shooting is halted meanwhile.

Statement issued by the studio said Madison and De Sylva "were in full accord" and that De Sylva had tried vainly to persuade the director to continue on the job.

"Interference from a number of sources has made my position untenable," Madison insisted. "My work was being hampered continually by too many persons who were trying to direct the picture with me."

This was his first major feature length directing job at Paramount where he has previously directed shorts.

The Missing Corpse

(Comedy Melodrama)

PRC RELEASE. Producer, Martin Mooney. Director, Albert Herman. Screenplay, Raymond L. Schrock. From story by Harry O. Hoyt. Photography, James Brown. Art director, William A. Calihan, Jr. Set decorator, Harry Reif. Costumes, Mona Barry. Editor, W. Donn Hayes. Music, Karl Hajos.

PREVIEWED in Hollywood, Calif., April 20, 1945. Running time: 62 MINS.

"The Missing Corpse" is gusty comedy—it seem's there's a body—which should prove acceptable to PRC audiences. Practically in sleeper class, its action has been limned with deft, albeit broad direction, and there's evidence that budget was wisely expended where it would be most effective. Film is badly handicapped by lack of names, however, which necessarily must keep it in secondary position on the marquees.

J. Edward Bromberg, in leading role, plays a newspaper publisher who publicly threatened to kill a racketeering rival publisher. Leaving with his chauffeur, Tom Jenks, on a vacation at his lodge, he discovers the body of the racketeer in the back of his automobile, and thereafter premise revolves around where's-the-body, Jenks removing it from room to room as publisher's family arrives on scene.

Bromberg is properly effective as nonplussed publisher, and Jenks gets a lot of laughs in his efforts to help his boss. Whatever liberties may have been taken with the plot are in the interests of greater entertainment, and entire cast fits in with the mood intended. Isabel Randolph is co-featured with Bromberg, and Paul Guilfoyle plays the murdered man, whom Ben Welden, in neat characterization, killed and placed in Bromberg's car. Rest of cast is satisfactory.

Albert Herman's direction holds to fast pace and Martin Mooney, in producer's seat, may take a bow for a comedy well done in all departments. Screenplay by Raymond L. Schrock, from story by Harry O. Hoyt, is well done, and Karl Hajos' musical score accentuates the feeling throughout length of film.

Eve Knew Her Apples

(Comedy With Songs)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Wallace MacDonald. Director, Will Jason. Screenplay, E. Edwin Moran. Story, Rian James. Photography, Burnett Guffey. Film editor, Jerome Thoms. Art director, Carl Anderson. Set decorations, Louis Diage. Sound engineer, H. Fogetti. Assistant director, Ray Nazarro.

CAST—Stars Ann Miller, with William Wright, Robert Williams, Ray Walker, Charles D. Brown, John Eldredge, Eddie Bruce.

REVIEWED at Grauman's Chinese, Hollywood, April 20, 1945. Running time: 63 MINS.

"Eve Knew Her Apples" could be sub-titled "It Happened One Night," but isn't intended to duplicate the success of that Academy Awards winner. Aimed for slotting as a program musical, "Eve" will serve okay in that classification. Production gets the most values for the budget and direction keeps things moving. There are only a couple of spots where situation gets out of hand, one being the trend toward serious romantic chit-chat in the haystack sequence, but otherwise every intended release purpose is capably served.

Story is credited to Rian James and the script to E. Edwin Moran, but someone apparently peeked at "It Happened." Despite a few twists on the sequence of situations, etc., the resemblance to the hit film can't be escaped. As set up this time, plot concerns a femme radio singer who seeks to get away for a 13-week vacation without discovery. She joins with a reporter for the flight and practically all the things that happened in the Colbert-Gable success are duplicated, particularly as "Eve" draws to a conclusion.

Ann Miller is spotlighted with five songs, but does not dance. Tunes are good and her comedy playing neatly presented. William Wright does well by the reporter assignment. Ray Walker's role of Miss Miller's manager parallels the late Walter Connolly's part in "It Happened." Robert Williams, singer's press agent; Charles D. Brown, John Eldredge, Eddie Bruce and others perform expertly under Will Jason's direction. The Bruce role is a copy of the Roscoe Karns spot in "It Happened," wherein Gable frightened off the would-be blackmailer with gangster talk.

Production guidance of Wallace MacDonald marshals workmanlike technical factors, including photography by Burnett Guffey and others.

Daff is expected to go to North Africa, Greece and several other European countries before returning to the U. S.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The Drew Pearson story saying our forces were withdrawn from Berlin suburbs at the request of the Russians is probably correct. Another story over AP wires from the European front by Wes Gallagher tends to corroborate it. Pearson leaves the impression that the main reason for our withdrawal was political but the military may have been predominant. Both forces could enter Berlin and fight there at the same time if they were under one command, but they are not and Russians might conceivably have been shooting at Americans. Some military line had to be drawn and the Elbe as the American-British occupation boundary line and as a definite natural line was most logical. There may have been other aspects in that Stalin has not lost his distrust of some of our moves any more than we have lost distrust of some of his. That goes both ways, though we may tend to forget that sometimes it creates our most difficult road block on the highway to cooperation for peace, but it is not impassable. It's to get it out of our path that we're working so hard now in the Washington preliminary to the opening of the San Francisco conference.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

There seems to be a prevailing opinion among smart program men that the small stations are making a mistake in hopping on the Frisco bandwagon. Naturally they want to show their initiative and enterprise, and you can't knock that, but the public soon tires of the same air diet as was evident during the recent mourning period for the President. Not that the pattern of what transpired at Frisco will be inviolable and all-inclusive but the network coverage and that spun from the news printers will get over the ground like the dew covers Dixie. What comes out of Frisco will be terribly important to every man, woman and child but radio has come to be looked upon, first as an entertainment medium and secondly for what information and education can be gained by an ear to the speaker. Take away the public's entertainment and there'll be squawks. For that reason we believe that the indies should play it safe and interrupt their regular schedules only for special news periods. If the meet runs its full course of six weeks there is bound to be a lagging interest on the home set front. It will be pretty heavy stuff coming out of the international gabfest and devotees of music and comedy would rather hear the words put to music or quipped.

The break between Cal Kuhl and Milton Biow is now official and he winds up his affairs with the agency June 1 when his second yearly contract comes to an end. For weeks on end both Kuhl and Biow denied reports of ruptured relations but the trade knew different when Stan Joseloff was brought over from the Blue at a reputed salary of $40,000 per annum. Biow might still be denying it in New York, but over the weekend Kuhl issued a statement that he was through when his contract is up and that he would henceforth free lance as producer.

STATION BREAKS . . . If you have an idea on how to work Elsie the Cow into a comedy show get it over quick to Glen Taylor at Y & R. Borden is mooing like mad to make a radio personality out of its trade-marked milk run. . . . Dave Broekman fathered a lad in New York last week. Other three children are gals. . . . Have you noticed Major Bowes' Hooperating lately? It's still true about Tennyson's brook? . . . Abe Burrows is quitting Ed Gardner again. He's got the picture-writing bug and if a deal is worked out he won't be back. Otherwise, what do you think? After seven years as Archie's head writer he feels that he's been to the well too often. . . . Ralph Edwards will go gunning only for the $25 bond buyers when the next war loan drive starts. To date he has generated the sale of $400,000,000 of the E series and hopes to add another $25,000,000 on his coast tour of 30 cities. He was cited in the last drive by the Treasury Department for being radio's outstanding bond salesman. . . . Bud Berend's NBC pin-up station is KOH, Reno—something for clients to pin to their budgets. . . . Long years of faithful service brought a fitting reward to A. M. "Tony" Quinn, who has been elevated by Lewis Allen Weiss to the post of secretary-treasurer and given a place on the Don Lee board. He succeeds E. W. Bolter. . . . Vic McLeod's "Purple Heart Theatre" will be auditioned this week. It gives war vets in hospitals a well deserved break.

Down in McKinney, Texas, where the Army Air Forces are nursing back to health 2,000 battle-scarred war veterans in the Ashburn General hospital, the lads are a little put out because of being passed up by radio shows and other entertainment projects from Hollywood. That makes it a little rough on one of the patients, Maj. Terry Hunt, who, before the war ran a string of health clubs here. "Why don't we get some of the big shots you know out here?" They twit him. They hear shows broadcast from convalescent centers around the country, but none has ever originated there. How about it, fellows? Patients at McKinney run to better than 80% overseas casualties.

What has all the earmarks of smart showmanship is the doubling up by Durante-Moore and Danny Kaye on that hour spread over CBS. One following the other, making it a perfect setup for a running gab, a device has been created that may be good for remainder of the season. Mysterious disappearance of Umbriago sets the scene on the Rexall program and after the station break the cue is picked up by Kaye, who goes Sherlocking for radio's "Harvey." The big myth hunt starts April 27 and the gagmen of both shows will keep it rolling. It's a pleasant relief from phoney feuds and insults and may yet develop into the best stunt of the season.

HITCH HIKES . . . Nate Tufts of R & R has definite assurance from his New York office that Auto-Lite is not flirting with Frank Morgan even though Dick Haymes' 26-week renewal takes him up to September. . . . C. P. MacGregor's wax works turned out its 100,000th disc last week. He's been making masters since 1929 and has the most extensive library in the transcription field. . . . That's quite a novel booklet Bill Burton and William Morris put out to help sell the Charlie Kemper show. . . . Ray Morgan's "Murder Is My Hobby" bows on KHJ-Don Lee Sunday night. Wally Ramsay produces from Richard Wilkinson's script. . . . It's a nice gesture by Bill Ryan to let KMTR use the KFI line from Frisco twice a day. . . . Mantan (Moreland) and Benjamin (Carter) drop off the Bob Burns show Thursday and go theatre touring. . . . Bert Praeger has two Sam Jaffee packages ready for audition, one starring Hugh Herbert in the Milt Gross strip, "That's My Pop," and other Mary Astor as a Hollywood trade paper publisher. He'll produce both. . . . Humphrey Bogart will be starred in "Moontide" on Lux April 30.

FCC WILL SURVEY LISTENING OUTSIDE TOP SERVICE SPOTS

Washington, April 22. — Federal Communications Commission will survey the amount and kind of radio listening outside the primary service areas. The information will be used in connection with the hearings on whether to make clear-channel stations share their channels. One of the principal arguments against clear-channel outlets has been that many areas, not now receiving proper radio service, could be aided by placing additional broadcasters on the present clear channels.

The radio industry will take part in the survey and is urging that it also include listening inside as well as outside of primary areas.

FCC has proposed sending out about 200,000 mail questionnaires which would be supplemented by personal interviews in from 50 to 70 typical rural counties.

Reinsch Leaves Truman For Return To Radio

Washington, April 22.—J. Leonard Reinsch, NAB director and manager of the James Cox Radio Stations, who had been named President Truman's press and radio aide, has left the White House after a few days service to return to Florida bossing the Cox stations. Truman announced Friday that he had received a wire from Cox in which the latter explained that he needed Reinsch and asking the President to release him.

HAYS SAYS AMERICA WILL MEET TEST OF VICTORY

Indianapolis, April 22.—That we have met magnificently the challenge of total war, and will measure up to the challenge of total victory, was the prediction of Will H. Hays in his talk here tonight.

He spoke before the Indiana Council of Foreign Relations and Foreign Policy Association of Indiana, and his prediction referred to the San Francisco United Nations Conference.

Hays referred to what happened after the first World War, and said that there is a golden opportunity offered at this forthcoming confab to redeem the terrifying fact of two world wars by taking steps to prevent another.

"The sudden death of our late Commander-in-Chief," he said, "adds another dimension to the Conference. Franklin Delano Roosevelt died on the field of battle—not merely the battle for victory, but the battle for peace—just as surely as any soldier on Iwo Jima or the Rhine. To every American, his death symbolizes the terrible sacrifices of war. It underlines our determination that these sacrifices shall not prove in vain."

FILM PRODUCTION ON UPBEAT; 28 PICTURES BEFORE CAMERAS

With the studio strike going into its seventh week, major producers announced last night that production still is increasing and that "it is now possible to plan ahead with reasonable certainty." Herbert Sorrell and other strike leaders insisted, however, that shooting is far below normal and many of the lots are merely "going through the motions."

Producers issued the following statement:

"Production at the major studios again shows an increase at the end of the sixth week of the strike. Twenty-eight pictures were before the cameras on Saturday, three more than were in work at the end of the previous week. Three pictures also were completed during the week just ended, and four new features will go into production today and tomorrow.

PLANNING AHEAD

"It is now possible to plan ahead with reasonable certainty. While the nuisance value of the strike continues, sets are being built, production is uninterrupted and working conditions are approaching more closely to normal daily.

"The producers regard the situation with added confidence, and they renew their pledge to keep the studios operative at the highest possible level."

Unionists attending a mass meeting last night at the Hollywood Legion Stadium were given a different picture, though, by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other labor tops.

3,000 CHEER VICTORY CLAIM

Nearly 3,000 unionists attending Legion meeting cheered loudly when Frank Drdlik, prexy of Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421 declared, "Don't let anyone tell you this strike has reached an impasse. We are right on the brink of a smashing victory. It may come within the next week or it may take longer, but you may be certain of one thing, we are going to win.

"There are a lot of movements, particularly nationally, that are in our favor. Frank Pestana, our attorney, and Ed Mussa, our business representative, are now on their way to Washington for a hearing before the National Labor Relations Board on April 26. In addition, the international presidents of the various unions affected by issuance of charters by the IATSE are getting ready to take some action."

Plans to use wives of striking workers on the studio picket lines was disclosed by Herbert Sorrell. Prexy of Conference of Studio Unions said one wife had already asked if she could substitute while her husband worked outside the studios and her request had been approved. He declared any wives who desired could replace their husbands on the picket lines while they took employment on the outside.

Sorrell declared "we have just had a pretty good week, at least we think so. The War Manpower Commission refused the producers request to throw open the gates on availability certificates so anyone they could persuade to take a job could have been herded into the studios. The WMC said they would not issue availability certificates to anyone leaving the studios or any new employes."

Sorrell told of pulling the key machinists at Technicolor, said it was hoped the strike could be won without closing Technicolor, but that if it became necessary it could be done at any time.

Sorrell announced that the heads of all International unions involved in the current controversy are sending representatives and legal council to Washington for the NLRB hearing and that later this week they will take up the question of charters being issued by the IATSE for carpenters, machinists and painters.

HEAD SAYS PRODS CONFUSED

Carl Head, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644, told the audience "The producers are in the most complete stage of disunity. They are paying six to seven times above normal costs for uncompleted and unshowable pictures. Millions are being tossed away to satisfy the whims of a very few producers."

Roy Tindall, assistant business representative of IBEW Local 40, declared there are 58,800 IBEW members in California alone and that they are 100% behind the strikers. He said that if by any stretch of imagination the strike should be lost in Hollywood, "it would just begin for us throughout the country."

Other speakers included B. T. Wayne, business representative of Machinists Local 1185; Thomas Ranford, head of the district council of Painters; Joseph C. Whitman, executive secretary of Engineers and Architects; Ed Boyle, a set decorator, Leslie Thomas an illustrator and Mike Jeffers, business representative of Screen Players Union.

U STARTING THREE PIX FOR 6 IN WORK

With trio of pictures slated to go before cameras this morning, Universal will have six productions in work, three already being in various stages of completion.

Starting today are "Frontier Gal," co-starring Yvonne de Carlo and Rod Cameron, a Technicolor production; "On Stage, Everybody," with Jack Oakie, Peggy Ryan and Johnny Coy, and "Uncle Harry," teaming George Sanders and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

Currently shooting are "Lady On a Train," "Hear That Trumpet Talk" and the serial, "Secret Agent X-9."

TED TAYLOR QUITS AS FLACKS BIZ MGR.

Ted Taylor resigned over the weekend as business manager of Screen Publicists Guild. Taylor said he was leaving the post to become editor of a new studio union publication due out May 8. Before being elected business manager two years ago, Taylor served two terms as Treasurer of the Guild.

Producer Bill Thomas will direct "No Escape," starring Robert Lowry.

TOP PIC STARS SIGN PLEDGES TO MAKE HOSPITAL TOURS

One hundred twenty-five film stars signed pledge cards calling for at least a four weeks' tour of military hospitals every year, last night at a mass meeting of more than 100 members of the Screen Actors Guild at the Beverly Hills hotel. They also promised to do overseas tours when possible.

The meeting was called by a SAG committee composed of Prexy George Murphy, Edward Arnold, Jane Wyman, Harpo Marx, Walter Pidgeon, James Cagney and Anne Revere.

Murphy, who chairmaned the meeting, stressed the fact that the actor's obligation to cooperate in the war effort would get greater as the war drew to a close. Following the announcement that a signed agreement had been obtained from the major producers which would effectively guarantee the availability of contract players, pledge cards calling for specific commitments for hospital visits were circulated.

Kenneth Thomson, chairman of the Hollywood Victory Committee and former executive secretary of SAG, outlined the growing need for well-known figures in the entertainment business to visit Army and Navy hospitals. He declared top personalities also would be needed to entertain those who after V-E day will be left overseas to staff the army of occupation.

It is understood meeting was arranged after a direct plea from Army and Navy tops for more name players for the hospital circuits. It was pointed out that these tours are even more important than the usual entertainment junkets and every member was urged to contribute at least four weeks of his or her time during the next 12 months.

Tufts, Walburn, Stewart Set For USO Tours

Sonny Tufts, Ray Wilburn, Margie Stewart and Ruthe Brady have been set by the Hollywood Victory Committee for USO Camp Shows tours of Army and Navy hospitals.

Walburn planes out today to join a Camp Shows unit at Camp Crowder, Mo., on Thursday. He will tour Missouri hospitals through May 5, returning to Hollywood May 7. The two girls leave Wednesday to open that day at Barnes General hospital at Vancouver. They will tour hospitals in Washington and Oregon through May 9.

Tufts, who is billed for personal appearances in New York next month, is scheduled for three weeks of hospital visits enroute back to the Coast. Starting May 22 at Danville, Ky., he will visit Nashville and Memphis, Tenn.; Hot Springs, Ark., and El Reno, Okla., appearing at eight Army, Navy and Air Force installations.

COL NET DROPS A BIT FOR HALF YEAR; IS $2.21 A SHARE

New York, April 22.—Tapering off of operating profit during final six months of 1944 is reflected in Columbia Pictures' net profit for first 26 weeks of corporation's fiscal year which ended last Dec. 30.

Columbia's net profit for 26-week period was $950,000, as against $955,000 a year ago. Operating profit was $2,125,000, compared with $3,065,000 in corresponding period a year ago. This equals $2.21 per share as against $2.33 year ago.

Company's estimated provision for Federal taxes, including excess profits tax, also declined, being $1,175,000 as against $2,110,000 year before.

It is noted that estimated provision for Federal taxes for the two quarters ending last Dec. 30 includes provision for income taxes of Columbia Pictures International Corp., which handles product to all foreign countries except Canada, but not for Federal excess profits taxes.

WB Publishes Booklet For 'Springfield'

Warners, in plugging "It Happened In Springfield," two-reeler for promotion of racial tolerance through public school education, has put out 20-page brochure, with articles contributed by large number of national educators. Booklet will be distributed nationally, to schools, universities, civic and social groups interested in modern educational methods.

'Guest' For Carthay

Seein' Double

Permission to process with new Mardovan patented method will be on a lease basis, agency states. Principle involves printing and/or photographing two images in space of one 35 mm. frame, with 2000 feet of picture actually appearing on 1000 feet of film.

REPUBLIC READIES TRIO FOR EARLY PRODUCTION

Republic has three pictures to go before the cameras immediately the strike is lifted. "Love, Honor and Good-Bye," which was to have started March 15 and had sets almost completed, may roll next Monday, regardless of the strike. This won't be definite until later in the week, however.

"Mexicana," a below-the-Border musical, is ready and sets can be built within 48 hours after picket lines are withdrawn, according to Al Santell, who will produce and direct the film as first effort under his new Republic contract.

William K. Howard's "A Guy Could Change" is in comparable status. Next Al Pearce show, still untitled, which William Beaudine will direct, also is nearing completion, and should get starting gun few days after strike ends.

Gortatowsky King Top

J. D. Gortatowsky has been appointed president of King Features Syndicate and International News Service, succeeding Joseph V. Connolly, who died last week. Gortatowsky also will continue as general manager of Hearst newspapers.

Radio Network Plugs

Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being LISTED ALPHABETICALLY, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.

RADIO FACES HEADACHE OVER UN MEET REPORT

light, with the changes that are expected to be wrought by the new chief executive. Higher still on the public's priority is the war itself, with the imminence of V-E Day in Europe and a shift of power to the Pacific. Then it dawned on the network chiefs that they might be caught with all their eggs in one basket. That called for a reshuffle of personnel and those originally assigned to the Frisco meet have dwindled both numerically and in prestige personality.

LOT OF COOKS FOR BROTH

But don't get us wrong. There'll be more than enough to go around, but the boys are beginning to wonder whether they won't get in each other's way. That the news won't break fast enough to keep them all hopping they know, but what happens after the first week has them worried. Some of the old hands who have covered peace meets before say that the big breaks will come the first week, and after that the handouts will be in innocuous dribbles.

What's worrying the chain special events and news chiefs even more is overloading the lines with lofty talk and opinions of world affairs that will bounce off most eardrums without sinking in. That's fatal for a sustained audience, and unless the broadcasts can be made interesting as well as informative, the Hooper will droop and dials will spin to more appetizing fare. The big earache will come when some of the favorite programs are canceled or interrupted for some high-domed palaver by a visiting delegate. Squawks will pile up if any of the homemakers are denied their crying operas and instead have to listen to some statesman punching away at the Polish question.

BLITZ OF AIRWAYS

Set schedules will look like a street in Cologne after the network lads get to battling over beats. With four of the big chains grabbing off dignitaries, no holds barred, the big item will be the speed and dispatch with which they waltz them up to the mikes before they're grabbed off by a competing web. "Get 'em and get 'em on fast" will be the motto of the webs, more so with the Blue and Mutual, which are out to make a rep for themselves. They'll bear watching, and the old standbys, NBC and CBS, will have to be on their toes lest they get them stepped on.

The man who pays the bills for the shows you like will get a pretty pushing around. How else can the chains, which have been practically sold out for so long, make time available?

THREE OR FOUR HOURS DAILY

It is safe to assume that at least three or four hours a day will be consumed by the Frisco coverage or what are all those fellows doing here? That means that huge chunks will be dredged from sponsored time, and if one client gets clipped more than another there'll be plenty of beefs to square. The big spenders have been through one commercial blackout without complaint, but they won't be too elated at having five minutes chewed off here and there, just enough to put a damper on a comedy show or send the dialers cruising. Full program will have to be lopped to take care of the slew of commentators, analysts and visiting firemen from the far corners of the earth.

The nets and those indies covering the meet will no doubt cover every phase of the conference and win plaudits in high places for exemplary public service, but there'll hover over them the bogey of going overboard. The first week will be the measuring rod, and we can look for a severe tapering off after that. The congestion at the Palace and other hotels, where press and radio are quartered, will ease somewhat and the big names will start calling for train and plane reservations.

SHOWS MOVE TO FRISCO

Wisely some of the shows are being routed to Frisco for broadcast from the livest dateline city in the world. Naturally the commentators will do their regular programs from the Golden Gate, but many others have caught the spirit. It's a good idea to let the foreign delegates see how a show is actually broadcast, as we must come to expect that after the war international hookups won't be as fantastic then as they seem now. Radio can do what pictures can't—take the studios to them.

Lee and Dietz, Hit Frisco For UN Chores

San Francisco, April 22.—Claude Lee, director of public relations for Paramount, and Howard Dietz, chairman of the picture industry's planning committee on activities in Frisco, arrived over the weekend. They came in on a special press train which also brought to town Claude Collins, in charge of supplementary newsreel coverage and editing of the United Nations composite newsreel. Glen Allvine, who'll assist Lee, and Fay Reeder, chairman of operating committee for United Nations Theatre, arrived last week.

representative for the local office, on grounds of inefficiency. Shelvey reportedly asked that Beckford be kept on the payroll until such time as a hearing could be held.

Hearing came up during Shelvey's stay here and Miss Bale claims that at that time Beckford brought papers into the hearing which were confidential files from her own desk, which Beckford had no right to have. As a result of the hearing Beckford was reinstated and Miss Bale offered her resignation reportedly on the grounds that she would not work in the same office with Beckford. Shelvey accepted the resignation Friday.

Members of the AGVA advisory committee here held a meeting last Friday night and agreed to petition the Four A's to have Miss Bale reinstated. Those attending the meeting were Frank Yaconelli, chairman; Robert Ross, Evelyn Iles, Dick Worthington, Vi Barlow and others of the group.

Immediately following the committee's huddle, Bill Benter, also a business representative for the local office, tendered his resignation to Shelvey.

11,000 POUNDS OF CLOTHING GIVEN FOR RELIEF

A total of 11,081 pounds of used garments and shoes have been contributed through the film industry to the United National Clothing Collection, according to detailed reports received from studios over the weekend.

"Although the amount is somewhat disappointing," said Chairman Ginger Rogers, "figures from a few of the studios are very encouraging and show what can be done by organized effort. For instance, 20th-Fox turned in 3,600 pounds, while some other large lots contributed only a few hundred. Our job now is to push the collection wherever it is lagging.

"We have nearly two weeks left to remind industry workers that their used clothing is just as important in saving lives as the money which they have given so generously."

Second highest studio poundage was 1,377, from RKO. Columbia was third with 1,250, and Universal sent in 1,143. Warners and Paramount were in the 800 bracket, followed by Disney. Metro turned in only 450 pounds.

NSS Sued For $63,000 Over Trailer Idea

Seattle, April 22.—George Mitchell, a Spokane resident, has sued National Screen Service Corp. for $63,000 in an action filed in Federal Judge John C. Bowen's court here. Mitchell alleges the corporation adopted and distributed a motion picture trailer for New Year's greeting which he originated, without his permission. The trailer, in which the image of a ticking watch was projected upon theatre screens at 11:59 p.m. on New Year's Eve, then faded out with an explosive "Happy New Year" at midnight, was displayed in approximately 18,000 theatres throughout the nation, the complaint alleges. The trailer was distributed by the corporation at a fee of $6 per theatre, paid by a national watch company whose name was displayed prominently on the face of the watch, says Mitchell.

Madru was credited with having obtained spectacular footage of fighting in the streets of Paris shortly before the arrival of Allied troops there.

20,000 AT BOWL JOIN SHOW FOLK IN TRIBUTE TO FDR

Hollywood show folk joined with the political figures, public officials, civic and religious leaders and just plain people of Los Angeles county last night in dramatic tribute to the memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. A near-capacity audience—probably close to 20,000—attended the ceremonies.

It was an audience keyed to the theme of the program, which stressed the passing of the late president as the loss of an intimate, kindly friend. The fact that that friend was also a national and world leader received due recognition from local officialdom participating. But the show people pointed their contribution to the memorial with their more intimate, personal recollections of the departed executive.

It was Federal Judge J. F. T. O'Connor, in a brief address, who keynoted the observance with his Riskin, who was a prominent screen writer and producer previous to joining the OWI in 1942, did not reveal his future plans. His scripting credits include "Lost Horizon," "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town," "You Can't Take It With You" and "Meet John Doe," on all of which he was associated with Producer-Director Frank Capra.

WITH Popular's "Ten Little Indians" in the can and being prepped for early preview, inside story of how Harry Popkin and Edward Peskay came to take over property can be told. Popkin had gone to New York to talk production and distribution deal with Peskay when word seeped through that "Indians" was toppling in its teepee, with the company about to fall apart. Idea of acquiring property came to a head after Popkin's return here. Peskay was in Lee Shubert's New York office discussing purchase of screening rights to Agatha Christie's mystery thriller when Shubert, on strength of advices from the Coast, started the nix on proposition, saying "money talks." Peskay long-distanced Popkin from Shubert office. Popkin went across street to his bank and within 35 minutes the Bankers Trust Co. notified Shubert that $175,000 had been deposted to his account. That was before any documents had been signatured, but whole deal moved fast from there.

WHAT probably constitutes a distance record for reverse dolly shots was made yesterday, when cameraman Joseph Valentine kept his lenses moving backward for 212 feet, with his lights following him, for a sequence for International's "Tomorrow Is Forever." Unbroken, long-distance scene shows Orson Welles and George Brent entering a mansion, strolling through four rooms, which covered two connecting sound stages on the Samuel Goldwyn lot, and coming to a halt as they greet Claudette Colbert. Rehearsal of the electricians operating the arcs required almost as much time as was needed to put the actors through their preliminary paces, for, in order to eliminate shadows in the background, it was necessary to have the switching on and off of the lights keep even pace with the cameras.

Escape In the Desert

WARNERS RELEASE. Producer, Alex Gottlieb. Director, Edward A. Blatt. Screenplay by Thomas Job. Adapted by Marvin Borowsky from play by Robert E. Sherwood. Photography, Robert Burks. Art director, John Hughes. Sound, Charles Lang. Dialog director, Jesse Hibbs. Special effects, Willard Van Enger. Set decorations, Clarence Steensen. Music, Adolph Deutsch. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Assistant director, Bill Kissel. Orchestral arrangements, Jerome Moross. Film editor, Owen Marks.

CAST — Jean Sullivan, Philip Dorn, Irene Manning, Helmut Dantine, Alan Hale, Samuel S. Hinds, Bill Kennedy, Kurt Kreuger, Rudolph Anders, Hans Schumm, Blayney Lewis.

TRADESHOWN at Forum theatre, Los Angeles, April 18, 1945. Running time: 81 MINS.

"Escape In the Desert" is the result of an apparent Warners conviction that if a play property is good enough for one picture it is good enough for another. Although the credit lines mention only a "play by Robert Sherwood" without mentioning the title there is all too much evidence that the play in question is "The Petrified Forest."

So you can figure this as another variation of "The Petrified Forest" with more corn among the cactus, escaped Nazi prisoners instead of an American gangster and more propaganda in the melodrama. Also a definite reduction in entertainment value.

Jean Sullivan is shown as the girl who wants to get away from the sand and sagebrush. And after the film has dragged along through the desert for a while the audience is ready to go with her any time.

The picture opens with some rather unnecessary shots of Philip Dorn in an airplane and in New York which serve to establish him the hard way as a Dutch flier. The story begins haltingly somewhat later when Dorn, a lone stranger at the crossroads, hitch-hikes a ride from Samuel S. Hinds as Gramp, proprietor of the Last Chance motel. Gramp mistakes him for one of a group of escaped Nazi prisoners, drives him at the point of a gun to the motel and calls the authorities. He learns his mistake before the sheriff arrives. Dorn is forced to wait around for a lift to the coast. Romance develops between him and Jean, but it never becomes quite clear whether the tender episodes are motivated by disinterested love or Jean's desire to get someone to take her out of the desert.

Eventually the real Nazi prisoners arrive in a stolen truck. They take over the motel, hold Gramp, his little grandson (Blayney Lewis), Philip, Jean and Hank Albright (Bill Kennedy) captive and wait for the weekly supply of gasoline to arrive so they can refuel and continue their flight. Helmut Dantine, Kurt Kreuger, Rudolph Anders and Hans Schumm do as good an acting job as the Nazis, probably, as loose scripting and direction will let them. Attempts to make them too obviously nasty and Nazis dull the thrills of the melodramatic gun and fist fighting that brings the picture to a close with the Nazis dead, Philip Wounded and Jean still in the desert.

Alan Hale as Dr. Orville Tedder, a quack dentist, and Irene Manning as Mrs. Tedder, suddenly appear in the story for no apparent reason except that the producer justifiably felt the need for some comedy relief. They drop out of the action just as abruptly.

Alex Gottlieb, as producer, and Edward A. Blatt, as director, seemed to suffer from uncertainty as to whether they were trying to turn out drama or ideology.

Film Review

Rough, Tough and Ready

(Comedy Drama)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Alexis Thurn-Taxis. Director, Del Lord. Original screenplay, Edward T. Lowe. Photography, George Meehan. Editor, Richard Fantl. Art director, Walter Holscher. Set decorations, Louis Diage. Technical advisor, Lieut. Forrest E. Jones.

CAST—Co-stars Chester Morris and Victor McLaglen. Supporting players: Jean Rogers, Veda Ann Borg, Amelita Ward, Robert Williams, John Tyrrell, Fred Graff, Addison Richards, William Forrest, Tex Harding, Loren Tindall, Bob Meredith, Ida Moore, Blackie Whiteford.

REVIEWED at Hollywood Pantages theatre, April 23, 1945. Running time: 66 MINS.

Old familiar story of friendly rivals trying to cut into each other's amours is caught again in this Columbia programmer which uses Army Engineers Salvage Division for background. Film is strictly routine stuff, pairing Chester Morris and Victor McLaglen as deepsea divers, but is okay for the duals.

Morris, co-owner with Jean Rogers of a marine salvage company, shares his apartment with McLaglen, latter finding gal friends and Morris copping 'em. Morris' outfit is accepted for duty by the Army, and after an orientation course he returns on eve of sailing for far Pacific, this time innocently moving in on McLaglen and breaking up their friendship. They go to an island near Japan for salvage work, Jap Zeros attack and McLaglen is caught on sea bottom, his air lines snarled by shifting wreckage. Morris heroically goes down to save him, and film ends suddenly with pair back home.

Two stars perform convincingly enough, but do plenty of mugging which Del Lord in his direction apparently makes no effort to hold down. Jean Rogers offers a nice characterization of a girl in love with Morris, and Veda Ann Borg likewise does neat bit of impersonating, remainder of cast striking an even balance. Under Alexis Thurn-Taxis' producership, various technical departments also level off satisfactorily.

FILMS AND RADIO TO SHOW GERMANY NAZI ATROCITIES

Washington, April 23.—Films and radio will play a prominent part in hammering home to the German people the atrocities now being disclosed, OWI Chief Elmer Davis told a press conference today upon his return from overseas. He promised that the Germans will see and hear plenty on the subject, and said OWI expects to send newsreels into the area of the atrocities.

Davis said the French are seeing only old Hollywood features, and blamed this on "red tape." He said OWI would do its best to improve the situation. Charlie Chaplin's "Gold Rush," he continued, is an enormous success in France.

"For the time being," he said, "the films that are shown in Germany will all be shipped in. I don't know the condition of the German studios or when they can be used."

Davis disclosed that OWI is publishing three newspapers in Germany and said their news is all monitored from radio broadcasts. He described Col. William S. Paley, head of CBS, as "The No. 2 man" of Brigadier General Robert A. McClure, chief of SHEAF Psychological Warfare. Paley is a general executive, also handling matters other than radio.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, April 23.—The junction between American and Russian forces south of Berlin has military significance as marking the completion of cutting Germany in two—although this has been true for all practical purposes ever since we cut the main highway from Berlin southward days ago. Its greatest importance may be more political than military, however, since it marks a more speedy advance by our forces than the Soviet expected before the rush began beyond the Rhine. We reached the Elbe in its northern reaches ahead of schedule and the Russians had to hasten their efforts south of Berlin to get to the same boundary. Our entry into Czechoslovakia also probably was not expected before the Russians had completed the liberation of that country. All this should help aid in arriving at more fundamental understandings at San Francisco. The German offer to leave our prisoners of war in present camps instead of moving them before our advances was one of those things. The Germans have long arrived at a point where they have insufficient transport in trucks and by rail to move their own forces fast enough. The warning that we will hold all Germans who have anything to do with prisoner-of-war camps responsible for maltreatment of prisoners is more important. It's been suggested this warning might have gone farther to include officials of the nearest town since this might have been more effective on behalf of the prisoners and also could aid in our advances.

AFTER hunting all over Louisiana and finally finding a suitable chunk of lake and bog scenery for "Enchanted Voyage," Walter Morosco, producer, and Lloyd Bacon, director, discovered they could shoot the 20th Century-Fox film practically in their own back yard. A lake out on the Anita Baldwin ranch turned out to be just exactly the sort of location the script called for and the cameras will be set up there instead of in Louisiana. But a trip to the bayous in the springtime is not so bad after all. . . . Lt. Gene Buck, Jr., son of ASCAP's chief, has received the Presidential Citation and a special commendation from Lt. Gen. WEAK BILLS PARE FIRST RUN TAKE DOWN TO 250G

With only one strong new bill in town, the Los Angeles first run theatres are being held down to estimated $250,000 gross on the current week in 20 houses. Lightweight drawing power is main reason for slump, as there are only three holdover bills currently screening. "Without Love" is registering solid $60,000 or better for its initial frame at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres, figure being well above average for opening stanzas in this trio of day-daters.

"Dark Waters," double-billed with "Eve Knew Her Apples" at the Carthay, Chinese, State and Uptown, hasn't much more than $51,000 in sight, with best draw being registered at the State and Uptown. "Bring On the Girls" at the two Paramounts is coasting through with fair $34,500. "The Horn Blows At Midnight" at the three Warners theatres has possible $45,000 coming up.

Among the holdovers "It's a Pleasure" at the Pantages and Hillstreet is heading for estimated $25,500. "Brewster's Millions" is off at $15,000 at the Guild, United Artists and Wilshire on a second week.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

High spot of the week was the long anticipated premier of "Carousel" at the Majestic. The curtain skedded for 8:15 SHARP went up at 8:15 SHARP, and while the Nick Schencks, John Royals, Herbert Bayard Swopes and other late comers stood in the aisles, Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom" was re-born under the magic touch of Dick Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein.

Like its predecessor, "Oklahoma," still playing to SRO directly across the street at the St. James. "Carousel" has been given the same prodigal talents —director, Rouben Mamoulian; choreographer, Agnes De Mille; scenic designer, Jo Mielziner; costumer, Miles White; and the omnipotent Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner as production supervisors. With a set-up like that, how can you miss? The question is not rhetorical. "Carousel" will make the box office go round and round to dizzying returns, equalling, if not topping "Oklahoma."

To the Theatre Guild also goes another low bow for once again giving an opportunity to new, fresh talent with no Big Name draw. Of particular and personal delight to me is the success of Jan Clayton, whom Terry Helburn met at a party in Hollywood a few months ago and had the perspicacity to visualize as the perfect "Julie." It was three summers ago that I tried to persuade Sol Lesser that Jan was the perfect "Eileen" for his "Stage Door Canteen," and arranged a test for her. I hate people who say, "I told you so!" but I couldn't help but puff with proprietary pride as I watched my confidence justified in her auspicious Broadway debut. It's a lucky break for Metro that it has her so well pacted, or every other studio would be hot on her trail. As for Bambi Linn, an alumnae from Agnes De Mille's ballet in "Oklahoma," who stopped the show cold in her dancing role of "Louise," if she isn't Warners answer to their search for "Marilyn Miller," then they deserve Joan Leslie!

ADD ARRIVALS: Col Anatole Litvak, Nat Wolf at the St. Regis. . . . Pat O'Brien at the Astor. . . . Rise Stevens at the Essex House. . . . EXCLUSIVELY YOURS: Now it's Wynne Gibson whom George Somnes wants for the lead in his thriller, "Gallows Hill." . . . although "Errand For Bernice" seems to be scrapped forever, Jacques Deval has salvaged two words of dialogue as the title of his new play—"Oh Brother." It was a line that Gertie Lawrence said to Wendell Corey in the third act. . . . With the tragic death of Ernie Pyle, United Features has lost its fifth columnist within a year—Raymond Clapper (also a war casualty), Westbrook Pegler, who switched to Hearst, and Drew Pearson and Earl Wilson, now with Press Alliance. . . . Blevins Davis is hoping to lure Frank Morgan back to Broadway in his production, "Joy Forever," in which Morgan would play the part of an 80-year-old groom still madly in love with his 70-year-old bride. . . . Although Irving Rapper o.o.'d every potential "Marilyn Miller" during the visit here, he Chiefed back with his heart still set on June Allyson. Well, he can dream, can't he! . . . Capt. John Krimsky, back from France with the O.S.S., is in civvies again, back at his old job with Buchannan and Co. as account exec for Par Pictures. . . . A new script now being considered by Gilbert Miller is "In the Name of Love," by Addie Richton and Lynn Stone, a high comedy about an actress whose life is ruled and almost ruined by a dominating mother. Leonora Corbett, who has turned down enough scripts to start a bonfire, is being sought for the starring role. . . . Although Dorothy and Ted Thackeray are still concentrating every effort to promote the purchase of the San Francisco Chronicle, insiders claim the deal will never materialize because of the difference in policy viewpoint btween the publishers. . . . Nat Wolf, minus his "Best" gal, was a "stag at eve" with Lester Lintz at "21." . . . Excerpts from Gertrude Lawrence's autobiog, "A Star Danced" (which hits the bookstalls July 19th) will be printed in advance in Ladies Home Journal at a figure that only Fanny Holtzmann could demand—and GET.

MARIA MANTON TALKING: "For the first time in my life I can honestly say I wish I were in my mother's shoes. I have just read a play called 'Paula,' the most beautiful love story of a girl who sticks by her man while he's in Alcatraz, and I'd give my eye-teeth to play the title role. If I were Marlene Dietrich, I could walk into any producer's office and it would be handed to me on a silver platter. And the funniest part about it is that Mother would never be right for it!"

TREASURY PLANNING 4-NET KICK OFF FOR SEVENTH

Washington, April 23.—Treasury is completing plans for a national four-network kickoff of the Seventh War Loan the night of May 13, the eve of the campaign opening.

Kickoff is expected to feature President Truman and a galaxy of big entertainment names on an hour-long show.

Next night there will be a special one-hour show over the full Blue Network, originating in Buffalo, N. Y. Treasury is taking over the Chelsea cigarette half-hour from 10 to 10:30 p.m. EWT, and Blue is donating the next half-hour.

The Buffalo show, being produced by Lieut. David Levy, ex-N. Y. advertising man, will include addresses by Gen. Joseph Stillwell and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. Guy Lombardo and his band, customarily featured on the Chelsea show, will handle the music. Band will introduce a half-dozen of the special new war songs written for the campaign and used on the "Sing For the Seventh" transcription series. Other talent will be announced later.

American Institute of Baking is lining up an industry-wide drive to buy time and plug the Seventh. The show of the bakers is reported being angeled in part by Standard Brands.

Frisco Set for Gong of Nations

WORLD RADIO NETS SET TO COVER FRISCO SESH

sound newsreel men on the ground, OIAA, OWI each two; Russia and Canada have one apiece. Two special newsreels will record passing parade for United Nations theatre. There's also a slew of silent cameras focusing on every new arrival. Foreign delegates almost wthout exception have kodaks hanging from shoulder straps.

Only event in newsreel history given greater coverage than this super-dooper was last coronation ceremony in London. Domestically meet will be pictorially recorded for every city, town and hamlet, and world coverage won't lag far behind. Special reels are being shot for Latin-America and other allied and occupied countries. Every phase of the meeting, from commission sessions to main plenary event in Memorial Opera House, will have cameras trained on step-by-step deliberations.

PETE MOLE SETS STAGE

One of busiest men in the maze of stage settings at three main points of immediate interest to 41 national delegations is Pete Mole, who came up from Hollywood on commission by the State Department to supervise and install photographic lighting. He did such a thorough job at the recent Mexico City conference of Latin-American countries he was called back for an encore.

Cameramen say blazing arc setup is almost perfect in conception and execution. Nor is beauty of highly caparisoned interior marred by those big black gargoylish generators of blazing beams. They are so arranged that maximum utility value will be derived without overheating conference rooms.

NO PANTS ON MIKES

Radio nets and indies have made good progress in getting their facilities in order. Blue chain was first to announce "ready," having won toss of coin and set up in unobstructed view of proceedings in main arena. Theirs will be the only glass-enclosed control room with mikes at their elbows. It has been ultimatumed by guiding geniuses of State Department that mikes wear no "pants" and order won ready compliance from all transmitters.

With long rows of mikes before speakers and newsreels rolling out celluloid by thousands of feet it was held fair and equitable that no network or station should carry banner identification. State Department attaches say that since this is a peace meeting, there should be no commercialization of any kind. So mikes lost their pants.

BRITISH IN STRENGTH

That it isn't altogether a U. S. radio show is testified by presence of mikes of British Broadcasting Corporation, Canadian Broadcasting Co. and Australia Broadcasting Commission. Blue Network's early delegation was further trimmed by word from Chet LaRoche, vice-chairman, and Bob Kintner, news and news feature chief, they won't be here for another three weeks. They're probably hanging around for big celebration when V-E Day is proclaimed by the Big Three.

Although parties are being soft pedalled, due to national mourning, Blue's Frisco gang tossed thing for some 60 visiting firemen affiliated with chain. There'll be more shindys as meet wears on, but big boisterous affairs are out and this town knows how to stage them.

WINCHELL LOSES ROOM

Hotel congestion has become so acute Walter Winchell notified to vacate his Mark Hopkins suite by Wednesday. He took over quarters assigned to Mark Woods, Blue Network Prexy, who may come out later. Winchell is accredited to International News Service, although doing two or three broadcasts from here.

Importance of this meet to the British Empire is reflected in assignment of radio and newsreel men. For the BBC alone there are John Salt, Alistair Cooke, George Darling, Anthony Wigan, Wm. Newton, Thomas Gale, Chris Cross, Mary Hone and Marian Cooper. Canadian broadcasting Corp. has unit of ten and Aussies have a pair.

NBC BUILDS FOR FUTURE

NBC is sharing its facilities with these groups and building up excellent relations for future-away-from-home coverage of big events to come. You might as well get accustomed to another raid on the alphabet so this meet to headwriters hereafter will be called UNCIO.

Navy is out to do selling job here and Capt. Jack Bolton is flanked here by Lieutenants John Christ, Bob Leach and Ensign Stan Meyer. They leave no stone unturned to make delegations conscious of Navy's hospitality and extend good will where it will do most good.

A topnotch servicing job is also expected from picture industry which will proceed without customary fanfare and maintain dignified front all the way. Its project, United Nations Theatre, will screen feature films of all countries with free admission to accredited delegates. There'll be two shows daily with program changes every day. First to screen will be England's "Silver Fleet" followed by Russia's "Rainbow" and French "Harvest" or "Bakers Wife."

There will be supplementary newsreels with special footage of conference and personalities in attendance.

This contribution of American film industry was planned by committee headed by RKO's N. Peter Rathvon and Metro's Howard Dietz. Paramount's Claude Lee, Fox West Coast's Fay Reeder, and Glendon Allvine of Producers Association are administering the operation.

FDR MOURNING PUTS DAMPER ON FESTIVITIES

By ARTHUR UNGAR

San Francisco, April 23.—They're readying here for the starting bell. The boys will be fixing up those two buildings, the War Memorial Opera House and the Veterans War Memorial building, right up to the last minute before the doors of the former open to seat the delegations for the opening session of the United Nations conference, which gets under way at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

In the meantime it's a case of meeting diplomats and other visiting firemen as they alight from planes and trains and according them the tribute due to their rank and station in the meeting.

The boys of the State Department are putting on a dignified routine. There is nothing of a celebration nature in the mood of the event, due to the 30-day mourning period for President Roosevelt. There are no building exterior or street decorations, consequently, and the town, with everybody hustling and bustling, looks no different than it has since Pearl Harbor when its hotel and home capacities were first taxed. There are few transients here unless they have official biz. Last of the sightseers were vacated this morning by mandatory orders and moved to other environs.

Only time there is a little stir is when sirens sound and a retinue of new arrivals is rushed through streets from airport or railway depots to hotels.

About 75% of expected visitors are already here, with the balance expected tomorrow and Wednesday morning.

There is plenty of hospitality around town. Locals take arrivals in tow, show them the sights and have informal shindigs. But there'll be nothing formal until after May 13, when official mourning period is over. Then there'll be plenty of goings-on officially and unofficially that'll be deeply impressed on memories of visitors from all over the world. There'll be San Francisco hospitality and the American way of doing things.

Today was registration day for delegates, with press, commentators and others getting their credentials tomorrow. It was just get-acquainted day, with friends from all over the world getting together and renewing acquaintanceships. There was no work except for folks of State Department, Office of Inter-American Affairs, newsreel cameramen and radio commentators.

Tomorrow it'll be likewise, but Wednesday everybody will be working until—

The boys have the proposed world peace plan moulded and ready for signaturing.

EARL CARROLL ASKS NEW TRAIL OF SUIT AGAINST CHI HOTEL

Chicago, April 23.—Retrial in the case of Earl Carroll and Hollywood Theatrical Corp. against Morrison hotel, Chicago, was asked in Circuit Court of Appeal last weekend, with poossibility that decision ordering a new trial in the three-year-old case will be forthcoming shortly. Carroll's breach of contract suit was dismissed in federal court here a year ago.

Producer originally sued the hotel for $450,000 on the grounds it had backslid on his lease on its Terrace Room, which he'd pacted for a year and a half, to operate as a theatre-restaurant, claiming that besides the $26,820 he was out for talent, publicity, hotel and transportation costs, etc., he was also embarrassed financially by not being allowed to cash in on the expected $6,000 a week net planned on.

Defense pleas in trial, which was dismissed by Judge Michael L. Igoe, were that pact was unenforceable because it wasn't approved by U. S. District Court, which had jurisdiction over hotel's property, and that it wasn't executed in a manner binding on the corporation.

SANTA FE CAN'T FIND BLACK MARKET IN RAIL TICKETS

Chicago, April 23.—Senatorial inquiry into the black market in rail tickets rolled into its third week here today with another quiz of transportation representatives. One of them, T. B. Gallaher, passenger traffic manager for the Santa Fe, denied the existence of blacketeers in the Chicago area.

Senators conducting the quiz, who are spearheads in the move that might well lead to a crackdown on travel by motion picture studio executives and stars that would seriously cripple the industry, hooted at Gallaher's statement, however, claiming that John Q. Public gets "bumped" but that bigshots are able to get train space whenever they want it.

"JUST GOSSIP"

Gallaher, who has been with the Santa Fe for 39 years, insisted his line has had two private detective agencies, its own police department and the FBI running down rumors of black market ticket sales, but that in all cases the four groups developed it was nothing but gossip.

Gallaher, typifying the attitude of the roads that they don't want any more legislation than now exists to bind them, pointed out that the Santa Fe has had a 492% increase in passenger travel since 1940. He claimed the roads are doing a bang-up job for civilians despite the heavy military travel.

INVITED TO SEE GIRLS

The Senate group requested the rail execs to have girl reservation clerks testify at a forthcoming session, but the rail people asked the committee to visit the girls and watch them work instead because, they pointed out, the manpower situation makes it impossible for the gals to leave their posts.

Senator Libonati said the committee would have an executive session in Springfield this week, following which its members will visit reservation offices. He also advised that the group soon will open up another investigation, this time into the airways.

AGVA TOP STYMIES MOVE TO RESTORE FLORINE BALE

Move by representatives of hundreds of variety actors to call a general membership meeting of the L. A. branch of the American Guild of Variety Artists to ask that Florine Bale be retained as head of the union was blocked yesterday when National Director Matt Shelvey dissolved the AGVA advisory committee and ordered the membership files locked.

When request was made by local headquarters that membership files be opened for a meeting, Shelvey promptly dissolved the committee and ordered that the files be not opened for anybody.

Incensed over refusal of Shelvey to permit the rank and file to express their views on resignation of Miss Bale, leaders were searching for some means of forcing a meeting. It is understood appeals already have been made to the Four A's for retention of Miss Bale, who, in addition to heading L. A. branch, was western director for AGVA.

Members of advisory committee dissolved by Shelvey were Frank Yaconelli, Robert Ross, Evelyn Iles, Dick Worthington and Vi Barlow. While membership meetings of local branch have not been held in several years, no attempt previously had been made to keep the advisory committee from functioning as reps of the rank and file.

Miss Bale resigned when Shelvey insisted that William Beckford be retained as AGVA representative, after Beckford had been dismissed on grounds of inefficiency. Miss Bale took over the local branch when it was in a chaotic condition and built it into one of the largest branches in the country, in addition to organizing and opening offices in other western states.

WALSH DENIES VOTE BY LOCAL 44 TILL HE DROPS CONTROL

Richard Walsh, international prexy of the IATSE, has notified Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44 that union will not be permitted to hold an election of local officers until control is relinquished by the international.

Rank and file were incensed over action, and at meeting Sunday Walsh was asked if fact "a successful campaign was being waged" to replace C. B. (Cappy) DuVal as business representative, had anything to do with charges being preferred against several members.

The IA international seized control of local after members, at a rank and file meeting, had adopted a resolution not to perform work outside its jurisdiction. Meeting was declared illegal, although the attendance was larger than at any membership meeting held in recent months.

reference to the Roosevelt "warmth of smile that inspired hope." The judge was one of three public officials who gave short talks, being preceeded on the program by Mayor Fletcher Bowron and William A. Smith, chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

SHOW FOLKS PAY TRIBUTE

In a number programmed as "Mr. Roosevelt Was a Good Man," Irving Bacon, Eddie Cantor, James Gleason, Walter Huston, Frank Sinatra and Tom Tully talked intimately of their personal contacts with Roosevelt and his friendliness towards show people. Sinatra also sang "Going Home," which, he said, the late president had once mentioned as a favorite song.

More formal tribute to the Roosevelt memory was contained in "for the record," put on by Edward G. Robinson, Harry Bartel, Howard McNeer, Paul McVey, Selena Royle, Ann Stone, and William Tracy. Robinson opened his remarks by reading telegrams appreciative of Roosevelt's importance to the life of a nation from the three chief labor organization's representatives of Los Angeles County—the AF of L, the CIO and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Program opened with the "Star Spangled Banner," played by the Army Air Force's First Radio Unit orchestra, directed by Lt. Col. Edward J. Dunstedter, and sung by the Roosevelt memorial chorus, directed by Dr. Hugo Strelitzer. Army and Navy color guards flanked the Bowl stage.

BERGMAN READS PRAYER

Taps were sounded, followed by a reading of Roosevelt's favorite prayer by Ingrid Bergman.

There were invocations by Rt. Rev. Thomas J. O'Dwyer, Rabbi Max Nussbaum and Rev. Glenn R. Phillips.

Speaking for the United Nations were Charles Boyer, Ronald Colman, Philip Dorn, Jean Hersholt, Alexander Knox and Dame Mae Whitty.

CAGNEY GIVES PLEDGE

Narrators Walter Huston and Edward G. Robinson recited a tribute to President Truman. A pledge to carry on the work of the late president, spoken by James Cagney, closed the program.

Contributing as writers to the ceremony were Maxwell Anderson, Alvah Bessie, Helen Deutsch, Milton Geiger, Ring Lardner, Jr., Emmet Lavery, Mary McCall, Leon Meadows, Dudley Nichols, Vladimir Pozner, Maurice Rapf, Allen Rivkin and Barry Trivers.

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 23.—"Seven Miracles" is the title of film to be produced by Mauricio de la Serna and Alfonso Sanchez Tello. Cast includes highest drawing cards in the Mexican industry: Cantinflas, Maria Felix, Jorge Negrete, Maria Elena Marques, Fernando Soler, Mapy Cortes, Dolores del Rio and Sara Garcia. Several writers are busy on the screenplay. . . . Producer de la Serna is quite proud of his Arturo de Cordova starrer,, now playing at the Chapultepec cinema. Crowds at the premiere were record-breaking. It's such a relief to say that a picture is good, and it can be said of "Twilight." Sincere congratulations to Director Bracho. Arturo de Cordova is excellent and young Lilia Michel promising. Star Gloria Marin? Yes, she did look beautiful. . . . According to a columnist of the daily "ESTO," Julio Bracho, on the strength of "Twilight," can now be classed as the best director of the Mexican cinema. The columnist continues his classification of directors in the following order: Emilio Fernandez, Fernando de Fuentes, Juan Bustillo Oro and Miguel Zacarias.

In Metro's "Marriage Is a Private Affair," every other line in the Spanish dialog begins with the word "bueno." Why? Neither Mexicans nor Spaniards, nor any other Spanish-speaking people begin sentences with "bueno," except occasionally. Dialog naturally sounds stilted and becomes boringly monotonous after the fifth "bueno." . . . There is one delightful scene in the pic, in which a young married woman, waiting in the bedroom of a bachelor's apartment, embraces the man as he goes in and calls him "my love," while, in the next room, her friend (Lana Turner) witnesses the scene reflected in a mirror in front of the open door and also hears the ardent words. Cissy, suddenly conscious of the near presence of her friend, asks her lover: "Do you think she suspects something?" When these words (in Spanish) reached the audience at the Metropolitan, there was chorused laughter.

Pictures starring Jorge Negrete have been "doctored" with pins, so that when film runs through projecting machine Negrete's voice sounds very much like Donald Duck's. Nice little sabotage trick being played by orders of the S.T.I.C. Several cinema houses in this city and others in Monterrey are also having S.T.I.C. trouble; their employes, all members of the union, have declared strikes for varied and sundry reasons. . . . Films Mundiales have contracted a young Chilean actress, Maria Teresa Esquella. We already have Sara Guash and Malu Gatica from Chile, while from all over South and Central America young girls are flocking to this city in an endeavor to crash the studio gates. . . . Gautemalans, Nicaraguans and Costa Ricans are swelling the extra ranks.

Radio station XEW was practically mobbed by the admirers of Argentinian Hugo del Carrill when he made his reappearance a few days ago.

TO HAL'S FRIENDS:

Simply . . . without any pretense to fine writing . . . we, who loved and admired HAL, address this message to his friends throughout the country.

To the "little fellow" and the "big fellow" . . . to all of those for whom he "did favors" . . . to those whom he guided towards security. Yes! and towards affluence and position.

We, his friends in Chicago, know HAL was a "War Casualty." When his health failed him, he ignored the advice of physicians and friends, and drove himself day after day with all the verve and dynamic energy for a worthy cause or to help a pal . . . that was HAL.

There was something distinctly heroic about the last years of his life. He spearheaded War Bond Drives; helped Chicago Service Men's Centers; led Red Cross Drives, hospital shows, and other patriotic and charitable causes.

HE DIED IN ACTION.

There can be no posthumous medal or ribbon for HAL . . . the only honor we of show business can and wish to bestow, is a Memorial . . . an appropriate charity to perpetuate his name.

The Variety Club of Illinois has chosen the La Rabida Sanitarium, which it sponsors. It is a children's sanitarium devoted to the cure of rheumatics of the heart, without regard to race, creed or color. The Memorial will be in the nature of a completely equipped and maintained HAL HALPERIN ROOM.

Being a sufferer of the heart himself, HAL had a deep affection for La Rabida and a high regard for the excellent results this sanitarium achieved for children.

We are planning a HAL HALPERIN MEMORIAL SHOW at the Chicago Civic Opera House on May 6th. In all probability you will not be able to attend it . . . but, being one of HAL'S friends, we are sure you will want to send us a check as a donation towards this cause. How much? What do you owe his memory? An ancient book asks, "Who shall command the heart?"

We know you will be as generous as possible.

We are most eager, most anxious to make this Memorial a living reality. We are working hard to do so for we are certain that HAL would wish it.

So . . . just as if it were he, asking for some cause near to his heart, we ask you to send us your contribution promptly as a tribute to his memory.

NOTICE OF APPEAL FILED ON $3,000,000 THALIA DECISION

Chicago, April 23.—Despite two sweeping orders by Federal Judge William H. Holly last Feb. 6 and 8, which wiped out their entire $3,000,000 triple damage claim against all distrib and exhib defendants named in the suit, Murray family here, former owners of the nabe Thalia theatre, has filed notice of appeal in Circuit Court of Appeal from Judge Holly's two orders.

Lester Murray, acting as attorney for his father, Thomas A. Murray, prepared appeals against finding of Judge Holly for Paramount, Columbia, Universal, Balaban & Katz, Morris Leonard (chief corporation counsel for B & K), and Louis Reinheimer, head of Reinheimer Theatres, in which jurist decided proof of evidence of conspiracy to withhold first runs from the Thalia hadn't been furnished, and against Judge Holly's order notwithstanding the verdict of the jury in favor of Loews, Inc.; 20th-Fox, Van A. Nomikos, Henri Elman of PRC, Capital Film Exchanges, Milo Theatre Corp., and latter's prez, John L. Manta.

Case against Loew's and 20th-Fox was dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence of conspiracy, while Nomikos, Elman, Manta, Milo Corp. and Capitol were granted a new trial. First two orders were handed down Feb. 6 and 8, and latter on Feb. 13.

Detailed printed briefs of reasons for appeals will be submitted to the appellate court within 40 days, usual in such cases, following which it's docketed, with hearing of oral arguments set before three circuit judges, who'll decide if either of Judge Holly's orders will be reversed.

Harold W. Norman, original counsel for the Murrays, has dropped out of the case entirely, with younger Murray now handling it on his own.

FED INQUIRY INTO LLOYD'S PIRACY CASE AGAINST U

Investigation of copyright infringement charges brought by Harold Lloyd against Universal has been started by United States Attorney's office here under a little-known section of the copyright law. Investigation will be to determine whether Universal "wilfully" infringed on three Harold Lloyd pictures, provided comic's charges are proven.

Copyright law section terms "wilful" infringement a misdemeanor punishable by one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Investigation was asked of U. S. Attorney H. Carr by Harold A. Fendler, attorney for Lloyd, who recently alleged in suits that Universal lifted sequences from his "The Freshman," "Movie Crazy" and "Welcome Danger." Comic is asking $1,700,000 damages.

SHOWDOWN ON IA INVASION; PRODS WAR ON VIOLENCE

Showdown on attempt of the IATSE to invade jurisdiction of striking studio unions may come the last of this week when international heads of the National Building Trades Council meet in Washington, to be followed a few days later by a meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. Building Trades Council convenes Thursday, with the AF of L group expected to go into session Saturday or the following Monday.

Aroused by a series of flareups, which it was claimed culminated in the serious beating of Harlan Nelson, a discharged Navy veteran with 13 decorations, including the Purple Heart, producers announced they were increasing studio police forces and were being provided with added protection by both the city and county.

STATEMENT BY PRODUCERS

Producers' statement follows:

"Physical violence and intimidation must cease. The producers are determined to adopt every possible measure to that end. We have appealed to both the city and the county for addition protection for our workers, and this is being provided. We have augmented our own studio police forces and will increase them further. Discharged service men, incensed by the attack on a returned hero, have volunteered at many studios for this work if needed. We also will take every legal step open to us in halting goon squad tactics, and in assuring our workers the complete protection to which they are entitled."

William Hutcheson, international prexy of the carpenters, is not expected to be present when the National Building Trades Council meets, but has made it known that he will sit in with the AF of L council. This will be the first time the council has had to handle such a situation since it forced the IA to cancel a charter it had issued for variety performers after the Associated Actors and Artistes of America had lifted charter of the American Federation of Actors and was preparing to charter the American Guild of Variety Artists.

LINDELOF, BROWN GOING

L. P. Lindelof, international prexy of the painters, and Ed and Harvey Brown, international heads of the electricians and machinists, will be in Washington for the Building Trades session, as well as to sit in on the hearing before National Labor Relations Board Thursday on certification of a bargaining representative for set decorators. They had advised Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, that the international will have legal reps in the capital to assist Local 1421 in presenting its case.

In the meantime, the local strike situation has developed into a policy of "holding the line and awaiting developments." Richard Walsh, head of the IATSE, was still making efforts to furnish workers to take the places of strikers and men who are refusing to cross the picket lines. Producers claim production is fast approaching normal, while strike leaders insist lots are merely "going through the motions" in order to keep the studio gates open.

PICKET LINES STRENGTHENED

Picket lines were strengthened at most of the lots over the weekend, with Prexy Sorrell and others urging the workers to maintain a militant picket line. Circulars quoting the penal statutes of the L. A. County Sheriff's Department were issued to the men, advising them mass picketing or circular picketing were legal. Men were told that circular picketing is permitted in single file and on that portion of the sidewalk next to the curb.

District attorney's office announced yesterday that an assault complaint had been issued against Antonio D'Elias as the result of an attack on Irwin Kurvink on April 16.

Gene Green, disputes chief for the 10th Regional War Labor Board, was reported to have planed to Washington yesterday for conferences with government officials there on studio strike situation.

Painters Defeat Cut In Per Capita Tax

Proposal to lower the per capita tax paid by local unions to the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America from 80 cents to 60 cents has been defeated by a vote of 57,334 to 10,994. Most studio affiliates of Brotherhood voted in favor of proposal, but big vote was piled up by outside crafts. Studio groups affiliated with Brotherhood include publicists, painters, white collarites, cartoonists and set designers.

SPU AND PRODUCERS WILL OPEN PACT PARLEY FRIDAY

Screen Players Union is scheduled to confer with producer representatives at 3 p.m. Friday on a proposed interim agreement pending negotiation of a basic agreement. SPU will be represented by Attorney Alex H. Schullman, Business Representative Mike Jeffers, Prexy Harry Mayo, Roy Brent and Eddie Nunn. Fred Pelton and Howard Philbrick are expected to head group appearing for the major companies.

At the same time producers are expected to submit counter wage proposals to union heads. SPU recently asked for a flat minimum of $16.50 for extra work, with certain concessions to be given studios where more than 500 players are called for an individual set.

In its interim agreement proposal, SPU will ask that producers ink deal giving union members preference on job hiring until contract is signed. A similar agreement now is being negotiated with the independent producers, most of whom now are favoring SPU card holders.

president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, into the MPPDA would cause the Burbank crowd to change its mind and retain its memberships in the two organizations was dissipated yesterday when secret instructions on parting of the ways were issued to studio executives.

After filing notice of retirement from MPPDA and AMPP late last December, a happening reported exclusively in Daily Variety at the time, it was discovered that the rules required six months' notice.

Following Warners step-down, the company will use only the Breen production code service and the MPPDA's eastern and western press credential lists. These will be paid for on a basis of costs on the separate services.

Warners plans to organize its own labor relations staff, which, after June 1, will deal separately with the various guilds and unions involved in picture-making and distribution.

SECRET PEACE MOVE UNDER WAY IN STUDIO STRIKE

• HOLLYWOOD INSIDE •

YOU never can tell what will come in handy. Bob Fellows, RKO producer, amused himself with his camera in odd moments over in Berlin in 1933—the year Hitler came into power. He saved the negatives. So he now has more than 1000 shots of the Berlin that used to be. They are pictures that can't be duplicated because that Berlin, owing to the assiduous efforts of Allied fliers and artillerymen, isn't there any more. Fellows yesterday was printing and proving up the pictures to file away just in case there is a movie demand for old-time Berlin background. In fact, he figures he might do worse than have a film story built around the record of his pastime camera work in 1933. Fellows shot the films while he was in Germany working on the picture "S. O. S. Iceberg." At that time, he says, the Germans got a lot of "S. O. S. Iceberg" film of Iceland, Norway Arctic waters that they later found useful in their submarine warfare.

"LAURA," which David Raksin composed for 20th-Fox film of same title, is establishing some sort of record for rapidly with which it is hitting public response. On "Hit Parade" last Saturday night, it made grade only after three weeks on stands, without it being plugged as yet. Further evidence of its popularity is glimpsed in Werner Janssen and his orchestra making symphonic orchestration for RCA-Victor; Freddie Martin's ork also has recorded it for RCA-Victor; Jerry Wald did same for Majestic Recordings; Johnny Johnson, vocally, for Capitol Records, and Dick Haymes, vocally, for Decca. Song also is high in sheet music sales and Kay Kyser's new soloist, Michael Douglas, has had to repeat song on three consecutive airers by popular request. When picture was first released some months ago, so many requests for copies of wordless song by Raksin were received that Johnny Mercer was called in to provide lyrics.

THERE will be less publicity on picture walkoffs in the future if a clause now beginning to appear in a few new contracts becomes standard for the industry. Clause that has cropped up recently in pacts made with writers specifically forbids contractee from advertising or issuing publicity statements in the event he should withdraw from the assignment. Producer attitude is that trade paper ads or press statements by withdrawing talent puts a bad light on the production on which he was working, even though unintended. It is expected clause will become more or less standard in contracts with directors, writers, etc., in a studio move to prevent adverse publicity.

NATIONAL Labor Relations Board disclosed yesterday that while numerous studio employes had inquired informally as to their rights where they were assertedly dismissed for refusing to do "struck work" on lots, only one worker had actually filed a charge of unfair labor practice. Board representatives declared this man was back at work, and that it was understood he planned to withdraw his complaint. It is reported most of the others plan to take all remedies within their unions before invoking aid of the NLRB or the courts, on the theory the courts would not entertain an action until after all other remedies available had been exhausted.

ANNOUNCEMENT yesterday by Metro that Judy Garland would enact role of late Marilyn Miller in forthcoming "Till the Clouds Roll By," based on life of Jerome Kern, may lead to vigorous protest from Warners, who hold rights to life story of Broadway dancer and plan shortly to start production on film under title of "The Life of Marilyn Miller." Miss Garland will appear in category of a guest artist, Metro states, without being starred with Robert Walker, who will enact Kern role, and as such her appearance probably will be more or less fleeting. Warners, contacted yesterday, announced they are going ahead with their plans for picture.

IN a feature titled "Hitler," by William Schlamm, in current issue of Life which hit the stands yesterday, mag editors apparently weren't going to be caught napping, in event Nazi chief were killed before sheet hit stands. Throughout article, Hitler is referred to in past tense, which, regarding it any way you please, actually is an obituary before the man is dead. Casual reading, however, doesn't make a point of this, so mag is in clear whether Hitler is alive or dead. Sheet, through time element, missed out in Roosevelt's death, coming out with text about late President's activities and, apparently, it didn't plan on being caught again.

San Francisco, April 24.—The Italian front is being almost overlooked because of the dramatic nature of the rest of the European front but it is an integral part. It is the last main industrial area in German hands and also is a good producing region. Furthermore, it's the back door to the last probable Nazi stand in the Alps of Southern Germany..

Along the lonely desert trail upon an April day
The unsuspecting driver drove the mail coach on its way.
And suddenly the bandits came, a reckless crew and bold,
And deftly robbed the mail coach of its hoard of hidden gold.
It listens like an ancient tale of California trails
When horsemen lurked among the hills to rob the passing mails.
These were the rugged days, you say, when bandits used to thrive,
It happened April 22, in 1945.

Not once, but twice in three weeks, Uncle Sam's mail stage has been stuck up at Saltdale, on the Trona-Mojave trail, but you won't see it in a western film. TRADESHOWN at Los Angeles, April 24, 1945. Running time: 98 MINS.

"Wonder Man" is a sock comedy. The growing Danny Kaye film comedy reputation has been backed with smart production values by Samuel Goldwyn and a capital laugh vehicle that gives his visual funning full rein to rack up tall stacks of box office dollars. Flambuoyant color has been used lavishly to add a dashing background to the bright musical numbers. The snappy directorial pace set by Bruce Humberstone socks over every one of the many solid laughs. A big item in the general hilarity that marks "Wonder Man" is the clever, special photographic effects that play a major part in furthering the smooth scripting.

One Danny Kaye wasn't enough, so the screenplay by Don Hartman, Melville Shavelson and Philip Rapp, adapted by Jack Jevne and Eddie Moran from the Arthur Sheekman original story, rings in an identical twin. One Kay is an extrovert cafe entertainer. The other is a shy bookworm with an encyclopedic mind. Script early has the brash Kaye removed from the scene by a gangster who fears his witnessing of a murder, and for the balance of the picture he's a puckish shade who forces his shy twin into all kinds of trouble. Urged by his dead brother's ghost, the live Kaye fumbles his way through the trouble and finally puts the finger on the bad boys.

The situations into which he is tossed while dominated by his brother's shade prove to be the springboard for most of the broad laughs. The shy Kaye forced to perform on the stage until the ghost moves in, his frantic conversations with a ghost too busy on other things, his headlong escapes from the gunmen, the mixup with his girl and the fiancee of his dead brother, and the mad opera sequences where he tells in song his troubles to the district attorney and the world are only a few of the sequences calculated to make any audience forget troubles and woes.

Kaye hits top form in the opera sequence and the sneezing routine with "Otchi Tchorinya," material for which was furnished by Sylvia Fine. Also good is the "Bali Boogie" number with Vera-Ellen. Latter sparkles in her dance scenes. Most outstanding is the "So In Love" song and Garden of Love production number. Virginia Mayo is a luscious librarian in love with the shy Kaye. High REPUBLIC RELEASE. Associate producers, Walter Colmes and Howard Brethertom. Director, Walter Colmes. Screenplay, Richard Weil. Original story, Robert Newman. Production manager, Bartlett A. Carre. PREVIEWED at RCA, Los Angeles, April 24, 1945. Running time: 70 MINS.

"Identity Unknown" is an outstanding example of intimate drama of the heart-gripper type. It is renewed proof of a show business axiom, too often overlooked in the major studios, that with a good story, a smart producer and a talented director you don't need a two million dollar budget to turn out a hit film.

This latest Republic release will box anywhere and should have sensational success in the small towns. Robert Newman's original yarn is a novel treatment of the time-honored amnesia plot twist. Scripting and direction of this type of drama is a tightrope-walking job in which the unskillful can easily topple into triteness, bathos and hokum. Richard Weil's handling of the screenplay and Walter Colmes' direction have generally kept the dramatic effects authentic throughout.

Occasional brief lapses into preachments and possible over-emphasis on one sentimental sequence are the only flaws in the production. And Colmes can be forgiven these for his success in making commonplace incident fresh, vivid and suspenseful.

The film shows the adventures of a returned and hospitalized soldier in quest of an identity. He has been found in a bombed cottage in France with three others who have been killed. The "dog tags," blown off by the bomb explosion, are discovered in the cottage, but there is no evidence as to which man any tag belonged. There is an apparent choice of four identities for the man left alive—and his memory of his past is completely blotted.

He takes the name "Johnny March," goes AWOL and visits in turn the homes of the four men whose dog tags were found. His first contact is with Sally MacGregor. He realizes he is not the husband she mourns, but the two fall in love, and from then on Johnny's quest is intensified. He must learn whether he has a home, a family, a wife, or whether he is free to marry Sally.

In the end it develops that he was a flier shot down trying to fly supplies to the men of the cottage. He eventually remembers his own name, his identity as a former college professor and that he is unmarried.

Richard Arlen as Johnny and Cheryl Walker as Sally do some excellent acting. The entire cast gives a top performance and deserves a generous share of the credit for the success of the production.

PAR PAYS $75,000 FOR UNTRIED LEGIT PLAY

Something new in the way of pre-Broadway play purchases was revealed yesterday by Henry Ginsberg, Paramount studio head, in connection with Jacques Deval's Broadway vehicle, "Oh, Brother." Paramount is parting with $75,000 for the pre-legit production rights, with an upscale based on Manhattan take. The ceiling is $200,000.

Ginseberg's purchase will prevent "Oh, Brother," from ending up as another "Life With Father" in price, regardless of how long the play runs or how successful it may be. Par is investing $10,000 in the legiter, which will be produced by Max Becker and Peter Warren, and which will bow before July 1.

Ginsberg made his deal with the idea of having Charles Brackett produce and direct when the time comes to convert it into a picture.

FILMS, RADIO DRAW IMPORTANT HANDS IN PEACE DRIVE

San Francisco, April 24.—Radio and motion pictures will get special attention from the United Nations Conference on International Organization. When the delegates start in tomorrow seeking the answer to what makes life on this planet click, discussion of exactly what radio, motion pictures and the entertainment industry may expect to do and earn, and where, how and when, is going to assume major importance.

The conference is going to shape radio and pictures. And radio and newsreels are going to help shape the final results of the conference.

RADIO, FILM IMPORTANCE

More than 1,300 radio, film and press personalities are on hand to report the proceedings. And they point out that what the delegates decide about radio and pictures is of prime world importance, because:

(1). Radio starts in where the printed word leaves off. It can be a guiding influence on the billion or so persons in the world who can't read.

(2). Motion pictures, though they don't get to them so quickly and easily, will reach those same billions.

(3). These two major units of the show business pack a terrific punch in any battle for world peace. You don't fight the guy you laugh with, and a nation doesn't fight a nation it laughs with. It's hard to quarrel with people who are giving you entertainment.

Radio and newsreel coverage of the confab is expected to build up the public opinion that will be the final determining factor in the acceptance of the peace program.

"BIGGEST SHOW ON EARTH"

In any case, the mikemen here are set for the biggest radio show on earth.

What the showmen hope for as the general goals for America at the conference are:

(1). Decision now as to what we need for national prosperity with special attention to the big business of radio and pictures.

(2). Reciprocal lowering of trade barriers so that we can get our share of both export and import trade.

(3). Planning for world financial stability with flexible, gigantic money and exchange agreements.

(4). That America plan and help to make other, weaker nations a market for American products; in other words, help the common man everywhere to earn a bigger margin over his needs to buy more of what Hollywood and Radio City have to offer.

Rockefeller will speak.

RADIO ON CALL OF STATE DEPT. FOR UN OPENING

pen here in the next six or eight weeks.

In the receiving line for 41 world nations and as official greeters, our State Department has, to use the term loosely, "commandeered" all radio facilities for first two days of this epochal event. That, to be sure, doesn't mean that time will be usurped at every whim of the State Department, but nets and indies have been told with some firmness that their cooperation within reasonable bounds will be both expected and appreciated.

REQUEST NO. 1

Put that way, there is nothing else to do but play along, let commercials and rebates fall where they may. As a starter the State Department's radio trouble-shooter, Willett Kempton, has made only one request—that the first half-hour of speeches by Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., San Francisco's Mayor Roger D. Lapham and Governor Earl Warren be given right of way over any and all programming. After that it will be catch and go without denying foreign dignitaries their day in mikedom.

President Harry S. Truman's opening address to the delegates will be piped in by phone from Washington and rebroadcast from the Opera House. From that point on the State Department takes over for two days in steering the conference, and radio will be obliged to stand by and broadcast to the world whatever is deemed of sufficient import and merits unlimited coverage.

FIGHTING MEN WILL HEAR

The Office of Inter-American Affairs, OWI and Armed Forces Radio Service will see that civilians and fighting men throughout the world hear the President's message and get a brief blueprint from other speakers of what's on the agenda, which may be historical in its sweep and significance. For big opening session tomorrow only 10 mikes will be set up. It is a pooling arrangement among all but big nets with NBC servicing British, Canadian and Australian chains.

CORWIN'S $50,000 SHOW

Norman Corwin hour show last night, "Word From the People," over CBS was in all its preparation, concept and production the most expensive program ever put on the ether, commercial or otherwise. That the cost will easily exceed $50,000 is unquestioned, what with all that went into it plus line charges for 41 pickups around the world. It also is one of the trickiest setups ever devised by radio, and Corwin will be widely accoladed for his accomplishment. Earl Robinson and Yip Harburg composed for the show tone poems which may be linked forever with this conference. They are "Same Boat, Brother," and "Meetin' Song."

KFWB, KYA MARATHON

Another enterprising move that is being talked about wherever radio men gather is KYA and KFWB's first day policy, that of taking conference from its start at 4:30 p.m. and carrying through uninterrupted until signoff time at 1 a.m. That means every commercial on two indies will be canceled. For Harry Maizlish and Don Fedderson it means a whale of a job keeping frequencies alive with such heavy stuff as speeches, comment, reaction and general appraisal by figures prominent in affairs of conference and world politics.

It was Bartley C. Crum, prominent Democratic figure and local attorney, who dubbed the two stations "The Great Brain" for this endeavor. We wouldn't be surprised if the transmitters get tagged with "The Intellectual Network."

Aside from playing Golden Gate, Cliff Nazarro, master of double-talk, says he'll take a few students under tutelage to condition for double-talk that will issue from tents in Golden Gate Park to gilded suites at the Mark Hopkins hotel.

POST'S SPECIAL PRAISED

New York Post's special daily issue of 5,000 copies, printed in Berkeley, is being read over the morning's coffee wherever delegates are housed. It is smart promotion and talked about wherever newsmen congregate. Entire issue is devoted to the conference and byplay along the edges.

McDONOUGH ASKS UN MEET FOR FREEDOM OF NEWSREELS

Washington, April 24. — Hollywood's Representative Gordon McDonough wired Representative Sol Bloom (D., N.Y.), one of the U. S. representatives at the Frisco conference, to make clear that "freedom of the press" means free exchange of newsreels.

Yesterday McDonough introduced a resolution calling upon the peace delegates to support a section of freedom of speech, free press and free religion in the proposed world peace organization.

It was felt in the picture industry sources that this did not necessarily cover a free exchange of films. In order to remove the doubt, McDonough sent his wire explaining that free press should mean free exchange of information by any media. This would take care of the newsreels.

McDonough also feels that freedom of press and speech should include a free interchange of all types of films across international borders.

RELIGIOUS GROUP'S DEMAND FOR AIR TIME NIXED

Washington, April 24.—Federal Communications Commission today nixed a protest by the Philadelphia Gospel Broadcasters Association against cancellation of its paid radio time by station WPEN, Philadelphia. The 10 gospel religious groups, which have been buying time for several years for "Churches of the Air," had asked FCC to force the station to reinstate them.

Importance of the case is that FCC was asked to tell a station what it could and could not put on its program. FCC pointed out that the station was making several hours available for religious broadcasts on Sundays and that it had a right and duty to provide diversified programs in the interest of public service.

SECRET PEACE MOVE UNDER WAY IN STUDIO STRIKE

session yesterday, apparently studying and discussing labor conditions on various major lots. It is understood studio heads reported more pictures are in production today than before the walkout seven weeks ago, that more technicians are being secured daily and that the strike now has only a "small nuisance value."

WALSH OFFERING DEAL

General belief was that Walsh was offering Milne a deal for the IBEW electricians to return to their jobs, probably with an understanding that jurisdictional beef between two groups would be ironed out. IBEW Local 40 currently has a lawsuit pending against the IATSE, in which it is alleged that the IA has encroached on IB studio jurisdiction. Milne is believed to have discussed this proposal with Sorrell, but Sorrell refused to discuss conference or verify that Walsh had asked the IBEW to send its men back into the studios.

IA PLACARDS TO PICKETS

The IATSE was bombarding the picket lines with circulars carrying red banners titled "43rd day of strike. Manpower hours lost, 1,238,400. Salary lost to date, $1,641,600." Circulars also promised expose of "facts as to what forces behind this strike were doing a bangup job for the German decorator, Hitler, but a short while ago."

Conference of Studio Unions issued daily bulletin advising strikers that Attorney Frank Pestana, Business Representative Ed Mussa and Decorator Hughie Hunt are in Washington for appearance before the National Labor Relations Board there tomorrow on certification of set designers. Strikers were told that international attorneys also would be on hand for the session.

STRIKERS CLAIM VICTORY

Strike leaders still insisted they had achieved a 95% victory, and claimed that Walsh's efforts to make deals with various crafts was a good indication that "everything isn't so rosy in the studios." Most of the major lots were busy, however, with some of them assertedly receiving offers of machinists from Roy Brewer, IATSE international representative. Technicolor also was reported operating 100% normal, although key machinists were ordered out last week.

PRODUCTION SHORTCUTS

Following meeting of producers yesterday, it was announced that execs were satisfied with developments and were determined to keep the studios operating. One exec pointed out that producers now have discovered many shortcuts to production, some of which eliminated both carpenter work and painting without impairing the effectiveness of a set.

David O. Selznick's Vanguard Films, which suspended production of "Duel In the Sun" because of strike, was reported yesterday as invoking strike clause provision in contracts to hand out layoffs to contract players. Players appearing in cast include Joseph Cotten, Gregory Peck, Jennifer Jones, Scott McKay and Steve Dunhill. Lionel Barrymore, who was in picture, is on loanout from Metro, and Lillian Gish was doing picture on a single commitment.

NLRB HEAD STANDS BACK OF SPU CERTIFICATION

Formation of the Screen Extras Guild will have no current effect on certification of Screen Players Union as exclusive bargaining representative for extras, according to a communication received yesterday by Mike Jeffers, SPU business representative, from H. A. Millis, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board. Jeffers had advised board of reports here that organizing of SEG might further delay recognition of SPU.

Chairman Millis, in his communication to Jeffers, stated:

"In the matter which you mentioned there does not appear to be anything which may be the subject of board action at this time, within the meaning of the board's decision of March 28. Under the certification the Screen Players Union is the exclusive representative of the employes in the desired unit. The formation of the Screen Extras Guild does not detract from the legal effect of the certification or the obligation of the employers to recognize and bargain with the Screen Players Union."

Jeffers heads an SPU committee which is scheduled to huddle with producer representatives Friday on an interim agreement pending negotiation of a contract between SPU and the major companies. In the interim agreement Jeffers will ask that preference in hiring be given to SPU members.

In the meantime Jeffers was negotiating deals with the independent producers calling for the same interim agreement. He stated that most of them were falling into line and that SPU paid-up members were doing most of the work on indie lots.

20TH PLAYS 90% OF U.S. THEATRES IN ANNI CELEB

Payoff on 20th-Fox's 30th anniversary celebration ballyhoo and the preceding 17-week sales drive has set records, a studio checkup showed yesterday. Approximately 90% of the nation's more than 16,000 theatres have shown or are committed to show at least one 20th-Fox subject during the month.

Figures just tabulated show that the second week of April, which also was the second week of the anniversary celebration, was the biggest in total bookings the company ever has had.

New York, Albany, Buffalo, Boston and New Haven branches reported 100% representation in theatres in their territory. The New York exchange, headed by Ray Moon, not only ended the two weeks with a picture bearing the 20th-Fox label on the screen of every one of the 1,200 theatres served out of New York, but reported 415 using a 20th-Fox subject every day this month.

Twenty-six exchanges exceeded quotas set for them in the 17-week selling campaign. This means a bonus equivalent to three weeks' salary for the entire personnel of these branches.

These branches finished in the following order in the drive: Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles, New York, New Haven, St. Johns, Salt Lake City, Denver, San Francisco, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Winnipeg, Boston, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Omaha, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Toronto, Calgary, Montreal, Des Moines, Memphis, Buffalo, Cincinnati and Albany. Chicago exchange was the only one that finished in the two-week salary bonus bracket, and Vancouver came in for one week's extra pay.

Running out of the money were Washington, Cleveland, Atlanta, Detroit, Oklahoma City, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Dallas and Charlotte.

Doubling In Feed

Here's one for the book in these days of high prices and small portions wherever food is dispensed: Because dietitians estimate that strenuous rapier routines burn up 1,400 calories per man, Warners has instructed its commissary waitresses to serve two luncheons for the cost of one to all players participating in the fencing rehearsals for that studio's forthcoming "The Adventures of Don Juan."

have produced in freelance studios, may share a bit better.

Unless the War Production Board loosens up, or the distribs are able to come to the rescue, David O. Selznick may find himself behind the eight ball. Lester Cowan and other indies are likely to find themselves circumvented, although Cowan insists he has sufficient negative to make at least two of the forthcoming features he has set for the next 12 months.

RKO is in a position where it can provide added footage for International and Goldwyn, both of which release through RKO. United Artists cannot be of help because it has been deprived of its allocation.

The overall quota for the industry has improved since WPB adopted the proposals of the industry's liaison man, George J. Schaefer, as first exclusively told by Daily Variety, that 50% of the film made available for Army camp bookings has been restored to industry credit.

Washington, April 24.—The War Production Board has wound up its hearings with the various groups seeking increased quantities of X-ray film for the third quarter of the year, but has made no decision as yet on the quantities which will be authorized.

No date has been set on the meeting of the motion picture industry to consider raw stock allotments for the next quarter.

RADIO EXECS EYE CLEVELAND TRIAL OF TELEVISION

Local performers and radio executives had a speculative eye on television developments yesterday, following the announcement that WHK, Cleveland, already has its application on file for a 40,000-watt video station. Besides filing the bid for a permit with the FCC the station management has leased nine floors in its present downtown quarters for transmitter installation.

H. K. Carpenter, head of the station, has already started a television school and is teaching employes the rudiments of the new medium. The Course is divided in three sections, covering television production, direction, camera work, lighting, scenery, etc. Every staff worker at the studio has to attend.

Tryout of several short dramas, a style show and a puppet show was scheduled for this week.

In the absence of regular television equipment at present the shows are recorded by regular transcription methods and by a 16mm. camera. The results are then screened for study.

The station hopes by using this method until regular television equipment is available, to get a running start on post-war tele broadcasting.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 24.—Some of the trade sheets have been ballyhooing stories that if Francis Biddle is ousted as Attorney General the Big Five divorcement case in New York may be eased off by a deal, but from this vantage point it looks like wishful thinking.

The Senatorial record of President Truman shows that he was a strong supporter of the Anti-Trust Division and that among his close friends have been Wendell Berge, head of the division, and his predecessor, Thurman Arnold. Anti-Trust did a terrific job of supplying material and other aid in the early days of the Truman committee which set Truman on his journey toward high things.

And finally, what could the administration gain politically by calling off the wolves? A howl would go up from the small independent exhibitors and their congressmen and some of the New Deal wing as well as rural Republicans would charge a sellout which would hardly make any votes.

"Watch Tower Over Tomorrow," the Dumbarton Oaks short, has an angel. It is the Carnegie Endowment For International Peace which is financing 16mm. distribution of the pic.

Seems the State Department is committed not to spend any more money on the short despite requests from many sources—labor groups, Salvation Army, schools, etc.—for prints. So the Carnegie outfit is placing 100 prints at the disposal of groups wishing to screen the film.

Capt. Thomas W. Phipps, ex-Metro screen writer, is supervising production with Lt. Col. James Warner Bellah, former Hollywood scripter and Satevepost writer. Publicity and exploitation will be handled by Max Youngstein, former 20th-Fox flack now with the Treasury bond staff.

Latter is the subject of a piece to appear in an early issue of Satevepost and the cowboy actor is his screen favorite. Pic will appear in the Post. . . . Rogers, by the way, is credited with a nice tribute to FDR. He was playing his rodeo show in Washington and it was impossible to call off the performance the afternoon of Roosevelt's funeral. So he donated his salary for that performance to the Warm Springs Foundation, with the amount being matched by the management of the arena where the rodeo was showing.

OWI has just sent WPB its raw stock request for the third quarter of 1945. This covers film for domestic use by all federal agencies, plus film needed by foreign countries for use in the U. S. Second quarter's request of 21,000,000 feet was slashed to 17,000,000. This time Taylor Mills of OWI has asked 12,000,000 feet. Some guessing is that OWI will wind up with about 10,500,000 feet.

One of the first films shown in Manila after the Yanks liberated the city was Deanna Durbin in "His Butlet's Sister." Pic was a sensation because it was the first knowledge the Filipinos had that she is living. She was one of several American stars that Nip propagandists had announced were dead. Even Americans in Santo Tomas internment camp had believed the Jap propaganda, since they could not figure any reason for a phony of that nature.

Rumors that OWI nixed domestic distribution of "TVA" made by the OWI Overseas Film Unit are denied here by Taylor Mills, head of the domestic film bureau. Mills points out that the agency most closely concerned must okay an overseas subject before it can be shown in this country. Fact is that the TVA officials refused to approve the film for general distribution. Mills is seeking to get the subject released for use here with some judicious cuts. Incidentally, Metro has asked permission to use some clips for a short it is doing on the same subject.

Y & R REORG BRINGS SWITCHES IN AGENCY RADIO SETUP

New York, April 24.—Reorganization of Young & Rubicam's radio division administration has been completed, it was announced yesterday by Prexy Sigurdus Larmon. Under new plan, first instituted in late 1944, closer coordination between radio and other departments of the agency will be effected. Growing volume of radio programs necessitated new switches.

Now taking posts as program managers are Joe Moran, associate director of the radio division; Max Wylie, George McGarret and William Forbes. They will be responsible for actual operations of all programs of Y & R, which have been distributed among them.

Moran will be relieved of his previous assignments to devote entire time to development of the new managerial system. Forbes will continue to manage television and research sections of radio branch.

Gordon D. Cates, veepee and general manager, has charge of overall and administrative operation of the agency's radio division. Creative and production operation is under Harry Ackerman, vice-prexy.

Three other major appointments within radio division are Glenhall Taylor, acting head of the Hollywood radio office since 1942, to associate director of the radio section, and Ed Duerr to manager of radio production. Alexander Stronach will manage the agency's talent department. Unchanged are other administrative and managerial posts.

'G. I. Joe' Back To Cameras For A Day

Producer Lester Cowan yesterday put his "G. I. Joe," based on the late Ernie Pyle's book, back into work at General Service studios for one day of added scenes needed to tie up cutting. Pyle's tragic passing in no way affects the general story, for the yarn does not cover the Pacific war era. William Wellman, who directed, also piloted the extra footage.

FILM BOX OFFICE SOARS; NEAR 5 MILLION A DAY

Washington, April 25.—Motion picture theatre box office hit a gross of more than $4,925,000 a day during February, based on the government's 20% admissions tax collections for the month. Gross represents more than $1,031,500 per day better than the daily average for January.

Reflecting the box office upswing in amusements, the government padded its pockets with $30,645,244 in admissions taxes for the month, of which 90%, or approximately $27,580,700, came from film theatres alone. February collections are an increase of almost $4,500,000 over the preceding month, which was three days longer.

Broadway had a good month in February, with its admission levies hitting $3,935,078, which was about $500,000 better than January. Manhattan's niteries slipped somewhat on the month, showing a tax bite of $504,108 against $565,601 for January.

ARGENTINA EXPECTED TO FREE H'WOOD FILM COIN

Washington, April 25.—Indications that Hollywood is going to find it easier to get its money for American pictures shown in Argentina were seen here following loosening of censorship in the South American republic. A recent decision of Argentine courts concerns taxes on remittances to United States business firms. Details of this decision are not yet known in this country, but there is expected to be a substantial improvement in the release of funds to Hollywood for pictures exhibited in Argentina.

Relaxing of censorship regulations also is noted with American war shots in the newsreels going through without trouble. The newsreels formerly were slashed heavily. First sign of the dropping of the bars on American film product was the removal of the ban on Charles Chaplin's "Great Dictator."

Change evidently results from Argentina's new lineup with the United Nations. Previously Axis agents were able to pressure the government into barring any pix the Nazi element felt were objectionable.

HARRY BERNS, producing and directing the Jack Carson show yesterday afternoon, was confronted with one of the most difficult tasks ever faced by a radio comedy show maestro. Because President Truman was to use the channels on his address opening the San Francisco conference, and Secretary of State Edward R. Stittinius, Jr., was to follow him on the air, Berns had to make 21 possible cuts in the tightly-woven Carson script, and have them ready in case Stettinius went five minutes over his 4:30 closing time. The agreement was that if he passed the four-minute-90-second period beyond the 4:30 p. m. scheduled closing time, the Carson show was to be missing in its entirety, but if the State Secretary hit one full second under the five-minute-past-due mark, Berns was to be set with trims. Stettinius looped over by three minutes and 30 seconds, so the Carson program went on, with only one Carson song eliminated. It was a breathless period for both Berns and Carson.

WHEN shooting starts on the Mary Pickford production of "One Touch of Venus" the director will find a complete film record of the two ballet sequences in the show ready for reference. Sam Coslow, associate producer, yesterday arranged to have the dance numbers filmd during the actual performance of the stage show in Chicago. This will be the first time a producer has gone into rehearsal with anything like an adequate "charting" of the dances available—choreography being one of those things that you can't very well get on to paper. Coslow figures that the reference film of the "Ozone Heights" and "One Hour for Lunch" ballet numbers in "Venus" will save at least $50,000 in production time. The stage show goes to St. Louis after the Chicago run, then to Cincinnati, where it will close. Mary Martin will vacation briefly after the closing before coming to Hollywood to work in the picture production.

THAT cigaret gag on the part of Whitney Bolton, Columbia's chief flack, was rather clever. Hollywood is known as the home of dramatic larcenists, of thesps who steal scenes right under the very eyes of the stars, but the outstanding scene theft of 1945 is the work of an unknown page boy in Washington, D. C. It is on view in the Universal Newsreel, currently at the Hollywood Pantages. The page boy stands behind the left shoulder of Harry Truman as the new President deliveres his first address to the assembled Senate and House of Representatives. You are impressed by the solemnity of the occasion until your attention is attracted by the big-eared kid, masticating a gob of gum with tremendous energy. All through the speech, the youthful chickle wrangler continues his facial contortions, as if the fate of the nations depended on his ability to extract the last modicum of peppermint from his cud. You are so interested that when the new President closes his address with the momentous words, "We shall not fail," you expect the kid to crack his gum, but he doesn't. Even though he fumbles the climax, the nameless page boy deserves an Oscar for amateur scene larceny.

PREVIEWED at Samuel Goldwyn studios April 24, 1945. Running time: 94 MINS.

Producer William Cagney has done it again, bringing in "Blood On the Sun" not only as a timely picture, but as a hit picture as well. It is an offering that will snare all of the dyed-in-the-wool James Cagney fans—and they are legion—as well as enmesh the run-of-the-mill moviegoers.

It has been years since James Cagney has had a role so beautifully tailored to his talents as that which falls his way as the American editor of a Tokyo newspaper at a moment when the Jap war lords are plotting their secret attack on Pearl Harbor. Nor has he ever had better femme support on the screen than that provided him by his co-star, Sylvia Sidney.

"Blood On the Sun" bespeaks the months of special planning William Cagney has put into the undertaking, from script-writing to final editing. It has been given an elaborate though exceptionally believable mounting.

Few, if any, of Star Cagney's vehicles have ever enjoyed the delicate, detailed, yet fast-moving direction that has been bestowed upon this one by Frank Lloyd. The assignment, which marks that always competent pilot's return to civilian life after service in the Army Air Forces, will go down as one of the triumphs of his long piloting career.

Using Garret Fort's story of the same title as a basis, Lester Cole, who did the screenplay, and Nathaniel Curtis, who provided some added scenes, also have made major contributions to the successful whole. Theodor Sparkuhl's photography, Miklos Rozsa's background music, the difficult makeup chore handled by Ern Westmore and Joseph Norin, Michael Woulfe's costuming, Richard De Weese's sound recording and the scissoring by Truman K. Wood and Walter Hannemann pace the expert portrayals by the stellar team and the potent supporting cast, and become perfect cogs in the wisely-designed entertainment machine Wiard Ihnen has designed for Producer Cagney.

The plot, which revolves about James Cagney's defiance of the Jap government in his efforts to get some secret "Rising Sun" documents to the United States, includes murders, fisticuffs and intrigue that keep the paying customers on edge from the opening shot to the final fade. Miss Sidney as the Chinese girl who seemingly plays into the hands of the Japs while she is double-crossing them, never did better on the silversheet.

Aside from the stars, though, there are some other outstanding performances, especially those of Porter Hall as the American publisher who would sell out to the foe; John Emery as Premier Tanaka, Robert Armstrong as Colonel Tojo, Wallace Ford as the slain Ollie Miller, Rosemary De Camp as Mrs. Miller, John Halloran as Captain Oshima, Rhys Williams as Cassell, Leonard Strong as head of the secret police, plus Frank Puglia, James Bell, Philip Ahn, Marvin Miller, Hugh Ho, Hugh Beaumont, Joe Kim and Grace Lem.

WB GIRDS FOR FILM FRAY WHEN IT QUITS HAYS ORG.

Warners yesterday was girding for the fray that is expected to follow the Burbank studio's withdrawal June 1 from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association and the Association of Motion Picture Producers. Bringing the situation to a head was yesterday's story in Daily Variety that Metro would use Judy Garland as Marilyn Miller in its forthcoming musical, "Till the Clouds Roll By," based on the life of Jerome Kern.

Warners has spent more than two years clearing the rights, through her heirs, to the late Miss Miller's biog. Warners has served notice on the Culver City outfit to "lay off." Metro, however, can go ahead and make la Garland's characterization the true story of Marilyn Miller as long as it does not tag her as Marilyn Miller.

Meanwhile, Warners is understood to be setting itself for a place under the protective wing of the Hays organization, in addition to the Breen seal and the correspondents' list. Burbank studio also will pay for protection on titles and story-body matter. Otherwise, it would be able only to protect itself via the printed pamphlet outlining a tag and story thread, all of which in the end costs more than the purchase of the Hays office protection service.

Metro and 20th-Fox have just had a bit of experience in the same field but the Brothers Schenck—Nick of Metro and Joe at the Westwood lot—settled things by long-distance phone.

Warners supposedly is augmenting its legal department to battle such things out.

BLANKE INDICATES NEW WARNER DEAL

Henry Blanke indicated yesterday that he plans to close a new contract with Warners. His deal with the valley lot ended some months ago. Since then Blanke has had offers from other studios, but has refused all bids pending outcome of his talks with Warners.

So confident is he that he will stay with the Burbank studio, with which he has been associated 23 years, producer is preparing "Ethan Frome" and "The Fountainhead" for cameras.

Craig, Gifford Paired Again In MG's 'Races'

James Craig and Frances Gifford have been reunited by Metro for "She Went To the Races," which Willis Goldbeck will direct under Producer Frederick Stephani. They recently were featured in the Culver City lot's "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes." The vehicle is slated to go before the cameras within the next three weeks. Edmund Gwenn and Reginald Owen have been assigned character roles.

Breen's Son Signed For Metro Chore

Tom Breen, 22-year-old son of Joseph I. Breen of the Producers Association, yesterday was signed by Metro to serve as technical advisor on "No Leave, No Love," starring Pat Kirkwood which Joe Pasternak will produce. Young Breen was recently discharged from the Marine Corps after seeing service in the South Pacific.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, April 25.—We've hit and destroyed Hitler's chateau at Berchtesgaden, but the main Hitler retreat in the Alpen redoubt probably still remains. The chateau is in the open, but the eagle's nest is high in the mountain side with cliffs everhanging the place. A bomb could not hit it falling directly from above. But anyway Hitler is probably not at Berchtesgaden, but in Berlin, with the Russians closing in on him now from all sides. And if he is injured, as reported, he may not even be able to make that last stand, as he hoped, at the head of his troops. Fate may deny him the chance to play the dying martyr as he has hoped.

EDWARD DMYTRYK, arriving in Buenos Aires yesterday, to arrange for locations for the forthcoming Dick Powell picture, "Cornered," got all puffed up, he cabled the RKO studio, when he saw the huge throng collected at the airport to welcome him. His celeb complex was quickly evaporated, however, when he found the crowd was really expecting to see Powell and other stars. A Spanish language broadcast had given the public the impression that they also were arriving. "They didn't exactly snatch the welcome mat out from under my feet, but—" Dmytryk cabled. . . . BEST DRESSED GAL OF THE WEEK—

Gail Patrick presented a study in contrast at Romanoff's in a chalk white lightweight wool suit, its jacket front accented with Navy inserts. The chic ensemble featured a high slit neckline, dolman sleeves and a nipped in waist. For accessories the star of "Twice Blessed" wore a Navy bloomer girl hat swathed in starched veiling and a matching pouch handle bag. Her gloves and pumps were Navy doe-skin. A prelude to spring with dramatic dash.

WHAT the script calls for is one thing and what happens when one of those brawl sequences gets realistic is another. Ask Bill Demarest who ended up as the bottom man on the pile of the "Our Hearts Were Growing Up" set yesterday. Demarest was knocked down in the fight and extras were instructed to rough it up around his prone body. But pair after pair fell on him until he was buried in a mass of heaving torsos, kicking legs and flying fists. 20TH WILL DOLL UP ITS 'VOYAGE' IN GAY COLORS 20th-Fox has suddenly switched its plans to film "The Enchanted Voyage" in black-and-white, and will do it in Technicolor instead. Tinter deal is made possible because of the unexpected availability of Techni cameras.

Lloyd Bacon, who will direct, leaves Monday with a cast and crew for the New Orleans area, where the outfit will spend three weeks shooting in the bayou territory. Upon his return here Bacon will take the troupe to Rancho Santa Anita.

Most of the feature will be shot out-of-doors, thus eliminating the necessity of set construction and painting.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 25.—History of all sorts is being made in this town of the seven hills including radio. It remained for Columbia's ace prestige writer-director Norman Corwin to write new page into industry annals. Not only did he achieve a new mark in fiscal values of network sustainer, but also managed trickiest technological setup ever attempted. One hour broadcast of Corwin's "Word From the People" set back CBS better than $65,000 in round figures and if that isn't enough to stagger imagination there's the added accomplishment of coming through quite handily with pickups from 41 points around the world. That shatters all previous records of this kind and tops "Army Hour" by more than a fistful of remotes. CBS execs are happy with the results, and throughout the world-wide cue tour only four or five points failed to come through due to atmospheric sabotage. It will be many a day before a network again days out $65,000 for a prestige sustainer so Corwin will have to sit on record until something bigger comes along. Incidentally, Corwin will do most of his CBS summer series from Hollywood and in odd moments whip into shape story he owes Famous Artists. He'll likely be included into Charley Feldman's picture package as director. He'll never break away from radio as that's his first love and he's never happy completely detached from it. "Word From the People" probably will get greater radio distribution than any program of recent vintage. Every country will hear the program's stirring message and it will be played via transcription over and over again. If it lives as a document of world security meet, CBS will have been well repaid for its outlay of coin and Corwin's talents.

Dat of debbil commercial reared up again yesterday and precipitated quite a controversy among biggies who were setting up today's special broadcast with Secretary Stettinius and V. Molotov doing most of talking. Originally slated for 3 p. m. one of net chiefs saw visions of vanishing revenue and wanted broadcast time moved up 4 p. m. That would allow most of sponsored T.C.'s to clear without snafuing set time blocks. Some of network boys seem to have forgotten that they had agreed to cooperate freely first two days with state department and give that August body whatever its whim dictates. Cancelling out commercials comes under that general head—but just the same keep your hand off that wallet.

The spirit of enterprise is in the air and every new angle is being worked by nets and indies alike. Just as an index to what goes with the unaffiliates is the project of Harry Maizlish and Don Fedderson in linking together KFWB and KYA for complete commercial blackout for nine full hours at yesterday's opening. The others are practically beating their brains out to get on the air with some new twist overlooked by competition. Whatever new comes out of your loud speaker for the next few days it will be the result of genius run amok. Let's give it a try anyway seems to be credo of those master-minding the big show. After it's all over there'll be enough back pats to go around but one will be outstanding. Who draws that distinction is anyone's guess at this time, but it won't be a runaway. They're all in there pitching curves and some indie may come up with the plum.

It would be heart-breaking to an agent with a show to sell to sit around with Walter Winchell and hear him tell of the offers he's been deluged with. Jergens he has in his inside pocket anytime he wants to sign, but he's not so sure he does. If he decides to make a change he has some flattering figures dangled at him by United Drug and Bordens. If its the coin he's after there's 10G awaiting him on one of the contracts already for the signaturing. His feud with Jim Andrews of Lennen and Mitchell was dissipated through the simple expedient of having him excommunicated from the Winchell entrougage.

NEGRO ACTORS JOIN IN DEMAND AGVA RETAIN BALE

Negro variety actors have joined rank and file group seeking reinstatement of Florine Bale as head of the Los Angeles branch of American Guild of Variety Artists, it was learned last night, as Associated Actors and Artistes of America was asked to order membership files opened. Ben Carter, who handles most of the colored talent in this area, declared petitions would be circulated and every other possible step taken to get a membership meeting on the Bale question. Carter said:

"Miss Bale improved the working conditions of the Negro performer as had never been done before. We now have the same wage minimums and other conditions as the top spots in Hollywood. Before she was in office the Negro performer received little or no recognition and few of the spots were organized. I have been talking to the various performers and all of them are unanimous in demanding her return."

It also was disclosed that bank accounts of the local office have been frozen, with nobody apparently authorized to sign checks. As a result, it was stated performers with Paul Small outfit could not be paid, although a check for their services was sent in promptly after closing. One official declared office was in a chaotic condition and that unless some prompt action was taken AGVA would lose 50% of the advantages that had been won for the actors during the time Miss Bale was head of the local branch and western director for AGVA.

Conference Bows Like Preem

WORLD DRAMA IN FIRST SERIOUS, TENSE ACT

Nations Conference on International Organization.

The preem crowd was a tense, serious one. Everybody seemed to realize that whether the world will live in peace in the future or revert to war and barbarism once more depends on how well those in the cast of many nations play their parts.

The preliminaries to the unveiling of the peace movement sessions were all calculated on a matter of security of the vast human freight that weighted down the orchestra floor of the Memorial Opera House. The Army, Navy, FBI and police from all around the country made sure some two hours before the doors of the theatre opened, of the security of those who will mould the world peace plan. No one got close to the entrance of the Opera House unless they had official State Department buttons or identification cards.

FOURTH ESTATE SCATTERED

The boys and gals of the press and radio found themselves scattered all around the place. None but the news photographers were able to negotiate their way to the orchestra floor. The others had to climb three and four flights of stairs to the upper balconies. A few of the highly chosen squeezed their way into boxes in the grand tier where some 27 newsreel cameras ground 15,000 feet of film that was quickly dispatched to New York and Los Angeles for development, printing and circulation around the world.

The film was on the way within two hours of the time that the first session was over and will hit the screens of this nation tomorrow and of many others not more than 48 hours after it was shot. Jack Connolly, of the Office of Inter-American Affairs; Claude Collins of Washington and their highly efficient crews attended to that.

RADIO DOES ITS STUFF

In other spots of the grand tier were the radio commentators. Each of the networks had boxes there and the commentators all got a shot at telling what they saw and heard. It really was a show from that viewpoint. No confusion, all showmanship and the world really heard how the big meet got off to a dignified start which, it is felt, will bring the meet to a rousing, howling finish and history as well as peace.

The press got a bit of razzle-dazzle. No one's fault. But the local committee had plenty of obligations and it was out to take care of the folks here who helped it and wanted to see the beginning session of history in the making. So a number, not too many, and not too few important newspaper publishers, columnists and writers had to climb up to the peanut gallery and take what seats they could find, while the locales had their cushioned seats reserved and were more comfortable than the folks who had to stay on the top shelf. But the shindig was short so there was no yelping due to seat pain.

Russians, who are running their own show pretty generally here, did so and will do so with all cinematic photography. The stuff shot by the American cameramen will not reach Stalin's land. He has his own camera crews for the meeting. Four Soviet cameras ground out stuff at the Opera House this afternoon and will continue to grind wherever it is felt there is anything that will interest the folks back on the vodka and caviar circuit.

Tomorrow there'll be an organization meet in the morning, and at 3 p.m. the second plenary session starts.

FANS CHEER DELEGATES WHILE FLASH BULBS POP

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 25.—Wreathed in dignity and tempoed to the austerity such a momentous occasion commands, the Conference of Nations to mould a lasting peace for the world officially moved into its first phase this afternoon. At precisely 4:30 an honor guard of service units preceded Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., to the rostrum and stood at attention while three raps of the gavel brought a stony silence from the packed throng of 3,500 and sent the world security meet on its way.

The meeting was brief, lasting but 35 minutes, and was run off like clockwork. Stettinius made a few opening remarks, and then came the voice of President Truman from Washington, sounding a welcome to the delegates from the 41 nations and avowing the purpose of the conclave. The President's voice was brought in by phone and rebroadcast from Memorial Opera House where plenary sessions will be held for the six or eight weeks' duration of the confab. Welcomes to state and city were then intoned by Governor Earl Warren and Mayor Roger Lapham.

That just about sums up the first meeting, aside from an announcement on the order of business for the morrow. Severity of the meet's purpose seemed to penetrate through the immense auditorium, which had many accredited newspapermen and publishers standing in packed groups on the far turns of the dress circle and high in the gallery. As must be expected of events of such sweeping magnitude, there was some last-minute confusion in seating the invited press. It is conservatively estimated that 1,500 newsmen are here to cover the meet for the world press.

In many respects the conference unveiling was not unmindful of a big Hollywood premiere. When limousines pulled up to discharge delegates and their entourages in front of the Opera House, cameras clicked by the scores and throngs lining the entrance gave out with mild applause, but no shreiks in the cinema manner. Arabian delegation of four, decked out in white sheets with gold garlands holding their headpieces in place, drew a round of heavy applause, but to the dismay of cameramen kept moving and refused to mugg it.

Rostrum is simplicity itself, and all of its surroundings. Four dull gold pillars stand stately against a drop of azure blue as if guarding the row of flags of the participating nations. Speakers stand and facade effects are done in pale green, and nowhere can there be detected a garish effect that might clash with the seriousness of the general design.

Shuttermen had a field day much as you've seen so many times at the Chinese and Carthay. They crawled up and down the aisles on their knees and poked cameras into the faces of delegates. Not even during the laying of the welcome mat did they desist from their appointed tasks. Spotters and pointer-outers put the finger on their quarry and they pounced in and out with cameras flying. The music, hidden from view, provided a warmup during the seating and was kept subdued and apropos with such numbers as "Stout-hearted Men" and lushy Latin lilts.

If any of the 3,500 expected a pageant of nations as a prelude to the lofty intellectualism in the days to follow, they were doomed to disappointment soon after the proceedings opened. Display of flags and bolt uprightness of the honor guard were the only semblances of pageantry that might tend to swerve the motif from its serious course. It was all done in good taste and tempered to the mood of the meeting.

The delegates knuckle down to business tomorrow with morning and afternoon session schedules. From then on, the great job of shaping the world's destiny will pass into its formative stages and problems of world-shaking significance proposed and deliberated. It'll be all work and little play—at least until after the period of national mourning ends on May 13.

MARKEY HERE FOR PICTURE EPIC OF MARINE HEROISM

Arrival yesterday of Capt. Gene Markey, USN, from Washington lends new interest to government's forthcoming two-reel Technicolor production of the battle of Iwo Jima, photographed by joint efforts of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

Markey is here on general Navy business, but will look in on cutting at Warners of footage shot during combat which should give the public a new and startling glimpse of what war really is like in the far Pacific.

Picture was planned by government far ahead of Marines' taking of Iwo, island nearest Japan captured by our forces. A complete script was prepared, and different combat cameramen given definite assignments of footage to be filmed during course of battle. Government wanted an authentic pictorial record of undertaking, showing exactly what happened during campaign, so public might see how different services went about conducting of Pacific warfare.

Result is scenes of combat which never before have been equaled, nearest approach to war that a civilian probably ever will experience. In the film is the bloody battle on the beaches, the deadly charge up Suribachi, a story of the Marines' greatest victory, their toughest battle.

Editing of film, under supervision of Capt. Milton Sperling of U. S. Marine Corps, has been under way several weeks at Warners, with studio's entire facilities placed at disposal of the government.

Handling of release of film has not yet been determined. It will be released through OWI-WAC channels if it can be given a date on the crowded OWI schedule, but no ruling yet has been made in this respect. Otherwise Warners is expected to handle distribution.

Riskin To Prep 'Lucky'

Everett Riskin returns Tuesday from New York and immediately starts preparations for his next production, Metro's "Lucky Baldwin."

Powell With Eddy

Jane Powell set to guest on the May 6 Nelson Eddy airshow.

SHOW BIZ, NITERIES SLOW

San Francisco, April 25.—Show biz and night clubs just didn't do so good by the United Nations Conference, before or after. Theatres are off 10 to 15% in trade from normal, and the night spots and cocktail bars have taken a harder rap.

It's easily obvious. The spender who visits this burg to spend coin is out by invitation. They're spending it elsewhere. Those who came in advance of the meeting saw a bigger show than theatres can provide. They saw the delegates from all parts of the world. They flocked around the numerous hotels where they are staying, with the press and radio boys and gals and newsreel people attending to their chores. The local folk forgot about sitting and looking at screen personalities to view at a distance, those who are expected to make world history.

The pic houses and legit places have not as yet been put on the agenda by the visitors, who are more interested in seeing the sights and have a nip at the Palace, the Mark Hopkins, Fairmont or St. Francis hotels, where people whose names are legend in international affairs, can be seen sipping a cocktail and possibly dropping a word or two, which is afterward interpeted into a serial story in Navy parlance known as "Scuttle Butt."

A HISTORY-MAKING U. A. RELEASE!

FEMMES WALKING THE DOG ON STRIKE PICKET LINES

With femmes taking over on the picket lines, interest in the studio strike switches to Washington today where a hearing is scheduled before the National Labor Relations Board on certification of set decorators. Housewives marching in front of the studios yesterday, some of them leading pooches, while a femme deputy sheriff was assigned to Universal. A dog marching with a male picket at one lot carried a strike banner on his back.

Washington hearing was not expected to have any immediate effect on the walkout, but some leaders felt the action there might pave the way for an early settlement. Others pinned their hopes on reports that the National Building Trades Council, which also meets in the capital today, might make some recommendation to the American Federation of Labor on the issuance of charters for carpenters, painters and machinists by Richard Walsh, prexy of the IATSE. The AF of L executive council goes into session right behind the Building Trades group.

CAN THESE BE FLOATERS?

A tipoff on the NLRB hearing came yesterday when leaders said the IATSE was flooding the studios with persons classified as set dressers. Many of these were wives of IA workers, and it was reported some of them had never been in a studio before and had only a scant knowledge of what was required. However, leaders pointed out the IA was certain to insist that if any election was ordered all persons employed as set dressers should vote, with the possibility the claim might be advanced that only those currently employed were entitled to cast ballots.

Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, and other strike leaders insisted yesterday that the controversy would be won here. Sorrell said any aid coming from the AF of L or NLRB hearing would be appreciated, but that the affair would be settled here. It was declared that studios are "merely going through the motions" of production in the hopes that if they can hold out long enough there will be some break in the ranks of strikers and the back-to-work parade will start. They pointed out that with the walkout 45 days old there has been no deflection in the ranks and that all crafts are determined to stay out indefinitely rather than surrender to Walsh and the IATSE.

IBEW DEAL FAILS

Strike tops pointed out that Walsh's attempt to make a deal with the IBEW had fallen flat and that the electricians still were 100% behind the walkout. They claimed the same situation pertained to painters, carpenters, machinists, designers, decorators and janitors. Producers, on the other hand, claimed production was higher now than before the strike, that the situation was improving daily, that pictures were being produced at less cost than before, and that more men were being added to payrolls daily.

IATSE circulated a blue dodger yesterday claiming that in 44 days of strike, 1,267,200 man-hours had been lost, and that salary loss of strikers amounted to $1,684,800. They also dragged out the old Commy story about Herbert Sorrell, claiming current controversy was a move to take over and control "the most powerful propaganda medium" in the world.

Strikers put out usual bulletin advising pickets of various moves under way by both sides. General trend of conversation on picket lines, however, was "Watch Washington."

No Holds Barred

John Hodiak and Preston Foster yesterday began rehearsals at Metro for what is aimed to be the most spectacular and hard-hitting screen battle since the historic fisticuffs between the late Milton Sills and William Farnum in Paramount's version of "The Spoilers." The sequence will climax "The Harvey Girls," and will continue for nine minutes of screen time. George Sidney is directing the Judy Garland Technicolor starrer.

FLACKS WILL CLEAR STRIKE STAND AT MEET TONIGHT

A special membership meeting of Screen Publicists Guild has been called for tonight to "clarify" position of flacks on current studio strike. While question of a new business manager may be discussed, tops indicated no election would be held at this time unless the rank and file demanded it. Tentative proposal to employ an exec from the National Labor Relations Board is said to have fallen through.

Flacks probably will join with other crafts in the Conference of Studio Unions that are still employed in issuing a joint statement on the walkout. It is understood statement would urge a settlement, but at the same time probably would censure the IATSE and producers for their attitudes in the controversy. Other crafts whose members still are employed are the Screen Office Employes Guild, Screen Cartoonists Guild and Screen Analysts Guild.

SPG groups are said to be divided over selection of a business manager to succeed Ted Taylor, who resigned last week. Some favor electing a guild member, while others are for upping the salary and going outside for a business representative.

NEW GUILD OUT IN OPEN FOR RULE OF EXTRAS

New fight for control of film extras appeared certain last night when Screen Extras Guild called a meeting for election of temporary officers and announced that it would "fight for a change in certification" of Screen Players Union by the National Labor Relations Board.

Simultaneously, Business Representative Mike Jeffers of Screen Players Union, announced he had signed interim agreements with Special Pictures, Inc., and World Wide, calling for use of paid-up SPU members.

It is probable that temporary SEG officers will be selected from the organizing committee of 40, with the understanding they will serve only until permanent officers are elected by the general membership.

It is understood SEG tops decided to carry their fight into the open immediately without awaiting further action by the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, which currently is considering charter applications from both SEG and SPU. SEG already has offered to meet any charter requirements of the Four A's. Following statement was issued by SEG tops last night:

"The organizing committee of the Screen Extras Guild wishes to warn all people now doing motion picture extra work against misleading statements which will probably be put out by Screen Players Union in a frantic attempt to collect dues. It is time enough to pay dues when SPU has made good some of its promises. Because the SEG considers SPU leaders absolutely incompetent to exercise their jurisdiction, we, the SEG, will continue to fight for a change in certification."

SPU delegation headed by Business Representative Mike Jeffers is scheduled to meet with major producer representatives tomorrow to discuss an interim agreement pending negotiation of a contract.

METRO IS SHOOTING BIG 'WED' FIESTA

Director Eddie Buzzell yesterday started filming the huge Fiesta number for Metro's "Early To Wed," with Van Johnson, Esther Williams and Ethel Smith, plus a big dancing line. Miss Smith winds up her stint in the picture early next week and leaves immediately for New York to resume her weekly broadcasts on Lucky Strike "Hit Parade."

After shooting the Fiesta sequence Director Buzzell will shutter the production for a month, awaiting the return of Keenan Wynne, injured in a scooter crash, when the final part of the story part of the offering will be bagged.

The Ciro Rimac Revue has been signed for an additional two weeks at the Trocadero.

AGENTS ACT TO LINE UP HOSPITAL SHOWS TALENT

Hollywood agents have agreed to take an active part in lining up film personalities for entertainment tours of military hospitals. Moving to help meet an urgent need for increased participation in the military hospital program, Artists Managers Guild yesterday appointed Charles K. Feldman, Jules Stein and Frank Vincent as a special committee to cooperate with the emergency committee of the Screen Actors Guild in scheduling talent for hospital appearances.

Action followed a special meeting of a majority of AMG members with the Hollywood Victory Committee's talent representatives. The three agency heads were appointed by Prexy Bert Allenberg to organize machinery for coordinating efforts of agents with those of the actors and studios.

Kenneth Thomson, chairman of the HVC, presented to the special meeting the problem resulting from tremendous increase in the number of Army and Navy hospitals taking care of war wounded. James Cagney and Walter Pidgeon reported on action of the SAG emergency committee, which is securing actor pledges for hospital tours and other HVC programs, including overseas tours.

WE'VE LEARNED at least one thing since the last war.

We've learned that a treaty or peace plan, no matter how many diplomats sign it or how many seals and ribbons it bears, isn't worth the parchment it's printed on if the people aren't behind it.

That means that you . . . and you . . . 130,000,000 of you . . . must know the score. You must know what this nation promises to do and not do.

That's why you should stay tuned to this station throughout this evening. The Blue Network will bring this Conference right into your living room with a full evening of news, commentary, and forum discussions.

Fifty Blue Network newscasters and commentators, headed by Sumner Welles, will be in San Francisco to give the Conference the complete coverage it deserves . . . and through the cooperation of the sponsors of programs that regularly broadcast over the Blue Network on Thursday, radio will be able to render an outstanding service to the American people. It is our sincere hope that by giving you a full understanding of this San Francisco Conference and its implications we may help stop World War number three.

PICKET LINES ORDERED AT TECHNI LOT

Picket lines were ordered for Technicolor at 6 a.m. today, as unfair labor practice charges were filed against Columbia and 20th-Fox as a result of the current studio strike, and the National Labor Relations Board in Washington heard arguments as to what union should control set decorators. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, announced last night that pickets would be marching in front of the Technicolor plant before time for the first shift to report for work.

At the same time, Sorrell declared that Commander Heron, of the Navy, had advised him that Columbio was unable to complete a Navy picture because of the walkout. He

The award was handed him by E. C. Harloff of Henry Morgenthau's office.

H'D HOPE FOR MILLIONS IN TAX REFUNDS SLIPS

Hollywood, both corporations and individuals, has been hopeful that shortly after V-E Day there would be a kickback of millions, yet last night saw some of its hopes go glimmering.

Indications both out of Washington and the film capital were that it might take some time—if ever—before the Treasury Department refunds come to the excess profits levy payers here.

How much, anyhow, the motion picture corporations and the high-salaried personalities will get back on their excess payments to Uncle Sam, is still a matter of conjecture.

Despite Congressional efforts to provide quick tax relief after Victory day in the European theatre of war, there was in Washington even last night no indication there will be any immediate slashes in the rates nor that excess profits taxes of corporations will be speedily refunded. No one in Hollywood, not even the tax

NAZI MURDER MILL PIX IN NEXT WEEK'S REELS

Washington, April 26.—The first U. S. Army motion pictures covering the Nazi murder mills in Germany, and showing the atrocities against helpless prisoners of war, will be available to the U. S. newsreels next Tuesday, when the initial prints hit American screens. The Army has given all reel outfits sufficient footage for a full spool, but the latter have been forced to do some trimming in order to take care of the San Francisco conferences opening in the Tuesday releases.

The Embassy, Broadway's newsreel house, tonight was showing Russian pictures covering the Nazi death factory near Lublin, Poland, where it is reported 1,380,000 were put to death by the Hitlerites. The material is supplied by Artkino, which handles Russian footage in this country.

Both this Artkino and the forthcoming American Army clips, which will be ready for general release next week, are reported to be the most vivid argument against a soft Nazi peace to reach the U. S. public.

Some of the American newsreels previously have carried footage on the Nazis' brutal treatment and slaying of Allied prisoners, as well as the innocent natives of Poland, but the War Department, through its Signal Corps, has made these new clips available to all reels.

AMERICAN Women's Voluntary Services is crusading to get motorists going over Cahuenga Pass down into San Fernando Valley into habit of picking up servicemen and giving them a lift back toward camp, carrying them as far as they themselves go. As first step toward this, group has just opened a new post called "GI Junction," on Ventura Blvd., near Lankershim Blvd., which is for boys in uniform to stopover while awaiting rides to their camps. AWVS bought a small barracks from Army, then had it brick-faced so it wouldn't resemble anything pertaining to the Army, to set up this post. Plumbers, carpenters, electricians and other craftsmen from Universal and Republic donated their time to readying building for occupancy and otherwise saw to it that AWVS would have structure ready in record time. AWVS contacted 32 different organizations in valley, with result various groups are helping run the rendezvous. Post is open from 9:00 a. m. to midnight five days a week, and open all night on Fridays and Saturdays. Organization now is trying to sell public on idea of stopping off at "GI Junction" as they pass, especially if they are going any considerable distance, to pick up riders, a move inspired when AWVS members saw hundreds of boys in uniform standing on side of road trying to get transportation back to camp.

NY LEGIT OPENING

COMMON GROUND

New York, April 26.—Edward Chodorov, who has been carrying the torch against Fascism in his playwright efforts, has come up with another diatribe against the Axis in "Common Ground," which Edward Choate brought to the Fulton theatre last night.

"Ground" has good first act in which Chodorov has spent much of his activating dialog and situational buildup, but thereafter the play teeters. It hasn't much of a chance either for Broadway or films.

"Ground" deals with capture of a U. S. troupe forced down in plane behind enemy lines in Italy. The play's major situation is how the troupe is called upon to display its true democratic spirit when asked by a Nazi colonel to entertain Nazi troops. They choose to die rather than submit. There are some excellent performances, namely by Philip Loeb as a Hollywood star whose Jewish background serves him in poor stead, and Joseph Vitale and Nancy Noland as small vauders.

Mary Healy, Paul McGrath, Peter von Zerneck, Donald Murphy and Luther Adler, as an Italian army captain, called upon by his characterization to speak only Italian through entire play, give fine performances. There is fine setting of bombed Italian castles in which the troupe is kept captive, but otherwise play is made notably distinctive by the fine performances.

The play's message is much too obvious to warrant telling at this late date. "Ground" was staged by Chodorov with the sets by George Jenkins.

'Soldier' On KFWB

'Castile' Tops Sellers

This week's best-seller list is topped by "Captain From Castile," Samuel Shellabarger novel, recently purchased for film production by 20th-Fox. Pic will be filmed in Technicolor with Cornel Wilde in the title role.

When the sedate town of Pasadena puts on a hoss-rustling trial, it is time for Hollywood to change the format of its western films. There is a new generation of rustlers, road agents and other miscreants perpetrating ancient dramas with modern props. Only last week the mail stage was stuck up by a gang of motor bandits on the California desert, and not so long ago a culprit was apprehended in the act of rustling cattle with the aid of a moving van on a Long Island meadow, only a few miles from the tree that grows in Brooklyn.

PREVIEWED at Universal studios, April 26, 1945. Running time: 60 MINS.

Universal has a trim parcel of musical comedy in "Honeymoon Ahead," which has Allan Jones as its star. It is one of those things with which U has won success as a filler of secondary spots on dualers, and it stands out from the run-of-the-mill crop.

It will give strong support to any two-feature program, and may even take its place as a topliner in some of the lesser first-run situations. It's plain hokum throughout, but it is interesting hokum, plus an Allan Jones in better voice than moviegoers ever have heard him.

You have to credit Associate Producer Will Cowan and Director Reginald Le Borg with the splendid efforts they have put into "Honeymoon Ahead." They have played the hokish angles to the limit, but at no time have they toned down that Jones vocalizing, all of which is based on some dandy numbers by Milton Rosen and Everett Carter, including such originals as "Round the Bend," "Time Will Tell," "How Lovely" and "Now and Always."

The tale leads Jones from a state penitentiary, where he has formed and trained a choral group that finally finds a national sponsor, through his exoneration and down to the point where he joins a roving stock troupe.

It is a neat job all around, from the original story straight on through the final editing.

Faces In the Fog

(Drama)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Producer, Herman Millakowsky. Director, John English. Original screenplay, Jack Townley. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Editor, Tony Martinelli.

CAST—Stars Jane Withers. Supporting players: Eric Sinclair, Paul Kelly, John Litel, Lee Patrick, Gertrude Michael, Dorothy Peterson, Bob Stebbins, Adele Mara, H. B. Warner, Joel McGinnis, Richard Byron, Patricia Lynn.

REVIEWED at Guild theatre, Hollywood, Calif., April 26, 1945. Running time: 66 MINS.

"Faces In the Fog" is a problem picture which should have been released a year ago, during the era of juvenile delinquency dramas. Rather obviously making a plea for greater understanding between parents and children, film is dated, thus automatically dropping into second marquee position in the duals. Jane Withers is starred and turns in a convincing performance in a heavily-styled drama, which John English directs with facile enough hand.

Story has to do with a set of parents, Paul Kelly and Lee Patrick, who are too busy with their own partying to pay much attention to their two children, Jane playing the daughter. Through long series of circumstances, during which Jane and Eric Sinclair, boy next door, fall in love and secretly marry after latter is unjustly expelled from high school for an auto accident in which he was not involved, plot builds to a point where Kelly shoots Sinclair and goes on trial. Acquitted when Jane refuses to divulge she is married, so her father's attorney may base his case on "unwritten law" (Kelly found Jane and Sinclair in auto court night they were wed), film ends with Jane accompanying policewoman to court where she is to be faced with charge of perjury.

Story is believable piece of writing but the theme is inclined to be overemphasized. Herman Millakowsky, handling producer reins, did creditable job, getting the most out of moderate budget. Supporting players without exception acquit themselves satisfactorily.

Oath of Vengance

(Western)

PRC RELEASE. Producer, Sigmund Neufeld. Director, Sam Newfield. Original story and screenplay, Fred Myton. Photography, Robert Cline. Sound engineer, Arthur Smith. Film editor, Holbrook N. Todd. Assistant director, Harold E. Knox. Production manager, Bert Sternbach.

CAST—Stars Buster Crabbe, with Al (Fuzzy) St. John. Others in cast: Mady Laurence, Jack Ingram, Charles King, Marin Sais, Karl Hackett, Kermit Maynard, Hal Price, Frank Ellis.

REVIEWED at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, April 26, 1945. Running time: 56 MINS.

"Oath of Vengeance" is a silly title to hang on this standard, run-of-the-mill oater. What takes place bears no resemblance to the label. It's strictly stock fare for the Saturday matinee grinds. Buster Crabbe as the hero goes about his sterling deeds in a lackadaisical manner. Al St. John, the comedy sidekick, manages to drag in a few chuckles, but otherwise picture fails to register much menace or action.

St. John, tired of ranching, sells out and buys a general store in a small western town. Crabbe goes along for the ride. St. John finds the valley in a turmoil—it seems someone is fostering trouble between the ranchers and settlers. Former accuse latter of cattle rustling, while the settlers charge ranchers with trying to drive them off the land. Of course, it's all a dirty plot spawned by the town's respectable real estate and loan broker, who figures the ranchers and settlers will kill each other off and then he'll take over. The hero spends so much time looking pensive he almost doesn't spot what's cooking, despite the number of times it smacks him between the eyes. He does catch on eventually and right triumphs.

Production, direction and cast are all standard and the photography below that classification.

ICE CAPADES OF 1945

After the several thousand bobby-soxers, both male and female, had given shrieks of delight at each of the cinema luminaries, Ice Capades of 1945 got under way 35 minutes late last night at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium. From the casual observer's view it appeared to resemble a food show, with celebrities being gobbled up like free pastry samples before the main course was served. After the greats and near-greats were seated the show finally started.

"Ice Capades" was well worth the money and the waiting. It's a spectacular display of rhythm and color on ice. Precision work, top lighting effects, sharp dancing routines and good costuming go into this frozen production.

Trixie stands out as the top performer of those seen by the reviewer. Pert little blonde juggles, dances and skips rope on the ice in a manner that would be difficult enough if she were not wearing skates. Her business of balancing a big rubber ball, in a manner to make a very agile seal jealous, brought down the house.

For top comedy, Eric Waite served to an opening night plaudit. He broke up what started out to be a fairly good ballet by his clowning and pretending to be an understudy who wasn't quite certain of his part.

Don Condon and Mary Bohland, a frigid terp team, swooped through a beautiful dance interpretation backed up by the Ballet Petite. There are other stars in the show, such as the Benoit Sisters, Red McCarthy, Patti Phillipe, Donna Atwood and Nate and Edith Walley.

A seasoned usher was heard to remark, "Folks, tonight you'll see the lousiest performance of the run." If opening night, which was only terrific, was the worst performance, then future ticket buyers can well be envied.

NEWS REELS HAVE FIELD DAY AT UN SESSION

the keynote for the parleys which are to find security for the world.

There were more than 3,000 in the War Memorial Opera House this afternoon. It really was a sober-minded and tense audience. They were primarily interested in listening to one man. They wanted to know how his nation stood. He was on next to closing and had the star spot, with his speech first in his native Russian, then later in English and finally in French.

Molotov was the big moment of the day for all. He was loudly applauded as he came in and likewise at the completion of his talk when he stated that Stalin and the people of Russia will cooperate for a world security agreement.

This was pretty much the tone of U. S. Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, Dr. T. V. Soong of China, and Anthony Eden who spoke on behalf of Britain.

At opening of the session the Chilean minister offered a statement of homage to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, which was accepted with a moment of silence, after which Stettinius told of the planning of the United Nations move which led to the present meeting, and outlined the fact that this was a security meet — that peace terms were no part of the show.

Again it was a field day for the newsreel cameramen. They had more than 20 cameras grinding away at the dignitaries and speakers and turned out around 20,000 feet of film which was planed out by 7 o'clock tonight to Hollywood for development and shipment to all parts of the world.

And the still boys had a bigger field day than yesterday. They were all over the orchestra floor, whether speeches were being made or not, getting shots of the who's who in diplomacy from all parts of the world. That's not done in Hollywood when a premiere goes on, but here the bulb pushers had their way and a field day too.

Radio also had its harvest. Those commentators, columnists and sidelight observers were studded all about the grand tier and found plenty of grist to put through their mills for the evening, as well as cutting in here and there directly to the folks outside as to what they observed, thought and heard. That was done mostly during the time translators were readying speeches in foreign languages.

An unexpected interpretation came on when a French interpreter, without the signal from Stettinius, started translating the Molotov speech into his own language. That sort of upset the network boys who tried to clear the lines by 5:30, and had to stretch out until Anthony Eden finished his talk, which was behind time. This carried the ether part of the show an extra half-hour.

There were no agreements at the Big Four meeting this morning, so the permanent officers and a president of the conference were not chosen, but it is expected they will be in time for the next plenary session tomorrow afternoon.

RADIO STARS OFF IN BIG GUESSING DERBY

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 26.—The biggest guessing game in history is now over the first hurdle and racing for the tape. The guessers are the commentators and analysts, so-called, who are trying to call the turn on what's on the minds of the tophole delegates.

They're at least a day ahead of the conference, and if the high-domed figures of power politics will but listen to the radio, they'll have a tack to go on next day. It's more a matter of convenience than propheteering that they've turned to gazing into crystal balls. News is developing too slowly for the radio oracles and they're grasping at straws to keep interest alive on the home sets.

The big enigma, as was to be expected, is the Soviet, whose inscrutability is challenging to the lay mind and the sideline experting gentry. The best guesser will make somewhat of a rep for the official dossier. The cards are being dealt slowly and the pot is piling up, but there has not yet been a showdown of hands.

VETERAN GUESSERS

Going out on a limb is nothing new to these lads who make a comfortable living out of seeing the future. They're just like newspapermen in one respect. When news is scarce they set out to make news. Here their province is world politics, where some of the greatest minds are kicking around the ingredients that, it is hoped, will be compounded into global security.

The setup is there, and a natural, so the conclusion is inevitable. Guess what's in their minds and what they"re going to say andd o. So they're wrong. So what? The guy could've changed his mind and hopped over the fence.

Such experts at the guessing game as Walter Winchell, Drew Pearson, our own Sam Balter and the multitude of others have been doing it for years and getting away with it quite handily. Those they hit on are remembered, the wrong guesses are interred in limbo. The public memory is short and they're reminded only of the predictions come true.

The commentators you hear on the air are at least a day ahead of the big skull joust and unless they are gently curbed their influence might be felt in certain official quarters.

Anthony Eden has been giving out autographs with the readiness and willingness of a Jack Oakie, but try to wangle anything else out of him with any bearing on the international chinfest! He's a smart cookie, as they say in the cook shack, and isn't discussing anything more important than the noisiest street in the world—Frisco's Market street.

In the portals of higher learning and the drawing rooms of the intellectuals the guessing game is just as popular and proximity is not advantage. Just because a commentator is on the same hotel floor as the big brain, the future is no less foggy. The power politicians probably don't know themselves which way the fox will jump. If the tide flows their way, that's the bandwagon they'll hop on.

GEMS BY GRACIE ALLEN

It's just as possible to find a gem of prophetic wisdom in Gracie Allen's column as in the prose pillared by Polyzoides.

Commentators have become so impressed with their shot-calling that their quarter-hour stanzas are fully 300 words more than nonplenary typed grist. They're speeding up that much more to get in under the signoff.

Last night the great minds met unofficially on America's Town Meeting of the Air. As a sideshow to the main arena, the group of learned speakers discussed over the Blue Network the question, "Can we build a lasting peace now?"

WASTED BINGLES

Such worthies as Joseph C. Grew, Raymond Gram Swing, Hans Kaltenborn, Commander Harold Stassen, Senator Tom Connolly and William Shirer took a turn at bat and rapped out a few bingles that probably weren't even fielded by V. Molotov, Tony Eden or the Arabians in their percale shrouds.

On the lighter side of this foundation-laying for peace is a by-product of Hollywood, the presence here of Charles Boyer, Hedda Hopper's hats and Gracie Allen's yoo-hoo to all the copys.

We asked a girl hotel clerk today why all the exodus to the side entrance. "Why, Charles Boyer just went out," she gushed. It's the same world over and don't let anyone tell you any different.

MODERN BABEL GRIPS NETS

San Francisco, April 26.—Radio networks were caught in the middle of a comedy of linguistic errors today and had to make out the best they could. It cost them an extra hour of commercial time due to a late start and a muddle precipitated by refusal of the Russian delegation to accept an interpreter designated by the chains.

commercial time due to a late start and a muddle precipitated by refusal of the Russian delegation to accept an interpreter designated by the chains.

Representatives of the nets offered to the State Department services of trained translators. This offer was transmitted to the Russians. The offer was benignly but firmly rejected by the Soviet, which just as firmly told the State Department attaches their own interpreters would handle V. Molotov's speech.

A French interpreter broke in off-center to translate the Molotov address, but was called off by Secretary Stettinius. It was later carried over the chains by an English interpreter of the Russ choosing. All nets were caught off base.

When the plenary session was delayed half an hour, ad libbing commentators were rushed in to fill the void. The foreign-language muddle is expected to be straightened out so the confusion of today's broadcast won't be repeated.

UNITED NATIONS PIC MEETING SET FOR TOMORROW

San Francisco, April 26.—Cooperative working plans for future relationship and economical operations for film industry of the United Nations is hoped for from a conference here Saturday from motion picture men of the 46 nations.

The purpose of the session, as announced today, is to give the foreign film heads a chance to indicate which of the films of their respective nations they wish to have shown in the Conference Theatre, where documentary pictures are to be screened under State Department auspices. It is figured the visiting film officers will let down their hair at the meeting and state frankly their opinion of what's wrong with the other fellows' pictures, and vice versa. The confab was called by Mary Losey, representing the State Department, and Glen Allvine, acting for the American motion picture industry.

The French feature, "Harvest," scheduled for showing as the second attraction in the United Nations Theatre, has been pulled for security reasons and will be replaced by "La Marseilles."

"Harvest" was to have been shown Monday, but instead the new film which is enroute here from New York will be screened Tuesday. "Going My Way," originally slated for Tuesday, will consequently be moved up a day.

PRODS OK IA TO NLRB AS DECORATORS BARGAINER

Washington, April 26.—A spokesman for the studios told the National Labor Relations Board today that if the set decorators remain in Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421, the industry "will never have any peace and never have any production."

Burton A. Zorn, N. Y. attorney for the producers, asserted strongly that the IATSE was the proper bargaining agency for the set decorators unless they are to return to their former status as an independent group. Zorn appeared before the Labor Board in the hearing on the jurisdictional dispute which has the studios fighting to keep production going.

44 CLAIMS RULE

Michael G. Luddy, counsel for Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44, argued that this organization was the proper bargaining agency for the decorators, and Frank S. Pestana, attorney for the Conference of Studio Unions, took the other side of the case on behalf of Local 1421. The board gave no indication when it will rule on the petition for certification.

Back of the flood of fancy words and legal argument before the NLRB was a clear picture of an effort by the opposing sides to influence the Labor Board on what should govern eligibility for the inevitable bargaining election and what weight should be given to the personal desires of the 77 striking decorators.

PAINTERS PRESENT CASE

Pestana argued the right of the decorators to affiliate with the Brotherhood of Painters on the ground of similarity of function and of the personal desires of the strikers. "You can decide this on the basis of the functions of the men or on the basis of their choice and I have no doubt of the outcome in either case," he said. He charged he had just received word from Hollywood that the studios have shifted about 100 men from Local 44 to the set decorators for the purpose of controlling the vote.

"To allow this would be a shame and a fraud upon the court," he argued. "This is a transfer on the payrolls, not of creative workers. It is merely a technique to move laborers on new payrolls for the purpose of election."

Both Zorn and Luddy urged the NLRB to follow its precedent laid down in the Wurlitzer case. This provided that both replacements and strikers should be allowed to vote in the bargaining elections, but not a group of men who had been legitimately discharged by the management. The last category was allowed to vote only under the right of challenge, which provided that their eligibility would have to be proven before their ballots could be counted.

CLAIMS DISCHARGES OK

Zorn insisted that the discharge notices sent out by the studios were strictly legitimate and involved no unfair labor practices by the studios.

"This is proven," Zorn said, "by the fact that no charges of unfair labor practices have been filed. We have actually replaced these men. The fact is, we have new men doing set designs. Sets have been dressed and our replacements are doing the work. We are not only finishing old pictures, we are making new ones. These are legitimate replacements.

"It is true that a handful of set designers are men of unusual talent and skill. But the historical background shows that the work is properly the function of the property department and there is a mutual interest. From the point of industrial peace and harmonious relations, we feel it would be better if the set designers were included in the property unit.

FEARS CLASHES

"There is undoubtedly some creative work for the set decorators, but the same is true for the miniature builders who are in the IATSE. The real test is their function. The desires of the men should not overcome the creation of the best unit to help keep industrial peace. You can see what happens to us when the set decorators are affiliated with the union antagonistic to the prop men, when the decorators work with the prop men all the time. There will be clashes, making trouble for the studios."

Luddy argued that at least half of the set decorators were members of Local 44 and have received their training under the IATSE. "It is not in the record of the case," Luddy declared, "but a matter which the board must take into consideration if you order an election, must be the right of the replacements to vote." He said the payroll for the bargaining election should be "fixed almost contemporaneously with the date of the election," and called for a right of challenge "which would determine whether persons have been lawfully discharged."

NLRB RAISES POINTS

"If we merge these men in with the prop department before the election," pointed out Gerald D. Reilly, NLRB member, "then the votes of the set decorators would be swamped."

"The cameramen saw fit to go into your organization," said H. A. Millis, chairman of the board. "Shouldn't the other group have the same right to go where they please?" he asked Luddy.

"We have claimed them both for many years," answered Luddy. "We asserted our jurisdiction in 1940. Our contention was that they had a right to set up separate housekeeping, but it was different when they joined a rival organization."

Luddy asked to strike from the IATSE brief points raising objection to NLRB taking jurisdiction. "We now have no objection to the board taking jurisdiction," he said. "We now believe that the board should assume jurisdiction."

DECORATORS CREATORS

Pestana argued that the set decorators were creative workers and the prop men laborers. He said therefore the decorators belonged with the other creative workers under the united scenic artists. He said this was as true on the stage as in pictures.

"For 18 months," Pestana said, "the studios have failed to exercise the right to cancel the contract which existed with the independent decorators or to accept a substitute contract in which the decorators were a part of the painters." He said this was a violation of the California law.

Decorators In East Allied With Painters

Washington, April 26.—Fred Marshall, business representative of New York Scenic Artists Local 829, told NLRB that every union set decorator east of Denver is affiliated with his local union. Local 829 is affiliated with the Brotherhood of Painters, the same as Local 1421 on the Coast, and testimony was to offset claim of IATSE that decorators belonged in the same unit with prop men. L. P. Lindelof, international prexy of the painters, also attended the certification hearing before the board. Attorney Frank Pestana, Hugh Hunt and Ed Mussa, of Local 1421, go to N. Y. tonight for conferences with Scenic Artists group on locations, etc.

PICKETS ORDERED AT TECHNI LOT TODAY

said Commander Heron advised him he was taking it up with Washington and asked if he, Sorrell, cared to make any statement. Sorrell said he advised the commander that if the production would be moved to an independent lot the conference would furnish him with all the necessary technicians to handle the job.

Columbia execs denied they had cancelled the Navy production, declaring they were ready to carry out their agreement to complete it within 60 days after the outside shots were turned over. They added they felt confident the agreement could be carried out and that a conference had been scheduled with Commander Heron for 10 a. m. today. They expressed surprise at the announcement, but indicated there might have been some objection on the part of the Navy to having the picture produced where strikebreaking labor was employed.

Producer representatives stated last night that a picket line at Technicolor was perhaps the most serious threat to continued production since the strike started several weeks ago. All technicolor production and a big part of the black and white is processed through that laboratory.

Technicolor employes about 1200 workers, of whom approximately 700 are affiliated with Film Technicians Local 683, an affiliate of the IATSE. Cinema Lodge 1185 has about 85 machinists in the plant and most of the remainder are White Collar workers and miscellaneous employes. Since the Key Machinists handling Technicolor cameras are already out at Technicolor, it was considered virtually certain none of the remaining toolers would cross the picket line.

A. V. Kollin, a member of Studio Set Electricians Local 728, IATSE, filed an unfair labor practice charge with the NLRB against 20th-Fox. Kollin complained that he had been dismissed because he maintained a friendly attitude toward studio employes who are on strike or who are refusing to cross the picket lines. Joseph Cuccia, a member of Studio Laborers Local 727, IATSE, filed an unfair labor practice charge against Columbia, complaining that he had been dismissed by the studio for refusing to do the work of a painter.

'COMMITTEE OF 35' STARTS CIO DRIVE IN STUDIOS

The CIO was drawn into the studio strike picture yesterday when studios were flooded with leaflet, signed by "Committee of 35," stating authorization cards for affiliation with the industrial organization would be distributed within the next day or so. Tone of circular indicated committee members are now affiliated with the IATSE, and called upon all film workers to organize "one big democratic, industrial union."

Leaflet, thousands of which were passed out along the picket lines, stated in part:

"Why this strike? Why allow a jurisdictional dispute to tie up the studios in wartime? Why allow craft lines to keep you out of work? The Committee of 35 can solve your problem.

"Herbert Sorrell and the defunct Conference of Studio Unions claim they are fighting for 77 Decorators. Richard Walsh and the decadent IATSE leadership are attempting to force their liberal membership to become strikebreakers.

HANG HEADS IN SHAME

"We, the Committee of 35, hang our heads in shame when passing the picket lines (established by Sorrell and his cohorts) attempting to break a strike created, apparently over 77 Decorators, but in reality to build the producers' undercover partner, Richard Walsh, into a Frankenstein of Labor. Walsh is attempting to establish an industrial organization. We, too, believe in an industrial organization, but believe the only industrial organization that can succeed in the studios today is the one that has succeeded elsewhere, the CIO.

"The Decorators should have an opportunity to vote, not only whether they should be an IA or a painter-dominated group, but also for a CIO industrial union. We know that a majority of the IATSE membership is tired of being dictated to and will be more than glad to swing to a liberal CIO organization, with full democratic rights."

PROMISE WHIRLWIND ATTACK

"This is our first bulletin, but we shall make a whirlwind attack. Our organization is being financed by no one but ourselves. Upon completion of our organization we will show by our actions, our deeds, our good agreements and our attention to the workers interests, that the strikers are so whipsawed by their craft unions, they will be glad to join us. We are told by the CIO that they are not interested in this industry. We are sure we can change their mind if an overwhelming number of authorization cards are signed, which we will distribute in the next day or so. Let's forget our differences and have one big democratic studio union."

Both studio execs and workers displayed considerable interest in appearance of leaflet and both were seeking to learn its sponsorship.

SPU CHARGES SEG IS FRONT FOR ACTORS GUILD

As Screen Players Union prepared to meet with producers today to discuss an interim agreement, Business Representative Mike Jeffers issued a statement declaring the Screen Extras Guild is "a front for the Screen Actors Guild." Jeffers said the SEG announcement that it would attack the SPU certification was merely to confuse extras since, under the law, there could be no change in the SPU certification "for a long time."

Jeffers statement, in part, follows:

"The SAG cannot come out into the open to cause dissention directly among extra players or to bargain for extras, so they use Messrs. Steers, Norton and Gordon, who appeared as observers and representatives for the SAG at the NLRB election, two of whom were the leaders of the defunct Essential Players movement, and also SAG delegates to the Central Labor Council, and are the original opposition to democratic union for extra players. All this is an attempt to set up an artificial union.

SAG ACCUSED

"It is the vain hope of the SAG to confuse the extra players so as to assure continuance of his serfdom. For a long time there will be no change in the representation or certification under the law, so the SPU is the only legal bargaining agent. All the promises made by the SPU have been kept. They fought for the freedom of the extra player in his own union, and were so certified, and won in all respects in the election overwhelmingly in favor of SPU on Dec. 17, 1944. Where were Steers, Norton and Gordon? They were politely fighting to keep the extras under the domination of the SAG.

ATTACKING LEADERS

"As long as there is no other means of attacking the SPU, they are using the time-worn method of attacking the leadership. If those who comprise the SEG seem to think they are trying to do something beneficial, why don't they join the lawfully certified SPU, since they, as well as all former B members are eligible for membership. If they have anything to offer that does not constitute treason to the extra players, why not join the SPU, which has been certified by Uncle Sam and use democratic methods of having their suggestions, if beneficial, accepted or rejected by the membership."

ACTORS GUILD AND PRODS MEET ON PACT CHANGES

First negotiations parley between Screen Actors Guild and the major companies on amendments to the producer-SAG minimum contract has been set for Monday night. Meeting will be held at headquarters of the Producers Association.

Negotiating committee representing SAG will be composed of Prexy George Murphy, Robert Montgomery, Walter Abel, Tudor Williams, Cliff Lyons, Larry Steers, Harry Cording, John Dales, Jr., executive secretary; Pat Somerset, Murray Kinnell, Guild execs, and Attorney William Berger. It is understood the producers will be represented by their regular labor relations committee composed of E. J. Mannix, Y. Frank Freeman, B. B. Kahane, Cliff Work, Fred Pelton and legal counsel.

The SAG contract runs until May, 1947, and provides for annual discussion of modifications suggested by either party which, if concurred in by the guild and the producers, becomes part of the agreement. Otherwise, either party may demand arbitration on the subjects of minimum wages and hours.

Guilders are seeking increased minimums for day players, contract actors and freelance players. With establishment of the new Class A membership, SAG also is certain to ask higher minimums for stuntmen, singers, dancers, etc. There also will be some discussion as to television rights, radio appearances, loanouts and other contract provisions pertaining largely to top-bracket personnel.

'WILSON' PIRACY SUIT DISMISSAL ASKED BY 20TH

New York, April 26.—20th-Fox today sought dismissal of Anthony Richard Pinci's plagiarism suit charging piracy of his copyrighted play, "Woodrow Wilson."

At the same time the company filed answers in federal court here to the composer's title and song infringement suit of Maude Nugent Jerome, based on 20th-Fox's use of the song, "Sweet Rosie O'Grady."

Pinci is suing for $500,000 damages and an accounting of the profits of the 20th-Fox film production, "Wilson."

The film company alleges Pinci submitted manuscripts on two occasions, that both were returned unopened and that no parts of the alleged play were used in the film.

Summary judgment and dismissal of the Jerome suit was asked on the grounds that Columbia Pictures is the owner of film rights to the tune and not the composer, the composer having disposed of her rights in 1925 to Columbia.

Mrs. Jerome is seeking injunction and accounting from alleged unlawful use of title and song in the film, "Sweet Rosie O'Grady."

PESKAY CLAIMS HE'S FIRST TO STAR FITZGERALD

A who-starred-him-first dispute over Barry Fitzgerald was on today, with Edward Peskay, Popular Pictures vice-president, emphatically claiming the distinction.

Stirred up by reports that another studio is publicizing the statement that it is giving Fitzgerald his first starring role in a film now in production, Peskay asserted that he starred the actor months before he got the Oscar as the best supporting actor for his work in "Going My Way."

Peskay pointed out that he signed Fitzgerald for the part of Judge Quincannon in "Ten Little Indians," Popular's filming of the Agatha Christie whodunit, "Then There Were None." He said he telephoned the order to sign from New York. Representatives here tried to dissuade him when they learned the price was $75,000.

They told the Popular veepee it was preposterous to pay so much in view of the fact that Fitzgerald was getting only $17,500 for his job in the Bing Crosby picture.

Peskay's answer to that was, "Sign him."

The inside is that Peskay already had information that the New York Critics Circle was voting Fitzgerald its highest honors and was certain he would win the Oscar.

"It is in 'Ten Little Indians,' therefore, that Fitzgerald is getting his first star billing," Peskay said.

So the Peskay film goes with Fitzgerald's name on the marquee for a shrewd box office coup.

experts, could predict an average scale of refund checks when they come.

IMPORTANT STAKE

Hollywood has an important stake in these refunds, but neither Washington nor Hollywood experts would provide a guess as to how big they might be. Thousands of corporations have filed claims for the refunds, but these requests for cutbacks are not public documents, and the Internal Revenue Bureau has not even compiled a composite picture of how much all the film companies are asking back from Secretary Morgenthau.

As a matter of fact, the situation on which the refunds will be based is still changing. Some of the figures will be predicated on whether losses are suffered during 1945 or 1946.

While Congress is seeking to have refunds paid speedily, in time to have business helped during reconversion, it is claimed in the national capital that pictures will have very little, if any, reconversion headache.

20TH SENDING 45 FOR 'VOYAGE' ON BAYOUS

A 20th-Fox company of about 45, headed by June Haver, leaves Monday for New Orleans for filming of "Enchanted Voyage" scenes on Lake Ponchartrain and Bayou Liberty. Principals in the cast, besides Miss Haver, include Clem Bevans, Charles Russell and John Ireland.

Lloyd Bacon, director of the Walter Morosco production; Unit Manager Booth McCracken, Cameramen Harry Jackson and Joe McDonald and Head Grip Charles Rose were leaving today to arrange for the location shooting.

Cantor Sets Up His Own Replacement

Eddie Cantor's summer package, "Vacation With Pay," has been inked by Bristol-Myers for comedian's hiatus, beginning June 27. Manning Ostroff formatted the show and will produce for Cantor. Harry Von Zell, Nora Martin, Leonard Sues and Fred Martel will be featured. Young and Rubicam, agency for the sponsor, took Cantor's idea and sold it to the account, marking rare instance of a star setting his own summer replacement.

Jimmie Jordan, Jr., son of Fibber McGee and Molly, has been set for a role in "Ding Dong Williams" at RKO.

'TWO MRS. CARROLLS' GIVES WB 5 PIX BEFORE CAMERAS

Warners is constructing 4,875 feet of asphalt highway on one of its largest sound stages, making a 195-foot long, 25-foot wide highway which winds around a mountain to reach the home of one of "The Two Mrs. Carrolls."

'PYLE DAY' BOND LURE OF THEATRES IN WISCONSIN

New York, April 26.—The Wisconsin "Showmen's Seventh" War Loan state committee is dedicating Free Movie Day June 6 as "Ernie Pyle Day." Theatres throughout the state will participate and slogan will be to buy a bond in tribute to "the best friend the GI's ever had."

The south is rapidly organizing to put its full weight behind the loan.

NITE SPOT EXECS ASK AGVA TO KEEP BALE

Night spot operators yesterday joined with membership of the Los Angeles Branch of the American Guild of Variety Artists in demanding reinstatement of Florine Bale as head of local union. Miss Bale resigned as local AGVA head and western director when National Director Matt Shelvey insisted she retain a representative whom she had dismissed on the grounds of inefficiency.

It was announced last night that Harry Popkin, operator of the Million Dollar theatre; Earl Carroll, execs of Florentine Gardens and operators of other top spots, as well as scores of smaller clubs, were sending wires to the Associated Actors and Artistes of America uring Shelvey be overruled. There was some talk that similar action was being discussed by many agents who handle variety performers.

In the meantime AGVA members were still demanding that the membership files be opened so a meeting can be called to discuss the situation. Group still was awaiting a reply from request to Four A's for opening of files.

BIG DROP IN FILM JOBS SHOW IN STATE REPORT

Sharp drop in employment in motion picture production during March is reflecting in figures just released by the California Labor Statistics Bulletin. Employment index fell from 105.1% in February to 76.0%, the lowest level since 1940. Index of payrolls also reflected the strike trouble, registering largest decrease. March payrolls index showed 119.3% as compared to 179.9% for February.

Average weekly earnings dropped more than $6.00 to $69.69 for March from $76.00 in February. In contrast, average hourly earnings went from February's $1.657 to $1.672 for March, while average hours put in each week were off to 41.7 from 45.9 in the preceeding month.

That the general employment boom in California is a thing of the past is seen in statistics for all manufacturing in the state. Decrease in March from February was 22,000, equal to 15% below figures of a year ago. Employment in California shipyards, excluding government yards, dropped 17,800 production workers under February figures and aircraft employment also continued its decline.

20 PLAYERS SET FOR TOURS IN SPEEDUP FOR HOSPITALS

New intensified campaign by the Hollywood Victory Committee to increase the number of film personalities visiting Army and Navy hospitals resulted in scheduling tour routes for 20 players in the past week. Pledges were received from more than 100 personalities to make future tours, according to a report received yesterday by Chairman Kenneth Thomson.

The report followed a joint meeting at HVC headquarters of special committees representing the Screen Actors Guild, the Artists Managers Guild and the major studios. "This is a good report," Thomson declared. "To do this job adequately we need to keep this many personalities on hospital tours all the time. And in addition we have a great need for players overseas."

The stepped-up HVC program followed appeals from the War and Navy Departments, which pointed out that with 150 hospitals receiving war casualties, the number has tripled in the past year and still is growing. Aid of the SAG was volunteered, with Guild Prexy George Murphy heading an emergency committee set up to secure pledges from Guild members for hospital tours. Action by the Artists Managers Guild followed, with AMG Prexy Bert Allenberg naming Charles K. Feldman, Jules Stein and Frank Vincent as a special committee to work with the actors' emergency committee.

The 20 players who have gone on tour in the past week or who have been scheduled for routes are: Ruthe Brady and Margie Stewart, June Carlson and Patti McCarty, Ellen Drew, Nancy Gates and Gail Russell, Marjorie Henshaw and Fay Marlow, Diana Lynn, Wanda McKay and Carol Thurston, the Ritz Brothers and Jane Wyman, Gale Sondergaard, Sonny Tufts, Raymond Walburn and Billy de Wolfe.

MOLOTOV PLAYING GARBO ROLE AS FRISCO MEETING ON EDGE FOR V-E FLASH

By ARTHUR UNGAR

San Francisco, April 29.—It was high-low over the weekend. High were the hopes of those around the United Nations Security Conference delegates when around noon on Friday the scuttlebutters let it be heard that hostilities were ended with Germany. They expected to hear it direct from Secretary of State Stettinius at the noonday press conference. Then they thought it would be told to the delegates at the second plenary session. Neither happened.

Then on Saturday when the radio and police were put on alert the same hope was held out with expectation that Molotov, presiding at the afternoon session, would make the announcement. DESPITE his leaving for Mexico City end of last week to take over lead in native-produced "The Pearl of La Paz," from John Steinbeck book, Pedro Armendariz may not go into the picture. He is due back here for start July 1 of Hunt Stromberg's "Dishonored Lady," in which he is cast as male star. He left Hollywood with understanding he would return for commitment by that date. Maxican pictures being filmed in leisurely and lackadaisical fashion that they are, actor must first determine whether he can finish in time before undertaking feature.

DISNEY organization figures South American receipts from its pictures normally averages about 5% of world gross, but in case of "The Three Caballeros" it estimates this film will hit as high at 25% of international take. Film is reported to have done record business wherever shown, topping highest-rating picture in past, "Snowwhite and the Seven Dwarfs," at least threefold and better. After showing at Alameda Theatre in Mexico City for 10 weeks, on first-run, "Caballeros" now is in its sixth week at Odeon Theatre in Mexican capital.

AS a result of 23 years work, Harry Tobias has been promoted to an "A" rating in Ascap. Joining organization in 1922, Tobias has had about 300 songs published during past 15 years. Despite this number of compositions and fact that he has had great many best sellers and Hit Parade leaders, Tobias never yet has been under term contract to any studio.

THE "shadow dance"—done with a trick stereopticon that throws shadows on a huge, white screen—has been used in stage production frequently but is a novelty for films. It will be employed by Alfred Santell, Republic producer, in connection with night spot sequences in "Mexicana" as a novel terps effect for Constance Moore.

$35 DEMAND LOOMS FOR DAY PLAYERS

Screen Actors Guild is expected to push its demand that minimum pay for day players be hiked from $25 to $35 per day when the negotiating committee huddles with producer representatives today. Where an adjustment was made from an extra call, minimum would be in addition to extra check.

Question of minimums for cowboys, singers, stuntmen and dancers also will have to be considered under new modified certification of the National Labor Relations Board, which gave Screen Players Union jurisdiction only over extra work. SAG also is asking increased pay for stock players and freelance actors.

Television rights, radio appearances and other contract changes will be presented for top-bracket actors.

John Henry, the 12 foot tall and five foot wide colored giant of American folklore, is to be brought to the screen. Deviating from his usual type of Puppetoon production, George Pal yesterday announced he has charted a new series of American folklore subjects to be filmed in Technicolor and that the screen story based on this colored Paul Bunyan, is being prepared by Latham Ovens and Robert Monroe. Pal announced that the second of this series would be "The Big Rock Candy Mountain," in which the nationally known song by the same title will be used as the theme.

For years the chase was popular in dear old Hollywood.
The cowboys chased the rustlers
all around the neighborhood.
The cops pursued the robbers while the tommy-guns grew hot.
The wolves pursued the glamor gals around the picture lot.
And now the chase is spreading out across the farthest seas
With bombshells breaking overhead and bullets thick as bees.
The C. I. Joes in tanks and planes are shooting deadly pills
And chosing Hitler and his gang amid the German hills.

PREVIEWED at Monogram studio, April 27, 1945. Running time: 74 MINS.

"China's Little Devils" pays tribute to China's youth who aid in the fight against the Japs. Subject matter lends itself to exploitation and picture will depend a great deal upon the amount of pressure put behind its playdates. Otherwise it's twin-bill material for the lesser duals. There is considerable dramatic interest generated in some of the scenes, but overall pace is slow, making its 74 minutes' running time seem overlong.

Plot is woven around young Ducky Louie, a Chinese youngster adopted by a group of Flying Tigers after his parents are killed by Japs. After several years of living with the fliers, Ducky is sent to a school, conducted by Harry Carey, to absorb some book learning. Teaching under a neutral flag (Japan had not yet made its move against the United States), Carey is disturbed by Ducky's disruption of the school but is unable to stop the nightly raids of the "Little Devils" on Jap supplies, etc. Two of the boys are caught and executed by the Nips on Dec. 7, and the balance, along with Carey, try for an escape that ends in the sacrifice of all as they hold back the enemy while some wounded Flying Tigers obtain safety.

Paul Kelly is excellent as the Flying Tiger commander who first adopts Ducky. Latter does well by his first major screen role. Carey doesn't appear too happy in his pacifist part. Among the Chinese moppets to show up best in the other roles are Hayward Soo Hoo, an appealing little tyke, and Gloria Ann Chew.

Monta Bell directed the Grant Withers production and Harry Neumann photographed. Sam Ornitz wrote the original screenplay.

Production manager, Ray Young. Art director, Paul Palmentola. Set decorator, Harry Reif. Master of properties, Gene Stone. Wardrobe designer, Mona Barry. Sound engineer, Frank Webster. REVIEWED at the Vogue theatre, Hollywood, Calif., April 27, 1945. Running time: 58 MINS.

A little more time and care would have made "The Phantom of 42nd Street" a neat little whodunit. As it screens now, it's strictly run-of-the-mill melodrama destined for the grind houses. The plot's good, but the filming schedule apparently was so tight that, among other things, no one bothered about proper revelation of the solution. Retake of the muffed line that reveals the killer's name, or at least a pan shot to his face for audience identification, would have helped. For all the aid the finale gives to audiences, it's still "who done it?"

Dave O'Brien is a drama critic assigned to investigate some murders with a theatrical background. Frank Jenks, taxi driver, goes along for the ride—and to see if he can inject a laugh now and then. People are bumped off by a costumed killer, who leaves quotes from period plays. Investigation of old programs and chats with old-timers in the theatre lead O'Brien to a solution that's never made very clear to anyone else.

Kay Aldridge, actress and possible future victim; Alan Mowbray, ham actor and another intended victim; Edythe Elliott, Jack Mulhall and others aren't particularly helped by Albert Herman's direction. Photography, sets and other production functions are okay for budget.

'DESERT SONG' SOLD FOR TOUR AND BROADWAY

Deal was set over the weekend to take Civic Light Opera's "Desert Song" on the road following the Coast run. Light Opera's board approved sale of the production to Edwin Lester, Russell Lewis and Howard Young. Latter trio has formed a general partnership, which will take over the production, with plans to stage the show on Broadway this fall.

Coin in the setup will be between $50,000 and $60,000 over the cost of the production here. Deal is similar to the one by which "Song of Norway" was sold last year by the Civic Light Opera to a private producing company.

Lester, Lewis and Young will reassemble cast of the Coast show in August, re-rehearse and take the company on tour east. "Desert Song" although revived by several light opera companies throughout the country during the past two decades, has not been in New York since its original production in 1926.

"Desert Song" opens the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera season tonight at the Philharmonic Auditorium. Operetta stars Walter Cassel and Dorothy Sarnoff. Sterling Holloway and Vera Marsche have the comedy leads. Show is slated for three-week stand.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, April 29.—The German surrender report was not hard to believe because we wanted to believe it, because of the effect of the fanfares loosed by the junction of the Russian and American armies, and because the stories that Hitler is dying seemed true. I have always contended that the Nazis cannot surrender unconditionally, and must fight to the end, so that we ourselves shall have to announce one day that Germany has been defeated. I have insisted on this because Nazis surrendering give themselves up for death, and have a hope of life, however slim, only as long as they can make Germans fight on and keep the allies at bay. Any man marked for death would logically postpone the day. However, I was led to believe the surrender report Saturday because the previous story that Himmler offered to surrender Southern Germany to the United States and Britain seemed authentic. It appeared to check, made my original surmises seem wrong. It looked like Himmler might even offer unconditional surrender to all three powers as required. He could conceivably do that because his position in the encircling allied lines might have grown worse than the fear of death, and because Hitler was near death. Himmler would not dare take such action as long as Hitler had any power. Hitler is the only one of the Nazi leaders, except those young ones incubated in Nazism, who is willing to die for Nazism and insists everyone else have the same attitude. Himmler would insist that others die for it, but he'd just as soon keep his own life. If there is an unconditional surrender, it should come soon. If my original surmise is right, V-E Day is still weeks away.

TIPICA ORK DRAWS CHEERS OF 5000 AT H'D BOWL

Mexico City's Tipica orchestra drew unstinted cheers and applause from a 5,000-audience at the Hollywood Bowl yesterday afternoon. The famous musical organization is as Mexican as the cream-foamed, dark Tolucca beer of blessed memory, or the dreamy-eyed senorita who first taught you Spanish. And just as pleasing to the American taste—Latin or United States.

"Tipica" is "native" with a connotation of what we mean in English when we use the term "folklore." This 110-piece orchestra, supplemented by a chorus, solo vocalists and a star dance tearm, is "tipica" from charro costume and exotic instruments to program numbers.

Conductor Pablo Marin has drawn on the folk music of Jalisco, Chiapas, Yucatan and Mexico generally for his selections. The resulting music is mostly what the jivesters would call "sweet," but has a touch of "hot and blue"—which may be "tipica," at that.

Orchestra instruments include the conventional brass and violins, but Marin gets his telling effects with the marimba, the huehueles, or large drums; the gourds and the rattle-throb of the omichicahuaztlis (rasps of wood and bone, to you).

Song numbers included solos by Gil Mandragon, tenor; the Martinez Sisters, in a lively Jalisco folk song. Margarita and Sergio got a big hand for their dance, "La Jota de Jalisco."

The orchestra tours south from here to play Santa Ana and San Diego, returning for another Los Angeles concert at Wrigley Field next Sunday.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 29.—There is considerable speculation abroad on the future of facsimile now that New York Times is using that process to get its sheets out here for the 6 delegate nationals. With your coffee in the morning at any hotel, there's a copy of the Times "Experiment."

That quoted word is the Tip-off, and while it is brushed aside as a casual invention by the statesmen who have glutted the town, it is taken as a serious omen by those in the trade who know that facsimile must be reckoned with after the peace, the publishers' lobby notwithstanding. The Times front page announcement tells it better than we can. It goes like this: "This special edition of the New York Times is being distributed daily among delegates to the United Nations Conference. The Times and its associates in the enterprise, as an experiment in facsimile reproduction of newspapers, are circulating this 2 a. m. edition daily to delegates to the United Nations Conference. Its pages are transmitted photographically each morning from New York over the wire-photo facilities of the Associated Press and printed on the presses of the Richmond (Cal.) Independent." It's difficult to tell the facsimile from the real thing, aside from an occasional blurring of shoulder type. An experiment it is but the portent is clear. We may expect, not in that precise form, however, after the peace a similar service for the millions of American homes. Facsimile has been howled down by the champions of television and frequency modulation but its not a dead duck by a long shot. This Times' experiment gives it fresh impetus. The network crowd is appraising it seriously. It's no farther in the future than the television of the quality you have come to expect when the green light goes on and it's a definite threat to the other technological arts. The newspapers of the country, naturally, will fight it hard for its advertising revenue will be further periled, but who is there among us who can stop progress.

The indies are making quite a rep for themselves in this mad maelstrom of frenzied activity. Understaffed by reason of fiscal limitation they make up for the lack by working double shifts. Supplementing NBC's extraordinary coverage, Don McNamara has been feeding KFI 14 special programs daily. KFWB's Harry Maizlish and Bill Ray, flanked by KYA's Don Fedderson and Bill Brown, are doing yeoman duty for the linked up indies. The local unaffiliates are up to their ears in the security proceedings and colorful edging and are showing surprising initiative. When the story of radio's coverage of the UNCIO meet is written for historians to record, there should be a fat chapter allotted to the small watters. They've done a masterful job with what they've had to work with. It's a healthy sign that decadence is far off.

STATION BREAKS . . . Tom Stix, New York agent, added to his stable of commentators with the signing of Bob Trout. Others he ten percents are John Vandercook, Joseph Harsch, Raymond Swing (un-grammed), John Gunthre, Edward Murrow, George Fielding Elliott and Don Goddard. Sounds like a monopoly. . . . The Corwin technique after a broadcast is to pin Gardenias on the secretarial and office help. . . . Walter Lonner, Blue network traffic manager for the western division, does as much shuttling between LA and SF as Harry Maizlish. . . . Gracie Allen and Mag Ettinger trained back home but they're due back in a few days. Gracie yoo-hoos every cop and taxi driver in town. She was born here in the mission district and the town is hers anytime she wants it. . . . Blue over-printed the 12,000 seat civic aud for George Denny's town meeting broadcast and as it always happens everybody with a ducat showed up.

The old newspaper trick of forcing an entrance to make off with a photo was put back into play by a network commentator on an early morning shift. He must go nameless here for reasons of "security" (that's a great word up here) and avoid the clutches of the gendarmes. Unable to gain entrance to his net's teletype he forced the door of an adjoining office, cracked the transom and took a flying leap to the promised land. It is merely one incident in a long line of misadventures that has been plaguing the radio reporters. Everything in the book has come to pass but the boys are hep by now to any eventuality in their mad rush to get on the air with their personalized slant on the plenary proceedings.

HITCH HIKES . . . Columbia's radio talks director, Helen Sioussat, is one of the town's best rounder-uppers of biggies for mike duty. She latched on to Commander Stassen and brought him to the CBS pyring for its commentators. He was among the first arrive and last to leave. Nice gent, and he made lots of friends (or should we say votes). . . . Hedda Hopper is the pet of the Russians. She's invited down to their transport nearly every night to sip Vodka and wrap a lip around their choicest caviar. Don't be surprised if her next chapeau has a hammer and sickle adornment. . . . Emilio's and Julius Castle are getting the heavy radio play on the eats. . . . Mayris Chaney, the dancer friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, and Theo Sanders are handling those million little details for KFWB and KYA at City of Paris. . . . Earl Robinson ("Ballad for Americans"), knocked out another spiritual, "Mighty pretty meetin, at the Golden Gate," which may yet be the official song of the conclave. . . . Fred Runyon, radio writer-publisher, has been ushered in and out of more hotels than there are on Nob Hill. At this writing he's between inns. The situation is really snafu.

MUSICAL BOUQUET

With Paul Sheldon Orchestra, Paul Frenet, Lois Marlowe, vocalists; Brett Morrison, narrator and announcer; sponsor, Pinaud; agency, Dorland International, Pettingill & Fenton, Inc.; Sunday, 12 noon, 30 minutes; KECA on delayed transcription from originating station, WJZ, New York, for local broadcast.

Tailored for femme listeners with the relaxing qualities necessary for an early Sabbath broadcast, "Musical Bouquet" is only satisfactory in its presentation. Sheldon's syrupy orchestra doesn't stop playing from the time the show opens until it goes off the air. Background music for commercials and song introductions goes on with no break and the strings become cloying after the first 15 minutes.

Arrangements lack sparkle, killing some of the needed zip to pull this airer out of its funereal pace. Vocalists Paul Frenet and Lois Marlowe are slightly off-key at times and a bit discordant. Frenet is the major offender of the two, being not only off-key but off-beat, which may be style, but rather poor. Miss Marlowe is strident occasionally in reaching for top notes.

Tunes, such as "These Foolish Things," "Falling In Love With Love," "More and More" and "Easy To Love," however, are good choices for the program. They fit the romantic, sentimental mood called for by the perfume sponsor. Main idea being to plug "Lillianelle," which is French version of Lilies of the Valley. Accent on the April-in-Paris theme also endeavors to build the romance of Gallic life.

Brett Morrison, who is a latter-day Tony Wons speaker, utters soothing commercials and introduces each song by speaking the first four lines of the lyrics with no change in voice or tempo. Lack of switch in tone or pacing makes it difficult to tell whether the perfumes or tunes are getting a sendoff.

Program is best suited for Sunday mornings when dialers turn on the radio while the coffee is brewing and no one has to pay too much attention to what is broadcast, except that it doesn't jar post-Saturday night nerves.

IT'S A SLEEPER

This picture is socko from every angle, from the original story to the production, direction, acting and editing, and to the very timing of the release on a topical subject that concerns the friends and relatives of every GI who's been wounded or killed in this war... On all scores it appears to be a sleeper.

Book is of a kind which, in less skillful hands, could have become a heavy sermon, sort of a superpreachment issued by OWI. But the story has suspense, it embodies a very natural love angle, it works on the tear ducts without becoming sentimental.

It's a credit to everybody who had anything to do with the film.

"Identity Unknown" is an outstanding example of intimate drama of the heart-gripper type. It is renewed proof of a show business axiom, too often overlooked in the major studios, that with a good story, a smart producer and a talented director you don't need a two million dollar budget to turn out a hit film.

This latest Republic release will box anywhere.

WALTER COLMES

PRODUCER-DIRECTOR

"IDENTITY UNKNOWN"

Republic has a powerful drama that might well serve as a model for the type of film best suited to shift the accent from virile battle drama to the peacetime rehabilitation theme.

The smooth, poignant tale is produced in excellent taste and craftsmanship by associate producers Walter Colmes Howard Bretherton. The locales of the yarn, which run from a back-room dive in Chicago to a farm in Iowa, lend the right flavor, making for an especially well blended and colorful spinning of the yarn.

Colmes emerges as a director of taste and merit, in his initial chore as a pilot.

Special Thanks to

For Their Helpful Guidance and for Giving Me the Opportunity to Direct My First Picture.

The poignant tale of a soldier's search for his lost identity is the theme of "Identity Unknown."

With Colmes' deliberate direction harmoniously in keeping with the subject matter. Richard Arlen, as a wounded soldier who recovers physically but whose memory sustains a total eclipse, is commendable, vividly communicating the bewildered feeling of the amnesia victim.

MOLOTOV PLAYS ROLE OF GARBO AS UN WAITS V-E FLASH

delegates. But he only thanked the conference for the honor of letting him be one of the four co-figures with the gavel.

WAIT OFFICIAL FLASH

More attention was given to the so-called surrender rumors than to the boys who talked about what they thought their nations should see incorporated in the world security organization plan. They hung around the radio booths waiting for the flash to come. Then nothing happened until an Associated Press bulletin went out on the supposed authority of Senator Tom Connally of Texas that the European fracas had ended. One paper here, the Call-Bulletin, used a 240-point head, "Nazis Quit."

By that time most of the gang were down in the Palace hotel where a cocktail party was being given by the United Nations for the press. There was champagne on tap and all started to celebrate, when Mayor Lapham, who was there, told the celebrants "President Truman says there is no finale, and, if there were, the bars here would be closed. So settle down, folks, and don't get excited." But the town was, and they're still waiting excitedly for the flash.

In the meantime, the radios have slowed down on sending out the conference news. But the commentators and analysts were at each session to get enough for their daily stints.

There were plenty of Hollywood folks passing in and out of town over the weekend, either to do a Bond or hospital show, or to head for parts unknown for security reasons. Still they weren't important or pawed over.

MEET HAS ITS GARBO

The stars of this show are the delegates. Topper is Molotov, who is the Garbo of the show, with the boys figuring that the temperamental gent might pull that famous line, "I tank I go home," and take his crew of some 300 with him, in case they try to cross him or step on him at one of the steering committee meetings. He's had plenty of brushes. His crew, however, is having a good time entertaining inauspiciously on the "vodka-caviar ship." Hedda Hopper has been one of the few favorites to get aboard, with various delegates who, the Russians feel, should know about the Russian way.

Then there are the glamour boys: Secretary of State Stettinius, who they call the Cary Grant of the proceedings; and Anthony Eden, who has been making the gals' hearts flutter from a distance. But there's no one here with the magnificent speaking voice of FDR. Only two orators really have hit the rostrum so far, one being General Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines. A showman. His opening line was "This should be the last of battlefields." Boy knows oratory and dramatic values. The other was Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar, of India. He was the first speaker to talk without a script and sold a bill of goods with his oratory.

MORE SPEECHES

There will be a continuation of speeches from the various delegates tomorrow and Tuesday, with the work of the convention starting in the commission planning sessions, and plenary ones taking place when the boys have something to put before all for discussion or approval. That's going to be the tough period for press and radio, because those sessions outside of the plenary will be secret and the lads will have to find leaks to get a line on what is going on. No handouts.

The United Nations theatre opened Saturday, showing "Silver Fleet" and 2,000 feet of newsreel stuff shot around the conference. Great job being done here by newsreel boys of the five companies, with Tony Muto of Movietone, Joe Hubbell of News of the Day, Jim Lyons of Universal, Ted Genirock of Paramount and Jim Vail of Pathe heading the crews of their respective outfits. They've shot everything that has come along and will at the end of the meet present to the secretariat a print of all they've made to be put in the historic film library of the conference. Later it is likely that all of the participating countries may be given a copy.

The newsreels have shot about 150,000 feet to date, and they are going to bear the greater part of the film costs of the conference. The government probably will be set back around $20,000 for the session, with the five reels carrying the balance of the overhead.

The Conference theatre, where documentaries are to be shown from all countries, opens Tuesday afternoon. Showings will be from 4 to 10 o'clock, with all nations having a chance to get their propaganda on the screen at the Sir Francis Drake hotel ballroom. First to be shown are the Frank Capra series, "Battle of China," "Battle of Britain," "Battle of Russia" and "Divide and Conquer."

The CIAA also will show literacy and health pictures and other American subjects made for the Latin-American countries, including "Gracios Amigo." On Wednesday the British Information Service will take over for its subjects, with the French matter set for Thursday and the Russian for Friday. The Latin-American country films will hit the screen Monday of next week.

1,850 NEWS MEN TURN SLEUTHS AS FRISCO NEWS GOES ON RATION

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 29.—For the 1,850 accredited newsmen and radio reporters covering the conference the "reaching" stage has set in. The first week of the meeting out of the way, with its preliminaries and personality coloring, it devolves upon the news ferrets to dig for whatever they can get.

Were it not for the alert in force since the phony surrender report, the radio boys would be moping and stewing in their stagnant juices. That at least keeps them on edge in high hope of something big to break down the ennui. The commentator clique spent most of Sunday in their hotel rooms trying to smoke up some fresh angle to hop up their time block.

By the looks on their faces as they stroll through the Palace lobby, they're masking troubled minds. The immediate future offers no respite from the barren pickings. The big brains go into the commission auditorium in the Veterans building to frame proposals and what not and those sacred precincts are out-of-bounds to reporters. While the mulling and milling are going on there'll be no plenary session, and that means their scripts will drip with nothingness. The boys now know what it means to "beat your brains out."

FRISCO TOSSES A PARTY

The city of San Francisco broke the mourning spell with a party for radio and newsmen Saturday night in the world-famous Palm Court. For splash and splendor it transcended anything ever staged in Hollywood. Glass-topped room was ablaze like a fairyland, the crystal chandeliers casting brilliant light on the profusion of pink and white rhododendrons lining the immense court. For the sippers there were two exclusive champagns bars, and two others for the hard likker addicts. Tidbits and hors d' ouvres, cold and hot, were all over the place, and every variety of snack was within easy reach of the 1,850 invited guests and the usual number of crashers.

he turnover must have reached 3,000. The party cost San Franciscans a tidy $27,000, but that's how they do things in this town when the gala spirit is abroad. Music was furnished by a marimba band and Gypsies who moved through the crowd playing fiddles.

PICTURE CELEBS ON HAND

Among the honored guests from Hollywood were James Cagney, Charles Boyer, Miriam Hopkins and Madge Bellamy. Breakfasting at the hotel this morning were George Murphy and Claire Trevor, who were in between trains on a Canadian bond tour.

Two-hour "free world" broadcast for combined KFWB-KYA operations from Civic Auditorium last night developed a merry mixup that was partially solved. Operators of the auditorium arranged for Phil Baker to do his bond show at 7 p.m., to be followed immediately after signoff by the free world airing. That left about two minutes to move 12,000 out of the aud and move the same number back in. It was finally decided to move up the afterpiece a half-hour which saw the biggest mass entrance and exit in history. Auditors at "Take It Or Leave It" bought better than a million dollars in bonds.

BOYER, WELLES, WINCHELL

Second attraction had such crowd pullers as Charles Boyer, Orson Welles and Walter Winchell. Welles incidentally canceled out on a Blue forum broadcast scheduled for noon on a plea of illness. Unless we saw the wrong face peering from behind the facial foliage, he was stowing away his morning fodder around 9 o'clock.

It is conservatively estimated that this Security Conference will cost the networks around $500,000. That takes in traveling and living expenses of commentators, analysts, newscasters, et al., line charges and cancellation of sponsored time for special broadcasts.

HENRY STANDS PAT

That fake surrender flash got most of the networkers excited, but not Bill Henry of CBS. When the flash came through at the Los Angeles Times a hurried phone call was put through to Henry. He staked his reputation on the calm assumption that there was nothing to it, so why get excited? He did admit later that he was a little nervous around 6 p.m. when it was talked up in every hotel lobby.

The Call-Bulletin came out with a surrender extra and it looked like the celebration would start any moment. The bar trade picked up briskly but died down until later in the evening as the official denial came through from Washington. Blue Network's Johnny Johnstone got around a ticklish situation on the Winchell broadcast when thousands pleaded for tickets. He and Winchell finally decided to restrict the audience to GI's with Purple Hearts, delegates and visiting newsmen. The small Radio City studio was jammed, with hundreds lining the street outside, hopeful of at least seeing Winchell, if not hearing him.

NETS MAY PASS PLATTER

Network news and special events heads were kept busy Sunday running down a rumor that there would be no more on-the-spot broadcasts at the plenary session. Report had it that the discussions would be recorded and played later. Such a procedure would conflict with network policy against taking a platter across the skein. However, unusual things are happening and will happen, so it would not be too surprising if an exception was made in the interest of necessity and accommodation.

HENRY KING LEAVES FOR PACIFIC ISLE

Henry King has left for some undisclosed destination in central Pacific, through cooperation of War and Navy departments, to find an island location for filming of 20th-Fox's "An American Guerrilla In the Philippines."

Idea is to locate a terrain which is a replica of actual locale of book, and if such can be found, studio will send an entire company there for picture, which King will direct. Government is understood to be interested in production of film.

Color Western Guns

PRC starts first of new series of singing westerns to be filmed in Cinecolor when "In Old Wyoming" goes before cameras this morning. Eddie Dean will be starred. Jennifer Holt enacts femme lead with Robert Emmett producing and directing. Supporting are Sara Padden, Ian Keith, Jack LaRue, Emmett Lynn, Rocky Cameron and Bob Barron.

METRO ADDS 13TH SALES DISTRICT IN NEW EXPANSION

New York, April 29.—Appointment of John S. Allen, Metro's branch manager at Washington, to the post of district head with supervision over Washington, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati territories, brings to 13 the number of sales districts set up by Metro in line with its policy to intensify field coverage. Allen entered film biz as a salesman for United Artists in 1925. Two years later he swung to Metro, also as a seller, in Cincinnati.

Coincident with increase in districts, Metro two weeks ago created a fourth division in the south, with Rudolph Berger, former district head in Washington, in charge, out of New Orleans. It is reported a fifth is planned for the Pacific coast area, which now is part of division manned by Jack Flyn from Chicago. Understood that Edwin Aaron, in charge of circuit sales, may be moved up to head the new coast division, embracing Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City and Denver offices.

George Hickey, headquartering in Los Angeles, and long with Metro, is district manager over Pacific slope branches.

Four branch promotions were made by Metro during the past week. Jack Mundstuk, who was sales manager in Cleveland, takes over in Buffalo, succeeding Ralph Maw, who was given a district in the northwest. Other promotions are Gerald McGlynn, Des Moines salesman, to Branch managership at Omaha; J. G. Kemptgen goes to Milwaukee following leave of absence granted Harry Shumow due to illness, and Harry Rosenblatt, Boston salesman, will head New Haven office.

Dispute Over Collars At MG To Arbiters

Screen Office Employes Guild demand for dismissal of five white collarites at Metro will go to arbitration, grievance committees representing two groups having failed to adjust controversy. Metro and union each will name an arbiter, and if they are unable to agree the two will pick a third disinterested member. Five were expelled by SOEG after they had attempted to restrain collection of a membership assessment to fight anti-labor legislation. SOEG committee at meeting Saturday took position company had no grievance, but that it was in violation of the SOEG agreement by refusing to dismiss the employes. Guild was represented by Secretary Bernard Lusher, Alice Fox and Lillian Hurwitz, with William Walsh, W. K. Craig and Al Newman appearing for the studio.

ANDY HARDY GOES TO WAR

MICKEY ROONEY TAKES PUNISHMENT A PLENTY AT FRONT IN JEEP SHOW

Mickey Rooney and Bobby Breen are still mugging it, but in front of a tougher audience than when on the screen. What has happened to a couple of former Hollywood film names turned GI is graphically depicted in the following letter from Sgt. Sam Abarbanel, former Republic flack and now somewhere on the European war front. Letter is dated April 17.

"The 'Jeep Show's Jeep Jamboree,' a GI show, came up to entertain the boys last night. It's one of the best GI shows I've seen and in it are Mickey Rooney and Bobby Breen, two youngsters you might know.

"They both get a terrific reception. Pvt. Rooney really takes a shellacking. He does some of his imitations, Gable, Lionel Barrymore, Mr. Anthony, Jean Arthur, Edw. G. Robinson. But in two other skits—well, in one he does a slow motion professional wrestling match. It's a howl and received roars of laughter. Then he plays Gable's stand-in (a "short" Gable) in a movie set scene. Every time the action gets rough the stand-in is called in. Rooney gets slugged, chocked, etc., and then gets a chocolate pie dropped over his mug in the best Sennett style. Andy Hardy really has gone to war.

"Mickey takes it every day, sometimes several times a day. He and Breen are a credit to the show business, if the applause last night was a criterion. GI's Rooney and Breen were accepted as GI's and that was their success."

PRODS SAY STRIKE IS NO LONGER THREAT TO THEM

Although picket lines were extended to Technicolor over the weekend, major companies announced last night that production and employment still are increasing and that they "regard the strike as no longer a real threat to the industry." Producers announced start of three new features today, declared 26 were in work Saturday and that seven were completed last week.

Major producers' statement follows:

"Production is progressing satisfactorily at all major studios. With the strike at the end of its seventh week, pictures are being started and completed on schedule. A survey shows that as of Saturday 26 features were in work, with seven others having been finished earlier in the week. Three new features go before the cameras Monday, and three more will get under way on May 1, 2 and 4.

EIGHT WORK ON ONE LOT

"On one major lot in midweek, eight production companies were at work, and one of the largest and most costly features was one and three-quarter days ahead of schedule.

"With production and employment still increasing, the producers regard the strike as no longer a real threat to the industry or to the jobs of the loyal workers whose spirit of cooperation has to a large extent made it possible to resume nearly normal operation."

Unemployment insurance for nearly 10,000 studio workers will be at stake at hearings starting today by the California Department of Employment. Clark Doolittle, department chief of operations, arrives from Sacramento today to conduct hearings to determine whether studio strikers and employes who are refusing to cross the picket lines are entitled to unemployment insurance.

Picket lines were extended to the Technicolor plant at 6 a.m. Friday. It was reported that none of the 85 machinists normally employed at the plant went through the lines to report for work. It was understood that most members of Screen Office Employes Guild and Film Technicians Local 683 reported for work as usual in order to protect their contracts with the company.

Speculation differed as to how long the company might operate without machinists. Union tops insisted plant will be down within a week or 10 days unless the machines are serviced by expert toolers. Company execs remained silent on move but were reported to have told other union heads they intended to continue operating as usual.

James Skelton, business representative of Studio Carpenters Local 946, told 3,000 unionists meeting at Hollywood Legion Stadium last night that the international presidents of various building trades unions will meet in Washington today "to discuss strategy of handling Richard Walsh and the various charters he has issued for studio crafts." It also was stated that producers had asked the War Labor Board to set aside wage increases granted Local 946 and that board had agreed.

Joseph Whitman of the Engineers and Architects Association told the gathering that the current studio strike would not last two weeks if the strikers really put on picket lines. He declared their picket lines were the most sickly "allevcat looking" lines he had ever seen. He said unless the strikers got busy and really put on picket lines they would be meeting two months from now.

TEST OF MACHINISTS

D. T. Wayne, business representative of Studio Machinists Local 1185, reported that 87 machinists had refused to cross the picket lines at Technicolor, adding, "They tell us Technicolor can't operate without machinists so now we'll see."

Roy Tindall, assistant business representative of IBEW Local 40, in referring to the CIO movement in the studios, declared, "I believe this will run like wildfire through the IATSE. Walsh has already set the groundwork for it. He will come to the other AFL unions for help but they should let him sweat it out for himself.

SPU SIGNS 32 INDIES TO PACT AND WINS NOD OF MAJORS

certification as exclusive bargaining representative for extras has been recognized by the major companies and that the union now is considering a counter proposal submitted Friday by studio execs.

Joint statement signed by Chadwick, Jeffers and SPU Prexy Harry Mayo, stated:

"The Screen Players Union and the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association announce the signing of an interim agreement, dated April 28, 1945, for extra players in accordance with the amended certification of the National Labor Relations Board."

The joint statement referred only to the 30 producing companies affiliated with the Association. Jeffers stated, however, that interim agreements also had been signed with Mutual Productions, Inc., and Special Pictures, Inc. In accordance with the agreement, Jeffers declared that Monogram had a set Friday in which 150 SPU members were used.

Jeffers declared the SPU board of directors was elated over the fast progress made by SPU since the amended certification was handed down on March 28 of this year. He pointed out that although the Screen Actors Guild was organized in 1933 it did not get a contract until 1937.

Despite opening of negotiations between SPU and the producers Friday, the Screen Extras Guild elected officers and announced it would continue its fight for recognition. Clyde McAtee was named prexy, Lois Lindsay veepee and Jeffrey Sayre as secretary-treasurer. Simultaneously, the following statement was issued in reply to one from SPU inviting SEG members to affiliate:

"Messrs. Steers, Gordon and Norton feel flattered by the invitation of Friday that they join SPU and have their suggestions submitted to the membership. That would establish a precedent, as in four months' time SPU has participated in two strikes and either rejected or ignored offer of a charter without consulting the membership at any time."

Beery and Main Are Paired For 6th Time

Wallace Beery and Marjorie Main will be united for sixth time as stars of Metro's "Bad Bascomb," which will be filmed mostly on location in Jackson Hole, Wyo., in early summer. Story is about a bandit leader of the '60's, with Miss Main portraying a Mormon who meets badman on her way west.

product outlets could be obtained, company would abandon plans.

Cohen stated Warners has no desire to enter exhibition field in competition with other circuits, desiring only an open market Down Under. He pointed out that Warners product is timely and needs quick dating, and inability to get suitable showwindows in Australia and New Zealand within six months slowed down box office return. Latest indication is that Cohen may signature a long-term pact with Hoyts circuit.

OBITUARY

GEORGE SIDNEY

George Sidney, 68, stage and screen actor for more than 40 years, died yesterday at his home at 601 North Rossmore avenue.

He had been ill for the past five years and his last picture appearance was in "Diamond Jim" at Universal in 1935. He had played in the "Potash and Perlmutter" series and in the "Cohens and the Kellys" series with Charley Murray.

Sidney was born in Hungary and came to this country when he was 5 years of age. He had been an American citizen for 45 years. His first stage appearance was at the age of 12 with Harry von Tilzer and Ward Voorhies.

His wife, Carey Weber, died five years ago. Surviving him are two brothers, Louis K., executive producer at MGM, and Jack, living in New York; three sisters and a nephew, George Sidney, director at MGM.

Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery in compliance with Sidney's request that he be buried there "near his friends."

Hammerman To PRC

Philadelphia, April 29.—Frank Hammerman, former local city salesman for Republic, moves over as branch manager of PRC's newly-acquired exchange here.

Radio Network Plugs

Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being LISTED ALPHABETICALLY, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.

19,447 POUNDS OF CLOTHING GIVEN; MORE NEEDED

Approximately 1,000 pounds of used clothing daily is being turned in to the film industry's collection for Allied relief, according to weekend reports made by studio colonels to Chairman Ginger Rogers. A total of 19,447 pounds have been picked up at studios to be processed and turned over to the national drive.

"Progress is generally encouraging, especially in the reports of some studios which were lagging," said Miss Rogers. "But we still are not getting anywhere near the number of individual responses needed. There are thousands of people who have not yet contributed, and indications are that most of them simply don't remember to sort out their used clothing and bring it to the studio."

The collection originally was scheduled to end May 3, but John B. Elliott, general chairman for Los Angeles, has extended the city-wide drive until May 12. The industry effort therefore will end with the regular Friday report May 11.

BENTER RESIGNATION WIDENS BREACH IN AGVA RANKS

Breach between National Director Matt Shelvey and members of the L. A. branch of the American Guild of Variety Artists over resignation of Western Director Florine Bale was further widened over the weekend by peremptory acceptance of resignation of Representative Bill Benter. Benter had resigned effective May 5, but Shelvey wired immediate acceptance.

The AGVA advisory committee is still cooperating with rank and file leaders in an effort to have the files opened for a membership meeting. When Shelvey ordered files locked to prevent a meeting, leaders started an individual canvas to get names and telephone numbers of members.

Membership, as well as night club owners and other groups, are demanding that Miss Bale be reinstated. Director resigned when Shelvey insisted on reinstatement of a representative whom she had dismissed on grounds of inefficiency.

CAN A FEW ex-MARINES HELP YOU?

What's your problem? Is it present, or post-war; public, or personal? Either way, we have a service that can be of value to you. We've banded together a bunch of well trained, highly disciplined, smart appearing and well mannered veterans. At a moment's notice, on a 24-hour basis, we can supply you with a uniformed armed guard, a licensed chauffeur, a trained courier, or a hundred men to protect your plant. (Incidentally, we're doing just that for some fifty plants, and installations in this area right now.) Perhaps you don't have a factory, let us interest you in our most unique specialty, the ex-MARINE GUARDS INTELLIGENCE DIVISION!

Who do you want investigated? Ask our Chief of Staff, Harold C. Keyes, formerly of the United States Secret Service, to furnish you with one or more of his well set-up operatives. This isn't just another detective agency (far from it), and if you want further information, call FI. 1284 and ask to speak to our Adjutant and Inspector, Roscoe Arnett, formerly Lt. Col. USMC (ret.) who was recently in charge of recruiting for the Corps here in Southern California until he retired after 42 years of service. We're pretty sure our veterans can fill your bill.

P. S.—If you know an Honorably Discharged Marine that wants a good, permanent job with a future, tell him to call the Colonel, too;

Or drop around to Headquarters, 2525 West 7th St., Los Angeles.

No one compares with the American Showman for delivering slogans that "Sock and Sell." He uses language that is clear and direct and carries tremendous popular appeal. That is why, since this is Total War and America has one enemy . . . whether he fights in Europe or Asia . . . the Nation's Showmen have adopted the ringing slogan that will best urge the movie-going public to buy more bonds than ever before in the Mighty Seventh War Loan.

DON'T be surprised if you see Cary Grant playing in another Milton Holmes story—in a new role that will rival "Mr. Lucky." Again he'll be a gambling man, lucky on the green cloth and in love, too. Grant played Holmes' first story, "Mr. Lucky," which proved a smash hit. The other day he got an inkling of the writer's latest tale and is reported much interested It's a gambling tale which has temporarily been titled "Murder On the Red," and it's even money you can't pick the killer. This mystery romance is Holmes' fourth effort. His latest, "Salty O'Rourke," has brought raves from the critics. For instance, writing of "Salty," Bosley Crowther of the NY Times says: "Take a tip on it. Paramount has a sure thing in this monstrously mischievous tale of a 'fixer's' titanic tribulations with a cockey jockey on whom he must depend. Indeed, it has a fictional winner which Damon Runyon at his best might have penned—and for which that old master in this genre should honor its author, Milton Holmes." And that's praise. Holmes' Hollywood friends are hoping it doesn't touch him a bit in the head.

DAVID O. SELZNICK has stage space commitments with both California and PRC studios, but it is problematical, how soon, if at all, producer will be able to use commitments, both now effective. Contractual date started April 15 at California, to cover three-month span, and starting date at PRC, for two months, is understood to have been about same date. Selznick arranged for space at two studios back in January, at the time believing he would need extra stages as overflow for what seemed likely as his next production, "Notorious." Couple of weeks ago it was believed likely he would avail himself of space by moving his "Duel in the Sun" company to one or other, when filming halted on picture at his own studio due to strike, but it seems improbable this now will eventuate. Commitments meanwhile continue to grow shorter daily, with extensions unlikely due to other companies contracting for studio space on each lot.

NEW method of throat cutting among agencies was introduced yesterday by a small indie firm. Agent for one of the bigger firms offered an act to a cocktailery Sunday night and things looked like the deal was closed. Yesterday the agent received a call from a distaff ten-percenter who told him she appreciated his effort but that the act was inked to her firm. First flesh peddler called the act and found out that the femme agent had only inked the act that morning to a 30-day tie up. Male agent called the femme back and asked her how long she'd had the act and she tried to bluff it out by claiming the act had been with her for years. He pointed out the fallacy in her remarks, laid her out for being such a chiseler, but told the cocktailery owner to keep the act, inasmuch as he thought the performer should not be penalized for the agent's move-in tactics.

DEMAND for a difficult, 180 degree rolling pan shot in the filming of army hospital sequences in the Rosalind Russell starrer, "Some Call It Love," at Columbia resulted in the invention of a camera dolly which will describe a full circle with precision. The apparatus does away with variance of camera position and focus from one take to another.

WB THEATRE HIT BY ANCIENT NY LAW

New York, April 30.—This city's old law forbidding admission of children under 16 years of age to theatres at any time of the day or night unless accompanied by an adult, was brought into use here today in a surprising move by License Commissioner Paul Moss.

Victim of the measure is Warners Strand theatre, playing "The Horn Blows At Midnight." Theatre was ordered to close from midnight tonight until 3:05 p. m. tomorrow and from midnight Tuesday until 3:00 p. m. Wednesday as a penalty for admitting minors. This is the first such penalty against this theatre in 25 years of operation.

CONGRESSMEN SEE NAZI DEATHPEN PIX

Washington, April 30. — Belief that the newsreel films of the Nazi atrocity camps will crystallize American opinion for a tough peace was expressed by members of Congress attending a showing of the Pathe reel of actual scenes in the German "death pens."

Screening was arranged by George Dorsey, Pathe representative here, and the film was run through twice during the afternoon. About 40 Senators and 200 members of the House witnessed it and others are scheduled to see it tomorrow in the House office building. The atrocity reels are for general release tomorrow.

Many Congressmen declared that every American should see the films and that these should play an important part in stiffening American opposition to a "soft" peace.

CAST—John Loder, June Duprez, Michael St. Angel, Miles Mander, Rose Hobart, Gilbert Emery, Rex Evans, Matthew Boulton, Olaf Hytten, Lydia Bilbrook, Ian Wolfe.

TRADESHOWN at Hawaii theatre, Hollywood, April 19, 1945. Running time: 67 MINS.

RKO's "The Brighton Strangler" will go down in the books as chillerdillerism at its best. Laid in present-day London and sans any trace of grotesque makeups, the feature will do heavy business wherever horror-picture enthusiasts gather.

Executive Producer Sid Rogell and Producer Herman Schlom have done a neat job of welding thespians and technicians into a smoothly operating organization, with each member of the two elements making important contributions to a successful whole. Arnold Phillips and Max Nossack strove for new twists in plotting their original screenplay, which has lost none of its punch through Nossack's highly competent direction.

John Loder, who heads the cast, is excellent throughout the entire unfoldment. Portraying a London stage actor who has played the title role in "The Brighton Strangler" for a full year, he is caught in the bombing of the theatre on the play's closing night, suffers head injuries, and sets out to continue the strangler in real life.

June Duprez does an excellent job as the British WAC affianced to Michael St. Angel, both of whom narrowly escape garroting at the hands of Loder. St. Angel gives a convincing performance, efficiently supported by such able artists as Miles Mander, Rose Hobart, Gilbert Emery, Rex Evans, Matthew Boulton, Olaf Hytten, Lydia Bilbrook and Ian Wolfe.

J. Roy Hunt maintains his usual high standard in camera work, while Vernon L. Walker's special lens effects add much to the offering. Leigh Harline's score and C. Bakaleinikoff's musical direction maintain the mood of the splendid script. The sets by Albert S. D'Agostino and Ralph Berger reveal considerable time spent on research before they went into action designing.

Play Review

DESERT SONG

It took two scenes of "Desert Song" to unfold on the Philharmonic stage last night before the production finally got into high gear. Only when Dorothy Sarnoff launched into the French marching song did the Edwin Lester production really begin to look like something in the tradition of the Civic Light Opera.

From there on in, "Song" was a gem to see and hear. Not only is Miss Sarnoff a charming stage presence, but she has a good voice to stand up to the heavy baritone of Walter Cassel. Cassel sounded even better last night than he has on previous occasions here. His solo work and duets with Miss Sarnoff on the Romberg score rated round after round of first-nighter applause.

Sterling Holloway, the other star of the show, walked off with top comedy honors, and had great support from comedienne Vera Marshe. It was Holloway who carried the first two limping scenes with his humor and saved them from complete loss. Holloway, besides doing the humor chores, also is director of the show and did fine work in that field, which is his maiden effort.

One eyecatcher in the cast is labeled simply Clarissa, but she put wallop in the femme menace role of Azuri. Other standouts in the cast were Wilton Charles, Edward Dew and George Burnson.

Most amazing was the number of beauteous femmes in the chorus and the strong male group, all with good voices. Aida Broadbent's terp routines, aided by Walter J. Israel's brilliant costuming, hypoed some of the key points in "Song." However, Louis Adrian, the maestro, and the pit band could use more rehearsing and a shot in the arm to bring Lester's show into peak form. This goes for the lighting also.

"Song," with about three more performances should be ready for not only solid boff Coast run, but the proposed New York stand as well.

Glen Cook Named Mono Prod Manager

Glen Cook has been appointed general production manager at Monogram. Cook, who was with old Monogram organization, has been unit production manager with Harry Sherman and David O. Selznick recently.

Five On 'Voyage'

Five members of the cast of 20th-Fox's "Enchanted Voyage" left yesterday for New Orleans for location shooting. They are June Haver, Clem Bevans, Connie Marshall, John Ireland and Charles Russell. They will be joined next week by John Payne, who is delayed here completing his stint in "The Dolly Sisters."

Minors' Pacts Up

Gale Russell and Bob Graham were scheduled for Superior Court appearance today for ratification of their minors' contracts with Paramount.

DEPINET FINDS FILM BIZ IN WESTERN U.S. ON UPBEAT

New York, April 30. — Ned Depinet, RKO sales head, declared today that trend of percentage grosses west of the Mississippi is toward a steady, marked increase. This is proved, he said, by the way sales division managers are meeting increased quotas during every company drive.

Depinet agrees with other industry chieftains that pictures will play an important part in shaping world policies in the post-war period. He sees newsreels as a greater aid to understanding of the problems and customs of other nations.

Unless travel restrictions are eased, Depinet said he will call off the yearly sales convention. Depinet returned to his RKO home office headquarters here today after seven weeks at the Arizona-Biltmore in Phoenix recovering from a heart attack suffered on the Coast more than two months ago.

'Hungry Hill' Will Be Shot In Ireland

"Hungry Hill," J. Arthur Rank's picturization of Daphne du Maurier's novel, will be filmed entirely in Ireland, producer has advised Geraldine Fitzgerald, whom he wants for femme star role. Brian Desmond Hurst, Irish-English director, has been set to helm Technicolor production, which has reported $2,500,000 budget.

Billy Wilder Hops To Germany Soon

Billy Wilder is in New York ready to take off for Germany where he will have charge of motion pictures for the OWI in the American zone of occupation. Wilder starts for east of the Rhine within 10 days.

'Dillinger' Schiller

James Garfield Schiller leaves for San Francisco tonight to handle exploitation campaign on Monogram's "Dillinger." Picture gets day-date opening there May 10 at the Tivoli and Esquire.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, April 30.—General Clarke says the Italian campaign is virtually over. That's just a part of the general breakup of the Nazis now swiftly approaching a climax but all the dangers are not passed. There is the possibility of trouble between the Italian Partisans and the Yugoslavs under Tito as the latter occupy Trieste. There are the dangerous implications in connection with the death of Mussolini. There can be no question but that Mussolini deserved death because of his record as the man who began Fascism and who through the attack on Etheopia blazed the trail for Hitler. But there is reason for concern as I hear cheers from audiences told the story with all its details of kicking and spitting at the body of the man Churchill called a jackal. That kind of mob reaction in a starving soldout country is natural, but none of those indignities could harm a dead man but can effect the hearts and souls of those who offer them. Add to this the stories told of a mad Hitler who orates to his shadow and plans the rebuilding of London and of a Goering in a medal-decorated toga counting his jewels and playing with his toy train. Add the jobless and starving and restless in Europe and we see a picture of a world to reconstruct that may well challenge the planners in San Francisco, sober them and perhaps lead them to plan with a prayer on their lips, that they may somehow see that men become somewhat better and our young do not die again in a broken world.

PROUD possession of Barry Fitzgerald is a letter he just received from James A. Farley, former Postmaster General. Letter typed out by Farley himself was typical fan missive in which ex-Cabinet secretary expressed delight over Barry's acting in "Going My Way" and keen interest in his forthcoming characterization, another Irishman, in "Ten Little Indians." Farley recalled many kindly priests whom he has known since his youth, and told Fitzgerald that his fine acting in the Crosby picture embodied them to the life. PAIR of contestants on the "People Are Funny" airer collected 75,422 garments for the Clothing Drive during the week which they were allotted for the gathering. Male winner garnered 46,730 pieces of clothing to take the $500 diamond ring, but, because distaffer pulled in such a huge number, too, she also was presented a similar circlet. . . . Stuart Hamblen at San Anita every morning at five prepping his horses for that delayed opening now said to be in the cards for May 24. He has 32 thoroughbreds in his string.

FRISCO THEATRES, NITERIES TAKE A 25 PCT. SLIP

San Franciso, April 30.—Theatre and night club business was off 25% last week. The theatre boys have been taking a drop in take for the past three weeks, and with the town under "military security" see no relief in sight at least until after the mourning period is over for President Roosevelt May 14th.

Theatre execs state the drop started three weeks ago when the town was readying for the United Nations Security Organization Conference. Then with death of President Roosevelt it took bit more of a dip and Saturday the false surrender story knocked the props out of night trade. Sunday was one of those summery spring days, so folks went to the zoo and the beaches.

Uniforms are not plentiful on Market Street and that has hurt night club as well as theatre trade in general. The night spots were only doing one show a night before the Conference started and with the mourning period are not hazarding a second show try.

The smaller night clubs have taken a 20 to 35% nick in biz, their trade being in the out-of-bounds division due to security bans.

Then there are an avalanche of cocktail parties each afternoon that last until mid-evening for the Conference crowd, press and delegates, which keep these folks away from the bars that require coin in exchange for spiritous fluids.

RADIO NETS MOAN WHEN DENIED THE UN LOWDOWN

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, April 30.—"It isn't according to protocol." If the network news chiefs hear that once more from a State Department attache, they'll commit mayhem. That's the big stumbling block to everything the chains want to do in covering all phases of this Security Conference.

"Throw the book of rules out of the window like FDR would have done," blazed away one of the harried skein bosses here who has been tanglefooted in the diplomatic term for red tape since the big skull session moved from plenary into commission meetings.

The boys wanted to "set up" in the commission chambers in the auditorium annex of the War Memorial building and they got an okay, up to a point, from Mike McDermott, who is doing dirty work for the State Department in its relations with press and radio. That "up to a point" throws up the protocol barrier.

At the commission sessions will be deliberated the plans and proposals that come out of the smoke-filled conference rooms. From there they go to plenary and have a certain important and intriguing value to the networks.

JUST GETTING HANDOUTS

The chain gang would like to set up and really go to town, but as far as they have gotten is to take what they want off the p.a. system in the auditorium. That's better than nothing at all, but if you know the highly competitive spirit among the four networks, you can understand why they'd rather do it in their own individual ways.

For instance, Johnny Johnstone of the Blue would like to have roving microphones to thrust into the kisser of every important speaker. There goes that "protocol" again, and it's a fighting word with the boys who string out the cables. The way things now look, the nets will only occasionally latch on to the commission palaver. It's heavy stuff they know, but what comes out of those sessions will have important bearing on the plenary discussions.

MISS FDR SHOWMANSHIP

Unless the pin-striped lads give them the green light on the way they want to handle these skullfests, they may give it a once over lightly and let it go at that. One of the more outspoken net chiefs put it bluntly when he said, "This wouldn't have happened if FDR were alive. There's been too much diplomacy and too little showmanship."

Most of the others are inclined to agree with him that the late chief is really missed. There's no dissenter to Roosevelt's evaluation as the greatest friend radio ever had. He knew what the boys were up against and protocol would have been just another word for the State Department to toy with in keeping the book of rules inviolable and inflexible.

Another chorused opinion is that there's no one here to "carry the ball" and nothing in the way of encouragement to help radio in its gargantuan task of moulding public opinion. They just sum it up in this way: "Roosevelt was the showman, Stettinius the diplomat."

AP SCARE COPY

Commentators who get their basic material from the news service printers have been muttering about the Associated Press losing its old conservatism, not alone on the phony surrender flash but in the "scare copy" being ground out by its special writers.

The Sunday lull brought out the deep-end boys to the tip of the board and the predictions and appraisals of what's in the cards were reminiscent of certain commentators who sensationalize their copy in the interest of radio ratings.

The Hearst press has the Russians worried. Never too friendly to the Soviet, the copy is slanted in innuendo and influence that might be taken as an omen of disunity and breakup, with the Slavs packing up and steaming out of the harbor to more friendly shores.

HUNTLEY WORDS PICKED UP

Chet Huntley's quote on the Russ by an authority here and which he broadcast yesterday over CBS has been picked up locally as an interesting index into the character of those nationals, albeit in light Americanese vein. The Russians are likened "to the small boy from the other side of the tracks playing with kids from the other end of town but still not adjusted entirely to his companions." That delicately pierces the inscrutability of these suspicious master-minds from the steppes.

Mutual tossed a breakfast party for Elsa Maxwell this morning that brought drool from those who missed it. For the 40 present there were served up eggs with bacon. That's a delicacy in the Palace hotel where points long ago were exhausted and OPA won't do anything about it. When one of the breakfast customers in the main dining room complained about absence of ham or bacon the waitress cracked, "Say, if the hens ever quit laying, we'll have to close this joint."

HELLINGER MAKES STRONG BID FOR DE MILLE SPOT

A new potential candidate for the Lux emceeing job next season was presented last night for appraisal by the Lever crowd when Mark Hellinger moved into the old C. B. De Mille spot. For a newcomer to microphonics he gave definite promise of being called on again — perhaps permanently.

It was a wise choice by the Thompson office to have Hellinger do the hosting and attendant chores on dramatization of the picture he produced, "Moon Title." As a new personality to the radio spectrum, Hellinger bids fair to repeat his successes as short story writer and film producer. His handling of the assignment was in keeping with the high level maintained by these top dramatizations over the years. His voice was pitched just right for the heavy histrionics of Humphrey Bogart and Virginia Bruce and in other departments he came through handily.

At times, his voice might have been mistaken for that of De Milles, and toward the close lightened just enough for the cross dialogue with the stars of the show. His dramatic overtones were skillfully managed and the clarity of his enunciation made for easy, unstrained listening. Occasionally, one caught a slight lapse into his native New Yorkese but it wasn't apparent enough to mar an otherwise forthright performance.

Hellinger's name will no doubt land high on the list of the potential De Mille successors and those who have tried for the spot before him will find rugged competition from this newest air personality. He's got what the job calls for and is the closest approach to the De Mille microphonic qualities of any of the others. He is known to millions through his stories and that's another point in his favor.

REELS, NEWSMEN WIN WAY INTO INNER FRISCO SANCTUM

tions to letting Argentina in. He was oratorical and determined that the South American country was Fascistic by the record and shouldn't come in.

The Latin-American group which had okayed Argentina at the morning meet jumped to its defense, as did the United States. There was plenty of oratory, with the conference giving the okay nod. Molotov was distressed, but didn't indicate he was going to go home.

DETERMINED FOR PACT

Secretary of State Stettinius at a press conference this morning told the newsmen that they were determined to write a security pact, and that all were in accord to work in unity to do a sound job in the shortest space of time.

The plenary sessions are expected to wind for a while Tuesday night when the commissions in committees will be working on their specific tasks to be approved by the executive and steering committees and get the final nod of all delegates at later plenary meets.

FIREWORKS AHEAD

There had been a letdown in interest here over the weekend with European events taking the fore. But when Molotov did his sounding off, the press gang and delegates agreed that a good show would ensue and that plenty of fireworks and oratory would break forth to hold this meet in the center of the news front, with a possible variation in favor of V-E Day spread.

There is still plenty of "security" rule around the Opera House and Vets Memorial building, but the State Department is doing a bit of unbending and letting its hair down. First move in that direction was an announcement that the newsreel men would be allowed into a session of the sacred steering committee and that the newsmen and radio boys could come too. Date for that will be set later this week.

$200,000 COST FOR REELS

The job here for the five newsreels. News of the Day, Movietone Universal, Paramount and Pathe, is entailing a cost of $5,000 a week to each, which includes light sharing. They figure that the reeler job, outside of film cost, will run between $150,000 to $200,000 for the Conference.

The five reels are shooting an average of 15,000 feet a day and complying with the government request to get everything for goodwill. The Russians are using about 4,000 feet a day, shooting everything, with belief that they want to make a historic record for the archives to keep a line on those who participated in the Conference.

Hollywood folks who abounded here over the weekend have pretty much cleared out of town with the only ones around today being James Cagney and Sylvia Sidney, who are here for the premiere of "Blood On the Sun" Wednesday night at the United Artists theatre. They will be guests Tuesday night of the San Francisco press club, under whose auspices the picture is premiering.

Hollenstein To Paris

New York, April 30.—Carl Hollenstein, traveling auditor for Warners, leaves here this week for Paris.

CIO DENIES MOVE IN FILMS; ASKS FOR END OF STRIKE

Declaring the current studio strike should be ended at once, and disavowing any interest in the Hollywood labor situation, the CIO yesterday called upon producers to "immediately abandon their irresponsible attitude" and work with the industry unions to bring about peace in the motion picture business. Following statement was signed by Kenneth C. Beight, prexy; Albert T. Lunceford, veepee, and Phillip Connally, secretary of the L. A. CIO council:

"Several times recently the name of the CIO has been used without authorization in disputes between unions and producers in the motion picture industry.

"Invariably this has been a device of one contending faction or another for gaining an advantage in the particular dispute. Such unauthorized use of CIO's name has been most unfair to the CIO, which has no interest whatsoever in the Hollywood labor field.

END OF STRIKE URGED

"The latest misuse of CIO's name in connection with the current unfortunate strike in Hollywood is most unfair and unwarranted. At this crucial time in our country's history when labor-management cooperation is so vitally needed in order that the war may be finally won and the fruitful and constructive peace achieved, the dispute in Hollywood should be ended at once. The prolongation is detrimental to all labor and to the country.

"Solution of the strike is complicated by the obstinate attitude of the producers and by the unfortunate jurisdictional difficulties between the unions.

"The CIO is opposed to any strike at this time. Under no circumstances would the CIO further complicate the current Hollywood dispute by permitting itself to be injected into the controversy in any way. The so-called Committee of 35 is wholly irresponsible and unauthorized when it presumed to offer CIO membership to the Hollywood workers. It did so without the knowledge of the CIO. The CIO has no sympathy with any such proposal and most definitely discourages it.

HOPE FOR SOLUTION

"The CIO hopes that studio unions in Hollywood will terminate the present strike conditions and will utilize the established facilities of government to achieve solution of their patently just grievances.

"The CIO hopes the motion picture producers will immediately abandon their irresponsible attitude and work with the unions in the industry to bring about peace in the great film industry."

Statement was in answer to announcement of Committee of 35 that CIO authorization cards would be distributed in the studios this week.

LABOR TOPS MEET

Strike activities otherwise were centered in Washington, where L. P. Lindeloff, international head of the painters; Ed Brown, international prexy of the IBEW, and other tops were reported drafting charges against Richard Walsh, international head of the IATSE, because of his action in issuing studio charters to painters, carpenters and machinists. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, talked with Lindeloff by long distance, and was told that William Hutcheson, international head of the carpenters, was scheduled to arrive in the capital today.

DECISION IN 10 DAYS

Gene Green, disputes chief for the 10th Regional War Labor Board, returned to San Francisco yesterday from Washington. He said the National Labor Relations Board was expected to hand down a decision on certification of set decorators within the next week or 10 days. It was indicated the WLB plans to take no action in the present controversy as long as the NLRB holds jurisdiction.

Green explained the wage increase approved for carpenters was recalled by the WLB because of its policy of not approving any deals where unions were on strike. He said there was a question of whether carpenters are on strike because of their refusal to cross the decorators' picket lines. The same policy applies to the IBEW.

Hearings by the California Department of Unemployment to determine whether strikers and unionists refusing to cross the picket lines are eligible for unemployment insurance were postponed yesterday until later in the week. Mike Jeffers, business representative of the Screen Players Union, requested a delay until tomorrow or Thursday when Attorney Frank Pestana is expected to return from Washington, where he represented the Conference of Studio Unions before the National Labor Relations Board.

CBS Executives Open Three-Day Session

New York, April 30.—Columbia Broadcasting System executives of CBS-owned stations and radio sales convened here today for three-day session, with Frank Stanton, net veepee. Morning huddles of semi-annual meetings will be for discussions between station managers and executives and CBS management. Afternoon session will be for discussions among the managers and network operating heads. Ritz-Carlton hotel is scene of meetings.

NLRB DENIES STORY DECISION REACHED ON DECORATORS

Studio picket lines reports declared yesterday that the National Labor Relations Board is drafting a decision holding that Set Decorators employed since the strike eight weeks ago are eligible to vote in a certification election, as well as the 77 employes who walked out. These same reports said the decision would be announced within the next day or so.

This was denied in Washington where Gerald Reilly, NLRB member and the Board's general counsel both denied any decision has been made as to who can vote. Labor tops in the know insisted, however, they had received a grapevine that both groups would be permitted to ballot.

After covering eight hospitals in New York and Massachusetts, he returns to Hollywood May 24. ACTORS GUILD TO GET REPORT ON PARLEYS Screen Actors Guild board of directors meets tonight to receive report from Guild negotiating committee on opening of contract parleys last night with representatives of the major companies. It is understood the initial meeting was devoted largely to a discussion of procedure, provisions on which amendments would be sought, classifications to be covered in wage demands, etc.

SAG is seeking increased minimums for day players, stock players and freelance actors. Demands also will be revised to ask higher pay for stuntmen, cowboys, dancers and singers, as a result of modification of the Screen Players Union certification giving the Guild jurisdiction over all acting work.

It is understood Guild is asking that minimum for day players be hiked from $25 to $35, with majority of cowpokes wanting their minimum pushed up to $25. Current basic agreement calls for $11 for cowboys, but members for more than a year have refused to work for less than $16.50. Stunts now start at $35 and range upward.

SAG negotiating committee is composed of Prexy George Murphy, Robert Montgomery, Walter Abel, Tudor Williams, Cliff Lyons, Larry Steers, Harry Cording, John Dales, Jr., Pat Somerset, Murray Kinnell and Attorney William Berger. E. J. Mannix, Y. Frank Freeman, B. B. Kahane, Cliff Work, Fred Pelton and company attorneys represent the producers.

PEACE RUMORS CUT GROSSES; WEEK TAKE DOWN TO 215G

ately advise patrons via recording and trailers of event, but all such notification will stress fact that the Allies still are faced with war in the Pacific and that any celebration should be tempered.

Major circuits and independents have been prepared for a V-E Day flash since shortly after the invasion of Normandy. Special material was prepared at that time and has been held in readiness since to assure that no one will remain long ignorant of cessation of battle in Europe just because he might be attending a picture show.

PEACE RUMORS CUT GROSSES

The false weekend rumor of Germany's surrender is blamed by some to be responsible for lessening of grosses on the current week, but majority stress mild product, with few exceptions, which is now screening. Weak new entries are holding overall take in 20 theatres down to $215,000 or only slightly better. An exception is stout trade being garnered by 20th-Fox's "A Royal Scandal" at the Chinese, State and Uptown. Pic has possibilities in more than $49,000 for the week in the three houses.

"Lake Placid Serenade," teamed with "Faces In the Fog" at the Guild, United Artists and Wilshire, is hitting new first-week low for the trio since starting as a day-date string. Bill doesn't appear likely to take much more than $14,500. "Here Come the Co-Eds" at the Pantages and Hillstreet is mild at estimated $29,500. "The Horn Blows At Midnight" is being pulled after two weeks of slow trade at Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern, with "God Is My Co-Pilot" replacing Friday. "Bring On the Girls" at the two Paramount theatres is catching okay $25,000 on its second frame.

"Without Love" continues to be big coin getter at the Egyptian, Los Angeles and Ritz, closing its second week last night with estimated $48,000 after going above $60,000 on the initial seven days.

RANK DUE HERE 14TH FOR ALLIANCE WITH HOLLYWOOD BIGS

still a third one for the Latin countries.

Rank is reported to have broached the plan to Samuel Goldwyn while the latter was in London several months ago. Emissaries here have been laying the groundwork to include in the American setup the Dave Selznick production outfit and the new Briskin and Capra producing unit. Several others in Hollywood, who have been anxious for an outlet of proposed product, also will be auditioned by Rank.

With talk still around that Selznick would like to take over the United Artists setup, it is reported that Rank may be prepared to finance the purchase of the shares of Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin. On the other hand, with Selznick shopping around to establish his own distribution setup, it is likely that Rank would be ready to pour coin into such an organization and to include Goldwyn, Briskin and Capra and other companies in the outfit.

Rank is said to be looking a year or so ahead. He wants producers affiliated with his setup to make a minimum of 15 films a year, with him providing the balance from England and Latin sources to give the outfit a total of around 35 pix annually.

Goldwyn recently signed to release several pictures for another year through RKO, while Selznick has been indifferent regarding delivery through UA, sort of setting himself for his own production and distribution units when he would go full steam ahead.

United Artists has been trying to persuade C. B. De Mille to release through it, but no deal has eventuated.

The film is a boildown of 60,000 feet shot in Italy by six combat cameramen. Col. Frank Capra supervised and Major John Huston, aided by Capt. Jules Buck, handled the unit. Huston also produced, directed, wrote the narration and serves as narrator.

Pic, which was filmed over a five-month period, covers D-Day at Salerno, crossing of the Volturno, battle of the Liri valley, etc. It tells of the operation of the 143rd infantry regiment during all that time.

June releases are "Coney Island Honeymoon," "Mexican Sea Sports," "Bahama Sea Sports," "Flivver Flying," "Across the Sea" and "Tale of Two Mice."

Three Metro Films Opening On B'way

Three Broadway openings of MGM pictures are scheduled for this week. "The Valley of Decision" follows "Without Love" into Radio City Music Hall Thursday. The Judy Garland-Robert Walker starrer. "The Clock," opens the same day at the Capitol, and "Gentle Annie" starts Friday at the Rialto.

'Nazi Spy' Winds First Week In Argentina

News that "Confession of a Nazi Spy," had completed its first week's run in Buenos Aires after the lifting of a six-year ban received yesterday by Warner Bros. Warners "Mission to Moscow," also put on the Argentine forbidden list several years ago, opens in Buenos Aires in a couple of weeks.

Aller On Lenser Case

Lang Skeds No. 1

With Edward G. Robinson and Joan Bennett as co-stars, Fritz Lang has set July 9 as starting date for his first independent for New World Properties, Inc., "Scarlet Street."

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Brooks Atkinson, now fully recuperated from the yellow jaundice fever that laid him low ever since he returned from China, leaves shortly for a year's visit to Moscow, where he will report on overall picture for the New York Times. His missus accompanies him. . . . In spite of the SRO business, "The Late George Apley" will shutter in July, to give the cast a four weeks breather. Leo G. Carroll is already being baited with Hollywood offers, but he claims after "Apley" he needs a more invigorating change of climate! . . . Aline Bernstein, who is on the last lap of a novel for Alfred Knopf, is also rushing against deadline to finish a children's book, "A Paper Doll Of Martha Washington," which she is illustrating herself. . . . Add decoration to the San Francisco scenery: Stella Adler, who will represent Palestine at the conference. . . . If Howard Lindsay and "Buck" Crouse are crossing their fingers and rubbing a rabbit's foot these days, it's because they're patiently waiting for Helen Hayes' okay to emerge as a modern heroine again (viz "Candle In the Wind," 1941) in their new comedy drama for fall production. . . . Jan Clayton's mother and father, who made their first trip to the Main Stem to burst with parental pride over Jan's Broadway debut in "Carousel," have returned to Tularosa, N. M., but Jan's 5-year-old, Sandra, will remain in New York with her in the duplex apartment she has subleased at 313 E. 51st Street. . . . Al Bloomingdale's planned production of "Time of Roses," has been indefinitely postponed for a very tragic reason. This play, authored by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, is about a father's readjustment to the death of his son killed in action. Brennan, who has a rewrite job to do on it, can't touch it ever since he received that War Dept. communique informing him of the passing of his own son. . . . The Lt. Com. Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs., celebrated their 6th wedding anniversary this week, and when Douglas discovered that the 6th year is symbolized by iron, he presented Mary Lee with a gift that is almost as precious these days as the Koohinar diamond—an electric iron, which, coincidently enough, had the figure "6" stamped on the back!

ADD ARRIVALS: Margaret Sullavan, Leland Hayward and Hal Wallis at the Waldorf. . . . Dolores Del Rio at the Ambassador. . . . Harry M. Warner at the Gotham. . . . Gene Kelly at the Dorset. . . . Grace Moore at the Savoy Plaza. . . . J. Carroll Naish at the Warwick. . . . Lew Schreiber at the Sherry Netherland. . . . Wynne Gibson at the Carlyle.

EXCLUSIVELY YOURS: No producer with a company of 50 has had more casting headaches than Alfred de Liagre with his trio in "Voice of the Turtle"—and they aren't over yet! Audrey Christie, the lone member who remained stationary while Florence Rice and Betty Field succeeded Margaret Sullavan, and Henry Stephens pinch-hitted the Elliott Nugent, will leave the cast, June 10, to check in at 20th Century-Fox. And to find a replacement for Miss C.'s wonderfully good humored performance is causing the blonde locks of "Delly" to grow prematurely grey. . . . Fanny Holtzmann, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel, as legal advisor to one of the Big Four, leaves soon after the conference for an extended visit abroad in the interest of her client. . . . Sylvia Fine is lingering on for another month in New York to continue those daily huddles with Don Hartman over a musical they are concocting for Danny Kaye. Mrs. K. doesn't want Danny to carry the show by himself, but would like either Judy Garland or Mary Martin to share the honors with him. Who wouldn't? . . . A great surprise to the friends of Charlie and Helen Rogers is the news that their son, Sgt. John Rogers, stationed at the Signal Corps unit at Astoria, and his bride of 4 years are planning a Reno divorce. . . . Memo to the stag line: Nanette Fabray and Edith Fellows are sharing bachelor girl quarters at the Barbizon Plaza. . . . When Fred Stone plays "You Can't Take It With You" for Theron Bamberger at Bridgeport (May 1st) Geraldine Stroock will be seen in the ingenue lead. . . . Exciting musical event of the week will be Fred Waring's "Cavalcade of American Music" at Carnegie Hall (29). Highlight of the program will be Waring's introduction of an important American symphony. . . . Frank Chapman greatly disturbed at the report that his 18-year-old, Buffy Cobb Chapman, will wed Victor Mature, as soon as she sheds Greg Bautzer, long distanced her to Las Vegas and made a big noise like a father!

Social Note: Ladies' Day at the Players Club, an annual event held in commemoration of Shakespeare's birthday, packed the charming club house on Gramercy Park with a capacity house that Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett and Francis Wilson would have loved. Among the old and new faces that congregated on all three floors were: Walter Hampden, Viola Allen, Minnie Dupree, Alice Fisher, Rollin Kirby, Kitty Cheatam, Bijou Fernandez, Daisy Humphreys, Dick Madden, Lenore Harris, Burns Mantle, Blanche Yurka, Fulton Oursler, Charles Hanson Towne, Nydia Westman, Bobby Clark, Tony Stanford, Celeste Holm, Bill Post, Jr., Brian Aherne, Paul Hollister, Joanna Roos, James Rennie, Pvt. Bob Porterfield, Carol Irwin and the Gilbert Millers.

ERNEST IN FUN: Danny Webb, the engaging comic now the successor to Peter Donald on the "Guess Who" etherizer, tells of a conversation he had with the late Ernie Pyle, when their paths crossed overseas last year, while Danny was a sergeant seeing a lot of action.

It was right after quite a big show by the Luftwaffe, that Ernie turned to Danny and grinned, "It's lucky you're such a ham. Every time a target aims at you, you bend low and bow!"

Too bad that Ernie didn't have more of the ham in him!

San Francisco, May 1.—With presentations made this afternoon and evening at the sixth and seventh plenary sessions of the United Nations Conference for International Organization, tomorrow should wind up the introductory and formal portion of the first act of this world-wide drama.

With the German reports of Hitler's death and the succession to the fuhrer post by Admiral Karl Doenitz there was no excitement or furore in the War Memorial Opera House where the delegates met. There was talk about what could take place now, but no one was particularly optimistic with respect to Doenitz's handing his sword over to the Allies.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN stresses the educational and morale-building values of motion pictures, writing a by-lined article in April 22 issue of New York Times magazine section. Telling what a great contribution American films have made in lifting and maintaining the spirits of our boys overseas, producer goes on to say that the job of moton pictures, particularly in the future, is to entertain and educate. This calls for intelligence and skill, but there need be no conflict between the two—a picture can be both entertaining and educational at the same time, latter quality being brought in indirectly but nonetheless definitely and convincingly. Future challenges the movies, according to Goldwyn, for more and more will pictures be used in the classroom, in the buildup of better relations between the nations. Recounting his own recent travels in England, in which the drama of war was unfolded for him before his very eyes by the people and sights he saw, Goldwyn said he returned with idea that the delegates to United Nations Security Conference in San Francisco ought to see a motion picture record of the war and refresh their memories before sitting down to talk about the peace of the world.

PRIOR to Monday night's opening, only six members of "Desert Song" chorus had ever had professional experience, with rest of the 40-odd youngsters being simon-pures. Comments by reviewers and the audience brought forth an explanation from Producer Edwin Lester on the reason for the fresh and handsome ensemble. Lester says group, both for "Song" and "Red Mill," totaling 32 girls and 40 boys, was hand picked after nine auditions. Host of the youngsters came from local voice and dramatic schools. Of the male group, some 15 are ex-servicemen. Voice alone is not enough to place youngsters in chorus spots Lester pointed out. Looks count for plenty as well. Figuring cost of customers for the femmes in "Song" averaged several hundred dollars for each girl. Producer wanted girls who would be as attractive as clothes they wore. Final factor in selecting group was somewhat social Lester stated. "If they have to act like ladies and gentlemen on the stage, I don't want it to be too much of a strain. Also I'd rather have people who can get along together than performers who will cause dissension in the troupe."

EUROPE'S HURDLES UP FOR PIX

American pictures are taking abroad as a result of new curbs. French limitation move is believed intended to open up more playing time for British, Russian and other European films, to the detriment of our own film distribution in that country, while Britain's new restrictions mean U. S. exports of Technicolor pictures to Sweden from England will have to be stopped as result of new ruling.

FRANCE TO HOLD COIN

French Ministry of Finance, in addition, has advised the U. S. that a share of film rentals will be placed in blocked account. Salaries of U. S. personnel in France too are being stopped.

British producers also are urging all-British control of theatre circuits.

In other parts of Europe, Spain is forcing outright sale of American product through restrictions on release, and Dutch and Yugoslavs are establishing government monopolies on pictures.

And hastened through a lot of reels pursuing tender glances,

There is a damsel in the plot, but she is secondary,
While he pursues the missing corpse in yonder cemetery.

The Southerner

(Drama)

UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE. Producers, David L. Loew and Robert Hakim. Associate producer, Samuel Rheiner. Director, Jean Renoir. Assistant director, Robert Aldrich. Screenplay, Jean Renoir. Adapted by Hugo Butler from the novel, "Hold Autumn In Your Hand," by George Sessions Perry. Production manager, Joe C. Gilpin. Photography, Lucien Andriot. Sound, Frank Webster. Production designer, Eugene Lourie. Dialog director, Paula Walling. Musical score, Werner Janssen. Film editor, Gregg Tallas.

CAST—Zachary Scott, Betty Field, J. Carrol Naish, Beulah Bondi, Percy Kilbride, Blanche Yurka, Charles Kemper, Norman Lloyd, Estelle Taylor, Noreen Nash, Jack Norworth, Paul Harvey, Nestor Paiva, Jay Gilpin, Jean Vanderwilt, Paul Burns, Dorothy Granger, Earl Hodgins, Almira Sessions.

PREVIEWED at the Four Star theatre, Los Angeles, April 30, 1945. Running time: 96 MINS.

"The Southerner," for the most of its 96 minutes of running time, is an excellent piece of motion picture making that narrowly escapes being spoiled by scattered ineptitudes. It is sheer human drama, grippingly told in the naturalistic manner and probably equal to feature billing.

Just how well it will do at the box office depends on whether escapist-minded audiences feel that they can forget their own troubles in witnessing the trials and tribulations of poverty-stricken but hopeful sharecroppers.

Jean Renoir in his scripting and directing has made exciting, realistic drama of the Tuckers' fight with the forces of nature to get a stretch of reverted cotton under tillage again. His depiction of their dogged, persistent courage and industry in the face of hunger, disease, poverty and disaster has the audience living the story with them.

But Tucker's fight with a surly neighbor, a wedding party sequence apparently dragged in for comedy relief, and certain portions of the climactic scene in which the hard-won cotton crop is destroyed by flood are out of key with the rest of the production.

These scenes are inadequately planted and, in any case, are too conventionally melodramatic to blend successfully with Renoir's naturalism.

The cast couldn't have been better. Zachary Scott and Betty Field as Sam and Nona Tucker, handle the restrained emotionalism demanded by the roles in a masterly manner. Scott is an upstanding figure of a young farmer with a sufficiency of good looks that have nothing saccharine about them.

An outstanding feature of the picture is the character performance of Beulah Bondi as Granny. J. Carrol Naish, cast in a heavy role, gives a sensational performance. Estelle Taylor, seen briefly in a minor part, does notable work. Charles Kemper and Norman Lloyd turn in excellent portrayals of difficult roles.

Contributing no little to the success of the film is Werner Janssen's musical score, played by the Janssen Symphony orchestra.

It's May and LeBaron Hunts Strawhats

Swing Out, Sister

(Romantic Comedy With Music)

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Producer, Bernard W. Burton. Director, Edward Lilley. Screenplay, Harry Blankfort. Original story, Eugene Conrad, Edward Dein. Photography, Paul Ivano. Art director, John B. Goodman. Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman. Editor, Edward Curtiss. Gowns, Vera West.

CAST—Rod Cameron, Frances Raeburn, Arthur Treacher, Fuzzy Knight, Billie Burke, Jacqueline de Wit, Milburn Stone, Samuel S. Hinds, Edgar Dearing, Sam Flint, Constance Purdy, Selika Pettiford, Leo Diamond Quintet.

PREVIEWED at Warners Beverly theatre, May 1, 1945. Running time: 60 MINS.

"Swing Out, Sister," is an agreeable light comedy which, lacking a strong marquee-name cast, nevertheless provides tuneful moments and plenty of solid laughs. Picture reflects credit on both players and those concerned with its production. Fast pace is established early when a gal goes back home to see if a former boy friend can send her before she says yes to nitery operator who wants her for his bride, and builds constantly both through her own romance and that of her girl friend. Film teeters on sleeper class.

Frances Raeburn portrays the gal, a hot blues singer on Broadway whose aunt and uncle in Greenwich think is studying for a concert career. She warbles in Milburn Stone's night club, latter insisting she pay aunt a visit to get Rod Cameron, her first beau, out of her system. Cameron is known as a brilliant symphony conductor, but secretly has leaning toward swing. Instead of gal erasing Cameron from her life, they fall in love, with complications setting in when Stone plans to circumvent their romance and get back his gal.

Principals do well by their parts and are assisted on laugh side by Jacqueline de Wit, playing Miss Raeburn's chum, and Arthur Treacher lending his talents as Cameron's gal. Billie Burke and Samuel S. Hinds impersonate the aunt and uncle, with other roles satisfactorily filled. Miss Raeburn displays an engaging versatility as a singer, warbling several songs to notable effect.

Edward Lilley did a good job with his direction and Bernard W. Burton got the most out of his budget, screenplay by Harry Blankfort from original story by Eugene Conrad and Edward Dein a nicely-contrived piece of writing. Vera West's costumes, particularly those worn by Miss Raeburn, are excellent. Balance of behind-the-camera credits stack up favorably.

HEAVY PIX REBATES REPORTED FROM ARGENTINA

New York, May 1.—With several million dollars at stake, representing American film company money impounded in Argentina for income tax purposes over last 12 years, recent affirmation of that country's decision is regarded in U. S. picture company foreign orders as likely to lead shortly to release of most of previously held coin.

Fact that American distribution revenue in that country during period represents taxes on basis of 50% of total remitted to New York and during about half of the period on basis of 100% of remitted coin, is tipoff on amount of money involved. Rebates due to be made run into seven figures, but none has been made so far.

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, May 1.—The story of Hitler's death is being discredited by some persons because we have it only from German sources. We cannot, of course, have it from any other until the Russians complete the liberation of Berlin and are able to view the body. It's suggested that the death story may have been faked to enable Hitler to escape, that perhaps one of his doubles is dead instead. Hitler, since he looks like a million other Germans, could easily lose himself in any German crowd. It's interesting that the Nazi announcement of the manner of his death—"a hero fighting the Bolsheviks"—is the very same that I've predicted ever since I returned from Germany, and that I've repeated in this column. The selection of Doenitz adds credence to the report of the Himmler attempt to surrender, since it discredits the power that he had been assigned and makes a longer German fight now more likely. Doenitz, as a Nazi fanatic, and as a Navy man also, is well suited to appeal to the resistance of the Germans still holding on mostly in port areas and Norway.

A YOUNG naval Lieutenant in the South Pacific is going to be surprised to learn that he is related to a motion picture star—it happened this way—last week Jess Barker received a letter from Jesse Edward Barker, Lt. (jg) U.S.N.R., congratulating him on the birth of his twins and pointing out the strange coincidence not only of their names, but the fact that he, too, had twin sons, and that he, as well as Jess Barker, hailed from Calhoun, South Carolina. What the boy did not know, but that Jess does know, is that they are first cousins and that Jess was named after the boy's father. Jess hastened to write Jesse to explain the relationship.

FREQUENCY RULING PROMISED BY FCC IN TWO WEEKS

Washington, May 1.—The Federal Communications Commission is now claiming that its final frequency allocations will be announced within the next two weeks. The report was due before May 1, but the FCC got tied up with the continuing row over moving Frequency Modulation upstairs in the spectrum and the matter was delayed.

There appears no rush on the ruling at present. The announcement of the Brazilian government the other day that it is postponing the Inter-American radio huddle at Rio from June to September gives the Commission plenty of elbow room.

The original rush to complete the report was due to the necessity for cleaning up as much as possible before the State Department moved down to Rio for the meeting on sharing the airlanes in this hemisphere.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, May 1.—Despite the tough time American pictures are having getting into France at present, the outlook is not too gloomy according to State Department observers here. They point out that the French film industry is in a state of reorganization at present. The industry was very active and flourished during the German occupation—for Nazi benefit. Hence there is a great deal to be undone besides all that remains to be done. At the same time, the pre-war restrictions, such as quotas, necessity of dubbing in France, etc., still exist.

When the transition from German to French control is completed it is felt our people will be in good position to sit down and talk turkey with the French biggies, ironing out many difficulties. As a matter of fact, not much can be expected in the way of real film activity until trade between the two countries opens up.

There is now no French raw stock either for dubbing or for getting French production under way. Hopes of WPB that France would dive right into the manufacture of raw stock, easing the strain on this nation somewhat, have been vain. The little film being made in the country is all earmarked for the military.

Only U. S. film rep in France thus far continues to be Joe Hummel of Warners. Everything is being done to discourage others. There are no accommodations for trade reps. Without official status such as is enjoyed by war correspondents, they face all manner of difficulties and impossible prices.

But as soon as the basic problems of France—food, transportation, etc.—are solved, the State Department looks to re-establishment of the marketing of films on a larger scale and with fewer restrictions than before 1939.

* * * * * * * * *

On the other side of the world the situation looks good. Not only in Argentina, but throughout South America conditions are definitely improving.

Competition of pictures made by Mexico, Argentina, etc., should cause Hollywood no trouble, according to a federal official who has spent considerable time south of the Rio Grande. He says that the more good pictures that come on the market, the more business the exhibitors will do down there. In addition, the populations of the Latin countries are steadily becoming more film conscious.

Another plug for the war job Hollywood is doing comes to Hollywood's Congressman Gordon L. McDonough from his son, Gordon, Jr., a Navy lieutenant serving in the Pacific.

"I will say," Gordon, Jr., writes, "that the movie exchange is really something, and without it the boys would be lost." The exchange keeps feeding pix to the men on the fighting ships.

Lt. Comm. Allan Browne, ex-MOT, who has been heading film activities in Navy public relations, has left for duty in Guam and does not expect to do anything connected with films for the duration.

His last chore before heading for the war front was to arrange Navy cooperation for the coming new Warners pic about an aircraft carrier figured for release about the end of this year. Film, still in the script stage, will have Jerry Wald producing and Delmer Daves directing. Navy, we understand, is supplying a heavy ream of historical background on Naval aviation for this film.

SPAR Helen Pressley, former light opera singer from the west coast, will be soloist when the Coast Guard band takes over the Navy spot on Mutual, 12:30 to 1, EWT, Mondays. . . . Bill Schallen, former Alvino Rey vocalist, who conducted the Curtis Bay Coast Guard band in this country, now is on a ship in the south Pacific with a new musical unit he organized and leads.

D. C. exhibitors huddled today to complete their plans for participation in the Seventh War Loan. . . . Warners has done over the downtown Metropolitan theatre and converted it from a second to a first run grind house. . . . Heavy backlog of product controlled by WB for this area is the reason. . . . Henry Hull has done the narration for a Treasury Salute disc on the dramatic story of Marine Sgt. John Basilone, Medal of Honor winner, who died at Iwo. . . . Exploitation being done by Treasury for its 16mm. War Bond program is really big time and indicates that substandard pix have come of age. . . . OWI is now offering on a purchase basis prints of one and two-reelers made originally for overseas distribution only. Some are in 16 and some in 35mm. size. . . . Largest Red Cross club for servicemen in the western Pacific is located in the former Philippines Trust Co. bldg. in Manila. Place screens pix and will have a ballroom and bowling alley when it is completed. . . . U. S. exported nearly 10% more films and motion picture equipment to New Zealand during the first 10 months of 1944 than during the same period in 1943.

WILLIAMS WARNS EXHIBS OF CONTROL BY GOVERNMENT

Primary aim of the Southern California Theatre Owners Association will be to provide a method within the industry for the adjustment of disputes between its members. This point was made yesterday by Paul Williams, general counsel and general manager of the association, at an informal, get-acquainted luncheon in the Variety Club.

Williams, introduced by Marco Wolff, an SCTOA director, stressed that future of the organization will depend upon the willingness of its members to pursue a policy of live and let live in the conduct of their respective businesses. "This policy must apply to all, large as well as small—to the affiliated and the independent circuit as well as to the independent exhibitor," Williams declared.

SCTOA will concern itself with legislation affecting the industry as well as a disputes referee. War activities will play a major part in operations, too, Williams said, and his advice on legal problems confronting members will also be available. Attention will be given to unreasonable restraints or discriminations that may exist in film contracts with distributors.

Williams warned here that if unjustified price discrimination is not voluntarily corrected by the industry itself it could well lead to bringing "the industry under public control and regulation as a public utility."

Williams acknowledged the effort the late Albert J. Law had put into forming the association and establishing its aims. Charles P. Skouras, whose Fox West Coast Theatres has one vote in the SCTOA expressed his willingness to do everything possible to aid the association to become a standard for exhibitor organizations all over the country.

seven sub-committees set to iron out the details of the security plan, it is likely that many of the delegates will drift out of town after the weekend to await word that the protocol is ready for their signature, or that something important must be brought to their attention.

MOLOTOV BREEZING

Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov of Russia is scheduled to breeze homeward. George Bidault, minister of foreign affairs of France, who made the French statement this afternoon, likewise will do a fadeout within a few days. Anthony Eden of England has let it be known that he might depart after Monday. C. J. Hambro, president of Norwegian storthing, is waiting a surrender announcement to go home to get his government into operation.

This quartet is said to feel that, in view of incidents that have taken place in the past week, and with the hopes for a surrender, each belong on the other side of the Atlantic.

It will mean that the big show will sag down to a walk and remain so until the last act, when, in a blaze of glory, the documents will be signed and the security of nations will be assured.

THEATRE CROWDS SLIM

The United Nations theatre has been in operation since Sunday, but due to many delegation meetings and press conferences all over town, has had a negligible attendance. State Department won't stand for exploitation, so the boys of the American picture industry, who are operating the enterprise, can do nothing but stand by.

Tomorrow night they will show "Wilson" there, and the 20th-Fox crew will have a cocktail party preceding the showings, so it appears there will be a heavy turnout, unless another plenary session is called for the evening.

Tonight there was a press dinner at the San Francisco Press Club, where James Cagney and Sylvia Sidney made a personal prior to the opening of the Cagney opus, "Blood On the Sun" at United Artists theatre, from which the Press Club will get the proceeds of around $5,500 to enable it to have a little extra coin for entertainment of the conference visitors.

RADIO EXPERTS WARMING UP ANKLES FOR FRISCO HEGIRA

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 1.—Unless the United Nations agenda is speeded up or something more explosive than oratorical baby crackers are set off, the exodus back home by the experts and commentators may swell from a trickle to a full stream by the weekend. Masterminds of the kilocycles who, in fairness, it must be said, are playing it safer than the news correspondents, are getting a little weary and restless and are hoping for some big break, such as V-E Day.

You see them milling in the Palace lobby sucking away at pipes and walking about like sleepwalkers. They're the dream boys of this meeting of the big brains—always trying to dream up an angle that hasn't been used before or calling the turn that may come on the morrow. The Russian thing has been milled until the next development comes along.

Also among the commentators you'll find the greatest collection of skeptics in town. After that phony surrender flash by Associated Press—Roy Howard's revenge after 27 years—they're hesitant about accepting anything as fact unless it has been substantiated by Washington, UNCIO and the sheriff's office. When a rumor sweeps through the lobby and is picked up on every floor the radio reporters accept it guardedly with, "Who said so?"

The one about the Russians packing up and bolting the meet never got to first base. It sounded too much like phonus-bolognus to the hep boys and may have emanated from the Huntington hotel where W. R. Hearst and his party have taken over two floors. Roy Howard also is in town, but they say he's playing it close to the vest, not having entirely forgotten his outfit's premature armistice "scoop" of the last war.

The cutaway boys of the State Department are studying the protocol to see what the rules say about allowing the radio and news snoopers to sit in on the commission meetings. Some of the foreign delegations are said to be opposed to any open discussions openly arrived at and would rather conduct their skull sessions sub rosa. The State Department is all for letting the boys in, but, after all, Stettinius and his staff are merely the hosts and you can't push the guests around, especially not those lads with the red sashes across their stiff shirt fronts.

Bob Trout, pipe and all, is calling it quits here Thursday, and Bill Henry follows early next week. Hedda Hopper said she's had enough, and that sentiment is generally shared. Not that San Francisco hasn't been a fine host city but there's too much work to do for what little you get.

The big guns are maintaining a discreet silence and wearing their best poker faces. Leaks are few, so what rolls out of the type foundry is usually one man's opinion, or at best an unofficial consensus. Out on the air it goes, tempered just enough to make you and you believe that this chappie is holding back something. The only thing up his sleeve is his arm.

Standard of California, which has had the Arabian delegates in tow from the first swish of their burnooses is spreading itself handsomely in a public relations way May 13. On the yacht Yerba Buena will be piled accredited radio and newsmen for a leisurely cruise. Needless to say, the larder will be full of choice vittles and corks will pop.

Constant radio communication with the conference will be maintained and launches made handy to take back to town anyone with an impulsive urge or an aversion to aqua. Only ceremony aboard will be changing of the yacht's name to Ernie Pyle out of respect to memory of the reporter's reporter.

Homer Fickett of J. Walter Thompson in New York, is around to look after the firm's shows from here. He rides herd over Earl Wilson and Helen Hayes. The other JWT shoguns are Bill Henry and William Shirer. Wilson will assay the charms of Walter Winchell on his next broadcast and then pulls out for Hollywood for a two-week stay. Sweater girls, here he comes.

Crashing the plenary session has become an art that would have confounded One Eye Connolly. Edward G. Robinson got the brush and Gracie Allen was turned back because she left her credentials at the hotel. Some of the unofficial guests are wondering what artifice was used by Miriam Hopkins and Brock Pemberton in getting past the cordon of guards and doormen.

Jacqueline White drew the Mother role yesterday in "The Yearling" at Metro.

In a message from Skouras, exhibitors were asked to have every theatre in the area pledged to the drive and to achieve 100 per cent in bond premieres and Free Movie Day possibilities. He also asked that issuing and sub-issuing agents throughout the territory be increased. Mann called upon exhibs to equal past records.

Treasury Shy Big Loan Kickoff Show

Washington, May 1.—The Treasury has not yet clinched the big names for its kickoff program for the Seventh War Loan, night of May 13. The four-net show still is in a muddle and there is a possibility that the networks themselves may take over the programming to straighten out the situation.

Meanwhile, the webs are again arranging a "day" apiece devoted to the drive. Three have set their dates, but there will be no announcement until the fourth also is in line.

Hildegarde will be guest star when Don McNeill brings his Breakfast Club program to Washington's Constitution Hall May 14 for a bond tieup. Show, paid for by Swift & Co., will be a salute to the country's retail stores for their part in the bond drives. Employes will be congratulated for buying and selling bonds and the managements will be lauded for their advertising and promotional support.

HEIDT WILL APPEAL CONTRACT CASE TO AFM BOARD

Horace Heidt has announced plans to appear before the American Federation of Musicians Board of directors during mid-June in Chicago. Maestro will appeal his case recently turned down by the board, in which he asked release from his management pact with Music Corporation of America.

In his appeal it is understood Heidt will ask that the AFM consider cutting time length of management tickets, on the grounds that the contracts are too long to benefit the bandsmen. Pacts are now set for standard seven year run.

Heidt's feud with MCA came over what he charged was improper representation and handling. As consequence of his fight with the agency, Heidt broke up his musicrew a month ago. His contract with MCA still has approximately two years to run.

SOEG Dispute With Exchanges Given WLB

Contract dispute between major film exchanges and Screen Office Employes Guild will be heard by a three-man panel of the War Labor Board Friday. Negotiations were deadlocked on Jan. 31 and the union applied to the Conciliation Service of the U. S. Department of Labor. When the differences could not be conciliated, the case was certified to the WLB. Dispute centers largely around vacations, sick leave and temporary employment. Union is seeking accumulative sick leave and earned vacation, regardless of whether employe is dismissed or resigns.

DETERMINED CIO MOVE TO GRAB FILM UNIONS SEEN

An apparently well-organized campaign to enroll the industry's 20,000 workers under the CIO banner was launched yesterday, 24 hours after CIO tops had disavowed any interest in the Hollywood labor picture. Committee of 35, which circulated its first bulletin in the studios last week, expanded into the Committee of Motion Picture Workers, appointed Jack Reed temporary chairman, and opened headquarters in the Whitley bldg. on Hollywood blvd.

After making its usual inquiry, "Why this strike?" the CMPW, in a bulletin distributed in studios yesterday, stated its purpose as follows:

"To accept authorization cards designating the CMPW as the bargaining agency for those who wish to end jurisdictional strife in Hollywood.

"To keep the names of those signing such authorization cards in strictest confidence until a substantial majority is obtained.

PLAN NLRB APPEAL

"To file for certification with the National Labor Relations Board to establish our rights in the industry. This could be done by requesting either an industry-wide certification or of crafts whose response is sufficient to warrant such action.

"To request a charter from the CIO, which we are certain will be forthcoming if our majority is substantial enough. We do not need any CIO money or support in this, nor do we solicit any individual contributions, but we do need CIO prestige in completing our deals.

"To immediately end the existing deadlock strike."

CMPW stated authorization cards are now being printed and will be ready for distribution within the next few days. Move to bring the CIO into the motion picture field was received with considerable interest by hundreds in the IATSE, as well as many of the strikers and crafts who are refusing to cross the studio picket lines.

NO SORRELL OBJECTION

Several top labor leaders pointed out that a jurisdictional dispute was unknown in the CIO and that locals were given complete autonomy. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, advised pickets he had no objection to them passing out the CIO literature, laughingly remarking, "I might decide to sign one myself."

Groups in the IATSE which have been fighting for autonomy for years and have refused to take over jobs of strikers, were reported as particularly interested in the CIO drive. They remarked this might be the solution for all of the film labor ills, pointing out that strife had been caused for years by one jurisdictional dispute after another, none of which were settled by the American Federation of Labor.

SOME COMPANIES FAVOR

It is understood some company execs would not be opposed to the CIO if it took over the entire industry. It was pointed out that wage contracts could then be disposed of at one negotiations meeting instead of having to deal with a half-hundred different unions and guilds.

CMPW stated it was appointing a representative who "was thrown out of the IATSE for refusing to sign a most degrading apology to Willie Bioff and he is not the type of a man to be intimidated or become subservient to the whims of any misleaders of labor."

AWAIT NLRB DECISION

Strike interest otherwise yesterday was centered on expected decision by the NLRB on certification of set decorators and any possible action by international heads of the AF of L against Richard Walsh because of his issuance of charters to painters, machinists and carpenters. Strike leaders also were keeping a close check on Technicolor in an effort to determine whether plant could continue to operate without machinists.

Prexy Sorrell of the Conference declared 87 machinists were out at the plant and that nearly 300 laboratory technicians were refusing to cross the picket lines. A meeting of Film Technicians Local 683 has been called for Sunday, at which time the strike and picket line at Technicolor will be taken up. Strike and picket lines also are expected to be taken up again by white collarites at a general membership meeting of Screen Office Employes Guild set for May 8.

20TH DENIES LAYOFFS

Reports that pictures were being canceled and assistant directors being laid off were denied by 20th-Fox execs yesterday. It was stated company now has five pictures rolling, two on location and two units on locations. Studio heads said this was considerably more work than was in progress when the current studio strike was called eight weeks ago.

Reports that three machinists had returned to work at Metro and three at RKO were being investigated yesterday by D. T. Wayne, business representative of Cinema Lodge 1185. Wayne previously had announced any machinists crossing the studio picket lines would never be permitted to work on another union job. The same announcement also has been made as to carpenters by James Skelton, business representative of Studio Carpenters Local 695.

IATSE ADDS UP BILL

IATSE bulletin yesterday on 50th day of strike declared the man hours lost now total 1,401,600 and the salary lost $1,885,400. Remainder of bulletin was devoted to an attack on Herbert Sorrell.

Reports that policemen had walked out at Metro were denied by studio heads. It was explained that four officers protested when notified they would be allowed to work only eight hours because they were employed elsewhere. Officers at Metro are not affiliated with any union.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD: SAG FINDS COWBOY IS JUST AN EXTRA

Screen Actors Guild is taking the position that film cowboys are extras and will not seek to negotiate a minimum wage scale for that group it was stated last night as the Guild negotiating committee reported to the SAG Board of Directors on its first meeting with Producers. It was indicated, however, that wherever cowpokes run into specials or stunts they will come under guild jurisdiction as actors.

This means that Screen Players Union will have to negotiate for the cowboys who currently are refusing to accept a call for less than $16.50, although the Producer-SAG Basic Agrneement calls for only $11. Majority of group feel that a riding stint is worth at least $25, taking into consideration the risk of injury and the necessity for maintaining wardrobes, etc.

SAG Board was told that guild demands were presented to representatives of major companies and that another meeting with producers is scheduled for next week, at which time two groups will start discussions on various amendments and proposed wage minimums.

Projectionists Get WLB Increase of 3 1/10 Pct.

Studio Projectionists Local 165 at a special membership meeting last night at the Roosevelt hotel voted to accept a new wage contract which has just been approved by the War Labor Board, although members expressed belief it was the poorest agreement negotiated by any of the IATSE studio locals. Deal call for increase of three and one-tenth per cent per hour for studio operators. It also carries the other base conditions given to all other film labor unions such as vacations, etc.

BUILDING OWNERS TAKE OVER CHI'S CIVIC OPERA

Chicago, May 1.—Wacker Corp., operators of building which houses the Civic Theatre and Opera House, will take over management of the Civic May 15. Announcement that Ralph Kettering's year-and-a-half tenancy would terminate May 14 was made by J. C. Thompson, corporation prexy, who also assumed management of the opera house two months ago.

John J. Manley, formerly manager of Chicago Arena for eight years, will manage the Civic for Thompson. He has been a lieutenant commander in Navy for past four years, acting as nagivating officer of aircraft training carrier, Wolverine, in Lake Michigan.

No booking commitments have been made as yet for Civic, which is now presenting Menasha Skulnik in "Good News," Yiddish operetta, and no policy has yet been established. It's dished around, though, that the Blue Network is making a pitch to take it over as an audience studio. It is understood Thompson wants to keep it clear in case the Blue, which has also been negotiating to take over complete top story of the 42-floor building for television headquarters, decides to move in.

Kettering, veteran Chicago showman who booked "Glass Menagerie" at the Civic last December for a successful six-month run, reported he'll look around for another house here after a month's visit with his son, Tom, Frederick Bros. veepee, in Los Angeles. He figures on snagging one of the small Loop picture houses that was formerly legit.

PARIS CANTEEN UNCOVERING TALENT FOR B'WAY, H'WOOD

Paris Canteen, focal point of GI entertainment in liberated Paris, has uncovered a wealth of new talent and is developing acts that definitely can hope for Broadway and Hollywood recognition, according to reports received here yesterday. Canteen puts on an amateur program daily from 6:30 to 8 p.m. that is wowing audiences. Some of the acts, showmen say, could even stop the regular professional show.

Already being eyed by agents are the Tahitian Choir orchestra, Johnny Flannery, paratrooper "hot trumpet" maestro, and the "Air Borne Serenaders," American swing band, among others.

MEDAL MEN STOP SHOW

The Tahitian Choir is made up of 15 of the 72 surviving members of 300 volunteers in a Pacific battalion of the First Free French Division from Tahiti. They are all medal men who have been wounded in battle—and they are stopping the show nightly with their singing and guitar playing.

The "Serenaders," directed by Major Bud Hanson, described as "young and handsome" in the cablegrams, is from the 440th Carrier Group. There are 17 glider pilots, crew chief, radio operators, etc., in the band, all of them wearing five battle stars. Their hit tune is "Before We Said Goodbye," written by Corp. Ernst Bost of New York, and sung by Sgt. Alex Stratigos, of Wilkinsburg, Pa. One gag that always gets them a laugh and a cheer—they use cutout, captured German helmets, inscribed with a big "SS" as mutes for the trumpets and saxes.

JUMP INTO PRISON

Johnny Flannery showed up with a trumpet last Saturday night for a one-night stand. He is a New York volunteer paratrooper with a record of jumps in Algiers, Sicily, Italy and Belgium. The Belgian jump climaxed in his capture by the Germans who marched him barefoot through the snow for 20 miles and put him to work on a railroad which was under Allied bombardment. He and three of his buddies escaped, rejoined the Americans in Belgium and were evacuated to a Paris hospital. He later rejoined his regiment, which captured Von Papen.

The GI performers work one night or more, according to the length of leave and the audience demand.

Gleason Plays Gabby

James Gleason takes over role of Gabby, the prize fight manager, in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Kid From Brooklyn," Danny Kaye starrer.

600 AT DINNER HEAR GEN. O'DWYER TELL FUND NEED

Record crowd of nearly 600 crowded into Embassy Room at the Ambassador hotel last night, on occasion of annual dinner of Motion Picture Division of United Jewish Welfare Fund. William Goetz acted as chairman, with Eddie Cantor toastmaster and Brig. Gen. William O'Dwyer principal speaker.

O'Dwyer, executive director of War Refugee Board in Washington, spoke for about 25 minutes on his observations and experiences while in Europe as an officer and as a civil administrator in Italy. He stressed need for immediate raising of funds to meet the requirements of liberated prisoners and those who will apply to various agencies for aid. Goal this year is 50% higher than last, due to coming of peace in Europe and release of those who were in concentration camps requiring aid, and campaign for funds will be so planned.

Miss Florence Hodel, assistant director of WRB, also spoke of her experiences abroad, and need for funds to provide for those recently liberated.

Perlstein Pours Beer

Producer is angling for Joel McCrea to star, but actor's decision will not be forthcoming until he returns from Canada, where he is on a mission for U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sherman has number of other properties he plans to produce, apart from "Hopalong Cassidy" series, as soon as film is available.

'Sign of the Cross' Going To Carthay

Cecil B. De Mille's modernized "The Sign of the Cross," will get its first local showing at the Carthay Circle, it was announced yesterday by Paramount. U.S. C OF C ENDORSES MEASURE BANNING UNION ROYALTIES

Washington, May 1.—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce has overwhelmingly endorsed legislation now pending in Congress which would prohibit royalty payments by industry to labor unions. The bills were introduced at the time John L. Lewis was calling for a 10 cents a ton royalty on all coal mined. Lewis subsequently dropped the demand and the bills were shelved.

However, the new development announced yesterday may pump new life into the legislation which would hit directly at the royalties the American Federation of Musicians collects on all recordings. The vote of the C. of C. membership was 2,667 to 101 for adoption of the measures.

The chamber charged that "royalty exactions could lead to a scheme of taxation by private individuals."

Dickson Back To F-WC As Purchasing Head

Washington, May 2.—Army and Navy V-E Day films are now in all exchanges awaiting immediate shipment to theatres as soon as the President announces full surrender of the Germans. HITLER'S EXIT PUTS NEW LIFE ONTO FRISCO STAGE

By ARTHUR UNGAR

San Francisco, May 2.—The double fadeout of Adolf Hitler and Joe Goebbels from the Nazi picture sort of hypoed things among the delegates to the United Nations Conference on International Organization today. There was zip and determination on the part of commissions and committees to get the wheels of progress toward world security rolling. Sessions of various bodies were frequent during the day prior to the eighth and final plenary session in the War Memorial Opera House.

This was the final session at which the attending United Nations chairmen made their formal statements as to how their countries felt that security for the world should shape up. V. M. Molotov, commissar for foreign affairs of Russia, rotating as president of the conference, presided.

WPB ENDS PERMITS FOR NEW THEATRES

Washington, May 2.—WPB will issue no more authorizations for construction of new theatres until there is a relaxation of the critical material situation the agency reported today.

WPB pointed out that there is no point in issuing additional permits since it is virtually impossible to obtain the material for such equipment as projection booths, projectors, seats, etc.

Only one authorization has been granted since Jan. 1 for a new theatre—then for rebuilding a house destroyed by fire in Kentucky.

NY LEGIT OPENING

TOO HOT FOR MANEUVERS

New York, May 2.—"Too Hot For Maneuvers" opened at the Broadhurst theatre tonight and brings Richard Arlen to Broadway. It is questionable whether he made a lucky choice for his debut, as the show is a doubtful entry. The play by Bud Pearson and Les White has its moments, but the farcical comedy set in a military academy seems ridiculous at times, particularly at the second-act finale when a bunch of six and seven-year-old kids invade a massage parlor at night on maneuvers. Place is under suspicion as be-

• HOLLYWOOD INSIDE •

ARRANGEMENTS for V-E Day observance still have Hollywood producers in a dither about just what is to be done and when. Present official pronouncements relate only to taverns and say nothing regarding other business operations. If the announcement of V-E Day comes after noon taverns are to close the rest of that day and the following day. If it comes after noon on Saturday the closing is for the balance of that day, Sunday and Monday. If flash comes before noon closing is only for balance of the day. It was being pointed out around the studios that the flash could hit New York just after 12 noon, which would be 9 a. m. here. The question is: would that mean a day and a half of closing in New York and only the balance of the day here?

Hal Bock, NBC publicity director, is working out deal whereby the 134 stations throughout country which broadcast "People Are Funny"—from which picture was adapted—will work hand in glove with theatres in their community for mutual promotion. Radio stations will plug the picture, giving play date, and theatres will advise audiences about nature and time of air show.

U.S. ORDERED TO TELL WITNESSES FOR TRUST ACTION

New York, May 2.—The government today was ordered to supply the eight film defendants with information on the witnesses it expects to call in its anti-trust action. Federal Julge Henry W. Goddard, at a pre-trial conference, gave the government until June 1 to furnish material on hand and until July 1 to supply the balance. This will give defendant film companies time to prepare for trial on Oct. 8.

The court told John R. Niesley, special assistant attorney general, that if the material is not forwarded in time the defendants could ask for a postponement of the trial. The companies' 46 interrogatories have been held in abeyance, but if material is unsatisfactory the defendants can move for answers.

Whitney Seymour represented all companies by consent.

H'D ACTOR ARMY FORMING TO MEET EISENHOWER CALL

The Hollywood Victory Committee is launching an industry-wide drive to send an entertainment army to the battlefields, rest centers and hospitals of Europe as soon as the announcement of end of hostilities arrives. This is the first move in mobilizing Hollywood's forces to aid in a huge post-V-E Day program ordered by General Eisenhower. An official request delivered through USO-Camp Shows was received from the War Department yesterday.

Calls for overseas volunteers went out last night to screen, radio and stage personalities. Telegrams signed by Kenneth Thomson, Victory Committee chairman, called on both dramatic stars and entertainers "to meet a crucial need in Europe during the three to six months' period of inactivity which will come immediately after organized resistance ends."

FREEMAN HEADS DRIVE

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount head, was named chairman of a special V-E committee, with Charles K. Feldman, Olivia de Havilland, Bob Hope, E. J. Mannix, George Murphy and Sidney Strotz appointed to aid in pushing the program.

With the fighting ended, the committee pointed out, departure of players for Europe can be scheduled much faster than for visits to combat areas. Representatives of USO-Camp Shows will be sent to volunteers' homes or studios to fill out War Department questionnaires. Stars can be used for shorter periods than two or three months previously required for an overseas trip. They will be transported both by plane and boat.

VITAL MORALE PROGRAM

"This is one of the most vital morale programs in which Hollywood has been asked to share," Victory Committee tops declared last night. "Personalities will be needed to visit the wounded in hospitals. Shows will be needed for the many rest centers where men will be sent before transfer to the Pacific. We want every available player ready to go when General Eisenhower gives the word, or as soon as possible. This is Hollywood's chance to pay a little of the debt we owe the men who have fought for us, or who are still fighting."

Program is part of a plan set in motion last summer, when entertainment leaders, educators, sports figures and others were called to confer with Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, chief of Army Special Services. The plan calls for numerous dramatic and musical comedy companies to be sent overseas by USO-Camp Shows, entertainment experts will be recruited to organize GI shows, and every possible opportunity for vocational and avocational instruction will be provided, with huge sports events to be arranged.

'ATROCITIES' SHOWN DESPITE HAYS' BAN

New York, May 2.—"Atrocities," documentary original titled "We Accuse," is being released in independent theatres following the ban by the Hays office in MPPDA membership houses on the grounds that it depicts too many atrocities.

Irving Shapiro, producer, charges that "objections by the Hays office that the film is 97% atrocities and to the phrase 'let them bury their own dead and be damned,' appear insincere in view of the news pouring in from Europe exposing the German war crimes. We already have lost valuable time awaiting the Hays office decision."

Film is based on documentary material provided by Russian government and taken from captured German newsreels.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, May 2.—All the kinds of rumors on Hitler, Goebbels, et al are to be expected at this time. Rumors are always rife amidst scenes of disorder, not only in war but in tornados and floods as any newspaperman who has covered them knows. Eventually we shall know the truth. The surrender in Italy is another instance of the success of the Allied propaganda in getting the Germans to surrender in units. The Germans, on the other hand, have been clinging to their old line of trying to separate the Allies and Soviet. It has not worked but they no longer have another card to play. The English say that the Doenitz appointment is just the next move in the Himmler attempt to break the unity, with Doenitz now put in to try to separate us since Himmler failed. The idea would be that Doenitz who is not associated with Nazi atrocities might, the Germans hope, tempt us to accept a separate peace. However the unity between the big three, despite inevitable occasional differences, has been maintained not only on the battlefield but now is being reflected in the San Francisco Conference.

FCC TELLS ASSEMBLY IT'S WATCHING KFI NEWSCASTS

Washington, May 2.—FCC wrote to the California State Assembly today that it is "waiting developments" on the recently-announced policy of station KFI, Los Angeles, that its news analysts must be employes of the station.

The letter was in reply to a resolution passed by the assembly asking FCC to investigate the KFI policy change, and any other action which results in the control of news by owners of radio stations.

FCC wrote to Arthur A. Ohnimus, chief clerk of the assembly, that the agency is forbidden by the communications act to censor radio programs. It went on, however, to quote from its decision several years ago in the Mayflower Broadcasting Corp. case. In the case FCC ruled that "a truly free radio cannot be used to advocate the causes of the licensee." In the case the commission laid down the principle that a station's responsibility is to let all sides be heard and not to use its frequency as a personal vehicle.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 2.—Biggest job ever tackled by radio is getting to the tappering-off stage and those who have been close to the operation, officially and otherwise, have nothing but high praise for the completeness and sound judgment of the coverage of the United Nations Conclave. It hasn't been easy and at times soul trying, but the kilocycle crowd came through riding the crest of popular favor. The home dialer hasn't been heard from in numbers that might index a cross section of opinion, but those few calls that have come through the local switchboard have been highly complimentary. That betokens a fairly general attitude because calls to stations are rarely made by other than complainers or information seekers. It's been a costly venture to date and the end is still weeks away, but the nut has been cracked and it will be fairly clear sailing rest of the way. Nothing in the way of manpower or exchequer outgo have been spared in keeping the nation informed by progressive steps of each phase of this momentous conclave of 46 nations. When the presentations are brochured by the chains they should be filed high in the archives. Radios part in the confab will be as history-making as the conference itself, an epochal milestone in a 25-year history studded with accomplishment, but nothing to approach the broad sweep of this big meeting by the Golden Gate. It was not altogether a network show, either. Those spry little indies, especially the KFWB-KYA combo, hopped on the bandwagon and whooped it up with as much gusto as their limited resources and facilities permitted. What makes radio's job all the more outstanding is the very nature of the event, packed with drama but hardly geared down the middle road. The intellectuals and students of world history must have revelled in the mass wordage that poured from their receiving sets. The others, that vast majority, maybe weren't too impressed with such minute coverage, but even in their depreciations they must concede that radio proved its stature as the greatest spot news medium that this civilization has ever known. If to many it has been dry, lofty and uninteresting, as far as it has gone, it's because it's that kind of a conclave. You can't hypo something that doesn't respond to such stimulant.

Homer Fickett, 17-year veteran of radio, fell to reminiscing with Fred Runyon, Pasadena publisher; Stu Peters of office of Inter-American Affairs, and this pillar filler and what he jogged in his memory proved highly delectable to the ear. Interesting were his recollections of the sound effects used on March of Time, which he directed for many years. To the dialer the apropos effects are just a small detail of production, but little do they know that one sound trick may have been sweated and toiled over for hours to achieve the desired effect. The vexing problem of how to simulate the slicing of Nicolair Lenin's brain for laboratory research was composed by cutting the skin of a banana with a razor but not until dozens of other articles had been tried. Another sticker was the effect of a baby being dashed against a stone wall by a crazed Spanish mother during the revolution. Someone suggested a grapefruit and it worked. The guillotine was duplicated in sound with a creaky music stand. Power of suggestion proved too challenging for femme dialers to the realism created by the affected blood preparation for a transfusion. Everything in liquid form was tried, even blood, but the suggestion of tomato juice won the day. Many calls came in after the broadcast to complain of the realism some women had fainted dead away. The sound boys are the real unsung heroes behind the scenes. They're always experimenting to improve their bag of tricks. You name it and thy'll duplicate it with McCoyish results.

It may sound bromidic but it was never more true that the world is radio's oyster. Domestic coverage has been unquestionably ear-filling and at times surfeitful but the lads on the off shore beat are also doing a whale of a job. Jack Runyon's office of Inter-American Affairs operation has kept the Latin Americas abreast of every fresh development at the opera house as fast as the short wave beams can carry it. Armed forces radio service is toeing the mark all the way and beaming every important decision made here to the troops in the world theatre. Feverishly active, too, has been OWI in the broad coverage to keep the civilian populace outside USA alerated. The British, Canadian and Australian broadcast outfits have ties with NBC whereby its facilities are made immediately available. The enchantment of distance has been made a utility of transmission in a wey never before attempted, and more importantly, achieved.

HITCH HIKES . . . For coolness under fire and pressure we commend Columbia's Fox Case and the Blue's Johnny Johnstone. Nothing seems to ruffle them and they can talk on four phones at once without raising their voice. . . . New York Post, which scoffs at radio, has finally been won over and assigned Bernice Sherman to cover the radio's coverage at the meet. . . . Most exciting spot in town is a Winchell script conference. Try and get in. . . . Westy Pegler dropped in at the blood bank and told about it on the air. . . . Ben Polin, CBS photog, fills around 40 plates a day. He covers more mileage than any snapshot man in town. . . . Dick Joy came up from Hollywood to announce the Phil Baker show. Next day he hustled back home to handle the plug-uglies for Vox Pop which aired from Frisco. Yes, that's right, but don't ask why. . . . Harry Maizlish back. . . . Chief Charlie Einfeld in tow.

'BODY SNATCHERS' BARRED BY CHI'S CENSOR BOARD

Chicago, May 2.—Third victim this year of the Chicago Police Board of Censors is RKO's "Body Snatchers," which was banned today. Unlike Monogram's "Dillinger" and PRC's "Crime, Inc.," which were ruled off because of portrayal of "crimes of violence," this one was nixed because of "ghoulish theme" plus "blackmailing in order to provide specimens for medical schools."

The cuff also was put on RKO's "Zombies On Broadway" in the form of an "Adults Only" order. The show was deemed too scary for children.

The police board, whose acting head is Sergeant Lutheral White following the death of Sergeant Joseph F. Healy, chief of the board for the past four years, viewed 82 pictures on April 20 and made 15 cuts in April.

relations for Mexico. Padilla, a fiery orator and one of the stumbling blocks for Molotov in executive and plenary sessions, based his talk on the need for protection that is required for the smaller nations. He was followed by Mariano A. Vargas, chairman of the Nicaragua group. Then came Roberto Jimenez, minister for foreign affairs of Panama, with Manuel Gallagher, head of the Peruvian delegation, talking briefly to make way for Faris El-Khour, prime minister of Syria. Yugoslavia's minister of foreign affairs, Ivan Subasic, closed the show.

Session itself was rather tame, with the delegates sauntering in and out of the auditorium either to chat about the European reports or do a little coffee drinking in the lower foyer.

MP'S ON THE JOB

Security by the military authorities is getting tighter and tighter each day. Little more than an hour before the session this afternoon the MP's routed everyone out of the War Memorial Opera House. No one knew the reason. Rank or status in the conference meant nothing to the white-helmeted boys. They made a thorough search of the building, and 45 minutes before starting time the green light was put on and folks were admitted.

Charles Boyer had borrowed the credentials of Quincy Howe, CBS analyst, to get into the conference session. The doorman knew both Howe and Boyer, and when he examined the credentials, gave Mr. Boyer the finger wave. Credentials for security change every day, and it is driving the newsmen, news photographers and reelmen nuts.

BUTTON, BUTTON

Special buttons for press were put out today, but not enough were on hand, so about 500 of the boys and gals who have credentials are walking about without them and doing a little burn. But it's figured that Mike McDermott, press relations head for the State Department, will get a squarer in some way or another

The picture crowd is going to make the United Nations theatre important and get folks in. So, starting next Monday, they will start previewing newly completed Hollywood pictures. "Rhapsody In Blue" will start it off, and Charlie Einfeld is here from Burbank to work out a plan to make the initial showing of the Warners opus a success. Tuesday Metro is to show "Valley of Decision," with Howard Dietz handling the preliminaries for that one, and on Wednesday Paramount will screen "Kitty."

Three other subjects are penciled in for the week. Tomorrow "Wilson" will be shown at the United Nations theatre, and a cocktail party had been planned for the delegates and news people in the theatre. But at a late hour tonight the 20th-Fox boys were unable to locate enough waiters and glasses, so maybe it won't be.

Conference theatre where documentaries are being shown under auspices of the State Department and Office of Inter-American Affairs, did not fare any too well in attendance, either, for opening two days, with likelihood its policy will be changed and a bit of showmanship allowed by the State Department to get them in.

THEY GO IF IT'S FREE

According to those who attended the Mexico City meet, after the second week people had plenty of time to get around, which they did not have prior, and that they'll accept all invitations that are for free and there are more of them than most will be able to accept.

FRISCO ROLLS OUT PLUSH FOR RADIO AND THE PRESS

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 2.—This host city to United Nations Conference has of a sudden become promotion-minded, and sensing a restiveness among the news and radio reporters, is beginning to spread itself like a rich uncle. All through the Palace hotel can be heard the doleful nostalgia of getting back home now that UNCIO has settled itself to the business of hand and the coverage has lost some of its whip.

Franciscans want the lads who write and radiorate the dateline of their dispatches to bask in contentment so they won't get the wrong impression of this town's hospitality. Therefore the plush is being rolled out and what's in store should be a tonic for frayed dispositions and body weariness.

WHAT'LL YOU HAVE?

Here are just a few of the many services and courtesies either now on the pleasure side or coming up. Free sandwiches, beverages and ice cream just off the press and radio row in basement of Veterans' building. Orchids for the ladies and baskets of nuts and raisins for every hotel room. Bottles of hard liquor and wine in every room. Choice of better bottled goods at Nob Hill hotels upon presentation of credentials. Free postcards and postage. Private cars at disposition of delegates and press and radio. Weekend trips to all points of interest. 24-hour service at the Press Club. All brands of cigars and ciragets, plentiful at the Veterans' building counter.

There you have just a few samples of the town's hospitality arranged by the Mayor's office and Chamber of Commerce. And they say that's only the beginning. The town itself throws off its somber cloak of mourning May 13 and has more events lined up than could possibly be taken in by the Press and Radio gang.

SPECTACLES COMING UP

Pageants' symphonic soirees and spectacles are now on the planning board of the eight sub-committees working toward one goal—keep Press and Radio happy and keep them here as long as possible. The delegates are also being taken care of in good fashion. Hospitality of private homes will be the order of the day with informal parties crowding the social calendar.

Franciscans feel that whatever the cost it will have been dirt cheap for the return in good will and good old promotion which has put San Francisco on the lips of every literate person in the world. Tourist travel among the Internationals will have increased manifold and that's a long range view not entirely lost sight of. Los Angeles will have to fight for what it gets while the groundwork has been laid here for the influx of spenders to come. That's the slant taken by civic leaders and they mean to see it through, hang the cost.

ONE-PUNCH WAR OVER

That brief flurry of tempers yesterday in the Blue's broadcasting booth has entirely subsided and the belligerents, Johnny Johnstone and Ernie Cuneo, attorney for Walter Winchell, are now on the friendliest terms. It was Cuneo who took a poke at Johnstone over a matter of script revision but all misunderstandings have been ironed out and at today's broadcast it was a love feast all around.

It was Winchell who diplomatically stepped into the breach and brought calm to the sulphuric atmosphere.

Network commentators are cutting one-minute records to plug the special United Nations Conference War Bond to be sold only in the Bay area. They'll be in all denominations and a souvenir to be snapped up. First of the bond salesmen to be plattered for the home frequencies are the Blue's Baukhage, Ray Henle, David Wills and Gen. Junnius Pierce.

First of the casualties among the radio crowd is Pauline Frederick, assistant to Baukhage, who has been hospitalized for a recurrent stomach ailment.

Naish Returning From p. a. Tour of East

J. Carrol Naish, who has been in New York for personal appearance with "A Medal For Benny," will return May 14 after guesting on a Prudential broadcast May 13.

NBC Launching Musical

NBC will introduce a new musical show Monday, when "Dixie Dream Boat" takes the air at 9 p.m. under the baton of Charles Hathoway. Program will feature music of semi-classical composers and will have vocalists Larry Neil and Thora Matthiason. Book for the show was done by Will Gould and Foote-Cone and Belding handled the deal.

FitzPatrick Sunning

James A. FitzPatrick begins production today on "Around the World in California" Traveltalk. Short will be released by Metro and will show location sites in the state.

TELE LIGHT DOES AWAY WITH MAKEUP

News of "television lighting that does away with makeup" and other new developments in the television field will be explained by Walter Abel, vice-prexy of the Screen Actors Guild, tomorrow night, at the second lecture forum of the Affiliated Committee for Television, at KFWB studio. Abel has just returned from the east, where he conferred with various television agencies in his capacity as a member of the ACT board of governors.

Abel presented his findings to the board earlier this week, and they were deemed to be of sufficient importance to justify a last-minute change in plans for Friday's lecture. Members of all ACT's affiliated guilds and unions have been urged to attend the meeting.

A seminar discussion of the address will be held after Abel speaks. Moderator of the discussion will be Sgt. Carl Beier, with Georgia Backus, radio and screen writer; Joe Walker, cameraman; Robert Hafter, producer, and Harry Essman, CBS soundman, taking part.

SOUNDMEN GIVEN $700,000 A YEAR PAY INCREASE

tative of International Sound Technicians Local 695, who negotiated the deal in New York in April, 1944. New rates are retroactive to Jan. 1, 1944.

New minimums for music mixer, recording mixer and unit mixer on a daily call are $5.14 per hour or $46.26 daily; $4.28 per hour or $231.12 weekly on a weekly guarantee; $3.26 per hour or $176.04 weekly on a six-week guarantee, and $3.06 per hour or $165.24 weekly on a yearly guarantee.

SUPERVISOR GETS $28.62

Operative supervisor or engineer will receive $3.18 per hour or $28.62 daily on a daily basis; $2.82 per hour or $172.02 weekly on a weekly guarantee; $2.27 per hour or $138.27 weekly on a six-week guarantee, and $2.08 hourly or $126.88 weekly on a yearly guarantee.

Amplifier room operator, technical test engineer, service recorder, location engineer and mike boom operator will be paid $2.54 per hour or $22.86 daily on a daily basis; $2.26 per hour or $137.86 weekly on a weekly guarantee; $1.80 hourly or $110.04 weekly on a six-week guarantee, and $1.65 per hour or $100.65 weekly on a yearly guarantee.

Recording machine operator will receive $2.35 hourly or $21.15 daily, on a weekly basis; $2.08 per hour or $126.88 weekly on a weekly guarantee; $1.66 hourly or $101.26 weekly on a six-week guarantee, and $1.54 hourly or $93.94 weekly on a yearly guarantee.

JOURNEYMAN RATE $10.80

Rate for journeyman soundman is $1.80 per hour or $10.80 daily on a daily basis, and $1.59 per hour or $96.99 weekly on a weekly guarantee. Cableman, playback operator and public address operator will get $1.63 hourly or $9.78 daily on a daily basis, and $1.44 hourly or $87.84 weekly on a weekly guarantee. Rate for dubbing machine operator and film loader is $1.31 per hour or $7.86 daily on a daily basis, and $1.17 hourly or $71.37 weekly on a weekly guarantee.

New yearly guarantee negotiated by Smith and approved by both Smith and the major producers, calls for 50 weeks' work with two weeks' vacation. Old guarantee was for only 44 weeks' work. New six weeks' guarantee also replaces the old three weeks' guarantee, which means that big majority of technicians will be employed on the higher weekly scale.

PREMIUM FOR NIGHT WORK

A 10% premium for night work between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. also was approved. Golden hours calls for two and one-half times the basic scale and now starts after 14 hours, instead of 16 hours as formerly. Standby or speculative calls are prohibited. Distant location wages were increased and allowance made for travel time. Sundays will be paid for on location whether worked or not.

All members will receive paid vacations, based on one day for each 20 days worked, with a maximum of two weeks.

Deal was engineered through the WLB by Smith without support of either the IA international or the producing companies. It was an autonomy victory for the union, which has refused to sign the contract cover sheet giving the IA international the right to make deals for the men and lifting autonomy of the union. Producers approved the increases, but did not sign a Form 10 to the WLB when the international insisted the cover sheet be signed.

NLRB DECISION DUE TODAY OR FRIDAY ON DECORATORS

Belief that a decision will be handed down today or tomorrow by the National Labor Relations Board ordering an election of set decorators to designate a bargaining agency was expressed yesterday by Attorney Frank Pestana, Ed Mussa and Hugh Hunt on their return from Washington. Attorney Pestana, Hunt and Mussa, who is business representative of Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421, appeared before the board at oral hearing on claim of Local 1421 and IATSE Local 44 to jurisdiction over decorators.

In the meantime, strike interest was centered on the Technicolor picket line and general membership meeting of Film Technicians Local 683 scheduled for Sunday. Local has about 750 members employed at Technicolor and it is understood that a majority of them have registered protests about being required to cross the line in order to work.

SEE TECHNI NEAR END

Strike leaders insisted Technicolor was nearing the end of its rope and predicted plant would be completely down within a week. Technicolor execs, however, have remained silent about future plans. Labor tops declared, however, that company did not plan to bring in any outside non-union help to replace machinists who are out. It was stated execs did not want to take a chance of having inexperienced help attempt to tool its highly sensitive machinery.

The importance of the Technicolor situation was stressed in a Conference of Studio Unions bulletin yesterday calling for heavy picket lines. Bulletin stated:

"The producers' film in Technicolor is our immediate objective. It is worth its weight in gold in the effect on the strike. We must have a vigilant picket line at both the Seward and Cahuenga plants to receive the 7 a.m., 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. shifts."

Labor tops predicted last night that if a majority of the laboratory technicians vote to respect the picket line, Technicolor will be closed immediately and the studio strike would be over in another week or 10 days. The IATSE international issued its daily bulletin yesterday, carrying another veiled attack on Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, in which it attempted to picture the strike leader as having communistic leanings. Bulletin declared that in the 51 days' strike a total of 1,427,200 man-hours had been lost, with a salary loss to date of $1,910,400.

CARPENTERS MEET

Efforts of Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, to break the strike by trying to recruit painters, carpenters and electricians under IA charters was meeting with little success. Craftsmen pointed out that with an IA card they would be permitted to work only in the studios, while with their own unions' they could work anywhere in the United States.

Studio Carpenters Local 946 met last night to hear reports on progress of strike, with Studio Machinists Local 1185 scheduled to meet tonight. Producers made no announcement yesterday, but studio execs insisted both production and employment were increasing.

Carpenters by an almost unanimous vote turned down a resolution to write the International and ask that strike benefits be paid. Before vote was taken several leaders suggested Carpenters go along another week and see what happens before discussing benefits. It was indicated a special called meeting will be held in about a week at which time it will be suggested Carpenters picket six days a week instead of three days, with a possibility fine of $1.71 for failure to picket will be increased at that time.

Richard Walsh headed east yesterday for his New York headquarters to clean up work that has accumulated during the weeks he has spent here attempting to crack the studio strike. It was announced he was expected to return to the Coast within 10 days or two weeks. It was understood Walsh might stop over in Washington for talks with AF of L international heads on issuance of charters by the IA for painters, machinists and carpenters.

PROJECTIONISTS WIN SENIORITY RIGHT IN CONTRACT

Seniority clause in new contract of Studio Projectionists Local 165 has been approved by the War Labor Board, making it one of first unions in industry to win this concession giving union a voice in dismissals and layoffs. Operators also get vacations and other base clauses given to other crafts.

Business Representative C. W. Offer negotiated a 5% wage tilt for projectionists and 10% for those in supervisory or production spots, but board cut this down to 3.4% because of Little Steel formula. Offer as well as general membership, was dissatisfied with deal, but felt chances of a successful appeal to the National WLB were not worth the delay in getting retroactive pay for the men. Offer and negotiating committee were given a vote of confidence by the membership for their negotiations in New York last year.

New York, May 2.—Metro, 20th-Fox and United Artists have inked contracts with the Screen Office and Professional Employes Guild Local 1 of the CIO covering front office employes in the NY exchanges. Contracts, ordered signed by the War Labor Board, calls for a 15% increase authorized by the WLB last year, as well as additional boosts based on job classifications currently in dispute before WLB.

JEWISH WELFARE FUND IS BEYOND HALF-WAY MARK

Halfway mark has been passed in Motion Picture Division of United Jewish Welfare Fund's raising of monies for relief, William Goetz, industry chairman, announced yesterday. Industry quota is $700,000, with $406,000 already collected.

"It is gratifying to note that givers to date have increased their gifts by 56%," Goetz said, in thanking publicly those who have contributed. "We must maintain this increase until the campaign is concluded, as our goal is 50% higher this year than last.

"Our many agencies who receive their funds from this campaign have a tremendous job to do as soon as the war in Europe ends. From that day on, whether many of the one million stateless people live or die depends upon our generosity."

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, May 2.—Arturo de Cordova will be paid 50,000 pesos, plus a percentage of box office receipts, for his next Mexican-made picture. He has really given a magnificent performance in "Twilight," now playing at the Chapultepec cinema. The film, directed by Julio Bracho, is one of our best so far. But why does the femme star and everyone else in the cast smoke continually? I never saw anyone light as many cigarettes in so short a time as star Gloria Marin in "Twilight." . . . During premiere of "Toda Una Vida," a J. J. Ortega production, one kept wondering where actresses Maria Antonieta Pons and Anita Blanch could have bought the weird clothes they wear in the pic, and who could have been responsible for their strange coiffures. Maria Antonieta Pons is a wonderful rhumba dancer and she is quite pretty, but her manager-husband is quite mistaken if he thinks she can act. . . . Comedian "Palillo" bet his car on Juan Zurita against Ike Williams. . . . Cantinflas also lost a goodly sum, the same way.

* * * * * * * * *

The romance between Gallito and Dolores del Rio has been followed by those of three other well known cinema actresses who also have chosen bull ring heroes . . . and the "matadores" are invading the studios. Pepe Ortiz, Luis Procuna, Lorenzo Garza and Caganacho have tried their luck before the cameras. However, it seems that Cagancho is the only one likely to succeed as an actor. He is now busy in stellar role of "The Bullfighter and the Lady," with Virginia Serret and dancer Carmen Amaya in the cast.

* * * * * * * * *

On being asked what he liked most about Mexico City, the musician Ramiro Flores, just returned from a forcibly prolonged stay in Germany, answered: "Frankly, that we have no bombs falling on us from our blue skies." . . . The National Opera of Mexico has contracted for the coming season Lily Pons, Helen Traubel, Dorothy Kirstein, Regina Resnik, Kurt Baum, Jan Pierce, Eugene Conley, Mario Berini, Francesco Valentino, Petroff, Carlos Morelli, Daniel Duno, Kenneth Scon and Carl Alwin.

* * * * * * * * *

Jacqueline Dalya, who played in "Gran Hotel" with Cantinflas, has been signed for two more pictures by Clasa Films. . . . Cinemastar and Attorney Tomas Perrin has published his first book. . . . American soprano Louise Burnet will have role in "Squadron 201." . . . The Cinears production, "Between Brothers," is ready for release; also "Mas Alla del Amor," "Corazon Burlado" and "Sierra Morena." . . . Not only from the 27 states of our republic, but also from the sister republics to the south, young girls are beginning to hear the siren call of the Mexican cinema industry, and they are flocking to this city from Cuba and Chile, from Guatemala and Costa Rica.

quest that there be no let-up in work for celebrations when word is received that Germany has collapsed. Unions and other crafts are being notified of decision against any closedown.

"As a war-essential industry, it is our plain duty to go ahead without interruption when the news of complete victory in Europe is confirmed," producers declared. "If we pause a moment for thanksgiving, it will be only to go back to our jobs with the realization that there still is a long and costly war to be won."

It is understood that shipyards, aircraft plants and other big outside industries plan to adopt a similar policy. Execs are said to have taken position that any celebration should be postponed until V Day in the Pacific.

FINLEY SIGNS MCA'S NUMBER ONE BAND FOR DIEGO SPOT

New York, May 2.—In a surprise move that caught Music Corporation off balance, Larry Finley, operator of Mission Beach ballroom in San Diego, signed Tommy Dorsey to appear at his dancery in July. Finley currently has a suit against MCA for $3,000,000 under the Sherman Anti-Trust act. Suit contends that Pacific Square ballroom in San Diego has an exclusive contract with MCA to book its bands, blocking Finley from getting any amount of big-name talent.

By inking Dorsey, in a deal set with Arthur Michaud, Dorsey's personal manager, Finley will have MCA's number one name band playing in opposition to the Square terpalace. In inking Dorsey, Finley is making arrangements to push Glen Gray's Casa Loma band date further back in the season, in order to give the Dorsey band two weeks in July.

NY Lab Techs Plan Strike Vote May 12

New York, May 2.—A strike vote will be taken May 12 by 1800 laboratory technicians in New York and New Jersey motion picture laboratories unless a pending wage dispute is settled before that time. Nicholas Koutrouby, of Laboratory Technicians Local 702, declared such a strike would tie up exhibitors of pictures on the East Coast.

HOLLYWOOD MUST ANSWER!

The call has come! Hollywood must be ready to respond when General Eisenhower gives the word: "Organized resistance in Europe ended today."

On that day, millions of American fighting men will halt . . . amid Europe's ruins. They will be homesick . . . weary . . . restless. Many of them will be in hospitals, bearing the pain of wounds suffered fighting for us.

All of them, in the weeks of inactivity and impatient waiting far from home, will need every help that can be given to lift their minds and spirits . . . to be told that their dearly won victory is not to be quickly forgotten by those at home.

On that day of victory will come Hollywood's chance to pay a little of the debt we all owe these men who have fought for us . . . and who will be fighting for us again in the Pacific.

The War Department has called on Hollywood — on its personalities of screen, radio and stage — to fill the crucial need for entertainment of immobilized armies in Europe following V-E Day. The Hollywood Victory Committee has been instructed to have players ready to go when that day comes.

Hollywood must answer the call . . . in full.

NEWS that Larry Finley inked Tommy Dorsey's musicrew without MCA's knowledge, has led many of the local cleff crowd to believe that Finley has blown his suit sky-high against the agency. Finley's main contention was that MCA's exchange pact with Pacific Square ballroom was cutting into his business and, therefore, violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Now, with the agency's top band going into the Beach terpalace, Finley's complaint that he can't garner their bands might leak a bit, even though he made the deal with Arthur Michaud, Dorsey's personal manager. Musicmen are wondering if he'll call off the $3,000,000 suit or just what tack his lawyers will take when the case comes to trial.

Picture at that time was put out as an exploitation film, with Ludwig Donath, playing dual role, in lead. Scully reported that picture would be assembled again, with as many prints as possible going out to take advantage of sudden request from exhibs.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

The German High Command proclamation of Kiel as an open city, following so soon after the same declaration of Prague as a "hospital city," means at least that the German's complete collapse is not far off. It may mean that peace discussions are under way and that the German High Command is trying to save what it can during the progress of the talks. The unconditional surrender in Italy, for instance, was signed on Sunday, but did not become effective until Wednesday. Further, the naming of Doenitz, who does not have so close an association, if any, with war crimes as Himmler, and the apparent ouster of all the old leading Nazis from the controlling group, appear to have been a step towards the same end. A foreign minister was the only government official apparently deemed necessary in addition to a fuehrer, and so it was necessary only to oust Ribbontrop, while ignoring Himmler, Goebbels, Goering and Borman, after the Hitler death. The statement of surrendering German officers that they no longer feel bound by their oath to Hitler, even if Doenitz has proclaimed himself successor indicates the trend of though among at least the many of the old Prussian command. They've known the war was lost for some time but only now that the old whip-cracking Nazis are out, are they able to do what they would have liked to do long ago—surrender. Everything points to a German unconditional surrender soon. That will speed operations and save lives in any case, the end is nearing apace.

At times, on motion picture lots,
the uproar is intense.
The noises rattle through the walls and bounce against the fence.
Discordant voices mingle and they don't make any sense—
An old and honored function called a "story conference."

And when the riot ceases and the ruckus dies away,
The net result may be a calm and peaceful picture play.
And though the boys in Frisco lift their voices loud and high
Their clamor may produce a noble picture bye and bye.

The Silver Fleet

(Drama)

PRC RELEASE in United States of a Michael Powell-Emeric Pressburger production (England). Associate producer, Ralph Richardson. Direction-story, Vernon Campbell Sewell and Gordon Wellesley.

CAST—Stars Ralph Richardson. Features Googie Withers and Esmond Knight. Supporting players: Beresford Egan, Frederick Burtwell, Kathleen Byron, Willem Akkerman, Dorothy Gordon, Charles Victor, John Longdon, Joss Ambler, Margaret Emden, George Schelderun, Neville Mapp, Ivor Barnard, John Carol, Lieut. Schouwenaar, Lieut. van Dapperen, John Arnold, Philip Leaver, Laurence O'Madden, Anthony Eustrel, Charles Minor, Valentine Dyall and Personnel of Royal Netherlands Navy.

PREVIEWED at Sound Service, Hollywood, Calif., May 3, 1945. Running time: 78 MINS.

In releasing the British-made Michael Powell-Emeric Pressburger production, "The Silver Fleet," PRC has a dramatically strong presentation which carries elements of popular appeal as well as being a film certain to evoke highest critical acclaim. Turned out with thoroughness and skill, with an eye to showmanship, feature spells class throughout. Cast is generally unknown to American audiences, but this is more than compensated for by individual gems of acting by its every member. Same pair who produced "Colonel Blimp" made this one, J. Arthur Rank financing effort.

Produced with the cooperation and advice of the Royal Netherlands Government and Navy, "Fleet" tells the story of a Dutch patriot who poses as a Nazi collaborationist. He is head of a great shipyards in Holland engaged in building submarines. When the Germans move in he professes to work under their administration, but actually every move is calculated against them.

Story is narrated in flashback form, opening with a sub and its crew on bottom of ocean, the patriot gasping out his last breath with the others. Through his diary, which his wife reads, is told the tragic story of what he had done for his country, which turned even his wife, in her ignorance, against him.

Ralph Richardson enacts patriot role, fashioning his characterization with consummate artistry as he portrays the supposed collaborationist. It is an interpretation as fine as ever glimpsed in an English picture, and should make American audiences ask for his appearance again. He also acted as associate producer.

Googie Withers plays his wife, contributing a moving performance, and Esmond Knight (a British actor blinded in this war) makes a menacing and realistic figure of the Gestapo head with whom the patriot has so many dealings. Frederick Burtwell and Ivor Barnard are standouts in high German navy roles and Charles Victor likewise gives dynamic portrayal of one of the shipyard workmen who comes to patriot's house to kill him and, when he learns what latter is doing for Holland, turns gun on himself so it will look as though the patriot killed him.

Vernon Campbell Sewell and Gordon Wellesley co-directed, and built up scenes and situations with punch and growing intensity. They are credited with story, too, which was written with a finished hand. Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger, on production end, give picture benefit of high budget and craftsmanlike knowledge.

Film Review

Corpus Christi Bandits

(Western)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Associate producer, Stephen Auer. Director, Wallace A. Grissell. Original screenplay, Norman S. Hall. Photography, Bud Thackery. Musical director, Richard Cherwin. Film editor, Charles Craft. Sound, Ed Borschell. Art director, Fred A. Ritter. Set decorations, Earl Wooden. Special effects, Howard and Theodore Lydecker. Makeup, Bob Mark.

CAST—Stars Allan Lane, with Helen Talbot, Jack Kirk and Twinkle Watts, Roy Barcroft, Tom London, Kenne Duncan, Bob Wilke, Ruth Lee, Francis McDonald, Ed Cassidy, Emmett Vogan, Dickie Dillon, Freddie Chapman, Shelby Bacon.

REVIEWED at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, May 3, 1945. Running time: 56 MINS.

Republic has used an excellent formula to make the western heroics in "Corpus Christi Bandits" considerably more believable than the usual sagebrush drama. Picture opens in the present day and then flashes back to Texas immediately after the close of the Civil War as a father tells his daughter the saga of her grandfather, an earlyday Texan who had post-war adjustments to make. Only faults to be found with opening sequences is flagrant flag-waving and too much footage of scene depicting kids playing war.

Allan Lane acquits himself capably as both the young flier back from missions over Germany and as the Texas pioneer. Plot follows the Texan and three buddies as they flee Corpus Christi for the land west of the Pecos to escape a murder charge. They hold up a stage to get coin for a new start, win a saloon in a poker game and try to become good citizens. Just as Lane seems set to wipe out the past the law gets him on the old murder charge, but events make it certain he will be cleared. Norman S. Hall's original script is excellent.

Helen Talbot does okay by the romantic interest, and Jack Kirk's pioneer newspaper editor role shows up well. Roy Barcroft, Tom London, Kenne Duncan, Bob Wilke, Ruth Lee, Francis McDonald, Ed Cassidy and Twinkle Watts are among others in the good cast.

Wallace A. Grissell directed the Stephen Auer production. Bud Trackery's camera work and other technical aides are expert.

LEGIT OPENING

MEMPHIS BOUND

Boston, May 3.—Bill Robinson, Avon Long and choruses carried "Memphis Bound" to smash opening in Colonial theatre tonight, with sellout for 10-day run before Manhattan. Hot version of "H.M.S. Pinafore," with apologies to Gilbert and Sullivan, has stunningly costumed first act closer tied to Savoyads than the second, with Robinson as Sir Joseph Porter, KCB, and Long as ship's captain, both extremely jive-conscious.

Show, with slim movie possibilities, should be wow rival to Max Gordon's "Hollywood Pinafore," with white cast, opening next Monday in Baltimore.

"Pinafore" phantasmagoria, generously studded with music stemming from Sullivan, starts after show company gets stranded on riverboat Calliboga, Tenn. Rehearsal of operetta, staged by Ada Brown as Aunt Mel, carries through first act. In second act Long is arrested by Robinson for stealing show receipts. Both fall into dreams in jail and find themselves in a Goblin's court, with Frank Wilson as bewigged justice and a rather confused ballet of spirit shapes accompanying pronouncement of sentence.

Finale is "Pinafore" almost straight, with words "For We Are Memphis Bound" to medley of tunes from "I Am the Monarch of the Sea." Bill Robinson brought down house with his stair dance in "Ruler of the Queen's Navee." Avon Long is eloquent both with feet and gestures.

Ada Brown was a lush "Little Buttercup." Billy Daniels as Ralph Rackstraw could use more potent voice. Sheila Guys as captain's daughter was right. Other stars getting big hands included Delta Rhythm Boys, Ida James and Thelma Carpenter, as well as many juveniles in cast of this lavish John Wildberg presentation of a Vinton Freedley production.

At times a fine chorus was jumbled for lack of room on stage and Anton Dolin ballet puzzled many first-nighters. Adequate orchestra conducted by Charles Sanford could be toned down in volume. George Jenkins' set of showboat and village street was excellent, but lighting needs improvement. Robert Ross's expert direction mastered many problems and others no doubt will be ironed out with aid of lively, personable, enthusiastic cast.

Essentially Bill Robinson and Avon Long hold the show together, with New York hit certain for the All-Negro cast.

Loew Announces 100G Ad Pot For 'Southerner'

SHORTAGE OF FILM HALTS MG SERIES OF FIVE REELERS

Metro has called a temporary halt to its program of five-reelers, started six months ago. Cessation is due to raw stock situation. Series of six was announced by studio as an experiment.

"Main Street After Dark" was first on list, and gained considerable attention, actually being a blowup to short feature proportions of studio's popular "Crime Does Not Pay" series. Arch Oboler's "Alter Ego" followed, retitled "Bewitched," but to date has not been released, despite fact it is highly regarded by studio.

Studio's recent announcement that for time being only two pictures a month would be released, precludes any immediate release of this film, for there is backlog of too many top-budget films to sandwich it in releasing schedule at this time. Meanwhile, several scripts for proposed short-feature program are finished and awaiting time the series can be resumed.

TO THE OPENING OF EDDIE CHODEROV'S "COMMON GROUND" AT THE FULTON: Choderov is a playwright who believes that the stage in these headline times should be used as a platform to drive home some hard punches in the right propaganda direction. Last season his "Decision" was a play about fascism on the home front. In "Common Ground," he contrasts the high American idealism of a group of USO entertaineres with the poisonous Nazi idealogy. Neither Choderov nor producer Eddie Choate has compromised with the box office but instead followed through to an "unhappy ending." As Phil Loeb in his role of "Buzz Bernard" explains, "We won't be rescued. This isn't a 'B' picture!" If the cheers of the first nighters are indicative of public approval, the Fulton should be "common ground" for a "hep" audience to whom this adult play is definitely worth seeing, in spite of the mixed reviews of the critical fraternity. In the rooting section: Robert E. Sherwood, Harry M. Warner, Canada Lee, Marty Gabel, Reggie Denham, Bea Kaufman, Max Gordon, Louis Lotito, Doris Leroy, Zorina, Eddie O'Brien and Peter Lind Hayes (bursting with pride over the legit debut of his pretty frau, Mary Healy).

ASIDE TO PARAMOUNT: Paul McGrath, who made two pictures for you in '41 ("No Time For Love" and "Parole Fixer") and was sloughed off with the usual Hollywood brush gives the performance of his career as a louse American reporter, turned traitor. Better grab him again before the competition sets in. He's a "find!"

TO RKO's COCKTAIL RECEPTION FOR HARRIET PARSONS AT THE PLAZA: It wasn't too long ago that "Lolly's" little girl used to come down to New York from Wellesley to be the modest guest at press functions for her famous ma. Now, here she is, the honored guest herself, independent and successful, producer of a top drawer picture, "Enchanted Cottage" that other critics have joined "L.O.P." in well deserved praise. In the gay gathering that turned out to welcome and congratulate Parsons, Jr., were Jessica and Dick Barthelmess and his lovely daughter, Mary (rumored engaged to Dick Roper, but no official announcement yet), Nancy Carroll (the despair of all the other femmes for looking as if she had just stepped out of the Fountain of Youth). Bert "Endearing Young Charms" Granet, Peter Rathvon, Ward Greene, Harold Winston, Gene Lockhart and Lt. Jules Epstein, just up from Washington, with the usual Epstein wise-crack. When the canapes were passed around, Julie contemplated the tray and then said, "I'll have an 'enchanted cottage-cheese' on rye!"

TO THE GALA DEBUT OF HARRY RICHMAN AT "LA MARTINIQUE:" "I can do without Broadway, but can Broadway do without me?" Jimmie Durante's famous "woids" were never truer than in Harry's return "home" again after an absence of five years. Back with the oily hair, the Florida tan, the familiar lisp, the rakish straw hat, the twirling cane—back with the old songs and a new bride! Richman IS Broadway—the Broadway that was Monday afternoon at the Palace and Sunday night at the Winter Garden. He's a nostalgic era that has disappeared in this "golden age of mediocrity." All you have to do is to hear him sing "I Love A Parade," "Putting On the Ritz" and "Birth of the Blues" WITHOUT clutching a microphone to know that his type of song selling will be remembered when Sinatra, Haymes and Como are just names in a faded autograph book.

But why sigh for the "good old days?" With Laurette Taylor and Frank Fay back in harness again—Ethel Barrymore winning Academy Awards—Sophie Tucker still the "reddest, hottest mama" of them all—and Al Jolson encoring "Oh You Great Big Beautiful Doll!" to a 21-year-old, "the good old days" are here to STAY!

MISCELLANY: To the Copa, where Cugat and his crew are jamming the floor to "dancing on a ceiling" business, and Monte Proder again has the most eye-filling Copadorables to lose to Hollywood. . . . To Mrs. Lanny Ross' cocktail party for Ben Gross, radio ed of the Daily News, whose pretty and capable young assistant is Barbara Kilby, who also happens to be Mrs. R's daughter. . . . To an intimate cocktail gathering given by agent Mary Pritchard in honor of Tennessee Williams, where everyone including the John Byrams, Lewis Allens, Donald Blackwell, Caroline Berg, Schuyler Watts, Viola Rubber, turned up to meet this newest social lion only to discover that he prefers to remain in his "glass mena erie" with NO AUDIENCE. ture Producers and Distributors Association when his term with the U. S. Chamber ended in June. He was offered the job some months ago, but so far has never definitely accepted.

No statement was forthcoming from Johnston regarding his re-election. What he is going to do about the MPPDA job still is up in the air. One of his associates said:

"Four or five weeks ago Johnston said he still was negotiating with Will Hays organization. He said he had been asked to accept another term with the Chamber of Commerce and that he hoped to be able to hold both jobs."

Washington sources said announcement of Johnston's re-election can be taken as conclusive evidence he has agreed to continue as president of the Chamber, whether he plans to take on the other job or not.

There has been no announcement as to what Johnston's exact duties in the Hays office would be, other than that he would be employed in an executive capacity with his duties likely to be evenly divided between New York and Washington. Whether a part time job for the picture biz would be acceptable to the Hays office could not be learned last night.

STARS VOLUNTEER TO TOUR FRONTS AFTER V-E DAY

The Hollywood Victory Committee's drive to fill a War Department request for an army of entertainers to tour Europe after V-E Day swung into full stride yesterday, with top film personalities responding to the call. William Dover, former chief of USO-Camp Shows operations in Europe, has been enlisted as special aide to the V-E Day committee. Among first celebrities to volunteer were Amos and Andy, Joan Blondell, Bette Davis, Joan Fontaine, Victor Francen, Kathleen, June and Gene Lockhart, Rosita Moreno and Paul Muni.

Arrangements already have been started to have the volunteers ready to start overseas as soon as possible after General Eisenhower declares hostilities at an end in Europe.

Dover was set by the V-E Day committee composed by Y. Frank Freeman, Charles K. Feldman, Olivia de Havilland, Bob Hope, E. J. Mannix, George Murphy and Sidney Strotz, to coordinate the efforts of studios, agents and actors in getting players cleared for tours. He will function also as liaison with USO-Camp Shows.

Chuchu Martinez, the Mexican Minstrel, appearing at the Trocadero, is wanted by Milton Berle for the musical extravaganza, "Brazil," slated for Broadway production in the fall, which will be produced by Berle and Lee Shubert.

COMMENTATORS READY FOR QUICK GETAWAY FROM SF

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 3.—The security conference is passing into a new phase as the first full week of plenaries and sideshows draws to a close. The commentators carried the ball and for good gains. Most of the big names have sent out their last bag of laundry and are scanning train and plane schedules. With the gravy thinning for them, at least for the next two weeks of commission meetings, the ball-carrying will be done by the newscasters who will stick it out here until the last dog is hung.

The commentary crew believe they've done a good job of coverage and restraint. Loose-lipped talk got nowhere with them and the rumor crop was not even harvested. They had been instructed by their bosses to sacrifice sensationalism for factual reporting, let the sheets do what they want.

CLOSE TO THE VEST

Most of the oracles of the airlanes set up their own safeguards against going overboard on cocktail canards and played it close to the vest, in the manner of Paul White's manifesto to the CBS staff here, to-wit: "It would be a catastrophe if we magnified the conflicts that develop out of all proportion to their seriousness." The temptation was there to play up bits of info that were made spectacular by some of the correspondents, but they were brushed aside like party-line gossip. So far the commentators are proud of their record and perhaps that's why they're pulling stakes for the home grounds.

The scarcer news gets, the more tempting it becomes to give it the hoperoo and there's no one in the Palace hotel who is even faintly hopeful of any big story breaks while the big brains are struggling with the paper work in committee and commission rooms.

DRUMMERS ARE BACK

Another indication that the scramming period is at hand is the return of the sample men to the hotel. Few doors down the hall from CBS headquarters Al Jay Hat Co. has spread its wares of femme headgear. Dave Kampf who presides over the chapeaux exhibit said that many of the sample rooms are opening up to the old trade. That must mean the State Department has given back the hotel to its operators, for Kampf has no standing with Stettinius and admits as much.

British Information Service has made many friends by its thorough and pleasant public relations job. Any request, no matter how unimportant, gets direct action by its attaches and every morning the radio crowd is given complete report of the Empire's activities for the day. They have cooperated fully in all other matters within their province and have won the respect and admiration of every broadcaster.

RADIO GEAR SET UP

Network engineers have finally installed their gear in the Vets building for pickups from the commission sessions, but it is hardly likely that more than one or two time blocks will be assigned to that phase of the conference. Speeches and deliberations of the delegates will feed from the p.a. line into the mikes, and if it doesn't come off satisfactorily the cables will be taken away from there.

The commentators will let down their hair, what's left of it, at the Press Club gang dinner tomorrow night. Cliff Engle will be host and the works will be given to H. V. Kaltenborn, George Fielding Elliot, Charles Hodges and Baukhage. What transpires is not privileged for printing or airing, but faces will take a salmon coloring at the darts of persiflage that enliven the confessional.

The smaller nations seem more promotion-minded than the bigs and have brought along corps of public relations experts.

Walter Duranty presents one of the paradoxes of the meet. For years he covered Russia for the New York Times, and now he's reporting an American meet for the Soviet Tass News Agency. If the Russian thing ever got out of hand he would have been the most sought-after correspondent on the ground. He knows the Slavs better than any American and his authority is never disputed. Of the 1,850 press and radio men accredited to the meet, only 1,400 are wearing the coveted lapel button. That's all there were and they can't get any more. We'll try to get along with our black cat insignia of the Press Club.

DIPLOMATS GIVING H'WOOD LESSON IN PUBLICITY

thing or other that has to be sold to the press. Most of it is waste paper basket material, and the hotel lobby floors are littered with enough waste paper to do a drive collection agency credit in picking up.

PROPAGANDA GOES ON

With commission and committee meetings being the order of the day for the next couple of weeks, and a plenary session only to be called when something has to be unraveled before the massed delegates, the colorful phases of the conference will have quite a letdown for a period. But the propagandists will not let up and will keep on the job feeding out their desires to the press via conferences, cocktail sessions, tours, dinners and what have you.

There's plenty happening here that would make reading very colorful, but the fourth estaters and others who get in on the confidential know, for security reasons cannot reveal it.

NITESPOTS PICK UP

With the plenary sessions over, business in the night spots and high-class restaurants has picked up within the last few days. There'll be a big shindig when the Navy takes out about 1,000 of the press Saturday afternoon for a boat ride on the USS Delta Queen to witness a mock attack by U. S. carrier air groups which will give them an idea as to how the Japs have been attacked and beaten. The shindig was arranged by Capt. A. J. Bolton, public relations head here of the Navy, and his staff of boys who include Lieuts. Bob Leach, John Christ and Ensign Stan Meyer, who have been assigned as aides to Admirals Hepburn, Train and Wilson.

ATTACK ON PRESS BOYS

The press crowd will get plenty of thrills because their ships will be the targets of the mock attack. And those of the visitors who will not choose this rather rough treatment may get a ride in a blimp or Navy plane any time they want from the Bolton staff. They're selling the Navy strong, and it's working.

Charlie Einfeld, who came here yesterday to arrange for the preview of "Rhapsody In Blue" at the United Nations theatre, returns to Hollywood tonight and will have Jim Allen here arranging the other phases of the showing. It is likely that, starting next week, the United Nations theatre will have its policy revised from two to one show a night, with the performance starting at 9 o'clock.

SPU OKES MEMBERS CARRYING JUNIOR SAG CARDS

Screen Players Union is calling a general membership meeting for 8:30 p. m. May 14 at the Woman's Club of Hollywood. Simultaneously, Business Representative Mike Jeffers announced that the SPU Board of Directors had recinded its ban on members carrying dual cards in order to comply with the amended certification of the National Labor Relations Board.

Purpose of general mass meeting is to discuss proposed wage minimum and conditions for film extras, question of affiliation with a national labor organization and adoption of a Constitution and By-Laws. Next negotiations meeting with representatives of the major companies will be deferred until after members have an opportunity to express their views on wage scales.

Majority of players favor a straight $16.50 ticket for regular extras, except where more than 500 are called for an individual set. Producers are reported ready to up the current minimum of $10.50, but probably will hang out for a low rate where 50 or more extras are called for one set.

Abolition of ban on dual cards means that SPU members may now take out Class A Junior memberships in the Screen Actors Guild to protect themselves on stunts, bits, singing and dancing calls.

20TH'S PHILIPPINE TOPPER TELLS RUIN OF FILM BUSINESS

Rehabilitation of the Japanese-wrecked motion picture business in the Philippines was discussed yesterday by Daniel Lederman, managing director for 20th-Fox in the islands, sort of between yawns. The yawns were due to a very tough night of unaccustomed home comforts, it being the first time the veteran film executive had slept in a real bed for more than three years.

Lederman was released last February from the Japanese internment camp in Los Banos. In the camp he bedded mostly on the ground, and since then he has been spending his nights on hospital cots or ship's bunks.

"I just can't get used to sleeping in a regular bed yet," he said.

MANY THEATRES DESTROYED

Lederman said it will be six or eight months, or even another year before the Philippine theatres and exchanges will be in full operation again.

"Most of the 350 throughout the islands have been destroyed," he said.

Only houses showing films currently are the Times, Ideal and Lyric, first-run houses, in Manila, he stated. A few neighborhood houses in the city may now be open.

"The entire business districts of many of the towns have been wrecked and must be rebuilt. Public works will get prior rights to materials as soon as regular commercial shipping is resumed, and it will be some time before the rebuilding of theatres can even be planned," Lederman pointed out.

FILM BIZ FIRST PRIZE

The exchange offices, Lederman said, were stripped by the Japs when they took over.

"The film business was the first industry they grabbed," he disclosed. "They took all the iron, steel and other metal in the office equipment and even pulled out the plumbing.

"They brought in crews from Japan and started operating the exchanges, distributing the American film to various theatres, where they were shown always in combination with Japanese propaganda shorts."

Film was run to rags in the downtown Manila theatres.

There was one projection outfit in the Los Banos camp, and films were shown there several times.

"But they didn't get much audience because the program always included the Japanese propaganda shorts. I wouldn't look at the d—— things myself," Lederman said emphatically.

THREE LONG, LONG DAYS

It was on New Year's night of 1942 that the American population of Manila was informed the town had been made an open city. "The Japs told us we would be taken away for registration and would be returned shortly, advising us to take clothes and food for only three days," Lederman said. "It was three years and one and a half months before we were liberated and returned."

Diet of the prisoners during that period consisted mainly of rice and water. During the last three months before they were freed the daily diet was cut to 160 grams of rice per person daily.

Lederman went into the camp weighing 187 pounds and came out weighing around 125. His clothes, made before his imprisonment, now hang baggily on him, but he has gained back 18 pounds since liberation. Lederman arrived here Wednesday.

HOLLYWOOD ACCEPTS THE CHALLENGE

(An answer to the appeal of the V-E Day Committee of the Hollywood Victory Committee in yesterday's VARIETY)

Members of the Screen Actors Guild, who in company with radio and stage personalities have traveled 4,000,000 miles over the Foxhole, G.I., Hospital, War Bond and Infantile Paralysis circuits, want to be the first to enlist in General Eisenhower's new entertainment battalions for service in Europe after V-E Day.

On that day our fighting men—those who aren't paying the price of war in base hospitals—will pause to reinforce their energies, either for another battle in the far-away Pacific or for an arduous and boresome tour of duty with the Allied armies of occupation in Europe.

During those irksome, fitful months of immobilization they will appreciate more than ever before, the lift to minds and spirits that Hollywood talent can give them.

And Hollywood's screen, radio and stage personalities will appreciate the privilege of demonstrating to those valiant men who have bought dearly won victory to the United Nations that America wants no "forgotten men" in her armed forces . . . not now or ever.

BY FORMAL RESOLUTION WE HAVE STATED:

("... we earnestly endorse this outstanding new contribution to our country's service, and directly urge each and every one of our members to cooperate to the limit of his ability.")

To the V-E Day Committee of HVC we say, therefore:

WE ARE PROUD TO SERVE

Failure of Columbia Pictures and the Mutual network to get together on options for air services of Robert Stanton is pulling actor off "Sunday Serenade," according to the Nat Goldstone office.

$25,000,000 SHOW FOR BONDS SKEDDED FOR H'WOOD BOWL

A $25,000,000 "E" Bond show will be staged in Hollywood Bowl May 18 as principal kickoff event of the Seventh War Loan drive in southern California. Star entertainment names such as Bing Crosby, Ginger Rogers, Abbott and Costello, the Andrews Sisters and Rise Stevens are among the tentative lineup for the program. Announcement of the event, designed to be the biggest yet staged locally, was made yesterday by Sherrill Corwin, co-chairman of the southern California theatre division, at the pre-campaign luncheon rally in the Cocoanut Grove.

HOPE FOR $25,000,000 GATE

Bowl will be scaled to realize at least $25,000,000 in "E" Bonds, the series the Treasury Department is particularly anxious to have sold during the coming drive, which will be launched May 14. A military band, possibly the Santa Ana Army band, will be among the musical aggregations appearing on the Bowl program along with Carl Hoff's orchestra.

Southern California showmen have their guns leveled on quota of $100,000,000 in "E" Bond sales. Those gathered in the Grove yesterday were told by Charles P. Skouras, national honorary chairman and western regional chairman, that the only way the quota could be met was by "work."

In announcing the quota for this territory and thanking R. H. Moulton, state chairman of the War Finance Committee, for the statement that the WFC "couldn't get along without show business," Skouras declared that National Theatres, of which he is president, will make a $7,000,000 purchase to start the drive off right.

BOND PREEMS ON BOULEVARD

A series of joint radio-film Bond preems will be staged in theatres along Hollywood blvd., according to Corwin, and the downtown first-run houses will repeat the mammoth Bond tieup of last year with Los Angeles stores. Multiple downtown preems will occur June 25, throwing open 15,000 seats to purchasers of War Bonds in stores or theatres.

Among the speakers discussing the job ahead were Gus Metzger, state chairman of the theatre division in southern California; Ted Gamble, National WFC director, speaking via recording and "gag" television from Washington; Dave Bershon, honorary chairman of the theatre division; Harry Cohen, distributor chairman; O. N. (Bill) Srere, co-chairman, theatre division; Mort Goodman, co-publicity chairman, and Lieut. John J. Finnegan, AAF hero.

PRODS CLAIM STRIKE HAS NOT HALTED COLOR FILM WORK

Producers announced last night that attempt of studio strikers to halt Technicolor production had failed, and that the number of pictures now shooting on major lots had been increased to 31. About the same time Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, told associates that the Building Trades had filed charges against Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, with the AF of L executive council because of his issuance of charters in other studio union jurisdictions and that Walsh was to appear before the latter group in Washington Monday.

Other strike developments were a denial by Navy authorities that the strike had interfered with Navy production at Columbia, and ouster of 15 machinists at Mitchell Camera Co. for failure to pay a $5 strike assessment. Five other machinists accused of crossing studio picket lines also were ordered before a trial board of Cinema Lodge 1185 last night.

PRODUCERS' STATEMENT

Statement by major producers follows:

"A complete survey of production reveals that the latest move of the strikers in attempting to halt Technicolor production has had no effect.

"Although top priority is being given Technicolor to vital government work in considerable volume, there has been no delay whatever in fulfilling commitments to the nine major studios. Not only has there been no interruption of Technicolor photography, but the processing of negatives and prints is proceeding on regular schedule. Studios are getting from Technicolor exactly the same service as before the strike.

31 FILMS SHOOTING

"Meanwhile, the failure of the strike to hamper general production is clearly shown by the increase in pictures shooting during the week; 26 features were before the cameras last Saturday, and 31 now are in work."

Replying to a notice in a strike bulletin stating, "We have evidently hit the jackpot as Columbia was not able to fulfill its contract with the Navy due to the strike," Lieut. Comdr. Fanning M. Hearon, officer in charge of the U. S. Naval Photographic Services Depot, declared Columbia is proceeding under contract to produce the Navy action picture, "The Negro Sailor," and that it is not being held up by the studio strike. Commander Hearon declared:

"I am informed that the strike people are claiming to have hit the jackpot in stopping Columbia Pictures and the Navy. On the other hand, I am assured by Columbia executives and my own officers that production is going according to schedule.

"There have been no production delays. We simply have been waiting for Navy camera crews to complete certain sequences on the east coast and around Chicago. We now have this footage and are going along with the job."

COMPLAINT AGAINST WALSH

Sorrell stated he had received a long-distance telephone message from L. P. Lindeloff, international prexy of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, that a complaint had been filed against Walsh by the Building Trades Council. He added that Lindeloff declared another complaint also was being filed against the IATSE head by union international presidents, including himself, William Hutcheson, head of the carpenters; Ed Brown, international head of the IBEW, and that they were being joined by the international president of the barbers. He said the barbers' prexy claimed the IATSE had taken several of his people on the Coast.

Simultaneously, Sorrell announced the Conference was calling for a national boycott of all pictures turned out by the majors under strike conditions. He said union men and their sympathizers were being asked to remain away from theatres showing any of a list of 55 productions named by the Conference in telegrams to exhibitors throughout the country. He said the list of 55 pictures was being sent to all leading exhibitors.

Total withdrawals were 64 as against 88 new memberships.

MARKS IS LOSER IN $1,000,000 SUIT WITH ASCAP

Marks for a declaratory judgment in a suit against American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Decision in action, which stemmed from a five-year agreement under which Marks transferred performing rights to its catalog to BMI for $1,000,000, leaves publisher open to numerous suits by writers of the some 3,000 tunes in the catalog. These copyrights were either wholly written or collaborated on by Ascap cleffers. Ascap claimed part ownership of rights in these songs and BMI had asked the court for a judgment declaring it sole owner of the rights.

DECISION A BOMBSHELL

Highlights in Justice Pecora's decision came as a bombshell to both litigants. No one had dreamed he would deliver against BMI and Marks in such a sharp manner. Most opinions figured issue would be sidestepped and attorneys advised to go to Federal court, where all infringement cases are normally heard, for a ruling.

Justice Pecora, displaying a rare knowledge and understanding of the song publishing business, cited that relations between writers and publishers of their songs is in reality a "joint venture" or partnership. He held that publishers have no right to endanger the writers' property by transferring performing rights or otherwise tampering.

He scored Marks for "breach of contract" with the writers by making the BMI deal without consulting them or making provision for them to participate in the $1,000,000 he drew from BMI on the deal.

It was brought out at the trial that since the BMI-Marks deal the Ascap writers of the disputed tunes have received no income on songs from Ascap and that due to possible infringement charges, BMI had not dared to license the songs for performance until it got a decision on the suit. Hence writers were in the middle and the disputed songs have not earned them a penny since Jan. 1, 1941.

This is thought by attorneys to leave Marks open for damage actions by the writers since the BMI deal effectively blocked their earning capacity.

Pecora also scored BMI for making the deal with Marks with full knowledge that litigation would result, and then coming into court and asking to be taken out of trouble.

20,000 COPYRIGHTS INVOLVED

It had been brought out during the trial that BMI had refused to indemnify Marks against possible suits as a result of their deal.

Pecora also said it was not the duty of the court to advise in business acumen. This was in reference to BMI's admission that the result of the suit would likely determine whether it should exercise an option to buy Marks' catalog for $1,000,000, rather than renew the current contract which runs out this year.

Included among the 3,000 disputed copyrights in the Marks holdings are the more important and most valuable tunes of the entire 20,000 copyrights Marks has title to, it is implied. Hence, if BMI could not have clear title to them, the catalog is not worth buying.

CHINA IN HEAVY ROLE WITH MAJORITY VOTE

By ARTHUR UNGAR

San Francisco, May 6.—There is no such thing as a weekend siesta for any one who has the task of being around the United Nations Conference of International Organization. It's virtually a 24-hour task for the press, radio and cameramen of all kinds. Not that there has been anything stirring, but there are those conferences that folks call for no reason at all. For some of them as an attendance-getter they have a cocktail prelude. Then the propaganda is brought forth, and how.

Question is whether the press is more befuddled by the spiritual element or verbiage tossed out. Should everything that's handed out hit the white paper market, the War Production Board would have to augment the restricted tonnage most liberally.

Tomorrow will see the formal appearance of the Big Five. France has been admitted and now will be able to be informed on everything as are the other members of the steering committee. French Foreign Minister Bidault is coming in with the Big Four, and now can sing alongside V. M. Molotov of Russia

They show that approximately 17% of the total South American population lives in cities of 100,000 or more as compared with a corresponding percentage of 29 in the United States.

WHEN RKO's "Chamber of Horrors; a Tale of Badlam" is released, it probably will be first time in annals of motion pictures that a feature film has not carried screenplay credit for any living writer on main title. Credits instead, according to Val Lewton, producer, and Mark Robson, director, who are preparing script, will go to the 18th Century painter who was responsible for the idea and to the rakes, wits and philosophers of that era whose writings will supply the incidents and the dialog. Credit for the idea will be given to the Hogarth painting, "Bedlam" (A Rake's Progress, Plate No. 8). Incidents and dialog will be credited to the memoirs and letters of Giacomo Casanova, James Boswell, Lord Chesterfield, Nicholas de la Bretonne and Benjamin Franklin. Boris Karloff will be featured in picture which deals with the conditions in the notorious London hospital for the insane, known as "Bedlam."

PRACTICE which Andrew Stone started in 1939 and has adhered to in every picture since is fitting in very well with present film shortage situation. Instead of running series of plain title cards at beginning of picture, as is general custom, Stone starts his action on first frame of film and projects titles and credits over this action, thus getting into story with greater rapidity and with saving of film. Case in point is Stone's "Bedside Manner," slated for release during June. Picture opens with Ruth Hussey stopping her car to pick up several Marines. By time credits, flashed over this footage, are finished with, plot is already under way without static which sometimes mars introductory scenes and pace is considerably heightened. This style of starting off a picture, which producer first used in Paramount's "The Great Victor Herbert," has become a trademark for Stone.

restoration of full lighting of theatre marquees and other recreation plants.

The curfew is expected to expire, because James E. Byrnes, who ordered it, said it should be wiped out as soon as possible after V-E Day. At the same time the horse race ban should go down the chute.

One civilian restriction sure to remain is the travel ban. The fact is that the travel situation will get worse than ever after hostilities end in Europe. Millions of soldiers will be brought back to this country and transshipped to the far east. In addition, the railroads will be loaded down with the job of moving military equipment to the West Coast to be sent on to the Philippines and other staging areas.

There is a strong possibility that the brownout may be restored next fall unless there is considerable improvement in the coal stocks, Krug warned in his statement yesterday.

Since first becoming Warners producer, Blanke has turned out 85.

Studio today is tossing luncheon for Blanke to signalize his long association. Announcement ends long speculation about Blanke's future affiliation.

In days of old when youngsters
craved a lurid murder yarn
They sought a shady hiding place behind the old gray barn.
At home they never dared to read a tale of crime and fear.
Their elders would have whacked them with a shingle in the rear.
And now their elders gather in the quiet eventide
And listen to the airwaves by the cosy fireside
And turn the dials to and fro to find a murder story
And feel a disappointment if it isn't weird and gory.

COAST CLEFFERS TO SUE MARKS FOR CUT OF MILLION

As the result of Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora's decision in favor of American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, Ascap songwriters who were represented in the E. B. Marks catalog are assembling to sue the publishing firm for their share of the $1,000,000 received from Broadcast Music, Inc., for the transferral of performing rights.

Group of writers on the Coast, headed by L. Wolfe Gilbert, Dailey Taskman, Ernie Grossman and Lew Pollack have formed a committee and will seek immediate legal action. Taskman will leave for New York at once to round up eastern cleffers who were represented in the Marks listing. As soon as all the tunesmiths affected by the result of the court's findings can be reached, legal action probably will be taken in a New York state court.

WANT CUT OF MILLION

Musicmen will seek to get some answer from Marks on what happened to the $1,000,000 and will ask for their shares of it. Move was instituted by Gilbert and the Coast cleffers, but majority of the writers are in the east.

Meanwhile Gilbert has sent a wire to Sigmund Romberg and the board of directors of Songwriters Protective Association, asking that they reinstate him as a member and volunteering to work in any capacity they might want.

WHY GILBERT QUIT

Gilbert resigned as vice-prexy of the SPA when the Marks-BMI suit was brought against Ascap. He stated he felt that the publishers were standing behind Marks in the suit to the detriment of the songwriters. His resignation was based on the fact he wanted the SPA alone to front for the suit, without the publishers' support.

Bill Aids the Drinker; Get What You Want

Sacramento, May 6.—The assembly public morals committee has before it a bill which would require bars and night spots to sell the kind and brand of drink asked for if they have it in stock. Tavern owners are for it if they can amend in a provision that wholesalers be required to sell them the brands they have in stock when requested.

Jack Murton will do casting for Sam Wood's "Heartbeat," on loan-out from International. He will work out of his International office, although Wood will shoot at General Service studios.

WARNER PLEDGES PIX AID TO TRUMAN

Washington, May 6.—Harry M. Warner, Warner Bros. prexy, visited President Truman Friday and offered him "any help that the picture industry can give."

Warner discussed the use of films in Europe while at the White House, particularly in Germany and the Axis satellites. The film executive said the President expressed faith in the power of films to help "in developing human beings out of barbarians."

WALSH FACING AFL EXEC. BOARD TODAY OVER STRIKE

Studio strike interest switches to Washington again today, with Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, scheduled to appear before the AF & L Executive Council to explain issuance of film charters for Painters, Carpenters and Machinists. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, read a telegram to 2,000 unionists at Hollywood Legion Stadium last night at which L. P. Lindeloff, International head of the Brotherhood of Painters, declared building trades heads were supporting his complaint against Walsh.

Walsh, however, takes the position that the AF of L council cannot discipline him and that any complaint must go before the next AF of L convention. It was pointed out though that the council several years ago made the IA cancel a charter it had issued for variety actors.

PAINTERS NIX BENEFIT

Earlier in the day members of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 had shouted down a proposal that strike benefits of $20 per week be paid to members. After proposal had been made, Sorrell suggested if benefits were paid those picketing eight hours per day be paid $25 or $50 and that no benefits be paid members who are working. Membership, however, quickly nixed any proposal to pay benefits.

Reporting on his appearance before the National Labor Relations Board in Washington, recently, Ed Mussa, business representative of Screen Set Designers, Illustrators and Decorators Local 1421, declared delegation had contacted government officials and paved the way for a congressional investigation if necessary. Attorney Frank Pestana declared the Washington hearing was just another move by the IA to stall matters, but expressed the opinion that a decision will be handed down within the next few days.

STRIKERS HAVE 6000 LOCALS

Ed Nolan, chairman of a boycott committee named by the conference, told the audience that a boycott of pictures is now being planned and declared there is nothing as powerful as "the CIO, AF of L and Brotherhood of Trainmen when they march together." He said only four of the unions involved in the current dispute have some 6,000 locals throughout the United States.

Other speakers were James Skelton, business representative of Studio Carpenters Local 946; D. T. Wayne, business representative Studio Machinists Local 1185; George Bradley, International veepee of the Building Service Employes International Union; Roy Tindall, assistant business representative of IBEW Local 40; Mrs. Jean London, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions Auxiliary; Jack Williams, business representative Studio Janitors.

TECHNICOLOR WORKING

Members of Film Technicians Local 683 discussed picket lines at a meeting yesterday morning but no definite action was taken. Technicolor was still operating although 87 machinists were reported out. Group of toolers employed at Mitchell Camera Co. have been forced off job for failure to $5 strike assessment. Several of them contacted District Attorney's office and it was reported they would appear before the grand jury this week to ask that an investigation be made of assessment.

Producers issued no statement over the weekend, but studio execs stated both production and employment was on the increase. They declared that 12 or 15 machinists have returned to their jobs and that other groups are expxected to report this week.

Considerable interest is being displayed in trials of our members of the IATSE cited to appear for trial Thursday. It is understood they may be defended by IA leaders from other locals who are opposed to the takeover of local 44 and are demanding the return of local autonomy.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(CBS News Analyst)

San Francisco, May 6.—This may be V-E Day. We've come to that period of the war in Europe when the final surrender can come at any moment. Norway is the obvious last problem. We have so many prisoners now we would rather the Germans in Norway surrender to the Russians and the Norwegians would rather the Germans there surrender to us. Of course the answer is for the Germans there to surrender unconditionally to all three Allies, and they are probably near the point of agreeing to that.

COHEN PAYS ASCAP ITS TITHE BUT UNDER PROTEST

Maurice Cohen, Palladium chief, has paid the quarterly instalment due American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Coin, amounting to $750, was due in February for the quarter instalment, but Cohen held up payment.

In sending the check to Ascap, Cohen advised it he was paying under protest at what he considered a discriminatory fee. He plans further legal action against the Society in an attempt to prove that his $3,000 annual payment is out of line when judged against the alleged $2,200 payment made for the combined operations of the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms in Chicago.

Cohen was advised by Ascap that unless he made his payment his license would be revoked.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 6.—The sneak play from the Commission meetings in the Veterans building is out and new signals have been called by the state department. And those lordly gentlemen who are running the big show have one of the network news chiefs to thank. Sensing the mechanical possibility of a leak from these important secret sessions, which would lay the whole industry open to severe censure and perhaps sterner measures, this camp pointed out the ease with which an undetected pipe line could be laid and the whole works spilled in advance of official deliberations. Manner in which the four networks and one pooled indie mike are cut in on the public address system at the commission hearings offers an inviting temptation to the unscrupulous. Through the simple device of throwing a desk switch, blocks away if necessary, any one of the mikes, cut off from the secret session could be brought to life and the leak sprung. We asked an engineer if such a device were possible and he grinned, "Easy as splicing a cable but I would never do it." Brought to the attention of the staters it galvanized them in horror and when the shock passed they excitedly remarked. "That would be tragic to the whole conference. We never gave it a thought." Hurriedly a huddle with the net news chiefs was called and all agreed to obey the ethics of the craft and were put on their honor." What is worrying the chain gang is that someone might pull the sneak and then it becomes a matter of whose mike was turned on. Naturally it wouldn't be broadcast for that would be the dead giveaway, but some of the radio men are columnists, too, and that's where the rub lies. Networks are fearful that if such an eventuality comes to pass it would bring shame to the entire broadcast industry and lay it wide open to attack by the dailies, which would jump at the opportunity. Then there's the more alarming nightmare of being tossed out of all sessions.

Radio engineers, incidentally, have done a whale of a job in setting up facilities wherever the delegates gather. Cables are hidden from view and the possibility of accidents by tripping has been practically eliminated. Unquestionably the biggest job ever tackled by the gadget gang, the magnitude of the project can at once be realized by the corps of experts required. The four nets alone must have around 50 technicians keeping communications open and setting up mikes at a moment's notice. They're the unsung heroes of this gangantuan task and they go about their business quietly and without any thought of personal acclaim.

CHAIN BREAKS. . . . Bill Shirer gets more calls for lectures and personals than any of the CBS commentators. He's opposed to lecturing on the ground that you can't cover a war or a conference and lecture too. Harry Flannery is also in the sought-after class but is much too busy with his work here to do any orating other than what is miked for CBS. . . . That glum, solemn gent taking the long strides is Eric Sevareid. It's easy to understand, he's been through plenty. . . . One of the gals who drive the Navy busses for press and radio threw the gang into an uproar yesterday when she cracked, "I wish that guy would move his car. This is the third time today I kissed his fender." They're doing a swell job handling those big four wheelers. . . . Hedda Hopper wants it distinctly understood that she has yet to crack the official soviet circle and those stories about her being a nightly visitor on the Russ transport started as a gag and seemingly got out of hand. Everybody picked it up and the hat is boiling mad.

Some of the master minds are of the opinion that V-E Day will be played down to a whisper by the high commands or even sloughed over. Their reasons are three-fold that it would be anti-climatic, that there might be a psychological let down in the cleanup of Japan, and that there's another war loan to be floated which would have to struggle to make its quota. For some days the nets were alerted for the big news and then suddenly it was called off. By the time every pocket of resistance is wiped out it won't be exactly big news anyway. Judging from the way the krauts are calling it quits, V-E Day could have been proclaimed over the weekend.

HITCH HIKES. . . . Bert Silen, the NBC correspondent who was incarcerated in Santa Tomas prison by the Skibs, will take over network, operation of news and special events here in SF after Francis McCall returns east. . . . Alfred Hitchcock has been around to talk with the Blue about a series of suspenseful dramas. . . . Out in front of the two big meeting places it is remindful of Hollywood when the daily sessions break up. A husky voice calls out, "Brazalian delegations car please." It being physically impossible to make all the press conferences scheduled, most of the commentators are "pooling" to fill each other in on the ones they miss. . . . What will happen to all the commentators after the war we asked one of the bosses. The answer came fast—they'll be absorbed into the news departments. . . . Milton Samuel, division press head for the Blue, hiked back home and turned over the detail to Bob Hall. Those boys have done a great job and are always where you'd expect to find them—in the midst of things. . . . Dapper John Wald, ye Richfield reporter with Don Forbes, is just as fresh and bright-eyed at 2 a. m. as he is sauntering in for his morning oats. All Emile Gauvreau, former editor of the NY Graphic, has a deal cooking with Metro for "The Life of Billy Mitchell," which he wrote with Lester Cohen, now that the early champion of air power has been posthumously raised to Major General and given congressional medal of honor. Shortly after Pearl Harbor it was snubbed by the war department and studios were afraid to touch it. Once broken by the Army, he is now raised to immortality and Metro is said to be eager to film the Mitchell air saga.

NINE MORE FILMITES VOLUNTEER FOR V-E TOURS

The addition of nine volunteers to the list of personalities enrolled in the Hollywood Victory Committee's V-E drive for entertainers to visit European hospitals and rest centers was announced over the weekend. Joining up in response to a War Department appeal were Louise Allbritton, Joseph Cotten, William Demarest, Jinx Falkenburg, Jane Frazee, Gabby Hayes, Charles Ruggles and the team of Akim Tamiroff and Leonid Kinsky. Previously enlisted were Amos and Andy, Joan Blondell, Bette Davis, Joan Fontaine, Victor Francen, Kathleen, June and Gene Lockhart, Rosita Moreno and Paul Muni.

CLEARANCES SET UP

Availabilities of all volunteers are being checked and clearances set up immediately with the War Department and FBI. The Victory Committee program is part of an elaborate plan sponsored by General Eisenhower to provide diversion for troops in the difficult post-V-E Day period while they are awaiting transfer to the Pacific.

In the meantime the Victory Committee continued to speed up its program for military hospitals in this country, with two troupes scheduled to leave today on USO-Camp Shows routes and two personalities en route. RADIO EASING ON SF AS 500G BILL LOOMS

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 6.—Auditors with their supply of sharp pencils have moved on the scene of this international security ground-breaking affair, and that's a sure signpost on the turn in the road that leads to home. When the cost sheet finally is added up for nets and indies alike, a new fiscal record for reporting one event will have been established, and a high mark set for any future project to shoot at. Naturally everyone's guessing at what the final figure will be, some as high as a half-million dollars.

But the guesswork has been taken out of what has been accomplished. To the man, and that reaches into the State Department, it is a chorus of "well done." It was not exactly John Q. Public's dish, but as a documentary job for historians to record for the next generation it was complete, well-grounded and in good taste all the way.

PITFALLS AVOIDED

Meet has been full of political sandtraps and dripped with diplomacy but the radio boys knew how to separate one from the other and put it out on the air without offense to any national. That's walking the rope with fair steadiness, and while there may be a few uncomplimentary reactions to personalized reporting by the commentators, the general result must be heartening.

The initiative of small nations in playing along with their big network brothers has been one of the refreshing chapters in this meeting of the minds. KFWB and KYA, which linked up for the conference, have done such an outstanding job that a Variety showmanship plaque should be theirs without a quibble. The project will have cost the Warners station somewhere in the approximation of $10,000, and that is spending money for public service in a big way.

SPECIAL STARS IMPORTED

Not only did WB's Harry Maizlish bring up from Hollywood an army of commentators, but almost every one of note at UNCIO has talked into a KFWB mike. As special reporters the station engaged Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

Don Fedderson, boss of KYA and running mate of Maizlish in this enterprise, also has played it to the hilt, and our prediction is that this young fellow is going places in radio. He promoted the coin to buy KYA, and in the matter of a couple of years brought it out of the red. A great team of go-getters, Maizlish and Fedderson.

It's refreshing to write about such an ambitious undertaking by a pair of indies. From the chains you have come to expect the last word in coverage, but for the little fellows to ride along and, at times, top the high and mighty, is one of those blue moon incidents.

TEXAS ENTERPRISE

Then there's another indie, KTHT in Houston, which showed a spark of big-time programming. The Navy's mock aerial attack on a craft in the bay last Saturday was taken on a wire recorder and shipped down Texas way to be broadcast as an exclusive feature. Naturally KFWB-KYA were on deck of the ship reporting the simulated attack, but that was to be expected. They haven't missed a single bet.

Whatever the cost of this meet to radio, it was well worth the outlay. The industry proved its mettle in getting everything out of the conference that was privileged by protocol and as an added advantage has a blueprint for the future.

ON THE DOWNGRADE

From here on, everything will be graded down in escalating importance, for here is the daddy of them all in a quarter of a century of broadcast history. The little matter of experience gained and people met. These are but a few of the hundred items to be charged off against the cost sheet. Not that any station or net will regret the outlay of a single dollar, but a balance of accounts must be struck and these intangibles belong high on the ledger.

Your radio will resume a modicum of normalcy for the next couple of weeks. The big brains are down to the paper work, and those sessions, what few are made available for broadcast, would not carry sufficient interest to maintain a vigil at the dial. It's heavy stuff—the stuff that worlds are made of, and the millions of Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Charlie McCarthy fans would rather hear about it after it's all done and put away. They're just not hep to this diplomatic rug-cutting.

BIG PIC FIELD IN SO. AMERICA

population of 22 cities in Brazil jumped 61% while the total population increased 36%. During the same period in Chile total population jumped 34% while the city population rose 69%.

In Colombia between 1918 and 1938 the increase in city population was 126% and the total only 49%.

The figures present an optimistic picture for planners of motion picture theatres in South America. Attention also is called by the bulletin to the fact that the South American population is relatively younger than that of the United States. In seven South American countries approximately one-half the population is estimated to be under 20 years of age, as compared with only one-third of the population of the United States in 1940.

FIVE PREVIEWS SET FOR FRISCO DELEGATES

in vital voting matters, with the United States and England aligned on the other side and China, via Dr. Soong, becoming a potent factor with his nation's vote determining the majority side.

WHERE CHINA STANDS

According to an herb doctor, of whom there are many in this town, China will ride along with the nation that's been sending the coin its way during the past 10 years.

Today the White Russian and Ukrainian delegations planed in. No advance information was to be had, so there was no military reception for them, just a ride from the airport to the hotel, and not even a Russian to give them a vodka salute. Today or tomorrow the contingent from Argentina gets here. Then it will be 49 instead of 46 nations in the conference.

To seat these new arrivals possibly by midweek a plenary session will be held, but in the meantime the steering committee and subcommittees are toiling to get a format of a security pact. It's tough going, for it seems every day some international incident pops up, and eyes and ears are turned in its direction rather than on the mission to be accomplished.

FIVE PREVIEWS SET

United Nations theatre, which has not been getting trade as it was calculated, has changed its policy. There will be one show a night instead of two, with five previews of Hollywood pictures set for the present week. Added to the list that had "Rhapsody In Blue" for Monday and "Valley of Decision" on Tuesday night, are "Love Letters" instead of "Miss Kitty," on Wednesday night; Sam Goldwyn's "Wonder Man" on Thursday, and "Diamond Horseshoe," 20th-Fox, on Friday. It is figured the delegates may go for this type of program more readily than the one of the past week when the top attendance for any night with two shows was less than 500.

Night life picked up a bit on Saturday. Every one headed for the spots that have flesh entertainment and food. But it was by no means a regular Saturday night biz. Spenders were not accustomed to dole out the coin as they have heretofore, and the tips the foreign visitors handed the waiters sort of caused wry faces on the receiving end. Theatre business still was on the dull side.

Abel had previously announced that the mercury lighting would do away with makeup as it is now used in Hollywood. He was the speaker last night at a meeting of the committee at KFWB, discussing his recent visit to the television show at Schenectady, New York. Ray Sollars was chairman of the meeting. Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being LISTED ALPHABETICALLY, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.

SI FABIAN ASKS WIDE BOOKING FOR 'SAN PIETRO'

In view of the surrender of the German forces in Italy, Si Fabian, theatres division chairman of the War Activities Committee, yesterday urged exhibitors to give the War Department three-reeler, "San Pietro," the widest possible booking.

"No finer tribute to the foot soldier of this war has been paid than in 'San Pietro,' which we have been asked to release by the OWI and the Army," Fabian said in a letter to theatremen.

"The surrender of the German forces in Italy makes this a fitting time to honor the men who fought on that front. San Pietro was a key strong point in the German defense system and its capture by American infantrymen contributed greatly to our final victory."

"San Pietro" is being distributed on a spot booking basis without charge by the WAC distribution chairman in each exchange area.

FINAL WEEK STARTS IN DRIVE FOR CLOTHING

The film industry's collection of clothing for allied relief goes into its final week today with a total of 25,282 pounds shown in the third report from studio colonels to Chairman Ginger Rogers. For the past two weeks contributions have been averaging a half-ton daily, but this rate is expected to be increased as last-minute donors get the final call for Thursday. The industry's collection closes with Friday's report.

"I hope that the great news from Europe will be a reminder to Hollywood of the tremendous rehabilitation job to be done, and that clothing and shoes are almost as important as food to the people of war-devastated countries," said Miss Rogers. "Heads of the national campaign say that things for children and women are especially needed."

The largest clothing contribution according to the number of donors comes from PRC, the latest report shows. Individual solicitation at the studio has brought in 3.95 pounds per person, double that from any other lot. In gross donations 20th-Fox heads the list with 5,000 pounds. Warners is second with 4,376 and Universal third with 2,292.

MOVIES SHOW THEM HOW TO CARE FOR THE WOUNDED

IN THE NAVY, as in all the armed forces, training films on many subjects help to make the right way practically second nature. Films on the care of the wounded, for example, have helped to save many lives, to restore men to active duty in record time.

And the "know-how," taught by these movies, is matched by the professional touch so evident in the pictures themselves. Men from all branches of the industry have joined forces in this important work. Behind the scenes, the laboratory technicians —processing, editing, adding supplementary sound—contribute much to the effectiveness of the finished productions.

Shoulder to shoulder with reconnaissance and combat photography, training films have played a large part in the successful prosecution of the war.

IT'S OVER OVER THERE!

LET'S FINISH THE JOB!
ON TO TOKYO!

The Road Ahead

Now is a time to cheer, but not too loudly;
A time to celebrate, but not forget;
A time to wave the starry banner proudly,
Remembering that war is with us yet.

In gold-starred homes there is no jubilation
Where sorrow makes its permanent abode,
And though the land is wild with celebration
The road to peace is still a long, long road.

Studios, Theatres Open Today

NITERIES, BARS PLANNING BIZ AS USUAL

Studios will work as usual today with the official proclamation of victory in Europe coming at 6 a.m. Both film and legit theatres will be open and the niteries and bars were planning last night to hang out the welcome sign unless there came a mandatory order for closing.

Operators of picture houses feel that many citizens will wish to temper their celebration with an eye to the battle still ahead of us in the Pacific. Therefore the wickets will operate as usual except in any particular section where the celebration might get out of hand.

Little if any effect on grosses is expected today to result from cessation of hostilities in Europe. There may be a slight upward swing in the first runs, however, due to the closing of downtown department stores and other retail business.

V-E HEED ANTI-CLIMAX

Circuits and other exhibs, months ago when V-E Day seemed imminent, had talked of closing entirely when the news was flashed, but decision to continue running was formed several weeks ago after it became apparent that the formal announcement of Germany's surrender would be somewhat anti-climactic. In the case of drink emporiums although requests were forthcoming from the Southern California Tavern Owners Association that they shutter, most bonifaces stated they saw no reason for closing their doors.

On the Strip only the Clover Club announced a night of darkness. Others on the gay wet way proclaimed their intention to keep 'em flowing unless President Truman calls for a hootch hiatus. This was also the attitude of about 80% of the smaller groggeries.

Hotels having entertainment and dancing plan to keep their main rooms open, but the bars around the hostelries will darken. The Cocoanut Grove, Biltmore Bowl and Garden Room of the Tea House will stay open. Drinking, however, in the Town House is nixed.

STUDIOS CALM

When the flash of the German surrender came yesterday, a strange calmness prevailed in the studios. There was some uncertainty as to the authenticity at the start. And when it became more and more apparent that it was over over there, the spontaneity needed for a celebration was gone.

Edward J. Mannix, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, issued a brief statement, saying:

"With all other Americans, the people of Hollywood's motion picture industry received the news of final victory in Europe with profound relief and with deep gratitude to our valient fighting men. Yet we realize that our responsibility to them is not fullfilled, nor will it be until the grim task ahead is ended. To every phase of effort in which we can contribute to total victory, with the complete and unconditional surrender of the Japanese, we pledge ourselves as individuals and as an industry."

ACTORS PLEDGE SUPPORT

George Murphy, prexy of the Screen Actors Guild, in another statement, said:

"All screen actors share America's thankfulness for the conclusion of hostilities in Europe.

"To the families whose sons, brothers and sisters have died in battle we wish to express our confidence that they have not died in vain.

"To the men who still fight for freedom and world peace, we say that we will be with you on every fighting front, many of us in uniforms and others in entertainment units bringing you good cheer. The war is not over."

FRISCO GOING DRY FOR V-E OFFICIAL CELEBRATION TODAY

By ARTHUR UNGAR

San Francisco, May 7.—They're all set here for the formal announcement of V-E Day tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock Coast time from Washington, London and Moscow. Town, of course, will close up its bars. Some shuttered today when the unauthorized Associated Press dispatch came over the wires this morning.

But so far as the commission meetings, steering committee and sub-committee sessions are concerned, they'll keep on grinding away at their respective tasks. The steering committee is shy one member, as Dr. T. V. Soong flew to Washington Sunday night. Report is that he went to see President Harry Truman. Soong, as member of the steering committee, holds the balance of power, with France and Russia on one side and England and the United States on the other. As a result, it looks good for Soong to get what he wants as far as Washington is concerned.

CONFERENCE IN BACK SEAT

With V-E announcement and the subsequent news that will come from the European continent on the whys and wherefores of the German surrender, it looks here as if the United Nations Conference on International Organization news will come off page one for the next week, at least. This, despite the fact that news is being handed out in abundance in a propaganda way, and press conferences are called by every one who has a room to receive the press.

NEWSREELS BUSY

Newsreel boys continued to get plenty of shots. Every one important likes that kind of publicity and bookings are made in advance to get historical background footage. Secretary of State Stettinius tonight went through the motions of making a V-E Day address via the newsreels, which will hit the midweek releases. Tomorrow shots will be made of the executive committee in session. This will be filmed without sound, with one camera representing the newsreel pool and its tributaries and the other being handled by the Navy for Russian consumption. Around 400 people will be in the room for this filming, which will be an official record.

ZANUCK MAKES ROUNDS

Darryl Zanuck turned up from Hollywood this morning and made the rounds all day with Tony Muto, who introduced him to the who's who of the big show. As the meeting goes along other Hollywoodites are expected to come here for the same processing.

It is expected here that tomorrow will not be anything but excitement and celebration in some form or another. Plenty is already going on tonight. Possibly more coin is being distributed around the cafes and bars than since the arrival of the full conference complement.

Argentinian delegates are due Friday, with the acting chairman of the delegation, Ambassador to Great Britain Miguel Angel Carcano, set to arrive Saturday. There may be a plenary session to induct them along with the White Russians and Ukrainians into the conference on Saturday or Monday.

Though V. M. Molotov, Russian foreign commissar, is scheduled to pull out for home tomorrow, developments, as they have been coming along, may keep him here for the balance of this week.

London Theatres Open With Double Pay

London, May 7.—West End cinemas will stay open during the two-day holiday following the V-E Day announcement today with the staffs to receive double pay. The decision to remain open was reached by the National Association of Theatre Employees after a request by the staffs for a two-day holiday. The theatres will open their shows with the national anthem and ring down the curtain with "There'll Always Be An England." Privincial houses were left to the discretion of the local managements.

Leonard Gets 'Gal'

Sheldon Leonard inked with Universal yesterday for a featured role in "Frontier Gal," Yvonne De Carlo-Rod Cameron starrer.

RADIO THEME WILL BE WAR ON JAPAN

Playing up the "lest we forget the war in the Pacific" theme, radio will not go overboard in celebrating V-E Day. Accent on all programs today, special inserts and otherwise, will be slanted toward the unfinished chores of GI Joe in the Pacific theatre of operations. The idea is not to decry the job done in Europe, but rather to emphasize that there still is much to be done toward making a total victory for the United Nations.

All stations will carry the speech of President Truman, slated for 6 o'clock this morning. During the hour from 6 to 7 a.m. the nets and indie stations hope that pickups of Churchill's message to England and Stalin's speech to Russia can be made. Should the latter two chiefs of state conflict in timing with President Truman's talk, platters will be made for later broadcasting. KHJ will repeat Truman's speech at 11:15 a.m., and KMPC will make its repeat from 9 to 10 a.m.

COMMERCIALS DROPPED

KMPC will cancel all commercial announcements through the noon hour, merely identifying the shows by title. Station plans resumption of its normal schedule by 1 p.m.

Another mass cancellation of commercial programs is slated by KFWB, which has issued orders that all commercials not in line with the tenor of the day be pushed off the air. Newscasts, religious programs and talks in line with V-E Day will remain on, with sponsors getting name credit only. Main emphasis of the Warners station events are tentatively planned for San Francisco, with several lengthy airers due to come from the Bay City via KFWB.

NETS WILL DROP PROGRAMS

Major chains, such as CBS, NBC, Blue and Mutual, will cut in on all commercial programs with any special news bulletins and man-in-the-street broadcasts. Roundups from various points of the United States, as well as the globe, will get priority from time to time. Norman Corwin's V-E Day special, "Three Men Have Done It Again," will take the air over CBS from 6 to 7 p.m., nosing out "Inner Sanctum" and "This Is My Best."

NBC will have special inserts during the day, including a 15-minute address by Bob Hope, which has not yet been set for any specific time.

The Blue chain will go ahead with as many commercial shows as possible, but most of the programs will be piped in from outside this area via the net.

MAN-IN-STREET TALKS

Mutual's "Main Street USA" will be a man-in-the-street program, starting at 11:30, and will have pickups from all over the U. S., starting with Hollywood and Vine. First of the sidewalk airers since the war started, "Main Street" will be followed by King George's address. At 1:30 p.m. an historical montage, showing man's struggles for freedom since history began, will be broadcast, with orchestral background.

Upsurge In Film Biz Seen

HEAVIER B.O. PREDICTED AFTER V-E

New York, May 7. — Upsurge in film business is predicted on top of the V-E news today. Impression in sales and theatre circles is that people will let down the bars, temporarily at least, and go to theatres in a spirit of celebration for one reason or another. It may be just V-E Day itself, but it may also be the thought that up to 2,000,000 husbands, sweethearts and brothers will be coming home soon.

Predictions in show quarters here today were that grosses would push up immediately throughout the country, especially after people got through with such preliminary celebrations as getting a little tight, such as occurred early today even in home offices of film companies when word of the surrender was received.

Home offices closed shortly after surrender news, ranging from as early as 11 a.m. until noontime. All local exchanges shut down by 1 p.m. also.

Theatres reported no commotion, but in many of the local houses occasion was taken to ask for a moment of silent prayer and salute to our armed forces. Business early this morning and during day was up to normal for Monday.

GAY SPOTS QUIET

As far as New York nitery cash registers were concerned, it was a shade better than average Monday night. There was no excessive hilarity in cafes. Bonifaces didn't expect Tuesday's official V-E Day to be different and are preparing for average Tuesday biz. Operators feel that events of last 10 days took edge off any wild celebration.

Clubs kept extra liquor supply and instructed staffs in handling unruly crowds, but neither was needed tonight. It also was revealed many owners considered closing if a study of crowd indicated much unruliness. Curfew hours were observed. Spots stopped selling shortly before midnight and customers were allowed to linger over last drink.

Dolan Joins Don Lee

Fred Dolan has joined the staff of Mutual-Don Lee system in Hollywood as an announcer. Formerly, he was associated with WWJ in Detroit.

WB WILL REBUILD TEDDINGTON PLANT

On the day the Germans surrendered to the Allies, Warners moved to rebuild its Teddington studio outside London, leveled by a direct hit of a robot bomb in July of last year. Final okay was given by Jack Warner yesterday for construction of new studio, and as soon as necessary priorities can be obtained, work will start.

A. M. "Doc" Salomon, manager of Warners English studio, and several other employes were killed at time of robot attack.

WOW OF SHOW PAYS $50,000 TRIBUTE TO HAL HALPERIN

Chicago, May 7.—It's gonna be a tough one to follow, that show the Variety Club put on here yesterday afternoon in the Opera House, with a terrific take of slightly over $50,000 (including donations as well as b.o. receipts) socked away for La Rabida Sanitarium.

Every one of the house's 3,600 seats was filled for tribute to the late Hal Halperin, who headed the Chicago office of Variety for about 30 years and who died March 4 in Miami, Fla. Well they might be, too, inasmuch as the long show not only lived up to its advance billing, but provided some acts not listed in the program, to send customers away happy.

'WONDER MAN' PREVIEW

QUIZ KIDS DO STUFF

Joe Kelly and Quiz Kids Joel Kupperman and Dick Williams were next. Eight-year-old Joel astounded payees with his prognostications on the prospects for both National and American Leagues, and 15-year-old Dick flattened 'em with some arithmetical posers. From Chez Paree, Miriam Lavelle socked over some intricate handspins and fast tapping, following which Very Rev. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, head of Chicago Catholic Archdiocese, introduced respectfully by Emcee Vince Gottschalk, walked to center of stage and eulogized the work of Halperin and Variety Clubs of America.

Jack Owens and Nancy Martin from Breakfast Club made a strong impression, Owens with his piping of "Candy" and "Laura," and his partner with her sultry versions of "I Should Care" and "Temptation," both radio stars proving personable enough to start telethesping at the drop of a reconversion hint. Owens also accompanied himself on the baby grand in three of his own song hits, "Hi, Neighbor," "Hut Sut Song" and "Louisiana Lullaby."

MAYOR EXTOLLS HALPERIN

More tributes, all short and to the point, included Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten reading a telegram from Mayor Edward J. Kelly, extolling Halperin's work for servicemen's centers. Bonita Granville briefed another moving tribute, and K. T. Stevens, Betty Lawford and Hugh Marlowe, of "Voice of the Turtle" cast, came on for some penegyrics on Halperin that never slopped over because of some smart ad lib repartee.

Radio's end of the proceedings were again upheld by Johnny Neblett, who fitted his "So the Story Goes" gimmick to the tale of Catherine Sheridan's adoption by Pittsburgh Variety Club, which resulted in founding of the nationwide organization. Staging and Neblett's punchy way with a yarn made it one of the most moving parts of the whole layout.

TRIO DOES TURN

Latin Quarter's trio of begoffs, Lou Holtz, Jackie Miller and Jimmy and Mildred Mulcay, took up the next 15 minutes, with Holtz emceeing Mulcay's rendition of "Pagan Love Song." "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" and "Tiger Rag" on mouth organs reaped some heavy palm-whacking, and Heller slammed home "Beginning To See the Light," "You Belong To My Heart" and "Rum and Coca-Cola." Holtz pitched in some sour notes on his own harmonica with "For Me and My Gal," with Heller, and squawked the "It's" in "It's De-Lovely," also with Heller, to close big.

HAND FOR SOPHIE TUCKER

"The Bigger the Army and Navy the Better the Loving Will Be" was Sophie Tucker's contribution, with Ted Shapiro at the keyboard, and it's doubtful if the staid Opera House ever rocked with that kind of applause for a nitery performer before. Working in street clothes and in a hurry to get back to the Chez Paree, that was all she was gonna do, but they made her come back for "Some of These Days."

Enroute to Florida for exteriors of "The Yearling," Gregory Peck and Jacqueline White were whisked on stage to give it that Hollywood touch. Willie Shore opened in his overseas outfit with GI cracks, "That's What the Army Did For Me" and "Oh, My Aching Back," doffing his Army gear for w. k. soft shoe taps to "Tea For Two" and "Daughter of Rosie O'Grady," to chalk up another click.

There were plenty of tired derrieres by now (it was a four and a half hour show), but crowd stayed on for Jive licks of Louis Jordan and Tympany Five from Chicago theatre in "Ac-cen-tuate the Positive," "Is You Is or Is You Ain't" and "Caldonia." Mob was happy it stuck because the boys like everyone else on bill outdid themselves.

METRO PRUNES ITS SCHEDULE OF SHORTS

Effect of the raw film shortage in limiting the product of major studios was indicated yesterday in an announcement by Metro that short subject production is being curtailed. The company previously had disclosed that its schedule of features was due for pruning to two releases a month.

Yesterday's announcement said short subject production will be temporarily cut down following completion of the current schedule.

Featured on the releasing lineup now are Pete Smith specialties, John Nesbitt's "Passing Parade," the Metro cartoons and John FitzPatrick's traveltalks. These will complete the list of shorts for Metro, except for the newsreels which will be released twice weekly as usual.

NBC Will Feature Envoys From Frisco

NBC will air three special broadcasts from San Francisco this morning in connection with V-E Day, which will feature Ambassadors Halifax of Great Britain, Gromyko of Russia, Bonnet of France and Wei Tao Ming of China. Messages from the Belgian, Czechoslovak, Dutch and Norwegian ambassadors also will be broadcast from San Francisco, and the Greek ambassador will speak from Washington.

Frazee In 'Tahiti'

Jane Frazee will star in Republic's "Down Tahiti Way," for which Wally Vernon and Chick Chandler have been cast as new comedy team. Musical carries pre-war South Sea background.

Jewish Fund Meeting

Studio chairmen of United Jewish Welfare Fund will hold luncheon committee meeting tomorrow, 12:30 p. m., at Beverly Hills hotel. William Goetz will preside.

WALL ST. EXPECTS BULL WHEN OFFICIAL

New York, May 7.—Associated Press story that Germany had quit, though not followed by any statement by President Truman, gave tip-off today about how Wall Street would behave when V-E Day is officially announced.

On high volume, stock market was strong after slight dip at start of trading. Peace shares rose to best prices in years and even so-called war issues held firm. Traders felt that official announcement of cessation of activities consequently would bring strong market.

Stock Exchange intends to observe end of European war with two-minute cessation of trading when President Truman proclaims conflict's end. Activity in many shares is unusual considering number of brokers who watched ticker tape float down canyons of Wall Street much of trading session.

AMERICAN G. I.'s lucky enough to get a pass to Paris are being entertained now in what was once the favorite hang-out of Nazi officers during the German occupation. As the Cafe Tyrol the place was frequented by the Hitler satellites and now, as the Paris Canteen, is catering to men who licked them. Canteen organization displays a France-America hook-up throughout. It is operated by the American Theatre Wing on the same lines as the famous New York Stage Door Canteen. President is the Duchesse of Chaulnes, daughter of Theodore Shonts, of Panama Canal construction fame. Her son, Duke Emmanuel, works at the Canteen as dishwasher. Director is Viscount Charles Benoist d'Azy, who, despite French name and title is a son of the American Revolution. He was liaison officer of the Yankee Division in this war and was at Dunkirk. Stage Director is Jacques Porel, son of the famous French comedienne, Rejane. He has been several times in America, works for the New York Times.

MORALE building influence of American popular songs on prisoners in Nazi war camps is glimpsed in an official report by Patrick Gordon Walker, commenting on conditions in Belsen, infamous German concentration camp. Walker inspected the camp for Luxembourg radio, voice of Allied Supreme Headquarters. Surrounding by horror and death, a group of the younger prisoners had hung onto instruments from an old army camp band and had formed an orchestra. When Walker and other Americans visited there recently, little band played for them—and first number was the Jimmy McHugh perennial cleffed in 1928, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby."

REPUBLIC has job on its hands in designing jet propulsion rocket ship for serial, "The Purple Monster Strikes." Studio had planned on using rocket ship designed for another serial five or six years ago, but now it's no-go, with kid audiences being up on jet propulsion rockets the way they are today. Five years ago, rocket ships were strictly in the realm of fantasy and studio could get away with anything. Juvs today have read so much about jet propulsion and how it works, with a knowledge of just how a rocket ship should be constructed as to be practical, that studio must have as near an authentic model as possible for picture.

SHOCKING sight of German atrocities as depicting in current issues of newsreels has led Warners Pacific Coast theatres, under Lou Halper, to prepare a special recording warning patrons of what is coming up. Record states that scenes are ghastly and horrifying and suggest that if there are any patrons who wish to retire to the lounge or lobby they will be notified when the newsreel is over. So far theatres report few walk-outs.

IN the case of the unusual 15-year contract given Henry Blanke by Warners, 20th-Fox execs agreed yesterday that such a deal was far off the beaten path. At the same time, they called attention to the fact that their studio had signed Ernst Lubitsch to a pact of similar tenure last January.

As It Looks to FLANNERY
(CBS News Analyst)

This is V-E Day. We've now come to a point of correct verbs, since my few lines yesterday began with "This May Be V-E Day." Officially this is the day. The delay may be just as well since we will now greet the day more soberly—I mean that both ways—and "that is more fitting since men are still liable to be killed fighting Nazis at least in Czechoslovakia and possibly also in other pockets where fanatical SS men command, and with possibly hundreds of thousands of casualties yet to be suffered in the Pacific. We have done an unusual job in the Pacific so far, with our forces advancing from within more than three thousand miles of Japan at Guadalcanal to within a little more than three hundred at Okinawa, even though we were making our major first attack against the Germans. This was done, although we never had more than a million men in the Pacific. Now the house military committee says we shall have six million. Within two to three months we shall be able to begin the smashing blows that we hope will speed V-J Day—the next objective we must keep in mind—along with the task in San Francisco of seeing that we build the kind of means to cooperation that will replace barbaric destructive waste with civilized constructive progress.

Across the fields in wintertime the blustrous blizzard sweeps,
And under shrouds of drifted snow old Mrs. Nature sleeps.
There is no sign of labor in the hard and frosty soil,
And all the rutabagas have desist-
ed from their toil.
And when the sun sets hot again,
old Mrs. Nature wakes,
And all the yokels in the land drag out their plows and rakes,
And in the golden summertime the cornfields thrive and throb,
But in the realm of radio the stars
go off the job.

Long ago, when legitimate drama was the last word in public entertainment, the theatres were shuttered during the summer heat for obvious reasons. No customers. Theatres sold nothing but entertainment, which Joe Public could do without during the hot spell. Radio sells everything from candles to cemetery lots, in spring, summer, autumn and winter, but the big shows go into hibernation for 13 weeks while the rest of the world is pulsing with life. Maybe the idea is to give the overworked gags a chance to recuperate.

LOAN LEADER STRESSES BIG PACIFIC TASK

New York, May 7.—"Germany's surrender is only a step toward final and complete victory. The war is not over yet for millions of our boys who will continue the fight in the Pacific. It isn't over for any of us.

"We still have a big job on our hands—the defeat of Japan and the assurance of lasting peace. I am confident everyone in the motion picture industry will now resolve to bring this global war to complete and total victory. We can help do so by our utmost efforts and enthusiasm in the Showmen's Seventh War Loan."

With that statement, Samuel Pinanski, national chairman of the drive, tonight summed up the assurances and sentiment of state drive chairmen which poured into national headquarters here following the flash that V-E Day had at last arrived. State chairmen throughout the country expressed determination to redouble their efforts for the drive, which starts May 14.

Shortly after the V-E Day flash came in over the radio, E. M. (Milt) Milburn, United Artists exploiteer, called on Pinanski at drive headquarters with a check for $3,000. He said he wanted to be the first member of the industry to buy a War Bond on V-E Day.

Irving Lesser, New York Metropolitan area drive chairman, declared that V-E Day only gives exhibitors in his territory a greater determination to sell more War Bonds during the forthcoming drive. He said it would spur the efforts of all drive workers to make the drive an overwhelming success.

The United States Fleet and the Navy throughout the world will be urged through motion pictures to buy extra bonds during the Seventh War Loan. Special 16 mm. prints of the industry's "The All-Star Bond Rally" will be sent around the globe by the Navy and the War Finance Division of the Treasury Department.

Newark, N. J., has notified national headquarters that its downtown theatres will stage an all-star stage show in salute to Major Glenn Miller at the Adams theatre May 22 as a part of the city's $290,040,000 Seventh War Loan. General Major Miller salute date is June 5.

Carson's Air Finale

Jack Carson will wind his final air show of the season June 13. Comedian's summer layoff will be for 14 weeks.

PLEA BY MORGENTHAU

Following is a letter from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to Samuel Pinanski, national chairman of the Seventh War Loan, expressing the Department's appreciation for the industry's past efforts and its plans for the forthcoming drive:

"I want to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation for the accomplishments of the exhibitors, distributors, stars, publicists and producers comprising the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry in all of the previous war loan campaigns. The honest effort everyone in your business has made is exemplified by the record of results attained.

"At this time, I wish also to extend to you, as Chairman, and to all the members of your National Seventh War Loan Committee my congratulations on the fine plans you have made. Your aid in our financing program is the sort of aid given only by good, patriotic American citizens.

"Your plans can only succeed if you have the full support of all of the men and women in the Industry. With this thought in mind, I appeal to one and all to give to the Seventh War Loan Committee the backing they have accorded preceding committees. It is our mutual desire to make this the Mighty Seventh."

NEXT JOB KILLING 8,000,000 JAPS, SO BUY THAT BOND

By SAMUEL PINANSKI

National Chairman, Seventh War Loan Committee, Motion Picture Industry

"The war is two-thirds won, but we have a hard road to travel. Our next job is to kill eight million Japanese. Japan is prepared for a long conflict. Its soldiers are well trained and well equipped for their own brand of animal warfare. Our military forces need new equipment, new planes and new guns. We must move an army halfway around the world.

"The campaign of the Showmen's Mighty Seventh was based upon an early German capitulation, so there need be no major changes in our plans. We must recognize the fact that the war is not yet over.

"We must fight harder to sell every bond.

"We must remember that victory begins at home, that peace after victory also begins at home, and that security begins at home. By buying and selling War Bonds we are making V-J Day nearer and at the same time protecting our own peace and future security. We cannot do that by letting up even for a moment.

"Until final peace is declared our job today is as important as it was in the First War Loan.

"We showmen of America must continue to back up the war effort to help bring about an early complete and total victory.

"The Seventh War Loan drive opens officially on May 14—a drive for $14,000,000,000, twice the quota for individual bond sales in any previous war loan effort. And because the success of this drive is tied so vitally to the continued full-scale prosecution of the war and the prospects of early victory, and because no nation has ever undertaken a bond drive of such magnitude, the nation's greatest bond salesmen—the motion picture industry—have been honored by being asked to shoulder a very heavy share of the load."

'Bells' At Par

"The Bells of St. Mary's" worked on a borrowed set at the Paramount lot yesterday.

Mighty 'E' Bonds

Poster designed to emphasize the need for sale of "E" denomination bonds during the Seventh War Loan has been prepared by the national committee. Slogan featured is "Little Bonds Make Great Victories" and idea behind it is that it's the cumulative effect of the purchase of millions of "E" bonds of small denominations that make winning the war possible. Poster idea suggestion came from Barney Balaban, Paramount president.

Loan Drive Will Honor 'American Day'

National Committee of the Seventh War Loan had added another patriotic observance date to the lineup designed to stimulate bond sales during the campaign. This will be "I Am An American Day," to be observed in many cities on Saturday, May 19. Huge rallies, with military personnel participating, will be featured by mass pledges of allegiance to the flag, addresses on delivering to the utmost to carry the war against the Japanese to a successful conclusion. Rallies will be promoted by local newspapers and the mayors of the various cities participating will sponsor event.

20th Signs Legiters

Alfred Linder and Elisabeth Neumann of the New York stage were signed yesterday by 20th Century-Fox for roles in "Now It Can Be Told," currently on location in New York.

5000 DISCS OF SPECIAL TUNE FOR DRIVE

Total of 5,000 recordings of "Buy a Bond" as Sung by Bing Crosby with Harry James and his orchestra, has been shipped to National Screen exchanges by the Treasury Department for use in the forthcoming Seventh War Loan. Records will be made available free to exhibitors on a first come, first served basis.

Tune was written for the "All-Star Bond Rally," special subject to be screened during the drive, by Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson and will be used for playing in lobbies and during intermissions, at bond rallies, parades, etc.

Recording also is going to radio stations, distribution being handled through the special events division of the War Finance Committee, for spot use and as part of specially scheduled War Bond broadcasts.

First H'wood Boul Bond Preem Monday

Hollywood merchants and theatres will cooperate for the co-sponsorship of seven radio-film War Bond premieres during the Seventh War Loan. First of the coast-to-coast radio-film preems for bond buyers will be staged at the Hollywood Paramount theatre Monday at 8 p.m. when the Sherlock Holmes radio show with Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce will be aired from the stage.

This will be the first of the seven which are being lined up through the combined efforts of Hollywood merchants, theatre officials and radio executives. Each of the seven will feature a preview of a major film in conjunction with the broadcast of a regular network airshow.

Theatres from whose stages combined preems will take place include the Egyptian, Grauman's Chinese, Warners Hollywood, the Pantages, Hawaii and Guild, plus the Paramount.

Tickets to all shows are obtainable through the purchase of War Bonds of any size at leading Hollywood stores, banks and theatres.

SALUTE IS PLANNED FOR GLENN MILLER

National Pageant Day, as a salute to the late Major Glenn Miller, has been scheduled for June 5. Principal event in connection with the date will be the Military Pageant and All-Star Show to be staged at the New York Paramount theatre, but other theatres around the country are lining up special stunts. Admission will be by bond purchase only.

In smaller cities where regular stage shows are not available, war heroes, local officials, plus military bands, etc., will participate in the special Glenn Miller Day, at which distributors will make a feature film available for screening.

THE Showmen's Seventh WAR LOAN PORTFOLIO

MAY 14th TO JUNE 30th

The Showmen's Seventh War Loan Portfolio was created in the knowledge that the Showman's job in the Seventh is a tremendous one . . . The Portfolio replaces the Press Book and embodies these all-important factors:

1. The items contained in the Portfolio are "hot off the press." They have not been printed months in advance, but on the very eve of the Drive itself. In this way, any important change in information will be mailed out to the Showman immediately.

2. The Portfolio is loaded with at least 77 Showmen's ideas—all of which can be adapted to any situation. Space will not allow enumeration, but you will be armed to the teeth with workable material.

3. Any new ideas conceived by Showmen can be included in a special compartment of this Portfolio. It is a positive example that 100% Showmanship equals 1% Inspiration and 99% Perspiration . . . and will help the Showman HELP SPEED TOTAL VICTORY.

4 Nets Do Loan Show Sunday

MAJORS WILL BE ON AIR AT SAME TIME

Washington, May 7.—The four webs will kick off simultaneously next Sunday with four separate shows to herald the Seventh War Loan, which opens the following day. Shows will run neck-and-neck from 8:30 to 9 p.m, EWT, the Treasury disclosed today.

NBC will do an all-star rally, highlighted by the Bob Hope radio troupe, which will originate in Washington, where they will feature a big bond rally at the Uline Arena. Other stars are expected to be piped in from the Coast. The D.C. bond show will run three hours, but only 30 minutes of it will be on the air.

Mutual has scheduled Arch Oboler's "Strange Morning," with the script brought up to date, and starring Claudette Colbert. This will originate in Hollywood.

COST OF WAR

CBS and the Blue have not yet completed their plans. Former, however, is doing a documentary on the war, covering the high spots, and stressing the cost in lives and dollars. The Blue also will do a dramatic show. These two are expected to originate in Hollywood, and the four programs will merge in the final three minutes to pick up a talk made in Washington by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

This kickoff will be a departure from previous bond drives. In the Sixth the webs offered separate half-hour programs, but one fed into the next. It was felt that if the same thing were done this time there would be too much competition from the big Sunday night commercial shows and not enough people would listen to the bond kickoff. The new way, all four nets will be carrying bond shows simultaneously.

There also is a variation here from the earlier drives in which all webs carried the same hour-long bond show sparkling with fancy names.

ACCENT ON PACIFIC

The drive is being handled just as originally planned without particular reference to V-E Day. There will be heavy emphasis on the fact that the war still is on in the Pacific, but it was planned to swing attention to that theatre of operations long before V-E Day became imminent.

The four networks will each have a special War Bond day of their own just as in prior campaigns. Dates are assigned as follows: Mutual, May 20, "I Am An American Day"; NBC, May 30, Decoration Day; Blue, June 6, D-Day, and CBS, June 14, Flag Day.

Hyde Back With Metro

Alex Hyde has re-inked with Metro as assistant to Georgie Stoll, musical director. Hyde was with Loew's, Inc., for 31 years, starting as musical director. He recently returned to Metro after a year in the Army.

SENATOR OPENS NEW WAR

Washington, May 7.—Today may have been practically V-E Day but Senator Theodore G. (The Man) Bilbo, Mississippi democrat, had more important things on his mind. He is now out after "one of the greatest evils of our capital city"—in other words the Gayety theatre, the town's sole burlesque house—he told a public hearing before his Senate District Committee this morning. "It must be closed," he said. "It is driving our boys to evil. Even the Senate page boys are frequenting the place. I cannot speak too much of its elaborate evil. I wish you women would do something about it."

SPECIAL EVENTS FOR SEVENTH ALL SET FOR THE KICKOFF

Washington, May 7.—Plans for films and special events for the Seventh War Loan now are completed, according to Ned Shugrue, who handles that branch of the Treasury's war finance. Theatrical and 16mm. film events previously were announced, and other types of special events for the drive will have more theatrical angles than in the past and receive more show business cooperation. The film industry's War Activities Committee has promised to backstop wherever possible even those events which are not Hollywood's contribution to the drive. Theatres will plug Treasury shows appearing locally and do considerable lobby advertising on all types of stunts. Wherever it can be worked out, theatre programs will be slanted to tie in with the live shows.

IWO FLAG BOYS APPEAR

Among the stunts arranged are the Airborne Attack, the Airmada, "Here's Your Infantry," B-29 and Iwo Jima Tour. The last will consist of personal appearances by the three Marines who were part of the crew which raised the Stars and Stripes on Suribachi as shown in the famous AP still shot. The trio will open here Wednesday, May 16, at Loew's Capitol, and then go on a tour of 50 key cities.

Other bond pitches arranged by Shugrue include radio appearances by the Infantry Concert band.

"Dr. I. Q.," "Take It Or Leave It," "Truth Or Consequences," and other large commercial airshows will make tours for the War Finance Division.

AMATEURS GET CHANCE

A new stunt will be a series of large amateur theatrical programs consisting of original plays written by talent drawn from the American Theatre Wing. George S. Kaufman heads the special committee in charge of this. Total of 4,600 copies of these playlets has been sent out to dramatic groups, schools, etc.

Ringling Bros., and the Roller Skating Vanities will stage special bond shows, and such musical figures as Jose Iturbi, Vivian Della Chiesa and Lansing Hatfield will be on tour for the drive.

Arrangements have been made with WAC and the Hollywood Victory Committee for personal appearances of picture stars in 50 key cities. Only names announced so far are Jane Wyman and the Ritz Brothers, who will play a show in Boston.

RULES TIGHTENED ON PRESS AT FRISCO

San Francisco, May 7.—Security regulations around the War Memorial Opera House and the Veterans building here, where the UNCIO activities are going on, were tightened plenty today following the publication of a story by Drew Pearson that unauthorized newspaper men, without credentials, and two girls carrying typewriters onto the tightly patrolled second floor of the Vets building into a room adjoining the chamber of the steering and executive committees, were admitted without challenge from the military patrol.

It caused a commotion in the State Department and more Military and Naval police were put on the job. Credentials had to be flashed by every one.

Pearson in his story pointed out that some one could have come in with bombs or with something that might have wrecked the building and started a third world war.

LOAN TOPPER HAS PRAISE FOR 'BOND RALLY'

Hollywood's production of "The All-Star Bond Rally," a joint industry effort for the Seventh War Loan, is one of the greatest pieces of public relations and one of the greatest bond-selling instruments ever turned out by the studios, according to Samuel Pinanski, chairman of the motion picture drive.

"I want to give credit where it is due to those who had a hand in making this entertainment film, which for the first time tells the public of the work the nation's exhibitors are doing in the war effort," Pinanski said. "This is one of four films made in Hollywood which we are urging every theatre to play."

WHERE THANKS GO

Spearheading the production of the subject were the Hollywood division of War Activities Committee and 20th-Fox. The idea credit and general coordination of the film go to Tom Baily of the WAC's Hollywood division. Production and cooperation of Darryl F. Zanuck, Col. Jason Joy, Fanchon, Michael Audley, Ray Klune and his production staff, Alfred Newman, Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson were among others thanked by Pinanski. He also credited Paramount for lending services of Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, RKO for Frank Sinatra and Fibber McGee and Molly, and Don Quinn for the scripting chore.

Among the players drawing Pinanski's thanks were Vivian Blaine, Jeanne Crain, Crosby, Linda Darnell, Betty Grable, June Haver, Hope, Harry James and his orchestra, Faye Marlow, Harpo Marx, Fibber McGee and Molly, Carmen Miranda and Sinatra. Others who had a hand in the making include James Van Trees, Fred Sersen and Rollo Flora, Emil Newman, Stanley Rabjohn, Max Golden, Nate Watt, William Eckhardt.

WB FILMS 'AMERICA SPEAKS'

Warners has completed "Mr. and Mrs. America Speak," 150-foot trailer starring Secretary Morgenthau with Edward Arnold narrating. Art Silver produced. Metro has finished "Straight Talk," with Lieut. Comdr. Robert Montgomery, which Jerry Bresler produced with cooperation of Capt. Louis Chappelear.

"Anybody's Kids," starring Bing Crosby and his four sons, also is being completed under Leo McCarey's direction. It is a joint production of RKO and Rainbow.

Lineup of subjects gives the Seventh War Loan ample special film ammunition to get its message over to the bond-buying public.

'CO-PILOT' HEADING FOR SOCKO 72G FOR 1ST WEEK

Warners "God Is My Co-Pilot" at the Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern is pacing local first runs this week and will account for a socko $72,000 or better in the overall estimated total of $265,000 in 20 theatres. Picture opened to boff trade over the weekend and indications are that pace will hold.

"Salty O'Rourke" at the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramounts is racking up fine $45,000 or better, also playing to hefty weekend business. Two other new bills are only fair. Synthetic Celeb In NY On Victory

New York, May 7.—General daytime impression of V-E news was akin to wet firecracker. Synthetic hoopla and ridiculous paper-throwing prevailed, but otherwise everybody was gawking in Times Square. Usual amount of morning drunks caused many wise mid-town pubs and taverns to shutter for the period as more discretionary measure.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Nat Wolff who, as an agent, always worried about the billing of his clients, will now have a billing of his own as adaptor and director of Paul Gallico's "Snow Goose," recorded for Decca. By an amusing coincidence, the voice that will be heard in the star lead belongs to the man whom Nat succeeded in Edna Best's affections—Herbert Marshall. . . . As if Melville Cooper didn't have worries enough with the early demise of "Firebrand of Florence," he was called to the Tombs this week to go $500 bail for his 70-year old valet on charges of vagrancy! And speaking of Cooper, reminds me that his bride, Elizabeth Sutherland, will emerge from her domestic retirement to play one of the leads in Donald Blackwell and William Miles' comedy, "Tailspin." . . . John and Angela Krimsky will be Bev-Hills hotel guests for a three-months' stay, while Johnny combines pleasure with business for Buchannan & Co. . . . Mary Morris, who quit Broadway to become head of the Drama Dept. at Carnegie Tech, is asking for a six-month sabbatical to recreate her original role for the USO overseas unit of "Double Door." This Elizabeth McFadden mystery melo, produced by Shepard Traub and directed by Harold Winston, will be the first tee-off under the new volunteer producers setup. . . . Dick Watts finally caught up with his "secret" crush that he tells everyone about when he had cocktails with Mary Hay Barthelmess.

ADD ARRIVALS: Mary Pickford and Edgar Bergen at the Waldorf. . . . Harriet Parsons at the Plaza. . . . Olivia de Havilland at the St. Regis. . . . Lloyd Nolan, Lewis Milestone and Henry Hathaway at the Sherry Netherland. . . . Ruth Matteson at the Algonquin.

CRITICAL JUDGMENT: When Dick Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein heard that George Jean Nathan had invited his newest rave, Jan Clayton, to cocktails at the Colony, they took her aside and warned her how to dress for the occasion. If Jan had taken their advice, she would have worn no makeup, no chapeau, a wrinkled raincoat, flat heeled shoes and a wistful expression. But she didn't. Instead, she greeted "G. J." in her perkiest wardrobe. "And he liked me anyway," confided Jan. "I'm just as thin as Julie Haydon!"

DISA AND DATA: Sylvia Fine, who has been ailing with an infected jaw ever since her arrival in New York (California realtors please note: This condition has NOTHING to do with New York) will fly back to the coast with her "Danny boy" when he joins her here, enroute to Buffalo for a p. a. appearance in conjunction with the 7th War Loan. . . . Zorina, who made her straw hat debut at Gus Schirmer's summer theatre at Stamford in "Dark Eyes," will play a return engagement this season as "dear Noel's" "Blithe Spirit." . . . And Victor Jory will be the star attraction in a revival of Lynn Riggs' "Roadside," the play which first catapulted Ralph Bellamy to Broadway attention when Arthur Hopkins produced it at the Plymouth Theatre back in 1931. . . . Ray Milland, a Ballet-maniac, played host at a farewell party to the Ballet Russe in his Waldorf suite. . . . If Arnold Pressburger and Michael Powell have their way, Beatrice Pearson will be getting her first glimpse of London as one of the leads in their next English export. . . . Bill Post, Jr., ran into Henry Hathaway at the Players Club, and now he's playing an important part in the F.B.I. drama, "Now It Can Be Told," on location here with Bill Eythe and Lloyd Nolan in the other two leads. . . . "Farewell, My Heart" is the title of Ferenc Molnar's tender and moving autobiog which Simon and Schuster will have in the book stalls next month. . . . Adrian Samish and Pete Yeager have leased the late Heywood Broun's Connecticut home for their bachelor quarters this summer. . . . Wendy Barrie is auditioning a quizzer for Old Gold. . . . June Walker will make her "Round Trip" in a knockout wardrobe by Lange that will introduce her as a glamour girl for the first time in her career—and she's that excited about it! . . . Just as Constance Cummings was ready to leave for England to rejoin her husband, Lt. Benn Levy, she received a cable telling her of his impending visit here. He arrived (30) for their first reunion in almost two years. After a stay of three weeks, they will both return to their home in Chelsea overlooking the Thames. . . . Milton Berle etherizer may switch to San Francisco for special one shot for 7th War Loan Drive. . . . Jean Wallace, who is adding "Tone" to the nursery for the second time, is also playing mother to her six-year old sister, a permanent playmate for her two year old nephew, "Paddy," their own offspring.

CAPSULE CRITICISM: Shirley Booth's pooch was in a playful mood the other day and chewed up the script of "Hollywood Pinafore."

Shirley took it as a good omen. "He ate up every word of it!" was her comment.

ARGENTINA IN UN SOCIETY BUT SHE GETS NO FILM

San Francisco, May 7.—With Argentina admitted into the United Nations Conference on International Organization last week, first thing on the agenda was request from Washington that the country be granted film footage amounting to 5,000,000 feet.

Communications then went back and forth between here and the capital. The east was informed that the quota of film for Latin-American countries had been allotted for the year and currently nothing would be done.

The Latin-American countries took a 25% cut in raw stock film allotment on the 1941 reckoning, but with Argentina cut off they lost no actual footage. However, an authoritative source here stated tonight that the Argentine request would have to remain in status quo until such time as demand for film footage eased up, when something undoubtedly would be done.

RECORD TURNOUT OF COLLARS DUE AT MEET TONIGHT

A record turnout of studio White Collarites is expected tonight at a general membership meeting of Screen Office Employes Guild, as a result of reports that another ballot might be taken on proposal to respect set decorators picket lines. Rank and file leaders were busy on all major lots yesterday urging all members to attend gathering scheduled for the Marquis Theatres on Melrose at 8 p. m., pointing out that a small attendance would enable a minority group to vote 3,000 workers off their jobs.

SOEG has already voted twice on the studio strike situation. First ballot was to respect the picket lines, but another meeting was called a few days later and collarites voted in favor of returning to their jobs in order to protect their basic agreements with the film companies.

EXECS SOUND LEADERS

Studio execs were somewhat disturbed over reports yesterday and were reported sounding out lot leaders on the feeling of a majority of the clerical employes. It was pretty generally agreed by leaders of both factions that any work stoppage move would be pretty sure to be blocked if the attendance was large enough.

Nominations of officers also is scheduled, with a president, veepee, business manager, financial and recording secretaries to be selected in addition to trustee and a warden. There also is considerable interest in the nomination of candidates for delegates to the Conference of Studio Unions, Central Labor Council, Council of Hollywood Guilds and Unions and the San Fernando Valley Central Labor Council. It was reported that Glenn Pratt would be nominated for reelection as business representative without opposition.

DECORATORS GET REPORT

Set decorators met last night at headquarters of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 to receive a report from Business Representative Ed Mussa on recent oral arguments before the National Labor Relations Board in Washington. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, also announced that he had again conferred with representatives of David O. Selznick on the question of completing "Duel In the Sun." He said he advised them production could be resumed on an independent lot, but that he suggested they check on conditions at Technicolor to ascertain whether they would be in a position to handle the work.

Strike interest otherwise was centered on meeting of AF of L Executive Council scheduled for Washington and trial of four IATSE members set for Thursday night. Four members were cited by the IA International after Local 44 voted not to do any work outside its jurisdiction. Control of local also was seized by International and election of officers postponed.

V-E Shots Planned For 'Stork Club'

Suggestions for special shots of V-E Day and night scenes went forward by telegram yesterday from Director Hal Walker to camera crew in New York, for use in B. G. "Buddy" De Sylva's production for Paramount release, "Stork Club."

HELEN GAHAGAN HAS HECKLE BOUT WITH FASCIST DEBBLE

By JACK HELLMAN

San Francisco, May 7.—Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas had a heckle of a good press conference at the Clift hotel this morning. She wanted to talk about the weighty business of world affairs, but a few of the hundred on hand, mostly gal reporters, were interested in the reasons behind her presence here. She was baited time and again and so that it wouldn't be an all-femme affair, Earl Wilson also voiced his curiosity.

Wilson doesn't make many press conferences, but here was his pet columnar subject, glamor, on the dais. No, he didn't ask any personal questions of the lady in Congress, although she oozed more charm than anyone else in the room . . . mebbe he figured she had enough embarrassments with the heckles. No less than three times was she forced to repeat that she was here to be close to the conference and she represented only herself and her Congressional district.

Some hefty gal, probably uninteresting to Wilson, almost broke up the huddle by demanding to know whether Miss Gahagan didn't think Fascism and Communism were of the same stripe. She didn't think so, and the gal kept prodding her until hooted down by some of the more politically-minded newsfolk.

A large gent with a small notebook gave the speaker another uncomfortable moment when he strongly insinuated that her own Hollywood district was well saturated with Fascism. Here she became Helen Gahagan, the actress, and, tossing back her head with tresses flying, dramatically defended the film colony with the bold assertion that "Los Angeles has more democracy than the average place, and that it's a healthy sign everyone expresses himself there." This time with an air of finality and a little to the left of complete composure, she intoned, "I came here for my own illumination and to be of help to other women."

Another sobbie, sensing political implications in her visit, wanted to know why she called a press conference. Mme. Congresswoman said it was in response to many requests. She really wanted to slug it out with Fascism but if she got a decision out of it, it was close. She parried blows much too often to get in a few of her own.

Apparently the reporters up here are none too friendly to our Hollywood politico. Maybe it's that old sectional strife all over again. In all fairness to Mrs. Douglas, however, she made the grade under full steam and never once allowed her disposition to become ruffled. Heckling must be old stuff to her by now.

Columnist Earl Wilson was having his troubles, too, but of a non-political nature. He had Walter Winchell all set to guest on his radio program Sunday night, and at the last minute had to substitute Joe Rosenthal, the Associated Press photographer who made the memorable shot of the flag planting on Iwo Jima. Winchell, who has an aversion to signing papers, refused to put his John Henry to the regular agency form exonerating the client of responsibility for his utterances. There was nothing left to do but to look for another boy.

AFL REPORTED ORDERING WALSH TO REVOKE NEW FILM CHARTERS

Notification that Richard Walsh, IATSE prexy, was being ordered by the American Federation of Labor executive council to revoke studio charters he has issued for carpenters and painters, was received last night by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions. Wire from L. P. Lindeloff, international president of the Brotherhood of Painters, stated:

"Following action taken by executive council this date 'that Richard Walsh be notified that he has been charged with issuing two charters, one to carpenters and one to painters, and also charged that he contemplated issuing other charters. That it is quite evident from his testimony before the executive council that he has issued these charters. That he is ordered to cease and desist issuing charters and to revoke the two charters he has issued, and to settle whatever jurisdictional disputes he may have in accordance with the laws and practices of the AF of L.' "

After Walsh had appeared before the council in regular session in Washington yesterday, board members stated that a statement would be issued today by the AF of L, probably under the signature of George Meany.

Decision ordering Walsh to revoke charters came as a surprise to certain labor tops since the IATSE head had taken the position that only such orders could be issued and enforced by an AF of L national convention.

Walsh could not be reached for a statement as to whether or not he would obey the instructions of the AF of L Executive Council. In speeches on the coast several weeks ago Walsh gave the impression that if it became necessary or advisable his group could "get along without the AF of L." Such a move was considered extremely doubtful, however, since other AF of L Internationals would immediately move in to gobble up his jurisdiction. Action was a decided victory for the Sorrell group and will make it difficult or impossible for Walsh to carry out his promise to furnish decorators, designers, machinists, painters and carpenters to keep production rolling in the studios.

RUSSIA WILL MAKE FEATURE PIC ON CONFERENCE

San Francisco, May 7. — Russia will make a feature picture of the United Nations conference that will be shown in that country as soon as completed.

Andre Gregory Balgiannsky, motion picture film officer for the Russian government, is having the skein of a story written around the conference background, sessions and the city of San Francisco. It is figured the picture could help establish good film relations between the two countries showing the people of the Stalin nation just what is going on here and the importance of the meetings.

It is planned to shoot about 40,000 feet and break it down into 15 reels with the sound. Some color shots may be interpolated into the film.

Chicago, May 7.—An "adults only" sign has just been pinned on Columbia's "Kiss and Tell," starring Shirley Temple here. GRIFFITH CASE GOES TO TRIAL AFTER FIVE YEARS

Oklahoma City, May 7.—Trial of the government's anti-trust suit against four corporations, charging that they should be dissolved as theatre chains, opened in Federal court here today. Suit originally was filed more than five years ago.

The theatre firms defending are Griffith Amusement Co. and the Consolidated Theatres, operating out of Oklahoma City; the R. E. Griffith and Westex Theatres, operating out of Dallas, Tex., and the three Griffith brothers, R. E., L. C., and H. J.

DEATH ENDS ONE CASE

Death of R. E. Griffith since the suit was filed was called to the attention of the court today and the case against him dismissed.

Robert L. Wright, special assistant attorney general, in his opening statement accused the defendants of having combined their purchasing power so as to exclude other exhibitors from the opportunity to obtain films. Assisting Wright for the government are Posey Kimes and Milton Kallis.

Attorneys for the defendants include Charles B. Cochran, John B. Dudley, Henry Griffing and L. M. Rice. Cochran made a general denial of the government charges.

HEAR WITNESSES TODAY

Hearing of witnesses is scheduled to begin tomorrow. Attorneys hope to complete the case in three weeks.

Present at the trial are John F. Caskey and Robert E. Nickersonof, of New York. They are representing five distributors—Loew's, Fox, Warner Bros., RKO and Paramount—who originally were named defendants but against whom the case has been dismissed.
